"Oh, nothing like that!" Carley side-stepped—to use his own vernacular—as he went to look for a waiter, and I sank into the downy cushions and closed my eyes.

It was fatal to be so tired at the beginning of the season, but after all, wasn't the whole game much more like work than play? This constant effort to keep going, to be seen, to be spoken of, to be in the public eye and on the public lips—I felt years old. It was like a shrieking mania, endless—maddeningly monotonous. Luncheons, teas, bridge, dinners, balls, the opera—the day's business with little or no variety. Small wonder we had all gone mad about Dolly Brooke! She was new, different—the breath of another world almost—shining, effervescent, aerial Dolly, who had shot into our midst like a rocket from the skies and sent her sparks darting out among us.

A sound other than the murmuring of the fountain caused me to open my eyes. Dolly and her companion had come nearer the half open doors of the conservatory and I could distinctly hear their voices.

"And now you see how I have succeeded," she was saying with a little laugh, "you needn't have been afraid."

I did not hear the man's answer, for it was probably whispered as he bent over her.

"They'll never know," she went on. "How should they? Why, even Monsieur Geraud"——

And just then Carley came back, but I'd had time to notice that the man's figure, which I had taken for granted as that of the artist, was not French but American. The face was turned half from me, and in the darkness of the conservatory I could not distinguish the features.

If I Were King Cophetua—By Sydney C. Haley.

MY witching, witty Cressida
This quiz before me laid:—
"If thou wert King Cophetua,
And I thy Beggar Maid,
What gracious gift wouldst thou design
For our betrothal, lover mine,
When I, thy chosen bride, should shine
In royal robes arrayed?"

WHEN to my witty Cressida
I said:—"My dearest dear,
If I were King Cophetua
And ruled a hemisphere,
I'd make for thee a golden crown
To press thy bonny locks of brown,
With jewels bright as thy renown,
Whose facets should ensphere

THE glories of the starry night
And of the sunset sea;
And each should gleam, for my delight,
Symbolical of thee;
Fair-beaming BERYLS should foretell
Thy HAPPINESS, my bonnibel;
And flashing DIAMONDS should spell
Thy sunny PURITY.

IN many a purple AMETHYST,
TRUE LOVE—'tis mine and thine;
And tawny GARNETS, fire-kist
For maiden GRACE divine;
And flamy OPALS would foreshow
Undying HOPE; and in the glow
Of skyey SAPPHIRES all should know
How CONSTANCY may shine.

FAIR PEARLS for flawless INNOCENCE;
And IMMORTALITY
OF LOVE, and his omnipotence
Through weal and woe, should be
Betokened in the lucent green
Of priceless EMERALDS, whose sheen
Would deck the crown of my dear Queen
If Cressida were she.

NOW tell me, witty Cressida,
What you would pay for this?"
"If you were King Cophetua,"
She said, "alas, a kiss
Were all I'd have, I'm much afraid,
Were I a lowly Beggar Maid—
A sorry price, indeed, if paid,
For such high benefice!"

NAY, all the golden crowns of earth
And kingdoms fair and wide,
My Cressida, were never worth
So sweet a price," I cried;
Then, with her angel-eyes upturned,
Wherein Love's luring lanterns burned,
(Through curv-ed lashes, half-discerned),
Demurely she replied:—

ALREADY thou art King, I swear,
Of all my heart's romance;
Thy faith shall be the crown I'll wear;
Our royal heritance
Love's great and glorious domain,
Where thou and I shall jointly reign."
And then, to prove her promise fain,
She paid me—IN ADVANCE.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE ON TO GET BURLEIGH FALLS POWER

Central Ontario Power Company Makes Proposition to City and Power Committee is Considering it—4,000 Horse Power Can be Supplied at $7.50 Per Horse Power.

Mr R J McLaughlin, KC, and Mr J. A Culverwell, CE, waited on the city council, which met in committee of the whole last night and presented a proposition regarding the sale of Burleigh Falls power to the city. For the present however, it was decided by the council not to make the price public.

Mayor Rush presided and all the Aldermen were present except Ald. Morrow and Ald. McIntyre.

The following letter from Mr. McLaughlin was read:—

Re Burleigh Falls—

May 19, 1909

H Rush, Esq. Mayor.

And to the Aldermen of the City of Peterborough;

Gentlemen,—I am authorized by the Central Ontario Power Company, Ltd. to offer for sale to you the properties of the Company at Burleigh Falls comprising their lands and water power rights held in fee simple and the agreement with the Government of the Dominion of Canada which gives the company an absolute control of the water power at that place subject only to the rights of the Government of Canada for navigation purposes for the price of ——— in the four per cent debentures of the city of Peterborough or at the option of the city in cash.

Yours truly,
R. J. McLAUGHLIN

May 19, 1909

H. Rush, Esq.
Mayor of the City of Peterborough,

Dear Sir,—In reference to the resolution passed by your council on the 6th inst, I am enclosing you herewith an offer for the sale of Burleigh Falls properties. I am also enclosing an original report of Andrew F. MacCallum, CE, consulting engineer, also city engineer for the city of Hamilton.

In connection with this offer I wish to make the following observations; The title of the company to the Burleigh Falls power is originally a fee simple. It is not in the ordinary sense "leased power," as the Government of Canada never expropriated Burleigh Falls, consequently the title of the company is similar to that of the powers in the city of Peterborough and at Nassau which were not expropriated, but instead of compensation for the diversion of water for canal purposes the owners of the Burleigh Falls powers have accepted an agreement with the Dominion of Canada for the use of the Government dam at this point. This agreement was drawn for sixty years and there is nominal rental of one dollar a year. At the expiration of the sixty years the power does not revert to the Government and the Government would not be in a position to give the power to anyone else as the company owns in fee simple the water power rights and it is expressly provided that this agreement shall not affect the title which the company otherwise has to the property. The effect of the agreement is merely to define the rights of the company and the Government. At this price the city would be paying an equivalent of a rental of five thousand dollars a year for Burleigh for four thousand horse power. I think we must assume that the price the Government charges for the power it owns is reasonable. The Government's price would be two dollars per horse power or say at least six thousand dollars per annum, so you will see that the company is offering you the power at a considerably lower annual charge than it could be obtained from the Government and a considerably lower charge than what is paid by the lessees of Government power on the Otonabee river. It may be said that this power is situated further away from Peterborough than some of the small powers that have been leased by the Government and developed nearer the city of Peterborough but the extra cost of transmission lines is much more than offset by the economy in the development of a large body of power and lower pro rata cost of operation. It will cost very little more to operate a plant of four thousand horse power than for one of a thousand. It is no harder work for men in charge to look upon the flow of Burleigh Falls pass into the turbines than it would be on one of the little powers.

I think if we were to offer you the lease of ten hundred or twelve hundred horse power at two dollars a horse power on the river you would very quickly take it

This matter is large, but is it too large for the assured prospects of your city. In looking over the engineer's report I think you will come to the same conclusion that I have done that is that his figures are very conservative, that the prices put down for power house and other matters of developments are sufficiently large to cover all contingencies. We desire that this should be so.

You will notice the engineer's report figures three thousand five hundred and fifty horse power delivered at Peterborough for an annual charge that is exceedingly low, in round numbers about $7.50 a horse power. This, we think, cannot be excelled anywhere. It is about one-third of the cost of Niagara power to the western cities of Ontario. In considering Burleigh and comparing it with any of the powers on the Otonabee River, it must be especially borne in mind that the reservoir gives Burleigh a great additional value by enabling the water to be stored during the period of low load at night, and as a result gives much additional power during the working day. Then the large area of Stony Lake spreads the freshet and prevents this power from suffering from back water as the others do. The reservoir above will also have the effect of preventing a temporary interference with the flow of the water by reason of lockages, which will often seriously lessen the river powers. I am not saying anything about the greatly increased head that will be given to this power when the proposed new dam is erected and the enormous reservoir will then be behind it. If your city accept this proposition you will be obtaining a power sufficiently large to be economically operated and to enable you to offer the highest inducements possible to incoming manufacturers, namely, cheap power for all time to come. You will be obtaining the power at a lower annual rate than the Dominion Government have been charging the other Power Companies, and at the same time you will be obtaining a power that will have forty or fifty per cent. more actual efficiency than a river power of the same head.

You will note that Engineer MacCallum's figures are $7.50 for horse power for twenty-four hours yearly delivered, transformed and ready for distribution.

Yours truly,
R. J. McLAUGHLIN.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The engineer's report referred to is as follows:—

Toronto, May 15th, 1909.

The Directors of the Central Power Co., Limited, Peterborough and Toronto:

Gentlemen,—Pursuant to your instructions, I beg to report as follows upon the proposed electric power development at Burleigh Falls (owned by your Company) after a careful examination of the vicinity made last fall. I have also examined the reports of several hydraulic and electric engineers previously made, together with tenders submitted for power house at Perry's ravine.

LOCATION.

Burleigh Falls is located in the County of Peterborough, about eighteen miles from the city of Peterborough, in a northerly direction, at a point known as the Narrows, between Lovesick and Stoney Lakes, upon the route of the Trent Valley Canal. The difference of head between these two lakes which can be obtained and to which the Company is entitled (according to terms of agreement with the Dominion Government) is twenty-seven (27) feet. By raising the canal lock-gates and stop-logs of dam one foot, this head of 27 feet can be secured. At present owing to the fact that the levels of Stoney Lake have been altered by the Department of Canals by the raising of the dam at Young's Point, the head is somewhat less than given above. The aforesaid difference of elevation of 27 feet can be maintained by the Government raising the elevation of the dam at Burleigh Falls.

POWER DEVELOPMENT.

From the recent report of William Kennedy, jr., C.E., of Montreal, corroborated by figures obtained by Mr. Henderson, the superintendent of the City of Peterborough Waterworks at the dam a few miles above Peterborough, the flow of the Otonabee River at ordinary low river flow is 65,000, sixty-five thousand cubic feet per minute. The flow at this point and at Burleigh Falls is practically the same, the extra water shed being offset by evaporation, and also diversion down Indian River at the eastern end of Stoney Lake.

The Lovesick Lake reservoir is sufficient to provide for a flow of about fifty per cent, greater than the amount given above, as it has an area of one and a half square miles. This is assumed to cover the period of working hours each day, and without interfering with navigation below on account of the large area of Stoney Lake.

With modern wheel efficiency four thousand horse power (4,000) can thus be developed at Burleigh Falls by the utilization of the Lovesick reservoir.

SITE FOR POWER HOUSE.

The two best locations are, namely;—

First, upon Perry's Ravine, and, secondly, upon an overflow channel just east of the lock channel, at present held back by the Government retaining wall.

In Perry's Ravine the power house would be located at the lower end of the ravine, adjacent to Stoney Lake; and in the second case the power-house would be located at the head of the inlet of Stoney Lake, just behind the hotel.

Either of these power-house sites is quite feasible, and the economy of construction differ very little.

The dam at Burleigh Falls is already built and is maintained by the Dominion Government for canal navigation purposes. Your company holding a sixty-years' agreement with the Dominion Government (in lieu of damages for abstraction of canal lockage water) will, therefore, not be under the necessity of constructing the dam across the river or maintaining the the same.

Your company, in the above agreement, has the right to remove the small dams from the entrances to Perry's Ravine, also to place a power house at the lower end adjacent to Stoney Lake, and to use the surplus water not required for navigation of the said Trent Valley Canal

The Dominion Government also agrees "to control, maintain and regulate the water levels or supply so that the same may be of advantage to or may tend to serve the purposes of the company."

In comparison with the water power developments that I have already examined in Canada and particularly those I have noted in the vicinity of Peterborough, I would state that this power, owing to the conditions already cited, can be developed at a comparatively low cost.

Having a lake immediately above the power house should eliminate any trouble that may be encountered by frazil ice so detrimental to powers located on rivers.

MARKET FOR POWER.

Within easy transmission distance from Burleigh Falls is a city and town population of over forty thousand. The chief market, however, is the city of Peterborough, having a population of nearly eighteen thousand — distant southerly eighteen miles. About forty miles further south-westerly from Peterborough are located Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby, using now about three thousand steam horse power. But the natural outlet for this electric power should be the city of Peterborough, with its present needs and probable large manufacturing developments.

CAPITAL COST OF DEVELOPMENT

The capital cost of developing the four thousand horse power at Burleigh Falls will be as follows;

Cost of concrete in ... power house and dam, flumes including rock excavation, racks, draft tubes, etc., complete	$ 27,000 00
Wheels with exciter wheels and governors, complete	26,000 00
Four electrical generators of one thousand h. p. each, exciters and switch-boards, lightening arresters, etc.	52,000 00
Step-up transformers	18,500 00
Transmission lines from Burleigh to Peterboro'	24 500 00
Sub-station at Peterborough with step-down transformers	19,500 00
Contingencies and engineering and interest during construction	18 500 00
Total capital cost	$186,000 00

Allowing for losses of electrification the amount of power delivered and transformed at Peterborough ready for distribution will be 3,550 horse power, or at a capital cost per horse power of about $52 00.

To this, of course, must be added the cost of the Burleigh Falls power property, including the deeds and Dominion Government agreement. Taking the valuation of Wm. Kennedy, jr., C.E., of Montreal, made for the city of Peterborough October 28, 1901, re waterworks property, this valuation of Burleigh Falls is extremely reasonable.

COST OF OPERATION (YEARLY)

For delivering of power transformed and ready for distribution at Peterborough, viz;

General expenses
Superintendent and three men	$3,500 00
Supplies	2,300 00
Repairs	4,200 00
Depreciation or sinking fund	3,750 00
Incidentals	800 00

or $7.60 per electrical horse power delivered to Peterborough, transformed and ready for distribution, namely, 3,550 horse power.

In the above very liberal estimate of operating expenses and capital costs it is assumed that the city of Peterborough debentures will be at the rate of 4 per cent., and that there will be no taxes as the county does not pay taxes on their property in the city of Peterborough

All of which I respectfully submit for your consideration.

Faithfully yours,
ANDREW F. MACALLUM,
B.B. Sc., C.E.

After the reading of the letter and the report of the engineer, the aldermen discussed the proposition with Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Culverwell, and after some additional information had been secured, Ald. Bradburn moved, and Ald. Phelan seconded, that the matter be referred to the Power Committee. This was carried.

Mr. Culverwell made an attack on the Seymour Electric Power Company. The company, he said, could not carry out what they had proposed to the city of Peterborough

57TH REGIMENTAL BAND WAS HEARD TO GREAT ADVANTAGE

Gave Interesting and Brilliantly Played Programme Last Night at Conservatory Music Hall—A Nicely Balanced Selection of Numbers

The concert given by the 57th Regimental Band was a most fitting one after the band had as long a season of non-appearance for the programme was one that served to show the capability and versatility of the band in the playing of both heavy and less pretentious numbers. A nice range was covered by the selections and the audience which assembled at the Conservatory Music Hall was a most appreciative and interested one.

The band has been faithfully practising during the winter and spring season and the results of the well directed leadership of Mr Glidden was shown by the excellent effect and balance of tone in the various numbers. In the more difficult numbers the musicians played with musicianly skill and discrimination and in their lighter pieces gave them a piquancy and finish that met with the popular approval of the audience.

The opening selection was a spirited march, "Our Director," and was well received. This was followed by one of the most beautiful and striking overtures arranged for band production, Rossini's "Barber of Seville." The overture was listened to with great attention and received with appreciative applause.

Sergt. Hughes cornet solo "Sing me to Sleep," was given with fine sympathy and met with great applause. The popular and whistleable intermezzo, "Rainbow" made a hit and had to be repeated, so prolonged was the applause. Some very pretty and tuneful melodies were introduced in the rendition of the score of the musical comedy success, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," and the two-step novelty "Hoop-e-Kack" has many original and appealing bars. It was greeted with an encouraging recall.

"Don't Take Me Home," is a medley arrangement of Harry Von Tilzer's best sellers and contains "Just One Sweet Girl" "I Remember You," "When Highland Mary did the Highland Fling" and other melodies of popular strain.

Miss Julia Choate the accomplished and popular young violiniste of the Conservatory of Music staff was accorded a flattering reception when she appeared for her violin solo value "Capriccio," by Wieniaski. The number was exquisitely given and Miss Choate was most heartily encored.

For the first time the band gave the grand hunting fantasie, "La Fremersburg" by Koennemann. The descriptive features of this number are outstanding in their realistic quality and the band took full advantage of the many opportunities that were afforded for the presentation of this striking tone picture. It is rich in picturesque effect and has a wide range of tone color. It was one of the strongest numbers of the evening and permitted an interesting study of the band's very evident ability from the finest shading to the most rousing crescendos.

The concert was given for the purpose of raising funds to contribute towards the expenses of the entertainment of the bands visiting here for the opening of the armories on Monday morning.

A QUESTION OF HEALTH

Without Rich, Red Blood You Cannot be Healthy—How to Obtain This Blessing

If every woman and young girl would realize the danger of allowing blood to become thin and poor, would understand that the majority common diseases are caused by an anaemic (or bloodless) condition, that persistent pallor means that the blood is not furnishing the organs with the required amount of nourishment, there would be awakened interest in the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This blood means starved nerves, weakened digestion, functional disorders, headaches, frequently neuralgia, sciatica, and even partial paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood, repair waste and prevent and check disease. They fill the system with rich, red blood which means good health and life.

Miss Marie Dionnem St. Angele, Que., says:—"I am deeply grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. My blood had almost turned to water. I was pale, had no appetite, suffered from pains in the back and side, and had a feeling of constant depression. The smallest exertion would leave me breathless, and I was reduced in flesh until I weighed only 98 pounds. I got nothing to help me until I began the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They began helping me after the first couple of weeks, and in a few weeks more I was again perfectly well. The color returned to my cheeks, the pain left me, and I gained in weight until now I weigh 130 pounds. I feel so happy for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me that I hope some other ailing, miserable girl will profit by my experience and obtain new health.

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW A PRIZE WINNING SWINDLE WAS WORKED

Joe Carroll, who is well known to wrestling fans as a former manager of Frank Gotch, and afterwards as trainer for Dr. Roller, the Seattle wrestler, is under arrest at Council Bluffs, Ia., charged with membership in the famed Mayoray gang of swindlers. R. H. Harriman and Thomas Gay, who with Marsh, are accused of participating in the biggest "bunco" game, also are held at Council Bluffs. All three gave heavy bail.

Marsh formerly lived in Seattle and Bellingham and has many friends among the sporting fraternity in both towns. He is a wrestler himself of no mean ability. During his residence in Seattle no hint of his alleged connection with the remarkable gang of swindlers ever was made. So far as his friends know he was always "on the square".

CLEANED UP THOUSANDS.

Numerous members of the Maybray gang were arrested in Little Rock, Ark., last February by the federal authorities. They have been extradited and are now in Council Bluffs awaiting trial. The gang is said to be one of the cleverest aggregations of swindlers that ever operated in the country. They had three games—wrestling, horse racing matches and foot racing. They numbered some twenty-four of the cleverest crooks in the United States. A set of wrestlers and their "managers" would be assigned to one territory; a foot racer and his "manager" to another, and the horseman another. Altogether the gang is said to have cleaned up at least $444,000. The gang lived in a superb mansion in Little Rock, and posed as a business firm. They had letterheads, officers elected and every external appearance of a legitimate corporation.

The specific charge against Marsh and the two men arrested with him is the alleged game which they are said to have worked on J. E. Cavanaugh, of St. Louis, who lost $84,000 on a fake wrestling match in New Orleans. James Tierney, of Los Angeles, is also alleged to have been fleeced out of $10,000 on the same fake match. At the time Gay, the other participants in the match as supposed to have been killed by Marsh in the wrestling bout. On his way home Cavanaugh was so overcome by the plea which Harriman, the third member of the trio made, that he gave $50 in addition to pay "burial" expenses of Gay. It was this last bit of humor on the part of the alleged swindler that induced Cavanaugh to offer a fortune for the conviction of the gang.

HOW GAME WAS WORKED

At the time that Gay, Marsh and Harriman were associated together, the two latter are said to have gone under the names of George Rogers and George Wilson, respectively. J. E. Cavanaugh, who is wealthy lumberman well known in St Louis and St Joseph, Mo. was persuaded by Harriman to back Gay in a wrestling match against Marsh. They went together to New Orleans where Gay fell bleeding profusely from the mouth, from a broken sack of beef's blood, which he carried in his mouth. A doctor, alleged to be in on the game, bent over him and pronounced him dead. Cavanaugh went away with Harriman and concluded that he had been honestly beaten.

In addition to the fake wrestling matches charged against the gang, the fake foot races against the gang would fill a chapter by themselves. In addition to Cavanaugh and Tierney some of those who alleged they lost money to the supposed gang are; J M Bulken, of Princeton, Mo, $5,300; J C Bowman, of Silverton, Ohio, $13,700; R L King, of Fowler, Col. $9000; J H Walker, of Denver, $5,000; J E Harrington, of Bartsell, Col. $4000; Edward Jones, of Holly, Col. $9000; W A Ketchell, Denver $2000.

The operations of the gang extended from ocean to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada for a period of several years. Another of the alleged members, Bdme B Jacobs, was recently arrested in Denver. Jacobs was the "manager" of Ernest L. Powers now held on bond in Denver for alleged buncoing of J C Bowman out of $13,700 by means of a fake foot race pulled off at Council Bluffs. Powers is well known in Denver as an old time foot ball player for the Denver University and the Denver Wheel Club.

The alleged swindlers did their work unknown, for the victims themselves did not know they had been swindled until the great rounding up of the crooks took place at Little Rock and their games were exposed. Then the police department of every large city in the country was besieged by complaining victims.

Ole Marsh was at Vancouver with Frank Gotch when the latter wrestled Dan McLeod at Brockton Point, and later came again with Dr B F. Roller when the latter, then an amateur, broke into the professional game by tackling Jack Carleek at the Vancouver Athletic Club opening event. On that occasion Marsh made a speech from the ring at the VAC. in which he indignantly denied all connection with a bunch of athletic fakirs which were at that time being exposed by a Seattle paper. It was claimed that a number of fake wrestling and boxing contests had been pulled off in a large houseboat on the shores of Lake Washington and it was hinted that Marsh and Carleek knew something about it. Marsh proclaimed his entire innocence of any connection with that clique and made his spiel so strong with the audience at the VAC. on that occasion really believed it at the time.

VICTORIA DAY WAS ROYALLY CELEBRATED IN PETERBOROUGH

VICTORIA DAY CELEBRATED ALL OVER BRITISH EMPIRE

Fine Weather, Many Sporting Events and a Few Fires Mark the Day Throughout Canada—Labor Educational Association Meets at Berlin—Windsor's Playground.

London, May 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Messages received indicate that Empire Day was celebrated in all parts of the Empire with greater enthusiasm than ever.

There was a splendid display of imperial patriotism in London and the great cities, while the British colony in Berlin, numbering 500, observed the occasion for the first time. The chief item in the capital was the review of 10,000 children by "Bobs." It is estimated that throughout the Empire nearly 7,000,000 children celebrated the day.

For the first time London had an organized celebration. Five thousand uniformed school boys marched through the main streets of the capital to Hyde Park. Here all the children gathered and saluted the national flag, as well as the emblems of 56 dominions and colonies.

Toronto, May 25.—With ideal weather in nearly every one of the inland cities of Canada Victoria Day was given a magnificent celebration yesterday. A storm raged on the Nova Scotian coast, and seriously interfered with the gaiety, but elsewhere in the Dominion the Imperial sentiment reigned supreme.

The day was chiefly taken up with sports, lacrosse, baseball, horse racing, and innumerable Marathons.

Two serious fires and a dozen more minor blazes, the latter from fireworks, kept the Toronto department busy.

Over $6,000 damage was done by a fire of unknown origin, which broke out in the second floor of the three-storey brick building at 49 to 57 Hayter street, and the Island school was burned.

A sky-rocket falling on the roof of Palmer Merritt's residence, 873 East King street, Hamilton, between 11 and 12 last night, caused about $800 damage to building and contents. The roof was entirely burned off.

Other smaller fires are reported throughout the province.

At Berlin.

Berlin, May 25.—The seventh annual convention of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario was held in Berlin yesterday, with practically every industrial centre in Ontario represented.

The following officers were elected: President, C. G. Bird, Hamilton (re-elected); first vice-president, W. A. Brown, Ottawa; second vice-president, James Harmon, Toronto; third vice-president, W. Gladstone, Brantford; fourth vice-president, W. J. Driscoll, Kingston; fifth vice-president, G. Taylor, Sarnia; secretary-treasurer, O. H. Zimmer, Berlin (accl.).

Windsor, May 25.—The new public playground was formally opened yesterday, speeches being made by Mayor Wigle, Hon. Dr. Reaume, Hon. R. F. Sutherland and others.

It was a great holiday.

Not for years has the 24th of May been celebrated in Peterborough in such a royal manner. The weather, was truly "King's Weather" and there was nothing to mar the enjoyment of the day. All that was asked to make the celebration a success was fine weather and if it had been made to order, yesterday's brand could not have been improved upon. On Sunday and Monday the sun smiled on Peterborough with his kindest smile and everybody was happy.

When the Brantford and St Catharines regiments pulled out of Peterborough last night they were unanimous that they had had the time of their life. Peterborough had lavished its hospitality upon them and they heartily appreciated their warm reception. And one would not want to meet better fellows than the boys from the western cities. It was a pleasure to make them welcome and to do everything in one's power to give them a good time.

It must be said that when it comes to entertaining the officers, non-coms and men of the 57th regiment are a little better than the best of them. They deserve the congratulations of the citizens for the arranging and carrying out of the military demonstration. The church parade, the review at Riverside park, and the formal opening of the armories were the big events of Sunday and the holiday. The lacrosse match, trips over the lift lock and the opening of the six days walk were other features that were largely patronized.

The Brantford and St. Catharines regiments arrived early Sunday morning and camped at Central park. Lt.-Col. Ashton was in command of the Telephone City men and Col. Campbell commanded the St. Catharines corps. The Brantford regiment was about 400 strong and the 19th had in the neighborhood of 300 of all ranks.

The visiting regiments with their crack bands made a fine appearance and won praise from the militia of Peterborough and the citizens generally. Their conduct here was of the best, especially when it is considered that a large assembly of soldiers on a holiday outing has a tendency to produce some "rough house." The boys had plenty of good-natured fun but were careful to see that no property was damaged.

Peterborough was looking at its best on Sunday and the holiday and the visitors were struck with the great natural beauty of the city and impressed with its numerous industries and points of interest.

The lift lock, over which trips were made yesterday afternoon, came in for much comment.

It was after eleven o'clock last night when the "soldiers marched away." They were tired but happy. The Dufferin Rifles entrained at the C.P.R. and the St Catharines regiment at the Grand Trunk. As the trains pulled out the visitors gave hearty cheers for Peterborough.

HON. MR. PUGSLEY GAVE OVER THE KEYS

Formal Opening of New Armouries---Brilliant Scene on Morning of Holiday--Militia of Peterborough Congratulated.

Several thousand people were in attendance at the formal opening of the new armories, at 11.30 o'clock. The three regiments were lined up in Central Park about a hundred feet east of the armories, and the space between them and the building was packed with civilians. Hundreds had a view of the proceedings from vantage points on the roof of the armories and in the rooms at the front of the buildings, the windows being thrown open. Just north of the main entrance from the park a platform had been erected, and from it the speeches were made. On the platform, which was profusely decorated, were the Hon. Dr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works; Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.; Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P.; His Worship Mayor Rush, and many of the officers of the local garrison and the visiting regiments. The scene was a brilliant one. The sun shown brightly, and the bright uniforms of the military men and the many colored costumes of the hundreds of ladies in attendance added a wealth of color to the gathering.

Mr Stratton presided and, in opening the proceedings gave a short address. He extended a hearty welcome to the visiting regiments and complimented them and the 57th regiment on the fine showing they had made on parade. He also extended a cordial greeting to the Minister of Public Works and congratulated his department on the splendid work that had been done in erecting the new armories at Peterborough. Mr. Stratton referred to the high standard of Canada's citizen soldiers and alluded to the splendid record of Canadian troops when they had been called upon to aid in the defence of the empire. He was confident that the men in uniform who he saw before him would do their duty to King and country, if the occasion arose. Mr Stratton congratulated the Government on having given Peterborough splendid armories. He did not know if Mr Pugsley was a soldier, but he did know that he had been on the firing line for the past two or three weeks. In concluding, Mr Stratton said he hoped the time would again come when the visiting regiments would visit Peterborough for a second time, and that Hon Dr. Pugsley would come back again in the near future.

Mr. Stratton then called upon His Worship Mayor Rush, who spoke as follows:—

Hon Mr. Pugsley, Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:—

The governing body which I have the honor of representing tonight is not of the same importance as the other governing bodies, which manage the affairs and guide the destinies of the Dominion and of the Province but I thank you on behalf of the City Council for including it in your good wishes and for honoring it as you have done. The City Council does not bulk as large as our Parliaments in the affairs of the country, but the duties it has to perform and its influence upon the interests of the community which it is called upon to govern and which it serves come close to the people and have an important and immediate bearing upon their comfort and their safety. In Peterborough the council endeavors to serve the interests of the people faithfully and whatever mistakes it may have made, the growth and prosperity of the city furnishes evidence that, working with public spirited and energetic citizens, its efforts have met with a measure of success. An increase of about fifty per cent in the population in ten years while not forgetting the great natural advantages the city has, seems to show that the affairs of the city have been guided with enterprise that has brought advancement, while the sound commercial and financial position of the municipality does not show a lack of prudence. And we look forward to increased growth and prosperity. We have still the advantages which have attracted so many and such large manufacturing industries as we now have, and these advantages will secure the location of additional industries but along with these we are looking forward to a new era of advancement when the great national waterway, the Trent Canal, is completed. We are pleased that the Dominion Government is pushing forward the completion of that great work to the south, and we can say to the Hon. Minister who represents that Government here tonight and to the representatives in Parliament that we are grateful to them for going forward with the construction of the waterway, and we can further say that our gratitude will be augmented by the speed with which they complete the work necessary to remove the corks at both ends and give us water communication with Lake Ontario and the Georgian Bay.

I desire to thank Mr. Stratton for the privilege of being present on this occasion to meet the Hon Dr Pugsley and the officers of the regiments now honoring Peterborough by their visit to us. We congratulate the officers on the appearance and bearing of the men under their command, showing the training and the spirit which makes true British soldiers and we hope that we will again have the pleasure of welcoming them to Peterborough. The Dominion Government has been doing work in and near Peterborough through more than one of its departments, for while the Railways and Canals department has been giving attention to the Trent Waterway, the Departments of Public Works and Militia have been providing for the accommodation and comfort of the Peterborough garrison and the Hon Dr. Pugsley's department has also been doing useful work on our river harbor which has been of double benefit to the city. We are pleased indeed that he has come to see the city in which this work has been going on and we are sure that what he has seen will not make him less vigorous in meeting the needs of this growing community. We are pleased, also, to welcome the Minister as a distinguished representative from a sister Province, down by the sea, for whatever Province we come from, or to what race we belong, in this Dominion we are all Canadians, proud of our country and its people and confident of its future greatness as one of the important portions of the great British Empire.

In introducing Mr. R. R. Hall, Mr. Stratton said that the ex-member for West Peterborough had been largely instrumental in securing the new armories for Peterborough.

MR. R. R. HALL.

Mr. Hall said that it was five years ago that negotiations were commenced for the erection of new armories here. The militia of Peterborough were to be congratulated on having such a fine home, and the speaker had no doubt but that they would continue to go forward and always be a credit to the city and Canada. Mr. Hall welcomed the city's visitors, and complimented the three regiments assembled on their fine appearance.

HON. DR. PUGSLEY.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley said he was delighted to have an opportunity to visit Peterborough. He was glad to be here to open the new armories, and it gave him pleasure to visit one of the Dominion's foremost manufacturing centres.

"I am delighted with your beautiful city," he said, "and I know there are great things in store for it."

Peterborough, Mr. Pugsley said, was fortunate in getting work started on the new armories when it did. If it had been delayed a year or perhaps less the probabilities were that it would not yet be under weigh, for the government had to be very economical.

Mr. Pugsley paid a high tribute to Canada's citizen soldiery. "Show me a loyal and true soldier," he said, "and I know I have a good citizen."

The speaker referred to the value Lord Strathcona placed upon military training, as evidenced by the donation of a large sum of money to further this work in the schools of Canada.

Mr. Pugsley referred to another phase of his visit to Peterborough. It gave him an opportunity to see the great waterway, the Trent Canal, which will connect the great lakes with the St. Lawrence. The Government had confidence in the undertaking and the canal would be completed as rapidly as possible.

In handing over the keys of the armories to Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, the Minister of Public Works expressed the hope that the militia of Peterborough would spend many happy days and years in their new home.

RECEIVED THE KEYS.

Lieut.-Col. Stevenson accepted the bunch of keys amid an outburst of applause. The 57th regiment, he said, should be better than ever now that it had such fine quarters.

After this the band played "God Save the King," which was followed by cheers for the King, the Minister of Public Works and the visiting regiments.

NORWOOD MAN MEETS DEATH

Walter McLaughlin Killed at Parry Sound—Was Fireman on a Freight

Parry Sound, May 25.—A car standing on one of the sidings at the station here Sunday night was the cause of a fatal accident.

A young man, Walter McLaughlin, a machinist, living at Norwood, Ont., was acting temporarily as fireman of a north bound freight, and while leaning out of the engine cab window, his head came in contact with the corner of a box car and was split open.

He died a short time after the accident while physicians were operating on him.

Fire-Cracker Caused Fire.

St. Catharines, May 25.—Saturday the jewelry and novelty store conducted by A. J. Jackson was gutted by fire and the stock completely destroyed. Jackson was showing some children how to manage fire works and had lighted a fire-cracker. He was swinging it, when it slipped and sparks caught on to other fire works in the open window. Fire works shot in every direction. Loss about $3,500, $1,200 insurance.

A VICTORY FOR SUFFRAGETTES

Secretary of War Haldane Says He Believes in Votes for Women

London, May 25.—After uproarious suffragette scenes at Westminster Hall Secretary of War Haldane declared himself in favor of votes for women on the ground that the whole tendency of the age is toward minimizing differences of sex and their political consequences.

He said there had lately been a reaction against woman suffrage, which he regretted, but it would only be temporary, and women would get the right to vote as soon as it became the general will of the nation, which it was the business of Parliament to interpret.

A deputation of women at Sheffield interviewed Walter Runciman, president of the board of education, who pronounced himself in favor of their cause.

The English suffragettes expect their campaign of riot to culminate at the Lyceum Club banquet, at which the Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Liberal leader in the House of Lords, is to be the guest of honor.

DARING ATTEMPT

At Robbery on George St. Last Night—Tried to Snatch Watch.

A daring attempt to steal a watch was made last night in front of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company at about 10 o'clock. A young man was walking along the street when a passerby attempted to snatch his watch, which he was carrying with fob attached in his trousers' pocket. In the struggle he fell down on the pavement and rolled over onto the road. The wouldbe pickpocket made a dash for liberty and got away in the big crowd.

A Melville, Sask., resident was fined $10 for shooting a prairie chicken and duck out of season.

MARRIED TOO MUCH

W. J. Cameron is Given Three Years at Winnipeg —Had Three Wives

Winnipeg, May 25.—A much married man named W. J. Cameron was sent to the penitentiary for three years by Magistrate McMicken on Saturday. Evidence showed that he had been married three times since 1906, and at least two of his wives are still alive, although he states that one of them is dead. He married his first wife in Ottawa, then came west to Winnipeg and married a Miss Porter in 1907; but, tiring of her, he returned east and annexed a bride in Toronto. The last wife is now residing in Ottawa, while the second is a resident of Kenora. He got entangled with a charge of theft here, and, although this was not proven, it led to an investigation of his past and the discovery of his bigamy. He pleaded guilty and went to the penitentiary for three years.

In addition to the three marriages, correspondence found on Cameron at the time he was arrested showed that he was engaged to marry a fourth in the near future.

WARNS CATHOLICS AGAINST ORDERS

Archbishop Bruchesi Comes Out Against Masons, Knights of Pythias and Oddfellows

Montreal, May 25.—Archbishop Bruchesi, in the course of a pastoral charge delivered at Longueuil yesterday, referred to the growth of several Masonic lodges in the province. He regretted to say there were French-Canadians who were members, and that recruiting was going on. The archbishop reminded his hearers that the consequence was the members of lodges who were mostly affiliated with the Grand Orient of France were not in communion with the Catholic Church.

Unfavorable reference was likewise made to the Knights of Pythias and the Oddfellows from a Catholic point of view. The archbishop, referring to Sunday's service, said he noticed on his visit a falling off from the former observance of he Lord's Day, it being now more and more a man's day for pleasure and amusement.

Tot Loses Leg Under Car.

St. Catharines, May 25.—At Merritton Saturday afternoon Marie, the six-year-old daughter of Wm. Bradley, was run over by a trolley car and sustained injuries, which resulted in the amputation of the left leg below the knee and the three middle toes of the right foot. The child had been spending the day with her grandmother and had been to a candy store.

St. John's, Nfld., Harbor Is Open.

St. John's, Nfld., May 25.—The ice blockade, which has shut the entrance to the harbor for the last week, was raised Saturday. Two vessels reached port. One of them, the steam tug J. B. Gravel, from Glasgow for Montreal, was somewhat damaged, was short of coal and was leaking.

WILL GIVE ALL TO THE POOR

London, May 25.—Rev. Edward Lee Hicks, canon the Church of England, popular clerical figure in Lincoln Cathedral, has developed astonishing socialistic tendencies. Addressing a labor meeting he said:

"As a follower of one who had not where to lay His head, I have to consider how far I am justified in living on the unearned increment from the wealth I happen to have inherited. It is a hard problem, but I intend to face it."

It is understood that Canon Hicks intends to surrender the whole of the income from his private fortune. He has arranged to sell his automobile and part with his carriage and he will live entirely on his salary. His private means he will devote to the alleviation of suffering and want.

CANADA WOULD PROFIT BY IT

Washington, May 25.—An extended plea for a differential duty on dressed lumber was made in the Senate yesterday by Senator Root, in connection with the consideration of the tariff bill.

"Canada," he said, "offers to every planing mill which will move across the border a remission of taxes for from 15 to 20 years. So that the duty which we are imposing, if we adopt the committee report on dressed timber, merely balances the tax that is imposed upon the property of our mills for the support of our state and municipal Governments.

"The differential of the Dingley bill is just about at the right point to maintain a healthy opportunity for business. I do not think there can be a reduction in these differentials that would not transfer a large portion of the planing business to Canada."

STORMS SWEEP THE COASTS AND GREAT DAMAGE IS DONE

Nova Scotia is Ravaged by Wind and Rain—Ship is Driven Around on Alaskan Coast—Three Members of Lake Vessel's Crew Are Drowned—Small Craft on Atlantic Seeking Shelter.

Halifax, N.S., May 25.—A terrific wind and rain storm, the severity of which is unprecedented for this season, has swept the Nova Scotia coast for the past thirty-eight hours, carrying devastation in it path.

Early Sunday morning, rain began to fall and with daylight rose a wind which has since blown unceasingly at the rate of forty miles an hour.

The telegraph lines are deranged and it is impossible to estimate the damage, but from all points where the wires are intact, comes messages of loss.

On the coast line the storm wrought the greatest havoc and from North Sydney on the east to Liverpool, on the west, comes news of marine casualties, while every harbor and inlet is filled with crafts of all descriptions, seeking shelter from the terrific wind and mountainous seas.

At Liverpool, two vessels were driven ashore and are likely to become a total loss. They are the Gloucester fishing schooners "Judique" and the "Lena Maud."

Capt. Saul Jacobs, the famous Gloucester skipper brought his schooner, "Benjamin Smith" into Liverpool Saturday and anticipating a hurricane, made fast to the wharf. The veteran fisherman spent the night with his crew patrolling the coast at Liverpool, hoping to render assistance to vessels that might be driven on the rocks. Of the twenty vessels in Liverpool harbor, only one escaped undamaged

The schoonr "Talmouth" of Sherbrooke, bound for Louisburg, is ashore on White's Point at the entrance of Canso.

The Grand Banks (Newfoundland) fishing schooner, "Blanche M. Rose," ran ashore on Cranberry Head at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, when entering North Sydney and remained aground till 6.30 o'clock Sunday evening, when she was towed off.

There are fory-five schooners in North Sydney for shelter.

Wrecked on Alaskan Coast.

Seattle, Wash., May 25.—A cable despatch to The Post-Intelligencer from Seward, Alaska, says that the mail steamer Dora has arrived there with 194 survivors of the wrecked ship Columbia.

Following the grounding in a blinding snowstorm, eight miles east of Unimaka Pass on the night of April 30, the experiences of the passengers and crew were harrowing. There was no wind, but a terrific surf was raging. On the vessel were 53 Italians, 56 Japanese and 45 Americans and Scandinavians. All were passive save the Italians, who raved and prayed. A boat was lowered and the Italians poured in. The Italians attempted to seize two more boats, but were restrained at the point of guns. They rowed eight miles to Scotch Cape lighthouse. Returning two days later for provisions, they were again compelled with revolvers to take only food and refrain from looting.

Two former life-saving men insisted on proceeding for shore alone in a diminutive skiff and succeeded in establishing a life line to the shore. Disembarking by means of the large fish-boats, following the life line, occupied 24 hours. The ship physician had to work continuously to revive the men, who were spilled from capsized boats into the icy waters. Many were nearly drowned and it was in the resuscitation of these that the Japanese showed fine spirit. Only one woman, the Australian wife of the mate, was with the party.

On the morning of May 2, a storm caused the final abandonment of the wrecked Columbia. The same day the ship burned to the water's edge.

Three Sailors Drown.

Buffalo, May 25.—Three lives were lost in a collision between the steamer Western States of the Detroit and Buffalo Navigation Co. and the tug Princeton yesterday morning in the harbor off the United States life-saving station. The drowend were: Wm. McClure, fireman, Buffalo; Frank Traufler, engineer, Buffalo, and Raymond Norburg, fireman, who was assisting McClure. Capt. Jas. Sullivan and Thos. McMahon, fireman, saved themselves by swimming to the life-saving dock.

The Princeton was assisting the Western States to her dock, when the big steamer struck the tug amidships overturning her.

Kept Afloat by Cargo.

Chatham, Mass., May 25.—The Monomoy Point life-saving crew put out yesterday morning to the aid of the three-masted British schooner Clarissa Wolf, lumber-laden, from St. John, N.B., for New York. She opened her seams and was leaking badly, her cargo keeping her afloat.

BRILLIANT BANQUET AT THE ORIENTAL

Hon. Mr. Pugsley and Officers of the Three Regiments Entertained by Mr. Stratton, M. P.—"Not Every Day We Open Armouries in Peterborough" Said the Minister.

The dining room of the Oriental hotel was the scene of a brilliant function last night. It was the complimentary banquet given by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P. to Hon. Wm Pugsley, Minister of Public Works for the Dominion, the officers of the Peterborough garrison, the 19th regiment of St Catharines and the 38th regiment of Brantford. Col W D. Gordon, Officer Commanding Eastern Ontario Command was also to have been present but was unable to be there, and his place was taken by Colonel King, of St Catharines. The dining-room was gayly decorated and the menu could not have been improved upon. Good fellowship and comraderie were much in evidence throughout and the gathering was of the happiest nature. The speeches were short and witty and a dull moment was an unknown feature.

Mr. Stratton was toastmaster and the first toast, that to "The King" was honored by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. J H McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent canal proposed the toast to "Our Governing Bodies," in a neat speech.

The responses to the toast of "Our Governing Bodies" were made by Mayor Rush, Mr T E Bradburn, M.P.P., and Mr R R Hall, ex-M.P. Mayor Rush extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the city and Mr Bradburn extended congratulations on the success of the celebration.

Mr. Hall referred to the importance of the occasion which the company had gathered to celebrate. The establishment of the armories in Peterborough was a notable event.

Mr. Stratton proposed the toast to "Our Guest" and Hon Wm. Pugsley responded.

"It isn't every day we open armories in Peterborough" said Mr Pugsley and the applause was so great that he could not continue. "And we have built this one so strong and with such a good foundation that we hope it will be a hundred years before we have to open another one."

"Let's open one every day," said an officer.

Mr. Pugsley said he was glad to meet the men of Peterborough and the officers from Brantford and St. Catharines. Canada was proud of her soldiers and justly so.

"The great ambition of my life" the Minister said, "is to do what I can for the progress and development of Canada. I want to see her seacoasts protected by money contributed by Canadians."

Mr. Pugsley predicted that in fifteen years Canada would have a population of twenty millions.

Col. Miller proposed the toast to the "Visiting Regiments" in an eloquent speech. He recalled the pleasant visits of the 57th to St. Catharines and Brantford and said that if danger called the militia of Canada to the front the 57th would want nothing better than to be brigaded with the 19th and 38th regiments.

Lt.-Col. Campbell of the 19th, in responding to the toast said that next to St. Catharines which he loved best of all he liked Peterborough best. He thanked Mr. Stratton for the splendid banquet, the officers of the 57th and Mayor Rush for the reception from the city. There were no better fellows in the world than the officers of the 57th regiment.

Lt.-Col. Ashton, of the 38th, said he was delighted with the reception they had received in Peterborough. The kindness of the Peterborough officers and people would long be remembered.

Col. King responded to the toast to "The Service." He congratulated the three regiments on the splendid showing they had made at the review.

At this juncture the company sang "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue."

Lt.-Col. Stevenson proposed the toast to Mr. Stratton and it was honored with enthusiasm.

Cheers were given for Mr. Pugsley, Mr. Stratton and the officers of the visiting regiments and the 57th.

Mr. R. J. Devey presided at the piano in an efficient manner and songs by Mr. W McIlroy and Mr. Walter Davidson added greatly to the enjoyment of the gathering.

The banquet closed with the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

PURITY—WARE LIMITED

At the meeting of the committee of the whole on Friday evening last it was decided to allow of statements being circulated for signatures showing the main points of the bylaw and the opinions of representative ratepayers thereon. It is generally agreed by all concerned, aldermen and ratepayers alike, that the favorable reception of this bylaw is dependent upon the underwriting of the stock. If the financiers of Montreal, etc, on looking into the capitalization, make-up, prospects, management, backing, etc, of the new company approve of it to the extent of some hundreds of thousands of dollars of their money it may be considered a safe proposition for the ratepayers of Peterborough to lend $50,000 on it. If the American Company is really a partner with a big stake in the undertaking it presents fewer objections than otherwise. But if the stock is not underwritten outside Peterborough and if the American Company simply stands to pull out the unfixed machinery in case of failure then we do not suppose the city will care to put $50,000 into the venture by way of a loan repayable at the end of the second period of ten years. After all it will be noticed that a very great deal, almost too much, depends upon the success of the enterprise as a paying business concern. We must not be carried away by rosy prospects. It will not do to risk public money too readily especially in view of what we have already on hand in our new dam and of what we may acquire in the way of cheap power. A candid discussion of the whole affair is not to cavil at the good judgement of the aldermen in whose energy and integrity we have every confidence.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

What are the rural districts of Ontario getting out of the money they indirectly and directly contribute to the revenue and treasury of Canada? The farmers of Ontario are getting nothing out of it. Their farms, however, are not worth within one-third as much as they were before the G.T.P. was projected for the opening up of the west. It is a question if that enterprise does not spell ruin for our agricultural interests yet. And yet the problem of elevators, cold storage, proper inspection of fruit, dairy products, food, etc., and of all that goes to make up the prosperity of the farmer outside and beyond his own exertions, is a problem the Laurier Government pays no attention to. Our dairy exports have decreased enormously. It has no money for really good schemes, such as the development of our own lands. How then can it be expected to furnish the farmers, the farmers' wives and their sons and daughters with "Free rural mail and parcel delivery?" Such a boon, it is true, has been conferred on 97 routes this year by the Laurier Government, and yet Peterborough has not had a look-in. It was all very well to ridicule Mr. Borden's advocacy of F. R. M. and P. delivery as the Examiner and Mr. Stratton did, and then veer round as the wind does sometimes at midnight, but why, when the promise was made to us, is it not carried out, especially when the priceless boon has been conferred on 97 other routes? Why is the county of Peterborough left in the lurch? We shall never cease crying until we get it. Many farmers have thanked us for our efforts.

EDITORIAL NOTES

They have been having quite a time on the Ottawa river with floods. Mr. Butler, C.E., the former Deputy-Minister, did good work here in providing reservoirs. What is the matter on the Ottawa?

Some men are very versatile. They can get drunk or go to church with equal facility. It is a great gift and enables them to speak with unusual authority on both matters.

The big railway men come home from foreign shores with wonderful tales of the open-mouthed wonderment of foreigners at Canada's progress. This is all very fine, but it makes a noise to us like asking for more sacrifice by the people of Canada to the billikins of borrowed money.

The remarks made at Winnipeg of the Australian lady that when she went to England and spoke of it as "home" an English woman looking at her in astonishment said "This is not your home, Australia is your home," was a wholesome snub to many of the people who don't know that Canada is good enough for them. A Canadian born is a Canadian and no other qualification is necessary, although even that is not sometimes enough. Imperial citizenship is a question and one for the near future too.

WHY SUFFER?

Breathe Hyomei and Kill the Loathsome Catarrh Germs.

Just as long as you have catarrh your nose will itch, your breath will be foul, you will hawk and spit and you will do other disgusting things because you can't help yourself. The germs of catarrh have got you in their power; they are continually and persistently digging into and irritating the mucous membrane of your nose and throat. They are now making your life miserable; in time they will sap your entire system of its energy, its strength, its vigor and vitality.

Joseph Dural, of Woodstock street, Tavistock, Ont., says; "Catarrh had given me all kinds of suffering for a long time. There was a swelling of the glands under the eyes and adjacent to my nose and the discharges would drop into my throat. I used several remedies, but never got the relief that I did from Booth's Hyomei. I have been so pleased with Hyomei results that I highly recommend its use to catarrh sufferers."

Wm. Madill, the druggist, will guarantee Hyomei to cure catarrh or money back. Don't delay this pleasant antiseptic treatment. Breathe in Hyomei and kill the germs.

Wm. Madill will sell you a complete Hyomei Outfit, including inhaler, for only $1.00. It is also guaranteed to cure bronchitis, asthma, coughs, colds, hay fever and croup.

Would Depose Gouin.

Montreal, May 25.—There is a story going the rounds that at a recent caucus of Government supporters, or at least a good number of them, at Quebec, a resolutions was adopted asking the Prime Minister to retire.

It is also stated that Sir Henri Taschereau, Chief Justice of the Superior Court, has expressed a strong desire to retire, and should his wish be granted, Sir Lomer Gouin will be appointed in his place. The leadership of the Quebec Liberals would then likely go to Hon. Mr. Taschereau, who was assaulted by Oliver Asselin a few nights ago.

Rubber Interests Merged.

Montreal, May 25.—The American Rubber Co. has secured a substantial interest in the Canadian Consolidated Co., but the control remains as before, in the hands of D. Lorne McGibbon and his associates.

It is understood that there is no foundation for the rumors to the effect that S. H. C. Miner would join hands with the Consolidated interests. Mr. Miner is applying for a charter, and is about to begin work in rubber plant alongside his large rubber footwear plant at Granby.

Woman Accidentally Shot.

Windsor, May 25.—Mrs. John Atkinson, who, previous to her marriage, resided in London, was accidentally shot and killed at the home of her husband in Flint, Mich., on Saturday morning.

An ancient shotgun, in the hands a neighbor, was discharged, the whole charge penetrating Mrs. Atkinson's body.

Atkinson was nearly crazed, and had to be forcibly restrained from doing himself violence.

Should Seek the Sinner.

Denver, Col., May 25.—Less "stately treating," and more democracy; less lounging in the luxury of the church waiting for the sinner to approach, and more evangelism among the lowly, were the keynotes sounded at the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church. The leader in advocacy of this doctrine was John Convers, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee on evangelistic work.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 24.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, receipts for last week were 2700 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 1500 calves. The supply this morning consisted of 1100 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 50 calves. The offerings of cattle were 100 head larger than a week ago. The undertone was not quite so strong for the medium and lower grades, but prices for the better classes were fairly well maintained. Attendance of buyers was large and demand good. There was some demand from exporters, but owing to high prices and that cable advices from Liverpool noted a decline of ½c to 1c per lb., as compared with a week ago, only a few were taken. A few loads of extra choice Ontario stall-fed steers sold at 6¼c, and some picked lots at 6¼c, but the bulk of choice lots sold at 6c, good, at 5½c to 5¾c, fair, at 5c to 5¼c; medium, at 4½c to 4¾c; fat cows, at 4½c to 5¼c; bulls, at 4½c to 5¼c, and common stock at 3½c to 4½c per lb.

Hog prices scored a further advance of 25c per cwt., making a net rise of 65c to 50c, within the past ten days, attributed to the very small supplies coming forward and the keen demand from packers. Sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $8.85 per cwt., weighed off the cars, and in a few instances, $8.90 to $9.

Trade in small meats was quiet, as offerings were comparatively light. Prices ruled firm. Yearling sheep, sold at 6½c to 7c; old sheep, at 5½c to 6c per lb.; spring lambs, brought from $4 to $8 each, and calves from $2 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts for the week were 2204 cattle for export account, and 2000 cattle, 165 sheep and lambs, 351 hogs, and 1813 calves for local consumption, while the supply this morning amounted to 250 cattle, 60 sheep and lambs, 150 hogs and 300 calves.

GAVE CONCERT AT BRIDGENORTH

Alexandra Dramatic Club Very Cordially Received

A splendid concert was given at Bridgenorth by the Alexandra Dramatic Club in the Foresters' Hall last night and a very good sketch was put on by Messrs. D'Oscar Waring and Beverly Ducette, entitled Timothy Ryan's Return. Mat Drysdale gave some clever coon impersonations, also some very good baton work. D'Oscar Waring was at his best last evening, and his poem of Kissing Cup Race brought down the house. Mr. Ducette also did some very fine elocution work. Mr. W. Greenslade sang some sweet tenor solos, and Mrs. Greenslade gave some splendid pianoforte solos, and accompanied all the songs very cleverly, and after a pressing invitation to return our artists had a pleasant drive home.

MANY INSTRUMENTS HAVE BEEN SOLD

The piano used at the banquet at Oriental Hotel last night was a New Scale Williams, for which the J. M. Greene Co. are the local agents.

The sale of pianos and organs being conducted by this company is a great success, and so rapidly have the instruments been going out that it is likely the sale will be closed earlier than was anticipated. The moving van of the Fuel and Cartage Co. has been engaged for to-morrow to deliver the pianos and organs sold.

WAS ARRESTED FOR SMUGGLING

Sarnia, May 25.—Jacob Dolgoff was arrested at the tunnel charged with trying to smuggle silk goods into Canada. The customs collector believes he is one of a number of foreigners who carried on a systematic scheme of smuggling along the border from the States into Canada. Immediately after Dolgoff's arrest a man giving his name as Purdee offered bail to any amount, which the magistrate refused.

Percy Dolgoff of Toronto, a brother of the man arrested, will undertake to produce invoices to show that the goods seized had been regularly passed through the customs at Toronto.

This Boy Is a Hustler.

Windsor, May 25.—Ernest Robert, aged 11, was on Thursday last sentenced to an indefinite term in the St. John's Reformatory in Toronto for breaking into a barber shop in Walkerville and stealing some razors, declared, when sentenced, he would not stay there. On Sunday he was picked up wandering about the streets here. He had escaped by climbing the fence surrounding the Toronto institution, and met a traveling man at the station, inducing him to pay his fare here. He wants to be sent to some institution where the boys will not bother him.

MAKE A CHANGE

A New Back for an Old One—How it is Done in Peterborough

The back aches at times with a dull feeling making you worry and restless, sharp pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, it is agony to bend, stoop or lift. The rubbing of liniments or applications of plasters does no good in these cases, they do not reach the cause. To get rid of these symptoms and exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one follow the example of this Peterborough citizen.

Mrs. T. DeRussia, of Mary and Bethune streets, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills a remedy of exceptional merit in quickly relieving backache caused from disordered kidneys. I frequently suffered with a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back. It would extend around my sides and into my shoulders. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended by a friend, and I procured a box at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I soon found them to relieve me. I have had no trouble since and can credit this only to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., sole Canadian Agents.

KING EDWARD RIDES BICYCLE

London, May 25.—King Edward finds that he has neither the strength nor the time to take the amount of walking exercise prescribed by his medical advisers. So with their assent he has had a tricycle made, and on this he pedals about five miles every fair day in the secluded paths of the large park attached to Buckingham Palace.

King Edward's "official birthday" is to be celebrated at London and at all home stations, The Gazette officially intimates, on June 25. At all other stations his real birthday, Nov 9, will be observed. Setting the home birthday adds gaiety to the London season and aids the shopkeepers.

Appeals Fail to Upset Jail Sentence.

New York, May 25.—Frank Duffy, a former Tammany district worker, convicted of registration frauds in the election of 1907, surrendered himself yesterday and will begin serving in Sing Sing the prison term of from three to ten years to which he was sentenced nearly two years ago. Duffy's case has since been pending on appeals. He has been at liberty on bail. Last week the appellate division of the Supreme Court confirmed the conviction.

Better News From Ranches.

Winnipeg, May 25.—Advices received from the cattle country by stockmen bring better news than was expected. They state that the losses from recent storms will not run more than one per cent. of the mature cattle, though the loss of calves will be considerably higher.

60,000 at Aeroplane Contest.

Juviy, France, May 25.—Sixty thousand persons attended the aeroplane race meeting at the new aerodrome here Sunday. A high wind prevailed, and the contest was greatly marred thereby.

Ten Killed In Collision.

Simla, India, May 25.—Ten natives were killed and 14 others sustained injuries in a collision Sunday morning, near Debra, between some runaway freight cars and a passenger train. Sixteen freight cars ran away down an incline.

Priests Capture Thieves.

Chicago, May 25.—Two thieves, while stealing golden candelabra from the altar of Holy Angels' Roman Catholic Church were captured by two priests who beat the thieves into insensibility.

Used Arsenic for Baking Powder.

New York, May 25.—Mistaking arsenic for baking powder and using it in biscuits, Mrs. Cynthia Parry, 79 years old, of Tottenville, Staten Island, poisoned herself and her husband on Sunday.

NEW WHARF AT LAKEFIELD WAS OFFICIALLY OPENED

By Hon. William Pugsley---Large Crowd Listens to Speechmaking on the Wharf --- A Glorious Day for the Occasion.

The good people of Lakefield could have had no more brilliant day for the official opening of their fine new wharf than the one that smiled on them yesterday. The wharf, which has been looked forward to as a necessary fixture for some time, is a particularly complete and serviceable structure and pronounced one of the very best in the province and probably the finest one on the entire Trent Waterway. During its course of construction the Review has touched pretty fully on the particulars of the wharf and it is unnecessary to go into detail concerning it. The wharf is about [illegible] feet in length with cement wall and facing and has three elevations, which may be used for large, medium and small boats.

Hon. William Pugsley and a party of Government officials and their friends and the local members of Parliament left yesterday afternoon on the Bessie Butler to officially open the wharf. The trip up the canal was a delightful one. The banks and meadows along the route were shrouded in their beautiful summer green and a cooling breeze blew refreshingly as the journey was made in the smooth going little craft. A number of visiting officers from outside regiments were on board and expressed themselves as having thoroughly enjoyed the outing which included as a commencement, a trip over the celebrated lift lock.

A large crowd greeted Mr. Pugsley and party and the wharf and the audience assembled showed much interest in the occasion. It was naturally a big day for Lakefield and the townspeople showed their appreciation of the importance of the occasion.

A good representation of lake boats lent a desirable color to the opening. The Bob Hall, Bessie Butler, Majestic, Empire, Sovereign and Empress being tied up at the wharf.

The speechmaking was done from pavilion which has been constructed for the use of the passengers waiting at the wharf.

Mr. A. W. Tanner, chairman of the Reception Committee, welcomed Messrs Pugsley and Stratton and thanked them for what they have done in securing the new wharf.

Reeve Kydd, of Lakefield also spoke words of welcome and appreciation.

The president of the Lakefield Board of Trade, Mr. F. J. Moore, read an address of welcome to Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and bespoke the thanks of Lakefield to Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Canal.

Mr. Stratton gave his thanks for the address and spoke in complimentary terms of the village and its progressive residents not failing to call attention to the splendid gathering of ladies at the opening. He dwelt on the commercial acquirements and possibilities of the municipality and was well received by his hearers.

Village Clerk W. Sherin, presented the address of welcome to Mr. Pugsley after which the Minister spoke for a short time making the concluding address of the afternoon.

Mr. Pugsley said that any pleasure he had anticipated in being present was greatly enhanced by his real enjoyment of the occasion. He was interested in seeing Lakefield for himself and had enjoyed the delightful sail from Peterborough on the canal.

The Minister of Public Works said Lakefield was a port of importance on the Trent Canal waterway. He wanted to see as much traffic as possible on Canada's inland waterways.

He believed the Trent Canal was destined to play an important part in this national system of waterway transportation.

Transportation by water was the cheapest available and the country could not spend too much money in the development of Canada's inland facilities. A request had been made by Mr. Sherin in his address for improvements which would directly connect the trains with the boats and Mr. Pugsley was hopeful that this would be granted.

Mr. Tanner expressed the people's gratitude to Mr. McClellan for the businesslike and economical way the work of constructing the wharf had been performed.

The ceremony was closed by cheers for the King, Mr. Pugsley, Mr. McClellan and the ladies.

REGIMENTS ATTENDED DIVINE SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, SUNDAY

All Three Regiments Presented a Fine Appearance on the March---Inspiring Sermon by the Honorary Major Rev. Ker of the 19th.

It has probably been a long time since citizens of Peterborough have had the opportunity of witnessing such an inspiring sight as that which was presented Sunday morning when the three regiments marched from the armories to St Paul's church, there to attend divine service. It was a sight that must have thrilled even the humblest subject of the greatest of all great living monarchs,—King Edward VII. Shortly after nine o'clock the regiments left the armories. The Peterborough Rangers headed the parade, then followed the 38th Regiment of Brantford with the 19th Regiment of St Catharines in the rear. The streets on the line of the parade were crowded with citizens eager to get a look at the city and visiting regiments all of whom showed up to good advantage.

Col. Fair of St Catharines, was brigadier colonel, and Major Howard, of Brantford, was brigade major. The brigade orderly officer was Capt. Ackerman, of the 10th brigade, Field Battery, Peterborough. Sergeant Edwards, acting sergeant-major for the 57th regiment, was brigade sergeant-major.

Good order prevailed on the different companies marching into the church and when all were in, very few seats were empty. A number of the veterans of 1866 occupied pews near the front.

On the platform were, Honorary Major Rev R Ker, 19th Regiment; Honorary Major Rev J C Davidson, 57th Regiment; Honorary Capt. Rev. E A Langfeldt, 3rd Dragoons and Rev. Dr Talling.

After the singing of a hymn and prayer, the Rev Dr Talling, on behalf of St Paul's church addressed a few words of welcome to the city and visiting regiments and Rev Canon Davidson welcomed the 38th and 19th regiments on behalf of the Peterborough Rangers. He said the city was honored by their presence and he hoped their visit would be a happy one.

The Rev. R. Ker, in commencing, stated that he was sure that he was speaking the sentiment of both regiments in thanking the Peterborough Rangers for their invitation to the city and also the officials of the church in their placing the large edifice at their disposal for the church parade.

He took for his text the seventh and eighth verses in the first chapter of Joshua.

"Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the laws which Moses, my servant, commanded me, turn not from it to the right hand or to the left that thou mayest prosper whithersoever you goest.

This book of the law shall not depart from out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous and then thou shalt have good success."

The reverend gentleman said that the duty had been assigned to him of addressing the members of the regiments. The church parade and service was one of the features of the day. The visit of the two regiments was of a three fold character, one of which was the opening of the new armories the future home of the 57th regiment.

It would be an excellent discipline if every youth was put through the Canadian training. The military men in Germany were more sought after by employers as they were better qualified to take positions. The money spent on our citizen soldiers made substantial returns and the nation that neglects to take the necessary precautions to prepare for an invasion of an enemy paid dearly for such neglect. He spoke for some time on the duty of citizens and soldiers towards the empire of which Canada forms a part. But as members of a Christian commonwealth there is something more required of you. As citizen soldiers together in this church you should be prepared to meet the battle for right. In every pathway of life, there are temptations but you should be as God's knowing, good or evil. Shun evil company and all that it calls for. Be under the banner of Christ and an honor to all by whom you are loved and esteemed. Never underrate the strength of the enemy and do not neglect good advice no matter who gives it. Life is very real and earnest and you have all great possibilities for good. In particular be careful of what you read, but never be afraid to read your Bibles. The memory of our late beloved Queen speaks to us today and the Bible is the foundation of the Empire's greatness.

After the singing of the National Anthem, the benediction was pronounced by the Rev Dr Langfeldt, after which the companies filed out of the church, then formed into line and marched back to the armories where they were dismissed for the day.

WEDDING BELLS

MOHER—WEYER

St. Peter's cathedral was the scene of a very pretty wedding this morning when Miss Bessie Weyer, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. Weyer, Weller st., became the bride of Mr. Jas. Moher, of Patterson street. The Rev. Father McFadden, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Jas. Weyer, looked charming in an empire gown of mauve directoire soie over taffeta, with bertha or real lace and gold trimmings and wore a tuscan hat with plumes and carried a mother of pearl prayer book.

The bridesmaid, Miss Sophia Weyer, of St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, looked very pretty in a pale blue silk mull made in princess style, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of roses. Mr. Robert Moher, of Ottawa, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride, who was one of Peterborough's most popular young ladies, was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, among them was a well filled purse from a number of the groom's friends and three handsome presents from the Examiner staff consisting of a silver fruit dish, salad bowl and berry spoon. The groom's gift to the bride was an amethyst necklace to the bridesmaid a fleur de lis brooch and best man a tie pin. After the ceremony about twenty guests drove to the bride's home and partook of a sumptuous wedding dejeuner.

After the usual toasts the bride slipped away to don her travelling suit of old rose voile and black picture hat.

The happy couple left on the 11.26 C.P.R. train, amid showers of rice and confetti for Ottawa, where a reception is being held this evening by Mr. and Mrs. E. Plouffe. The guests from a distance were Mr. Jas. Carey and Herb Honey, of Lansing, Mich., Mr. Mrs. M. Hennessey, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Wade, of Brampton.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING TO-NIGHT

One week ago tonight the Board of Trade was called together by the president, Ald Gillespie, for the consideration of the Purity Ware bylaw which will be submitted to the electors on June 1st. Tonight the Board is called after the adjournment for the purpose of meeting the objections made by Mr. James Kendrey to the scheme at the last meeting. Mr Kendrey took the stand that there was nothing but "wind and water" in the whole affair and that it was an attempt of promoters to unload an unworkable arrangement upon the city fathers and to secure a loan of $60,000 from the city on precarious "security." He said however, on being challenged by Ald. Gillespie and others that if it could be shown that the stock had been underwritten and that a great American company was really behind the Purity Ware Company, then he would withdraw his objections and support the bylaw. The adjournment was made in order to complete the preliminaries far enough to meet these objections. The results, it was understood, will be announced tonight. Ald. Gillespie is an enthusiastic supporter of the scheme as is also Ald. Bradburn, Ald Hicks and other prominent members of the City Council.

DROVE THROUGH RAILWAY GATES

Person Driving a Horse and Buggy Demolished the Gates on Simcoe Street Early Sunday Morning

Early Sunday morning the gates on Simcoe street, were partly demolished by a person driving a horse and buggy. The gates were down at the time as a double-header was approaching. The man, who was driving at a fair rate of speed, sent his horse right through the gates, thereby breaking them in several places. What reason he had for so doing cannot be ascertained. The lights were all burning brightly and the guardian was also on the job. The officials of the railway are on the track of the guilty person, and he will likely find himself in trouble within a short time.

TRIED TO BOARD A MOVING TRAIN

Young Lady Did Not Mean to be Left Behind, But She Was

All the fun was not on George St. yesterday. Those who were on Aylmer street when the 4.38 C.P.R. pulled out witnessed a funny incident. A young man and lady were unable to make the station at the proper time, and thought they might be able to board the train as it passed the Aylmer street crossing. The lady proved to be the more daring and bravely tried to board the fast moving train. The flagman, who is stationed at this point, became alarmed at the state of affairs and pulled the would-be passenger away out of danger. But she persisted, and the man with the flag had to use the bear hug. By getting a half nelson he managed to hold on until the train had passed, after which he apologized for his rude behavior, and the couple sadly turned and walked away.

BIG CROWD SAW LACROSSE MATCH ON THE HOLIDAY

St. Catharines Team Carried off the Honors, Score Being 9-1—Local Players Not in Condition.

Between eleven and twelve hundred people sauntered over to Riverside Park yesterday afternoon to witness the struggle between the lacrosse team of St. Catharines and the local aggregation. Some bravely stayed to see the finish, others didn't. The score was 9—1, and might easily have been 90—1, for all the big crowd cared. The grand stand was filled, so were some of the spectators in it. Those strung around the fence and on the field were the only ones to show any animation and this was only when some of the players fell or were knocked down, necessitating a call from the trainer.

Before the game started the relay race between Fred Simpson, and two of the walkers, West and Brown, took well with the crowd. Simpson ran 3 miles while each of the peds walked one mile each. The Indian won by a small margin and did not have to extend himself to do it.

It was 3.50 when Hoagland faced the ball with "King" Dillon handling the whistle. The locals started off well and made several rushes on the visitor's nets, the same being well guarded by Dixon, who by the way acted in the same capacity, for the Olympic lacrosse team which journeyed to England last year. Rolly Glover scored the first goal after some pretty dodging but the St. Kitts players got wise to the fact that they were up against an unlucky number, 13. After a short discourse on the subject the offending player was picked out and sent to the club house and the goal did not count. This made the local boys mad and they dug in and made several assaults on their opponent's goal but it was not to be, thanks to the brilliant work of Dixon and punk shooting. There was no more scoring in the first quarter.

After a short rest the visitors started to get busy and by their fast work had Dobbin dodging some hot ones. But they were coming too fast and when the whistle blew again for a rest the score stood Peterborough 1 St. Kitts 4.

The third quarter was a repetition of the second, save for the fact that Peterborough didn't get a goal. In this period of the game several of the players got real angry and were rude enough to slash each other on the legs and also on the face, much to the displeasure of the referee, who sent them to the timekeepers for a rest.

Only one goal was scored in the last quarter and that went to St. Kitts, who were in better condition than the home team. It wasn't because they were faster, but simply on account fo their being able to stay in the game all the time.

The teams were;

NORWOOD JUNIORS DEFEATED HAVELOCK IN OPENING GAME

The first game of the Junior Midland League played between Norwood and Havelock on the latter's grounds on Friday night resulted in a 1 to 0 victory for Norwood. The game was played at times on a drizzling rain, which made footing and kicking unsure. Both teams played very good ball.

After 10 minutes end to end play a neat pass from Williamson was met by Searight, who scored. Half time was called with Norwood leading.

The second half opened with fast play. A penalty kick by Havelock was met by Rogers who turned the ball off for a corner. The Havelock players wanted to count a goal on the grounds that only a goalkeeper should handle the ball. A few minutes later the ball was kicked off but the Havelock players claiming they didn't hear the whistle, kept on and scored. This was not allowed by the referee, who ordered a goal kick amid much objection. No further scoring was done, the fued ending Norwood 1, Havelock 0.

The game was played under protest by Havelock, they claiming Norwood played senior men and on the grounds of the referee not knowing the rules. On this latter, however, they are far astray, but it now awaits a hearing by the executive.

The Collegiates defeated the Park Nines on Saturday by 6—3. Neither team had on its strongest lineup, but the contest was a good one. Both twirlers were in fine form and their work was the feature. The batters were Kearns and Dobbin for Collegiates, Laing and Menzies for Park Nines.

The Strathconas were out to practice on the oval yesterday afternoon. About a dozen players were in uniform and a good workout resulted.

Providence beat Buffalo 4—2, and Rochester put Jersey City away by 6—1.

In the American Chicago beat New York 2—1, Cleveland, with Cy Young twirling, won from Philadelphia by 6—2. Detroit made 10 runs off the Washington stalwarts, while Summers only allowed one run.

BROWN SHOWS GREAT FORM IN OPENING NIGHT OF THS WALK

Boy Wonder, Hoagland and West All on Even Terms for First Place—Harrison Walked a Strong and Fast Race—Splendid Time Was Made.

Hoagland and Brown last night gave the prettiest exhibition of even-up walking that has ever been seen in Peterborough at the opening session of the six night walk being held this week at the Brock street rink. The two Auburn artists set a warm pace from the start and walked almost like a team for the whole two and a half hours. Brown, the boy ped, displayed magnificent form, and if he keeps up speed to the standard he set last night, should finish a good second to the "old man." Brown, by his past performances, looks good for second money, barring any mishap, of course, and Hoagland is regarded as a sure first.

West walked in excellent style, too, and was on the same footing as the other two leaders when the final bell rang. He was half a lap behind in the actual lap score but will start on the same terms to-night as Hoagland and Brown. There were eleven starters, and after the three mentioned they finished in the order given;—Harrison, Blake, Fenton, Spenceley, Graham, Hartley, Blatchford. The leaders negotiated 16 miles 11 laps, and Blatchford, who showed bursts of speed that might be expected from a pallbearer, brought up the rear with 13 miles 2 laps.

Mayor Rush was to have started the field, but owing to another engagement, was unable to do so. His place was taken by Ald. J. J. Turner, jr. Ald. Turner made a very neat speech of welcome to the walkers, and they lined up as he introduced them. The men left the scratch sharp at 8.25, and as the time-table called for two and a half hours' walking, it was five minutes to eleven when time was up.

At the start of the going Harrison pulled right out in the lead and opened quite a stretch between himself and Hoagland. He kept this up for some time, and the crowd applauded him vociferously and urged him to break away. However, he had a wonderfully fast trio in tow of him and after a while Hoagland overtook him and got the major position.

The first man to be lapped was Blatchford, who seemed to find the pace altogether too hot. Harrison passed him after four laps had been done. At ten laps Harrison still led and scored another gain of a lap over Blatchford. The first mile was made in 8 1-2 minutes. In 4 1-2 miles the leaders lapped Blake. The time for the five miles was 43 minutes, which indicates splendid walking.

A feature of the race was the surprisingly good form that W. Spenceley, the local boy, made. He stayed with the head squad in great style, and as he appeared fresh, it looked as though he had a good chance to finish the night's walk well up. About the sixth mile he was seized with a stitch in his side, however, and he had to slow down considerably while his former mates kept piling on the laps. From the time Spenceley lessened his speed he lost ground to the last bell. At the end of the first hour the score showed that 6 miles 11 laps had been covered, and 7 miles even were made in one hour 1-2 minute. Blatchford, who was in the rear of the procession, did the 7 miles in one hour and 18 minutes.

The sensation of the entire performance was furnished shortly after the ninth mile, when Brown broke away from Harrison by a lightning sprint and gained a 1-4 of a lap in two circuits. He left Hoagland temporarily in the rear, but the champion soon picked up the difference and walked in his steps. The boy wonder set out to gain a lap on Harrison and Hoagland kept him company in his fast pursuit. Brown accomplished his object in the 10th lap of the 10th mile, and the Peterborough man was lapped for the first time during the night after one hour and 33 minutes' walking.

Our old Buffalo friend, Jimmy Graham, was on the track with his ever-present smile, and another old friend, minus the smile—David Hartley—was also there. They did not figure conspicuously in the scoring, but Jimmy is a plugger and may be counted upon to be in the race to the finish.

At the end of two hours the standing was;—

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	13	7
Hoagland	13	7
West	13	7
Harrison	13	6
Blake	13	1
Fenton	12	8

After two hours and 11 minutes' walking, Brown, Hoagland and West had gone 15 miles, which is about 9 minutes flat for a mile on the average.

At the conclusion of 2 1-2 hours the score was as follows;—

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	16	11
Hoagland	16	11
West	16	11
Harrison	16	10
Blake	16	5
Fenton	15	7
Spenceley	15	1
Graham	14	7
Hartley	13	11
Blatchford	13	2

WOOD WINS MARATHON AT MONTREAL

Montreal Lad Lowers All American Long Distance Records.

Montreal, May 25.—Abbie Wood of Montreal, who finished second to J. D. Marsh in the Marathon at Toronto a couple of weeks ago, won the first professional Marathon run in Montreal yesterday when he finished 50 yards ahead of Hans Holmer of Halifax in 2 hours 39 minutes, thus breaking all Marathon records made on this [illegible] of the Atlantic Ocean. The race was run on the M.A.A.A. three-lap cinder path, an authentic course, about which there can be no question.

The timing arrangements were in the hands of experts and there can be no doubt on that score.

Wood ran a great race. From the crack of the pistol he was always up with the leaders. Cibot, the Frenchman, did his best to run the diminutive Montrealer into the ground in the first ten miles, but it was Cibot who got broke first. He ran third to Holmer at the finish, with his team mate, Orphee, in fourth place, and Meadows of Guelph fifth. Pat Dineen of Boston, who might have had a look-in at the money, left the track before he had gone the full distance, under the impression, from a statement made to him by a couple of mutts who should have known better, that he was running his last lap for third place, when as a matter of fact he was finishing up his 24th mile. Twelve started and five finished.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mr. C Williams' Rheumatism

He took the terrible disease in time and a single box made him a well man

South Ingonish, Cape Breton, May 24.—Special—How easily and quickly Dodd's Kidney Pills banish Rheumatism and other symptoms of Kidney Disease is well known in the case of Michael C. Williams, a fisherman living in this place.

"My kidney disease started from a strain," Mr Williams says, "and I suffered from it for about three months. I had backache, stiffness in the joints and Rheumatism. When I got up in the morning I had a bad taste in my mouth; I perspired freely with the least exertion, and I was always tired and nervous.

"One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me and I believe they will cure others who are suffering from Kidney Disease."

If you have any two of the symptoms mentioned by Mr. Williams you may be sure of two things. One is that your kidneys are sick, and the other that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved in thousands of cases all over Canada that they never fail to cure Kidney Disease of any kind or stage.

AND
EDWARD PEPLE,

Copyright, 1906, by Moffat, Yard & Company.

The burglar mumbled a stumbling apology, then passed into the library through the door which Richard opened for his exit. He lost no time in stepping through the still open window and in a moment more was striking across the lawn.

"Lord Croyland," began Miss Harriet, who had followed from the billiard room with Imogene clinging hopelessly to her arm—"Lord Croyland, I want to thank you for"—

The words died suddenly upon her lips, and she leaned for support against the wall.

"Who's there?" called a voice in the darkness from the stairs in the hall.

"Quick!" whispered Richard to the terror stricken girls. "It's your father! Go back into the billiard room and slip upstairs when you get the chance. There! It's all right. Leave it to me."

He gave them no chance to disobey, but pushed them through the door, while he spurred his brain for some good excuse to account for his presence in the library at this unseemly hour.

"Who's there?" Mr. Renwyck called, and this time Richard answered back:

"Hello! It is I! Wil—er—I mean Croyland. Is that you, Mr. Renwyck?"

He grabbed a book at random from one of the shelves, then drew the hall portieres aside, to discover his host, revolver in hand, on the dim lit stairs, arrayed in a long white night robe, which made him look more gaunt and angular than ever.

"Oh, it's you!" said Mr. Renwyck in great surprise. "I thought I heard a noise—a shot or something—and got up to investigate. Why in the name of heaven aren't you in bed?"

"I'm awfully sorry to have disturbed you," the Texan answered easily. "I—I—stumbled over a beastly chair in the dark. Too bad, upon my word! You see," he explained, "I couldn't sleep, so I came down here to take a liberty and a book."

Mr. Renwyck glanced at his costume, which, with the exception of his dress coat, which had been exchanged for a house jacket, was the same his guest had worn earlier in the evening. The financier thought for a moment, then descended the stairs, entered the library and switched on the electric light. The first thing to catch his eye was an open window, which Richard in his haste had failed to close.

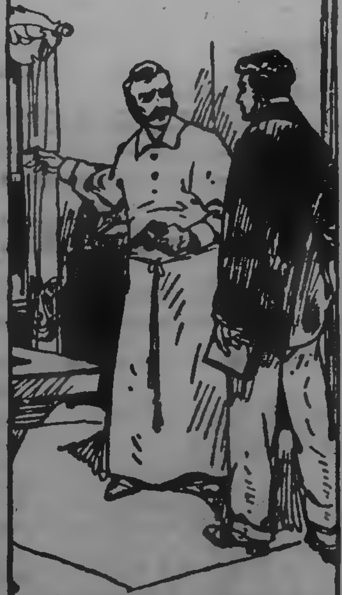
The Texan interpreted the blank astonishment so clearly written on Mr. Renwyck's face and proceeded to enlighten him.

"Fresh air," he murmured easily. "It's so beastly warm, you know. I rather fancy I'm a bit feverish, really."

Mr. Renwyck frowned thoughtfully. "Lord Croyland," he asked, "did you open that window yourself?"

"To be sure," lied Richard suavely, while he screwed in his ever ready monocle, thanking God that he had not laid it aside. Somehow the thing seemed to give him confidence now. It was something to cling to. "No harm, I trust?"

"Well, no," returned Mr. Renwyck slowly, "only I don't understand why it didn't raise a hullabaloo. I'm positive I set the burglar alarm, and"—He took a step toward the wall. "By George! It's turned off!"



"Lord Croyland," he asked, "did you open that window yourself?"

Now, Richard knew nothing whatever about the burglar alarm and began to feel icy beads of perspiration gathering on his brow, the more so as Mr. Renwyck was gazing at him in ill disguised and increasing suspicion.

"Oh, that!" he laughed. "I turned the lever before I raised the sash. Miss Renwyck explained it to me yesterday. Jolly little contrivance, 'pon my word. I should like immensely to have the system installed at Croyland Park."

The bogus earl looked innocent to the point of childishness, and the mystified host was forced to accept the very inadequate explanation of the episode. Without comment he closed the window, set the alarm once more, switched off the lights and silently, not to say grimly, led the way upstairs, meekly followed by the Texan, glad to have escaped further inquisition.

"I'm awfully sorry to have caused you all this bother," Richard apologized again as they reached the upper landing. "I'm no end of a nuisance, really."

"Don't mention it, I beg you," answered the financier, with forced courtesy. "I hope you will sleep now. Good night." Then the two parted and entered their respective rooms.

"Strange," muttered Mr. Renwyck as he pulled the sheet about his chin. "A peculiar lot, these Englishmen. But I dare say I appear just as peculiar to them. He acted so strangely, too, about that check the other night. One hundred thousand dollars! Humph! I wonder if he has a hundred thousand dollars. I begin to doubt it—doubt it exceedingly."

Meanwhile the Texan reached his room, mopped his brow and hunted for his brandy flask. It seemed to him that he wanted a good stiff drink as he wanted nothing else in all the world. He failed to find his flask in its accustomed place and surmised accurately that if he found Woolsey Bills he might strike its trail. The valet's sleeping room was next his own, so without ceremony the master pushed open the door, admitting a flood of light. He did not find his flask, nor did he find his servant either, for the room was deserted, and the bed had not been occupied.

"Ah!" observed the Texan thoughtfully. "Bre'r Fox has changed masters for the second time. Humph! A little awkward to explain—for me, I mean."

On Restmore a heavy silence fell again, which was broken, as before, only by that antique clock and its soft chime as it struck another quarter hour. Then two dim, ghostly figures crept slowly up the stairs and entered Miss Harriet Renwyck's room. In a little while they were safely tucked in bed and lay whispering in each other's arms.

"Oh, Harriet, darling," breathed Miss Imogene, "wasn't he—er—just splendid when he told that bouncer? I don't believe he's an Englishman at all."

"Nonsense!" the other laughed. "Of course he's an Englishman. Now try to go to sleep."

It would be discourteous in the extreme to state that a lady had been guilty of another "bouncer," but at any rate Miss Harriet clasped a drowsy little figure to her breast, thought of Texas and smiled into the darkness happily.

CHAPTER XIX.

At 7 o'clock the next morning Mr. Renwyck had a telephone call from his partner in New York. It was of such a serious nature as to cause him to dress hurriedly and leave without waiting for his breakfast, though Mrs. Renwyck followed him to the front veranda, begging him to wait for a cup of coffee.

"No; haven't time!" he snapped as he climbed into the waiting trap. "Go along, Walters. Whoa! Wait a minute. By George," he exclaimed, with a frown of annoyance, "I forgot about those jewels!" He fumbled in his pocketbook, produced a memorandum and handed it to his wife.

"Julia," he said hurriedly, "this is the combination of the safe. Telephone to Michael, will you, and ask him to come over before he leaves for town? Get him to unlock the safe and bring the diamonds with him to my office. I'll put them in the safety deposit vault. There—haven't time to explain any more. My train is due in three minutes. Goodby. Now, Walters, let Molly have her head."

In a moment the trap had whirled through the open gates, and Mrs. Renwyck, marveling at what could take her lord away so suddenly, turned and went into the house, where she obediently telephoned her husband's message to her brother Michael.

Breakfast was late that morning, as two at least of the inmates of the house showed unmistakable signs of loss of sleep.

"How lovely!" exclaimed Miss Harriet as she glanced through a delicately tinted note, then turned to Richard. "Such a dear friend of mine is coming out this morning to stay over Sunday. I know you will be charmed to meet her."

"Delighted, I'm sure," drawled Richard indolently.

"Who is it, Harriet?" Mrs. Renwyck asked.

"Nellie Sempton."

Richard's indolence departed instantly. The name recalled several things.

"Er—beg pardon," he questioned, "is the lady rather tall and blond—ah—twenty-two or thereabout, with a ripping figure?"

"Why, yes!" cried Imogene delightedly. "Do you know her?"

"Well, no, not exactly," returned the smiling Texan. "She has—er—been pointed out to me." He screwed in his monocle and picked up a letter from Lord Croyland's mail which lay beside his plate. "I'm awfully sorry that I shan't be here when Miss Sempton arrives, but I find I shall have to go to New York this morning. Too bad, really."

"But you haven't even read your letters yet," chirruped Miss Imogene. "Can you tell from the outside that it's some horrid business?"

Richard nodded sadly and tapped a formidable official envelope.

"Too true," he murmured. "It's business and, as you aptly express it, horrid."

In one sense the Texan spoke the plain, unvarnished truth, for business of an unpleasant character called him in several directions. He had entirely forgotten until the mention of Miss Sempton's name recalled it to him that he had a smashed automobile on his hands, not to mention a prospective lawsuit from a justly irate farmer. Then, too, it would be most awkward to have the charming Miss Sempton extend her hand and say, with a most engaging smile: "How do you do, Mr. Peter Wilson? I knew you were not a chauffeur. How many other names do you happen to possess?" Yes, "horrid business" called him away from Irvington at once and bade fair to keep him away until Miss Sempton departed.

"Woolsey and I," he muttered to his inward, disgusted self, "must seek seclusion in some faroff, happier clime."

Breakfast was scarcely over when Mr. Corrigan was announced. He entered with a cheery good morning to every one, then went with Mrs. Renwyck to the library. Miss Schermerly strove with all her crafty wiles to lure Lord Croyland away for a morning walk and a chat on the superior advantages of being a nobleman, but the nobleman in question met guile with guile and pleaded an excuse of having to catch the next train. He said he would walk to the station, especially as on foot he might dodge Miss Sempton if she happened to come earlier than expected, and started across the lawn.

On the lawn he lingered in the hope of seeing Miss Harriet once more, for he did not wish to leave Irvington without confessing his deception and declaring himself her humble worshiper from the Lone Star State. He had almost given up hope when he spied her coming from the house toward him. She, too, had been dodging difficulties in the path of a meeting with him alone. And now as she tripped across the grass he saw in her eyes a light, on her cheeks a color which caused his heart to bound, while the warm blood tingled through his veins.

"Lord Croyland," she said, "before you go I want to thank you for what you did for Imogene and me last night. It was splendid of you to take the blame, and"—

"But how do you know what I did?" he asked her laughingly.

"Because," she stammered, "we—we didn't go upstairs when you told us. We stayed in the billiard room and—and listened." She finished with a violent blush, which made her irresistible in the Texan's biased eyes.

"Oh!" he laughed. "I see."

Miss Harriet did not join in his merriment. She looked up earnestly and asked:

"Why didn't you tell the whole truth and explain to father?"

"Explain to father!" he echoed, mistaking her meaning. "Good Lord! How could I?"

Miss Harriet nodded, smiling happily.

"I think I understand. You wanted to save her?"

"Of course," answered Richard, relieved again. Really, these sudden shocks almost broke his nerve.

"Now, tell me one thing more," continued the girl. "You are not an Englishman. I suspected it before, and last night I knew it. Who are you?"

Richard gasped and took a backward step, while the hot blood mounted to his cheeks and tinged the dusky bronze.

"Who am I?" he repeated earnestly. "A man who loves you with his heart and mind and soul—a man who has deceived you only that he might be near you, to touch your hand and look into your eyes—a man who has followed you from Tex"—

"Harriet, Harriet!" came a cry of shrill distress from the front veranda. "Harriet, the diamonds! They are gone!"

Mrs. Renwyck flung limp and disheveled to the railing, while Mr. Corrigan strove to hold her up and at the same time murmur words of comfort in her ear, a task in which he was greatly handicapped by shortness of stature and disproportionate rotundity.

"Gone?" cried Harriet, whitening to the lips. "Gone where?"

Mrs. Renwyck immediately forgot family traditions, etiquette and everything else beside the crushing loss and her rising Irish blood.

"Don't be a fool!" she shrilled. "How do I know where they've gone? Do you think I've got 'em in my pocket? Police! Fire!"

With this dramatic finish Mrs. Renwyck promptly fainted, sinking down into a huddled heap and dragging little Uncle Michael with her.

The household was already in an uproar. With Richard's assistance Mrs. Renwyck was laid upon a sofa, and smelling salts were administered in such generous quantities that she returned to consciousness with gasping protests and gusts of rage. Miss Schermerly offered consolation in the form of various questions and was so offended by the answers she received that she retired to her room in righteous indignation. Miss Chittendon crept close to the edge of the circle of excitement and listened as one in a frozen trance. Both she and Miss Harriet, to say nothing of Richard himself, had worked out a solution of the problem by the simple process of deduction, and three hearts sank to the utmost depths of despondency. Uncle Michael added to the depression by a cheerful statement which gave at least a clew to the robbery.

"I'm not a bit surprised at this," he said, "and it's all Jacob's fault for being so puffed up and bullet headed," which was truly an Irish mixture of adjectives.

"What do you mean?" demanded Mrs. Renwyck, instantly taking the side of her abused husband.

"Why, simply this," said the little lawyer coolly. "There was a cock eyed vagrant nosing around the place several days ago, and I warned Jacob to place a detective in the house while the diamonds were in this toy safe of his, but he wouldn't do it."

Harriet flushed and bit her lips. Imogene gave evidence of approaching hysteria, and Richard listened, while ice cold shivers frolicked up and down his spine. The Texan could place the "cock eyed vagrant," and also feared he could place the confederate who had evidently helped himself to the contents of the safe while Mr. Roderick Fitzgeorge engaged the ladies in the billiard room. It was all so simple, so pitifully simple! The diamonds were gone, and so was Woolsey Bills.

Richard's trip to New York was now out of the question. He must stay and face the music, though the price he must pay the fiddler was a question he dared not dwell upon. He could only hope Miss Sempton would not appear until it was all over. He was now burning to get hold of Harriet and confess everything and then to shout out the truth from the very housetop.

While not personally responsible for the loss of the diamonds, the Texan was morally responsible in view of the fact that he had allowed Lord Croyland's valet to remain under the Renwyck roof when he knew in advance that the man was not a character to be trusted. The real master had wanted him discharged for theft, and while it never dawned on Richard that Bills might filch from any one except his master—the lawful prey of many of his kind—still it was his duty to have discharged the rascal without delay. Truly, the humor of the situation was in much the same condition as the missing gems.

With a very solemn face, but with a good deal of inward pleasure, Uncle Michael telephoned to Mr. Renwyck. He had given sound advice, and Jacob had derided him, hooted at him, laughed him to scorn and had finally suggested that he look under the bed for a burglar. Mr. Corrigan by all Christian precepts should have been sorry for his brother-in-law, but the plump little Irishman was not. On the contrary, he was glad with a gladness which filled him with delirious chuckles when no one was looking. He was even with Jacob at last! He meant to be more even before the day was out.

"Hello!" he called over the wire. "Yes, I want Mr. Renwyck! Hello, Jake! Good morning! Wha—yes, Corrigan! Me! Don't you know my musical voice? Yes, yes, of course I know you are busy! But, say! I've got something interesting to tell you. You remember that fellow with a cast in his eye—the one you laughed at me about? What? That's it—the tramp." Here Mr. Corrigan covered the mouthpiece with his hand and released the merriment that was struggling with his insides. Then he took up his joyful narrative. "I looked under the bed for him last night, but he wasn't there. Do you know why? He slept in your little toy safe, got up early and took your diamonds with him. No! Honestly, it isn't a joke. I'm telling you the whole miserable, wretched truth. Your safe has been robbed. Cockeye made a clean sweep. What? What? Oh, Jacob, Jacob, you shouldn't talk like that! It's against the rules of the Telephone Exchange."

The rest of the conversation was more serious. Mr. Corrigan advised his brother-in-law of the true condition of affairs and offered to do anything in his power to help matters along. Mr. Renwyck, while very much engaged over his harbor scheme, concluded to drop business for the morning and hasten out to Irvington with two experienced detectives.

The safe of Chadwick Bros., Hamilton, was forced and $179 stolen.

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most healthful.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia, Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. SOME NOTES OF THE HOLIDAY FESTIVITIES

The best ever.

The weather was perfect.

It looked like rain on Sunday.

The band concerts were much enjoyed.

The city had hundreds of visitors yesterday.

Both visiting regiments had good bugle bands.

The people swarmed around Central Park.

There was a noisy time on George street last night.

Firecrackers were much in evidence on the holiday. The small boy had a great time.

The Brantford and St. Catharines regiments had representatives with the visiting corps.

The visiting officers were entertained to a drive around the city on Sunday afternoon and greatly enjoyed it.

One of the members of the 38th regiment band remarked that he was coming back to Peterborough to reside next week.

The officers of the 38th Regiment have a song which goes this way:

"Old King Cole was a merry old soul,
A merry old soul was he;
O, there's none so rare as can compare
With the 38th D.R.C."

Major Hayes entertained a number of officers of the 19th and 38th Regiments at supper on Sunday night.

The new armories were greatly admired by the visitors. They are among the best in Canada.

The non-Coms of the 57th were "at home" to the non-coms of the visiting regiments, and entertained them in splendid style. The local bandsmen also entertained the visiting musicians handsomely.

Both bands of the 57th Regiment showed up well and made a hit with the crowds that lined the streets.

The freshness and greenness of the lawns and landscape were a treat to everyone.

An old soldier remarked on seeing the review, "Ay! They march well enough, but if you saw the way the service men bring down their feet it would scar' ye."

The mild appearance of the streets this morning would lead one to suppose that there was even more "fun" inside than out, last night.

A damsel in benegg red was heard to remark that she liked a red nose on a soldier better with the rifle-green than a red coat.

Where was local option last night? Many a wee chiel wud ha' been spanked for sic work.

A number of the visiting officers were entertained on Sunday evening by Capt. Dr. Eastwood.

LOCKMASTER SANDBAGGED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Mr. John Cronin, the veteran lock tender of lock 6, on the Trent Canal, had a very unpleasant few minutes about 10.30 o'clock on Saturday night. He was looking after the water in the lock and was just preparing to return home when he was suddenly sandbagged.

Mr. Cronin had a considerable sum of money on him at the time and made a big fight for fear his assailants would get hold of it. Mr. Cronin does not know if there were more than two thugs assaulted him or not. The night was very dark.

In the confusion of the struggle the men became frightened and made away.

IMMENSE CROWD SAW REGIMENTS AT RIVERSIDE

Review of 19th, 38th and 57th by Col. King of St. Catharines—Trooping the Colors by the 19th Won Admiration of Spectators---An Interesting Review.

The military features of Victoria Day morning provided entertainment for immense crowds of Peterborough citizens yesterday morning. At 9.30 o'clock the 19th of St. Catharines, 38th of Brantford and 57th of Peterborough left the Armouries for Riverside Park in the order named, headed by their respective bands and bugle and drum corps. There were about 1,000 officers and men and the parade and the militia made a splendid impression by their excellent marching and splendidly executed manoeuvres, which they executed at Riverside Park, their objective point after leaving the drill shed. At the Park they were reviewed by Col. King, of the 19th St. Catharines.

The route of march was from the Armouries along Murray street to George, down George to Hunter and east on Hunter to Riverside Park. Entrance was made by the big gates which were thrown open for the occasion. The 19th took up its position at the north end of the park, the 38th in the centre and the 57th on the south. The regiments went through some battalion movements and preceding the march past. The 19th marched past the reviewing officer first followed by the 38th and 57th, the band of each regiment playing its own regimental march at the head of the corps. The battalions then faced about and marched to their original positions.

TROOPING THE COLORS.

The trooping of the colors was next performed by the 19th of St. Catharines and this attractive drill was very prettily executed by the St. Kitts men. The band played beautifully and the splendid work of the regiment won them the enthusiastic appreciation of the immense crowd which was the largest ever assembled in the park. The attendance was estimated at over 3,000 about conspicuous among the big gathering was the presence of many hundreds of ladies.

WERE OVERTURNED IN THE RAPIDS AT THE LOCKS

Messrs. Roy Turner and William Distin had a very uncomfortable duckine Saturday afternoon in the rapids that run in the river near the locks. They attempted to make the approach to the slide but were unsuccessful in doing so and overturned in their canoe at the end of the pier. They were carried down the current as far as Rye's boathouse where they were rescued. They paddled up and it just happened that the lock gates were being opened and they were admitted there and made the rest of the trip to the city without incident.

At present the rapids at the locks are very swift and the passage is a dangerous one.

STEAM LAUNCH BURNED AT LAKEFIELD YESTERDAY

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, May 24—Two Toronto yachtsmen H F Strickland, electrical inspector for the fire underwriters, and H O Frind of Yorkville avenue had an unfortunate adventure today.

They had tied their brand new 30-foot steam launch to E R Tate's dock at this place and were enjoying dinner when fire was noticed at the dock and the yacht and Mr. Tate's boathouse were found in flames. Prompt work prevented the fire communicating to Tate's fine big barns close by, but the yacht was damaged to the extent of about $100, while Messrs. Strickland and Frind's "city clothes" were destroyed.

The loss is about $400, covered by insurance in the Royal.

Mr. Strickland had his hands severely burned. The fire is attributed to boys and firecrackers.

SABBATH SCHOOL INSTITUTE AT ST. PAUL'S ON WEDNESDAY

All interested in Sabbath School work will have an opportunity of hearing several experts on Wednesday at St. Paul's church. The afternoon session will open at three o'clock p.m. in the parlors of the church. Speakers will be present from Toronto and Perth, and most attractive sessions are promised. Tea is to be served to the visiting delegates by the ladies of St. Andrew's, Knox and St. Paul's. These three churches are giving up their prayer meetings to give the members the opportunity of attending the evening session. In addition to the speeches during the evening an exhibition of the use of the lantern in the Sunday school will be given. The public are invited.

NO HOLIDAY ON THE HOLIDAY FOR LOCAL FIRE BRIGADE

The fire brigade had no less than five calls yesterday. All the blazes were inconsequential and all but one resulted from the careless use of firecrackers.

The first alarm was rung in at 12.35 for a fire on London street at the residence of Mrs. Sharpe. A small hole was burned in a shed at the rear of the house.

At 5.40 a call for a grass fire at the exhibition grounds came in but Mr C N Brown saw the blaze in its early stage and had it under control soon and the services of the brigade were not called into requisition.

At eight o'clock in the evening a fire broke out in a G.T.R. box car owing to some rubbish and waste paper catching on fire. It was got under control and extinguished with very little damage resulting.

At 8.15 a fire started in some rubbish in the grate in front of the Bee Hive on George street. It spread to a joist and some boxes in the cellar. The total damage including that to goods through smoke will probably be covered by about $100.

The effervescent spirit of the militiamen was the cause of sending in the next alarm. They set fire to some packing boxes on Simcoe St. and the bonfire assumed such threatening proportions that the property holders in the vicinity became alarmed and sent for the brigade to put it out which they did in quick order.

SUBMERGED WHARF MAKES BOATING AT POINT DANGEROUS

At the present season of the year the water is much higher than it is in the summer months. As a result of the high water the street railway wharf at the end of the street car line and just below Rye's boathouse is submerged. This condition makes it very dangerous for canoeists and those "doing" the river in motor boats.

On account of the current they hug the shore at this point, and some accidents are likely to result unless they stay out a short distance and keep clear of the wharf. A few nights ago a boat ran up on the wharf and was rather badly damaged. An accident of the same character occurred to Mr. Wedlock's launch last year.

CONCERTS GIVEN IN VICTORIA PARK BY THREE BANDS

The Peterborough people were treated to a festival of band concerts Sunday and yesterday. On Sunday afternoon and night excellent programmes were played at Victoria Park by the 38th Regimental band, Brantford, and the 19th, of St. Catharines, one of the finest in the province. The music at both concerts was sacred in character and was listened to by large audiences.

Last night the 57th Regimental band played in the park. The concert was an excellent one and a particularly large crowd heard it.

Runaway Horse on Stewart St. This morning Showed His Heels to the Chinese Driver

There was "some" excitement on Stewart street this morning, caused by a runaway, in which a Chinaman from one of the local laundries played a leading part. He hired a horse and buggy from a livery to be used in delivering parcels. The horse was left outside a Stewart street residence while the driver was engaged in taking a parcel into the house. The animal became frightened and bolted up the street with the Celestial in pursuit, but his time was slow and the runaway horse was an easy winner. Parcels of laundry were strewn all over the street, and the buggy was badly demolished. Near the corner of Brock and Stewart streets the frightened horse was caught, and the unlucky Chinaman lead it back to the stable, after which he returned to gather up the parcels. The mortification he had to bear will no doubt affect the receipts of the livery business in the future.

A MINISTER'S GRATITUDE

Zam-Buk Cured a Face Sore Which Defied All Other Remedies for Two Years

Rev. Charles E. Stafford, of Bridgeburg, Ont., says:—

"I had been much troubled for over two years with a sore on my left cheek. I tried all kinds of salves and lotions, but nothing I procured seemed to have the least bit of effect towards healing the sore. Hearing of Zam-Buk I decided to give it a trial and see if it would bring about a cure, as so many other things had failed. I purchased a supply and commenced with the treatment. After several applications, to my great joy, Zam-Buk had effected what for two years I tried in vain to bring about—a complete cure."

Case after case could be quoted in which, as in the above instance, Zam-Buk has worked cures when everything else tried had failed. There is a reason for this. Zam-Buk is the ideal remedy because of its unique ingredients for all skin injuries and diseases.

Away back in the days of the Roman gladiators, secret balms were used for the healing of cuts and injuries sustained in the arena and in battle. Then came a period during which external balms were neglected, followed by a period in which all the salves and embrocations had as their base animal fats and oils. Zam-Buk marks a new epoch. It is absolutely devoid of all animal fats, all mineral colouring matters, and is composed entirely of rich medicinal herbal extracts. Zam-Buk is a combination of Nature's rich healing herbal juices by the most modern scientific methods, and as the result is a balm which cures when others fail.

Skin diseases, such as eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, and prairie itch, are speedily overcome by it. For piles it is fine!—easing the pain and inflammation, and hastening a cure. It also cures burns, scalds, cuts, ulcers, children's sores and eruptions, blood poisoning, scratches, old wounds, varicose ulcers, &c. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. a box, or post-free for price for Zam-Buk., Toronto. Refuse harmful and cheap imitations, sometimes represented as "Just as good."

DROWNED OFF RAFT

Accident on Matane River in Quebec — Four Lose Their Lives.

Quebec, May 26.—Having completed the floating of logs for Price Bros. & Co., four men, Jacques and Meri Ernest Forbes, brothers, and Rosaario and Hermenglide Michaud, also brothers, embarked on a raft on Matane river, Rimouski, in order to shorten the distance to their homes. Nothing more has been seen of them, and it is believed all four have been drowned.

Four logs of spruce and cedar were tied together, and on this the men set out on their homeward journey. They embarked at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The raft has been discovered among the logs near the village, but the bodies of the men are supposed to have been caught under by an eddy in some of the deep pools in the river.

CURE MAY NEVER BE DISCOVERED

Paris May 26.—Major Louis L. Seaman, U.S.A., has arrived here from Mombosa, with the first news of the discovery of Dr. Schrin, a German, which completely upsets the theory of the English commission that the tsete fly only transmits the sleeping sickness. Dr. Schrin proved that the fly becomes infected thus establishing "a cycle," as is the case with the mosquito in yellow fever. The fly remains inoculated for 50 days. This discovery renders more difficult the solution of the problem of extinguishing the dread disease, as it ends the hope previously entertained of suppressing it by isolation.

The remaining members of the party managed to cling to the craft until rescued. One of the girls was unconscious for some hours after being taken out.

CUSTOMS OFFICERS ACTIVE AT FALLS

Hamilton, May 26.—The activity of the customs officers at both sides of the International Bridge Monday was an eye-opener to Hamilton people who spent the holiday in Buffalo, especially those who went bargain hunting in the departmental stores. Those who were caught included the stenographers in two or three uptown business offices.

GERMAN PERIL ALSO AFFECTS CANADA AND UNITED STATES

In Two-Power Standard Discussion in British House To-Day Position of U.S. in Present European Situation Will be Discussed—Daily Mail Editorial Says Britian is the Breakwater of Teutonic Wave.

London, May 26.—The United States is expected to figure largely in the debate which will be raised in the House of Commons this afternoon by Captain Craig relative to the two-power naval standard. In his connection The Daily Mail editorially says:

"We desire to say at once that it is most unfortunate that the name of the United States should enter into the discussion. The American people are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, and inherit many of our grandest national ideals. Blood, we shall continue to think, is thicker than water, and we believe that some American statesmen already realise that England is a breakwater against the wave which may not be fully spent until it washes upon the shores of South America.

"The movement for expansion from central Europe, which is one of the most notable phenomena of our time, and which proceeds with all the force and tragic possibilities of a great natural convulsion, must break upon our coasts first, but if we were driven from our hold upon the sea it would roll swiftly across the wide Atlantic."

In conclusion the editorial urges the House of Lords, in the event of Mr. Asquith's not making a satisfactory statement, to take the unprecedented step of rejecting the budget and forcing an appeal to the country.

Equally significant of the way in which many Englishmen look to the United States for assistance in the expected hour of need is the suggestion made by Coulson Kernahan, the writer, that Britain should celebrate an "America Day," taking as his text a report that two New York State regiments participated in the Empire Day celebration at Kingston, Ont. Mr. Kernahan says:

"I propose that the United States be officially invited to share in all future Empire Day celebrations, and that here in England we celebrate an America Day with equal pride and rejoicing. Let the British nation and the American nation, and the nations of Canada, India, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand, stand four square and solid to the world, and they and we would be impregnable.

"I would also propose that we cease to speak of Americans as our cousins; let us retain that word of kinship and hearty good-will for our cousins of Germany, but the blood-bond between Britain and America is closer than that of cousinship. The Americans are our brethren, and it is fitting that we and they should so proclaim ourselves before all."

FISH NETS MUST KEEP HALF A MILE FROM THE BOUNDARY

Tentative Agreement is Reached by International Fisheries Commission by Which it Will Assume Charge of the Situation—Sturgeon Will be Under Protection for Four Years and Others Prohibited.

Buffalo, May 26.—A special to The Evening News from Washington says:

A tentative agreement by which the international fisheries commission shall assume control of all matters pertaining to fisheries in the great lakes, Lake Champlain, the Niagara river, and St. Lawrence river, for the purpose of adopting international regulations for the protection and preservation of good fish in international boundary waters of the United States and Canada, will come up for final action by the commission this week in this city.

One of the provisions abolishes the present rule that all prohibited fish, when caught, shall be thrown back into the water, by providing that these fish may be turned over to the inspectors, who shall give them to some charitable institutions.

An army of inspectors is to be appointed, who are to have charge of the punishment of dynamiters, the regulation of the sale of fish, disposition of prohibited catches and pollution of waters.

Commercial fishing for certain game fish is prohibited.

A closed season for sturgeon for four years will be established.

A $1,000 penalty for dynamiting will be levied.

Torchlight fishing will be prohibited.

No fishing with nets will be permitted within half a mile of the international boundary.

Lachine Lock-tender Would Not Let United States Training Ship Pass

Montreal, May 26.—There was excitement along the waterfront yesterday when the U.S.S. Nashville, an obsolete cruiser of the United States navy, steamed into port on her way to the great lakes, where she will be used as a training ship for the Illinois naval reserve.

When the Nashville attempted to poke into the first lock on the Lachine canal, the lockmaster refused to open the gates on the ground that the presence of the Nashville on the upper boundary waters between the United States and Canada would directly contravene the international treaty between the two countries. Captain Purdy of the Nashville claimed that Washington had already obtained the necessary permission from the Dominion. He also pointed out that his vessel was unarmed, but it was stated later that he intended to take on his guns, which are being sent overland, at Buffalo. Finally, through the intervention of the United States consul here, and an exchange of telegrams with Ottawa, the Nashville proceeded on her way yesterday afternoon.

BOARD OF TRADE ENDORSES THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

Lively Discussion at Meeting Last Night--With One or Two Exceptions, Speakers Favor the Proposition — Considerable New Information — Debate Warm at Times.

Moved by Mr D W Dumble,
Seconded by Mr F D Kerr.

"That the bylaw to aid Purity Ware Limited, submitted to ratepayers of Peterborough, is approved by the Board of Trade and deserving of the support of the ratepayers."

This resolution was passed at a meeting of the Board of Trade last night called to discuss the Purity Ware, Limited, bylaw. There was a large attendance and the discussion was of a lively kind. Many of those present left before the speakers had finished and it was nearly eleven o'clock when the meeting adjourned. Ald. Gillespie, chairman of the Board of Trade, was in the chair.

Mr. Jas. Kendrey opposed the bylaw and Mr W H Moore picked what he considered a flaw or two in the bylaw. Mr V. Eastwood and Mr. R F McWilliams raised one or two objections but outside of these gentlemen the speakers favored the measure, some of them very strongly. There was a good deal of lively cross firing among the speakers and those present enjoyed the verbal duelling.

Ald. Gillespie informed the meeting that he was not able to give for publication the name of the firm which will underwrite the stock of Purity Ware, Limited, but he had given the information to all the aldermen and all the bank managers in Peterborough and the latter had been requested to look up their financial standing.

Ald. Gillespie said he would also give the name of the firm to Mr. Kendrey in confidence.

The Board of Trade, Mr. Gillespie said, was anxious to have a full discussion of the bylaw. They wanted to let the ratepayers have all the information possible.

Ald Hicks asked if it was the intention of the meeting to discuss the bylaw or the negotiations which led up to the passing of the bylaw. This should be clearly understood.

Mr. Gillespie said the intention was to discuss the bylaw.

Mr Jas. Kendrey said the ratepayers were present for information. "We want to know who are the men financing the company" said Mr Kendrey.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said the real point was not who were the men financing the concern. It was sufficient that the money has to be subscribed for working capital. The bylaw says the city is not to pay over any money until there was $100,000 of working capital. Mr. Dumble referred to the securing of the Canadian General Electric company by Peterborough. That was a great stroke of business for the city. The future development of Peterborough depended upon getting new industries. Almost every city and town in the province were hot after new factories and Peterborough had many competitors now, that she did not have when she secured the OGE. Niagara power had put many western cities and towns to the front as competitors for new industries. This keen competition made it necessary to be more daring than in the past. All commercial institutions entailed a certain amount of risk. If we waited for institutions that were perfectly safe we would have to wait for the millenium. Mr. Dumble outlined the bylaw and pointed out that the amount of risk entailed by the city was very small. The site was being secured at a low price and it mattered not whether it belonged to the mayor or his aunt or his sister, or anybody else. The location was a good one, being close to the railways and the canal. The latter was an important feature as goods could be shipped by water and the presence of the canal would be an important factor in securing reasonable freight rates on the railways. The speaker stated that the New York company, which was putting money into the new concern would see that it was managed by business men. The Americans were not putting their money into Purity Ware, Limited, to have it wasted. Peterborough had lost the Standard Ideal Company because it was considered poor men were behind it. The Standard Ideal was now a flourishing concern and Peterborough always regretted the action that the city had taken at that time.

Mr. Dumble said he had considered the matter fully and was prepared to vote for the by-law.

His Worship Mayor Rush said Peterborough must have factories. What was to become of the city if new industries were not secured? The Mayor thought the city had ample security for the money that was being loaned the company.

Mr. Peter Campbell, Manager of the Bank of Toronto, said that he knew the firm which proposed underwriting the stock of Purity Ware Co., and had no hesitation in saying that they were one of the strongest financial firms in the Dominion of Canada. As to the men who it was hoped would be President and vice-president of the company, they held high positions in the financial world, and when their names were announced the ratepayers would no doubt be pleasantly surprised.

MR KENDREY

Mr. Kendrey contended that the names of the men referred to by Mr. Campbell should be made known. It looked like a secret association of some kind.

Mr. Dumble—"I would like to ask Mr. Kendrey what consequence it is to Peterborough who the brokers are as long as the money is put up?

Mr. Kendrey argued that there was no reason for secrecy. He asked Mr. Campbell if he could give the names of the Montreal men who were to underwrite the stock.

Mr. Campbell said he could, but he had promised not to, and was not going to break his faith.

Mr. Kendrey wanted to know if the New York concern was behind Purity Ware, Limited.

Mr. Gillespie read the letter from the New York firm, in which they specified the terms on which they would take stock in the New York concern. Mr. Kendrey said the letter contained nothing that was binding.

Ald. Hicks went after Mr. Kendrey and told him he did not know what was in the by-law.

Mr. Kendrey objected to this.

Ald. Hicks read portions of the by-law to refute some of Mr. Kendrey's statements. The alderman said Mr. Kendrey had secured his information from Mr Kemp, of Toronto, who was in the enamel ware business. It was natural that Mr. Kemp would want to discourage a rival concern.

Mr. Kendrey said his only object in protesting against the by-law was a desire to serve the interests of Peterborough. He had as much at stake here as Ald. Hicks.

Ald. Hicks said if Mr. Kendrey would name one gentleman in the audience in whom he had confidence, he would show the gentleman [illegible] a letter from the financial men behind the new concern.

Mr. Kendrey objected to Ald. Hicks imputing ulterior motives to him in opposing the by-law.

Ald. Bradburn here took a hand in the discussion and said that the new concern must have $100,000 of working capital before the city advanced them a cent.

Mr. Poussette said Peterborough was not giving the company the $50,000 as a gift. It was being loaned the company on reasonable security.

Mr. Poussette said Mr Kemp, from whom Mr Kendrey had secured some information was one of the most successful manufacturers of enamelware in Canada.

Mr. Kendrey and Mr Dumble had a lively debate as to the importations into Canada of enamel ware in 1908. Mr. Kendrey had a blue book and stated that the total importation in 1908 was $113,000. Mr. Dumble took the same book and made it out a larger amount. The Purity Ware Co. would manufacture both enamel and galvanized wares.

Ald. Hicks read from the by-law, showing that Mr Dumble was right.

Mr. W H Moore said the clause in the bylaw about the mortgage should have been worded differently. There was nothing to show that the city would get a mortgage on the site building and fixed machinery.

Ald. Morrow said that was provided for in the bylaw. There was no doubt but that the city would get a mortgage.

Mr V Eastwood thought the proposition was all right if the provisions of the bylaw were carried out.

Mr. Smoke, of Toronto, the company's solicitor, was present and spoke at some length. As to the point about the mortgage raised by Mr. Moore, he could not understand anybody of business men handing over any money without getting the mortgage. The bylaw was not final. After it was passed an agreement would be drawn up between the city and the company. The city would say what this agreement would be.

Mr. R F McWilliams also discussed the bylaw, arguing that the duty on the machinery would have to be paid out of the working capital.

This statement was objected to by several other speakers.

The motion was then put and carried.

Mr. A. Q. C. O'Brien in an interview with the Review, expressed the opinion that the city could not do better than pass the Purity Ware by-law. He thinks the whole project a good one and the city amply secured.

PRINCE RUPERT SALES NOW ON

Vancouver, B.C., May 26.—In less than two hours yesterday morning $236,000 was invested in Prince Rupert property. Fully half the buying was done by Vancouver people. The afternoon sales ran the figures up to over $400,000. In no case was it necessary to withdraw the property because of failure of bidding to reach the "upset" prices. Seattle, Winnipeg and Cordova, Alaska, money was represented, and there were a host of scattered buyers. There were fully 1,500 people in attendance. There are 2,400 lots to be disposed of.

No Child Criminals.

Albany, N.Y., May 26.—Governor Hughes yesterday signed the bill amending the penal law to provide that a child of more than seven and less than sixteen years of age, who shall commit any act or omission which, if committed by an adult, would be a crime not punishable by death or life imprisonment, shall not be deemed guilty of any crime, but of juvenile delinquency only.

Earthquake at Messina.

Messina, May 26.—One of the severest shocks since the great earthquake occurred here Monday afternoon. The movement was both vertical and horizontal, and lasted ten seconds. The shock was preceded by a rumbling noise. The populace fled panic-stricken, and the walls of ruins in various places collapsed.

Serious Situation In Syria.

Berlin, May 26.—A special correspondent of The Tageblatt sends the following from Laruaca, Cyprus:

"The situation in Syria is most serious. The autonomy movement is gaining ground, while home rule is the watchword. The troops stationed at Damascus refuse to recognize Mohammed V. as Sultan.

Lake Winnipeg fish supply is much depleted.

Wonderful tales are being told by returned travellers of the amazing riches of the Peace River district.

MAYOR RUSH SUBMITS FIGURES IN CONNECTION WITH PURITY WARE BY-LAW

Speaking in support of the Purity Ware bylaw last night, Mayor Rush spoke as follows:

Are the Auburn Woollen Mills a benefit to Peterborough? (The public answer yes.

Not many years ago Hon. Senator Cox and others bought that estate, so reports say at 50 cents on the dollar but under Mr Kendrey's management what is it today, and if the worst comes to the worst, in the case of the Purity Ware Limited, another Mr Kendrey will turn up.

We want manufactures here and in granting concessions to induce them to locate here it is the duty of the council to see that the safety of the city is properly guarded which I feel sure in this case it is. When a New York firm is going to put up $100,000 in the concern rest assured they will strongly oppose its being run or managed by "men of straw" as was spoken of at the last meeting. I would much rather have one strong firm interest themselves and invest, say $100,000 in this factory, than have the stock sold in small lots, as before they invest one dollar they will know who is going to manage the concern and I understand the Montreal firm has said, "Pass the bylaw first before we announce ourselves." I can readily understand this, if the bylaw is not carried their name is not known, but if it is, as I sincerely hope it will be, then they will take the matter up. The council took this precaution before announcing themselves to the public. They insisted that a marked check for $250 should be deposited with the city clerk to cover the expenses of passing the bylaw, and this check has been deposited with the city clerk, so if these people fail to fulfill their part of the transaction the ratepayers are not out of pocket. I think any person who will take the precaution to read the bylaw carefully will see that the city is amply protected.

His worship then gave the following figures which are of value.

Interest on $3000 at [illegible] per cent, $127.50; sinking fund 3 1-2 per cent basis, twenty years, $106.08; total $233.58.

A little less than 3 cents on each $1000 of assessment.

Interest on $50,000 at 4 1-2 per cent. $2,125; sinking fund 3 1-2 basis 20 years, $1768.05; total $3893.05.

46 cents on each $1000 of assessment for 20 years.

Taking the two items together, $3000 and $50,000 equals $50,000, the interest and sinking fund would be $4126.63 a year, equal to 49 cents on each $1000 of assessment for 20 years.

The city is now receiving from the land as taxes $29 a year. The school taxes cannot be remitted, $35,000 would be considered a low assessment. The revenue to the city would be $312 a year from the school taxes alone deducting $29 a year from that which the city is now receiving would leave a balance of $283. Deducting what the land would cost $233, would leave a net gain to the ratepayers of $50 a year.

THE RETURN OF THE DUEL

Murder according to unwritten law appeals as it has always appealed, to the irate or vengeful man. It was the original basis of the duello which in course of time became the form through which a professional murderer went in killing many respectable people. It passed. Now, however it is being introduced again. The danger is coming back again of a re-growth of an old weed. It is a species of harking back as is said of breeding. A man will make a commonplace, ordinary everyday fool of himself and even rejoice over it when sober, which is another one illustrating the law of harking back. Harking back, atavism or throwing back as it is sometimes called is a relic of the early childhood of the race when rude jokes amused the natives and horse play was the highest form of wit. There were no Sunday schools in those days or churches so the old timers didn't add hypocrisy or cant to their hippopotamic follies. The unwritten law is a recurrence of the natural order of things before the civil law arose when the battle went to the strong and the race to the swift. This was before the days of crookedness, also, in races and before the doping of participants in single combat. Drunkenness is another primeval failing dating however, from a later period when the natives begin to put on the airs of civilization. It is a question after all if we are capable of developing such a system as the Roman law nowadays. The consensus of opinion is that we are not. We are prone to act and to act without thinking. This is a throwing-back also to the time when our forefathers grabbed all they could get their hands on as a first principle of their material existence. However our philosophers say that to know these things is a first step to their remedying.

MANUAL TRAINING

Manual training in local schools is the movement of the hour. In the near future, the manual training in the elementary grade will develop into the technical training of the higher grade. It will pass from the kindergarten stage to that of real practical work, such as is the supreme value to the young man or woman who contemplates engaging in work of that character after leaving school. It is the raising of manual work from the rude rule of thumb character of the past to the scientific and artistic status which places it on a level with the professions. Many pupils are skilful with their hands, who do not excel in purely intellectual or reflective work. It is to them that manual and technical work more intimately appeals. It is this respect that Germany has excelled the rest of the world. Britain and U.S. are hastening to follow suit. Canada must not be a minute behind. It is gratifying to find, therefore, the care and interest shown by our local teachers both at the Public and the Normal schools. The public is invited to patronize the open demonstrations of Friday of this week.

LAURIER'S IMPERIALISM

London, May, 22.—The Saturday Review says Laurier's Imperialism takes a curiously atomic form, and if all the colonial Governments to be represented at the conference on defence share his views, the delegates might as well remain at home. Canada's naval proposals might be likened to the action of a man who ostentatiously makes another a present which he intends to keep for his own enjoyment.

The now-you-see-it-and-now-you-don't policy of Sir Wilfrid is being run down at last. To give a shavy to ourselves on pretence of giving it to the empire is "a bit thick," as the cockney says.

A RAY OF HOPE

"The Hague, May 22—The decision of the Court of Arbitration on the Casablanca dispute between France and Germany over the forcible seizure by French officials of deserters, from the French foreign legion, while under the protection of the German consulate was delivered today. While not placing the blame definitely upon either France or Germany the court censures the representatives of each nation in several particulars. It declares that the secretary of the German consulate at Casablanca wrongfully endeavored to bring about the embarkation on a German steamship of deserters from the French Foreign Legion who were not of German nationality and adds that the consulate had even no right to protect deserters who were of German nationality, and that the consul committed an error in signing their safe conduct."

Saturday's telegraphic despatches announce the judgment of the Hague Tribunal on the "Casablanca Affair" which was within a hair's breadth about a year ago of bringing France and Germany together in the clash of war. It was a most ticklish question. It required an immense amount of care and even finesse on the part of the Hague Tribunal. The reference gave the mighty litigants a chance to divert their gaze from each other and to fasten it upon an inoffensive and harmless court of award. The effect was instantaneous and splendid. The storm subsided. The end has come in a quiet, orderly and satisfactory way. Why may it be asked can we not devote our attention as human beings to the promotion and extension of this peaceful plan instead of building navies and breaking our backs in useless expense? It certainly will be if the trusters and money-buggers will be content with an honest state of the public health and not seek to embroil us in Godless schemes that involve the destruction of nations in order that they themselves may profit out of others' loss and suffering. When the history of the gambling upon 'Change is written it will be the history of relentless usurers, living upon the earnings of charwomen and upon the milk due to babies. A militia such as ours is however, a fine training-school for the young. In these days there does not seem to be any other. It teaches order, decorum, respect for elders, neatness, precision and a number of other things. But WAR teaches nothing. It is as Sheridan said, "Merely Hell and nothing less." It is to be hoped that this most important step towards the peace and prosperity of nations will not be allowed to fall into desuetude or oblivion.

A RIVAL OF THE G. T. P.

"Speaking of the Lake Superior section, Mr Mann stated in effect that operations would likely be begun some time next year on this important link which is destined to bring the company's 1300 miles of main line west of the great lakes into direct connection with the Canadian Northern's Ontario and Quebec system. It will be remembered that the Government of the province of Ontario, at the last session, made an extensive land grant in aid of this great middle section of what will be in a few years another completed Canadian transcontinental railway."—Montreal Star.

There are three things in the above paragraph that must strike every reader forcibly. One is that the C. N.R. or Mackenzie and Mann transcontinental railway is being built from ocean to ocean and hooked on, it will be noticed to local connections, without one particle of assistance from the treasury or resources of Canada excepting the two million acres given on certain conditions as to price by the Ontario government. Here is a national transcontinental railway built in the ordinary way and without cost to us. What excuse can there be for the monumental wrong doing of the G.T.P. It will stand in history as the most extraordinary wandering of ambitious minds led on by designing capitalists and contractors, in the history perhaps of the entire world. And think what else we could have done with the money. All this was laid before Laurier long before his being committed to the G.T.P. but it will be remembered that Cox couldn't wait and now we see why. One year more and the C.N.R. would have saved the expense.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Old Home foolishness is striking Montreal.

It is a crime to sell liquor to Indians because they are said to be unable to control themselves under its temptation. There are others.

The opening of the Armouries and the various functions attendant upon it, passed without one word being said of Free Rural Mail and Parcel Delivery. However, the farmer was allowed to see the lions feed even if he didn't get anything himself.

Thieves at Minnedosa, Man., entered a hardware store, and got away with enough ammunition to stock a fort.

Somebody in Winnipeg cashed cheques bearing the name of a Saskatoon doctor. The police are interested.

DR. EASTWOOD'S PAPER ON MEDICAL INSPECTION IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Interesting Address Given Before the Teachers' Institute —Some of the Diseases to Which Children Are Particularly Liable.

"At the request of the Executive of the Teachers' Institute, of Peterborough I am to give you a short and necessarily incomplete talk on some of the diseases to which children are particularly liable and also on a subject which the other suggests, ie. the necessity for medical inspection in public schools.

Let us first take up the second part of the subject. I am free to confess that I think in that respect we, in Peterborough are not abreast of the times. It would not be possible for us, perhaps, to have it, to the same extent as they have it in many of the larger cities, but, it is not only practicable, but highly desirable that we should have it to the extent, of the detection of contagious diseases, of obstructed breathing, of defective eye sight, hearing, tuberculosis, etc.

Before, say the period of 1880-1890, there might have been some excuse for the non-inspection of schools, but during that period the germs of tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria and erysipelas were isolated. You have a school law, which compels children to go to school, it would be only fair if some guarantee were given, that they were not at the same time being introduced into a hot-bed of disease.

There is no question, that before many years have elapsed, medical inspection of public schools will be universal, and the people of that day will wonder how we ever got along without it. Let us look at the advantages. Take first the detection and suppression of contagious diseases. If you can prevent the spread of these diseases by school children, you will never have a very large epidemic. In the epidemic of scarlet fever which is now about over, there were very many cases not seen by a physician which were ill perhaps a day or two and which remained out of school not at all, or only a few days. In an epidemic where the cases are mild, there are always a large number of these patients, often the parents being not aware of the true nature of the trouble. Now, had we medical inspection these cases would be seen by a medical man on their return to school. He would probably be able to determine their nature by the chemical evidence then present, and by questioning the pupil. This is not always possible but were it known there was medical inspection parents would not be so liable to conceal these cases, particularily if there was a penalty for so doing. What applies to scarlet fever, applies also to measles, diphtheria, mumps, whooping cough.

Then there is the subject of tuberculosis. It may affect the lungs, glands, etc. It is an infectious disease, ie., it is due to a bacillus, and that bacillus being breathed in or swallowed may cause tuberculosis in any child. Where the lung is affected the bacillus is found in the sputum. So that you see the danger of a tubercular child in a school. If he expectorates on the floor, it dries, gets into the air in the form of dust, may be breathed in by your child, your brother or sister, and tuberculosis may be the result. The dry bacillus is potent, so that the disease similarily if deposited on the tonsil, tuberculosis of the glands of the neck may result. While your child may have no hereditary taint, he is not safe if exposed to the infection. As a rule tuberculosis is a very chronic disease. A child may be infected in school and show little clinical evidence of the disease until adult age has been reached. Suspected children could at least receive the tubercular test. It has recently been discovered that a solution of tuberculin dropped into the eye, of an infected subject sets up a characteristic inflammatory condition of the conjunctiva, which lasts a few days, and which has no ill effects, or a tuberculin ointment may be rubbed into the skin and it produces a characteristic action in the form of red papules. When I tell you that if tuberculosis is only discovered early enough, the cure is almost certain, you see the incalculable advantage of proper medical inspection.

But while this phase of the subject is important, there is another class of cases, easy of detection and which cause numberless children to be dull, when they might be bright, to be in ill health when they might be strong, to put in a miserable, uncomfortable existence, when they might be pain free and full of the buoyant spirits which every child ought to have. Children seem so helpless that it is pathetic to see them suffer, but when that suffering is because of our neglect it becomes absolutely cruel. Parents are not always to blame. They do not understand, and it is not to be expected that they would. If the infirmity is pointed out and the remedy indicated, if they will not then adopt the means of cure, they ought to be made to do so. I have particularly in mind obstructed breathing from adenoids, enlarged tonsils, etc., defects in vision and hearing.

If breathing is obstructed from adenoids, etc., the child does not get enough air, and the effect is to make a naturally bright child dull and inattentive. From lack of use the nose does not develop, and secondary obstruction takes place there, requiring at some future time an operation for the removal of bone. The whole facial expression changes; in extreme cases the child looks almost idiotic. The chest becomes undeveloped because of the want of proper expansion. From my point of view that seems a crime, when by a simple operation, the the whole thing could be remedied. No child is so poor that he cannot have the operation. The medical profession, to their credit be it said, always stands ready to relieve suffering wherever it may be found.

Defects of vision not only cause headache and consequently effect the mentality of the child, but the defects keep increasing until he has to leave school because he is too large for his class, and he goes forth to earn a living handicapped by poor eye sight, a danger to himself and menace to others, whether in factory, office or other business. Medical inspection would easily discover these cases. As a rule, the relief is sure and the vision, instead of getting worse, improves. Do you think it is fair to the children that they are allowed to suffer, or to the teachers, that the pupils are not put in the best possible condition for the acquiring of the knowledge which it is desired to impart to them.

Defects in hearing may be due to a variety of causes, one of which is adenoids. The removal of which effects a cure. In almost all cases of deafness it is the early discovery of the trouble that affords the best chance of relief. It goes without saying that a child that cannot hear well acquires knowledge much less readily than the child with good hearing. When he leaves school he is, perhaps, at a greater disadvantage than he of the defective sight.

Then there are the contagious skin diseases, which, while not dangerous to life, spread rapidly through schools but which, if detected, are very easily stamped out.

I have enumerated only a few of the diseases and infirmities that would be discovered by medical inspection. I might have also mentioned deformities as spinal curvature hereditary syphilis. Defective and carious teeth, a very important subject in the child.

Do not understand that the things I have mentioned are rare. I am well within the mark when I say there are dozens of such cases in our city schools, and in the large majority of instances, unsuspected by the parents.

Medical inspection would be educative. "The people would come to know about these things and their prevention. The subject of personal hygiene would receive more attention. The necessity of living a clean life would be appreciated. Educate the children along these lines and you educate the community. I have no hesitation in saying that medical inspection in schools would not only make the people more healthful, but also more moral."

The paper was carefully discussed by the teachers in convention and many cases were cited where medical inspection would relieve suffering, and a resolution was passed unanimously, urging upon the Board of Education to take the subject into consideration, and to make a beginning in this important matter.

Storm Signals.

Washington, May 26.—Flashing around the world by wireless telegraphy warnings of approaching storms and other disturbances of the elements is one of the latest international projects. Another is the proposition to equip the vessels of all nations with uniform storm signals. These are the leading problems to be threshed out at a conference of distinguished meteorologists of the principal nations to be held in London on June 21 next.

Arrested For Taft Caricature.

San Juan, Porto Rico, May 25.—Joaquin Beirreiro, editor of a weekly paper, given over to the publication of caricatures, and called El Carnival, was arrested yesterday charged with sending improper matter through the mails. The charge is based on a cartoon of President Taft and a reference to his recent message on Porto Rico.

To Erect Monument to Massacre.

Washington, May 25.—The Government has decided to erect a monument on the spot where the remains of La Veranderye's son, Father Aulneau, and 19 voyageurs (slain by Indians in the massacre of the Island in Lake of the Woods, in 1736), were recently found. This is the long lost site of Fort St. Charles, which was located by a party of clerics, headed by the Archbishop of St. Boniface, last August, six miles south of the international boundary.

Preach Civic Economy.

New York, May 25.—In pursuance of a plan to arouse the public conscience to the need of better apportionment of the $156,000,000 of yearly municipal expenditure more than 100 clergymen embracing every denomination made the city budget the text of their Sunday sermons.

The most important gathering of Orangemen ever held in Peterborough is the annual convention of the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America which opened at the court house this afternoon. Distinguished Orangemen from Vancouver, B.C., to Newfoundland are in attendance, and about 150 delegates are present at the convention.

Preliminary business is being transacted at this afternoon's session and the new business of importance will be dealt with to-morrow. This afternoon the reports of the officers will be received and the standing committees will be appointed.

Grand Master Dr. T. S. Sproule, M. P., Markham, is presiding. He will present his annual address and the secretary of the Grand Lodge, Wm. Lee, of Toronto, will make his annual statement.

The business of the convention may be concluded to-morrow, and it may take a portion of the next day before it is finished according to the volume that comes up for disposal.

The convention is the 80th annual one of the lodge, and a large and representative delegation of members is in attendance.

The hotel rotundas are alive with hustle and excitement, the distinguished strangers attracting much attention.

GRAND BLACK CHAPTER HAD SPLENDID BANQUET

The Orange Grand Black Chapter of British America held a delightful banquet at the Hotel National last night. About 75 were in attendance and the menu was an excellent one and reflected great credit on mine host Dennison.

Several splendid speeches, largely of a patriotic character, were made during the evening. British supremacy was dwelt upon and the importance of the work of the Orange Order in the British Empire formed the keynote of striking addresses.

At the conclusion of the banquet the company adjourned to the drawing room, where an interesting impromptu programme was given.

GAVE LIQUOR TO INDIAN; WAS GIVEN THIRTY DAYS

Cases at Police Court This Morning—Young Man Drove Through Simcoe Street Railway Gates—Blacklist Man Fined $10.00—Was Told to Leave

Edward Harran was charged with supplying liquor to Alexander Knott, an Indian, last Saturday. He pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was against him, and he was given 30 days in gaol.

Knott was called to the witness box and said he lived in Chemong and was a treaty Indian and drew Government money. On Saturday morning he gave the defendant 75 cents to purchase a flask of whiskey. The liquor was secured and the same was drunk in Long's hotel shed, and Harran helped to drink it. The reason he wanted the liquor was because of a toothache.

Harran stated he met the Indian in the sitting room of Long's hotel about 9 a.m. Saturday morning. He was washing at the time and was asked by the Indian to get a bottle. He refused and Knott then said, "You needn't as I have a bottle and if you come out in the shed we will drink it." After this was accomplished the Indian asked him to get another bottle, but he still refused, and as he was bothered by Knott asking him time and again, he went away, and that was the last he saw of the Indian. He had smelled whiskey off the Indian before the whiskey was drunk in the sheds.

Asked by Chief Rossel if he was in the hotel at 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon, the defendant swore that he was not.

Knott was recalled and said he had arrived in the city from Lindsay that morning and did not drink any liquor except that which was supplied by Harran. He did not get any of the 75 cents back that he had given to the defendant to enable him to get the whiskey.

The Magistrate held that the Indian had told the truth, and he believed him, and then gave the above judgment.

DROVE THROUGH GATES.

James Wallace was charged with having caused damage to the railway gates on Simcoe street. He pleaded not guilty, and after hearing the evidence, the case was enlarged until to-morrow morning to allow the accused to bring some witnesses to the court.

Samuel McIlroy was the first witness. He stated that he was the gateman on Simcoe street and was on duty Sunday morning. The gates were down at 355 as a double-header was about to pass. A young man driving a bay horse attached to a top buggy came from the west, and, although he hollered at the driver no attention was paid and the horse and buggy went through the gates on the west side, thereby breaking them down. The horse and buggy turned up Bethune street.

Isaac Watson was next called, and stated that he was employed at Dr. Robinson's livery. Defendant brought in a horse and buggy about 4 a.m. Sunday morning. There were marks of white paint on the animal's legs. Wallace had said he had met with an accident. He did not know much about the horse, although he had been told that the harder the reins were pulled, the faster the horse travelled.

Wm Scott, Grand Trunk Railway detective, placed the damages to the gates at $20.00.

Dr. F. L. Robinson said the damage to the buggy and harness would amount to $2.00. He said the buggy and horse was marked with white paint. The animal was quiet and and was easy to drive.

The accused in his own defence stated that the trouble was caused by the horse becoming frightened a short distance from the gates, and he was unable to stop him. The harder he pulled on the reins the faster the horse ran, and this led to the gates being broken. He was not intoxicated and did not drive the horse through the gates wilfully.

This was all the evidence taken and the case was enlarged until tomorrow morning.

SUPPLIED LIQUOR TO INDIAN.

The person who supplied the liquor to the blacklisted man last week was present in court when the case was called again this morning. He said he lived on Chambers street, but did not know the man's name to whom he supplied the whiskey. On Thursday he was asked by the blacklisted man to get some whiskey as he was sick. Witness went down to an hotel, but the proprietor used the words, "You had better be careful of what you are doing, as the man for whom you are getting the whiskey may be on the blacklist. He decided not to take the liquor and went back and refunded the man his money. He had got liquor on other occasions, but did not know of the man being on the blacklist, or he would not have done so.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $10.00 on the blacklisted man, and this amount was paid.

TOLD TO LEAVE THE CITTY.

Arthur Westside, of Kingston, came to the city to spend the 24th of May, but got drunk. In the police court this morning he asked the Magistrate for another chance as he wanted to get back to his family. He had a ticket to Kingston, and was told to take the 11.45 and get out of the city.

VICTORIA DAY AT CHEMONG PARK

Park Has many Visitors-Some Cottages Opened-New Cottages at Pigeon Lake

Chemong Park is looking its prettiest these days, and the cottagers are gradually taking possession of their summer homes. A large number drove out for the holiday, and the hotel was the centre of much gaiety. There are a number of new cottages being built and some have been newly painted, which improves the appearance of the Park a great deal.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn, who are again in their cottage, are arranging to build a second cottage at Pigeon Lake, which they will occupy during July and August. The rest of the season they will remain at Chemong.

Mr. and Mrs. Heaton, of Toronto, with their family, were at the Park on Sunday, and on Monday went up to Pigeon Lake, where they are building a cottage this year.

Among those who were at the Park for the holiday were:—Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. G. Denne, and Mr. and Mrs. Heaton, of Toronto.

Mr. Jack Hopwood was down from Toronto for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff and Miss Woodruff, of Toronto, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Nugent, spent Sunday at the Park.

Cressman's staff enjoyed a picnic at the Park on Monday. Two 'bus loads of young people made up the jolly party and they thoroughly enjoyedd themselves.

Miss Ada Mimms, of Toronto, was the guest of Mrs. J. N. McDermid over the holiday.

THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

The meetings of the Board of Trade on last night and one week ago have resulted in a very thorough threshing out of the question involved in the Purity-Ware by-law. Some people may complain of technicalities, interruptions, legal refinements and the like, but all these are necessary to finding out what lies in that direction, if nothing else. Mr. Moore, K.C., is chairman of the City Trust and it is he who has to execute the binding agreement between the city and a company. Naturally he scans it carefully. Then Mr. Kendrey wants information. He has no faith in companies unless he knows who is behind them. He suspects promoters. He sees the city left with empty buildings and an unoccupied enclosure upon its lands. In which event what would be the loss? Ald. Morrow says that it would be nil. Mr. Kendrey says it might be the whole sum. As opposed to these contentions it may be said that there is to be, finally, a paid-up capital of $453,000, made up of $3,000 in land, $50,000 in loan, $150,000 in machinery, $50,000 in patents, etc $100,000 in cash and $100,000 in cash or its equivalent. Naturally enough, a ratepayer will inquire what risk do the outsiders run? They run the risk of losing their cash paid in for stock and possibly a large part of the machinery too. But as Mr. Smoke said, "Does anyone suppose that all this is being done for the purpose of losing it?" Or in other words, can anyone reasonably say that all this is being done for the purpose of 'taking in' the city and the stockholders? It does not look like it. While many recall the agreements we have had with companies hitherto they must remember that the city was dealing with "going concerns" while this is a new business. In the last analysis, one may ask, "who is there in this whole affair that understands the galvanized and enamel ware business?" The answer plainly is only those who are contributing the machinery. If they stand to lose the machinery on the venture they will not only mind their own eye, but necessarily ours too. Then passing the by-law is only the first stage. The Purity-Ware Company has got to demonstrate by buildings, etc., its solvency or at least its strength to that extent before it gets a dollar of the city's money and it is well known that bottomless companies fade away long before that stage is reached. If Purity-ware survives long enough to be able to ask, legally, for the city's loan it will have shown enough of its form to warrant our backing it in the way asked for. As for the future of the business, that is another matter. No one could guarantee that.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Purity Ware Co. Limited

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I attended the public meeting last night in the council chamber to hear the discussion upon the bylaw of the Purity Ware Company that is to be voted upon by the tax payers on June 1st, and I must say that I was surprised at the stand that Mr. James Kendrey took, and I felt sorry to see a gentleman and a business man like Mr. Kendrey talk against this company as he did at the meeting last night. I feel that we want more manufacturers in our city and I think that this Purity Ware company is one of the right kind of manufacturers and one that we should all work hard to get. We all know that the manufacturing industries are the things that keep our city to the front and help us all. The money that is earned by the mechanics, laborers and girls is spent in our city.

I would also like to remark that we elected Aldermen Gillespie and Bradburn to look after our interests in the council and we had confidence in them that they would endeavor to do their very best to help to boom the city of Peterborough, and help themselves at the same time because these men are business men, and property holders and I might say good, shrewd business men; These same men and our worthy city clerk, S R. Armstrong, were sent to New York by our city to look into the matter of the Purity Ware Company and bring in their report. They did so and their report was a good one and they recommended it to the Mayor and the City Council and the Board of Trade, and I feel sure that these men went through the matter carefully before they presented that report and our tax payers should show these men that they have confidence in their judgment and go to the polls on June 1st and vote for the bylaw and carry it by an overwhelming majority!

I have also heard it remarked that it looks bad because Mayor Rush is trying to sell his ground to the Company. Surely Mayor Rush should have the same privilege of selling his land as any other individual, and I certainly think that Mayor Rush has offered the land at a very low price indeed to induce this Purity Ware company to locate here. I will do all that I can to get this company to locate in our good city. I am largely interested in the welfare of the city of Peterborough as all I possess is here and I feel sure that the people will see that we want this Purity Ware and many other factories and will vote for the bylaw.

Thanking you, Mr Editor, for the use of your valuable space, I remain.

Yours truly,
J. J. TURNER, Sr.

A Capital Number

The Canadian Magazine for June contains a considerable amount of unusually attractive material. The first article is entitled "A Fragment from a Tragedy," in which is shown the tragic place that narcotics had in the life of the poet Coleridge. The author, Mr. S. T. Wood, makes some interesting deductions, and letters of Coleridge's are reproduced, showing the ends to which the poet would go in his efforts to obtain the enslaving drug. The well-known novelist, Mr. Robert Knowles, contributes a humorous sketch entitled "An Interrupted Toast," in which peculiarities of Scotch and Irish temperament are clearly depicted. "Morality and the Modern Stage" is the title of an article by Mr. Robson Black, dramatic editor of the Toronto News, and there are articles as well by Frank Yeigh, F. Blake Crofton, Mrs. J. W. F. Harrison, C. L. Armstrong, E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., and Maud Going, with short stories by Mabel Burkholder, W. E. Elliott, Helen E. Williams, and Dolf Wyllard, and verse by Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Katherine Hale, and Inglis Morse.

BROWN STEALS LAP ON THE CHAMPION

And Now Leads by That Distance—Seventeen Miles Covin 2 1-2 Hours—The Remarkably Fast Walking Delighted the Crowd.

The quality of the walking last night in the second night of the six-night walk at Brock street rink was of a character calculated to arouse the enthusiasm of the most reserved spectator. Seventeen miles heel and toe in two hours and a half is some walking. The track fairly burned up under the cyclonic pace set by Brown, Hoagland and West, the leaders. They ploughed through like the limited on a hurry-up trip, and the crowd was on tiptoes all night. All three men were racing at top speed, and their beautiful performance was an agreeable surprise to the crowd. From the start of last night's walk to the end of the time the speed was terrific, and the men circled the track in magnificent fashion.

At the opening Hoagland, Brown, West, Harrison, Spencely and Blake walked more or less on even terms, and it was a picture for the fans as they moved along one after another at the record-breaking clip at which they travelled.

Blake was in better form than he was the night before, and walked in good style. Jim Harrison, our own champion, walked a remarkably good race and hit the sawdust like a man with lots of confidence and condition. Spencely uncovered some real classy stepping for the first hour, and stayed in with the swift moving advance guard during that period. The pace got too warm, however, later on, and he eased up, but nevertheless walked a highly creditable race.

West won great approval last night and took the audience by his clever performance. He hung right on to Brown and Hoagland for the most of the evening, and they only managed to gain a lap on him. Towards the finish of the walk Hoagland lost a lap by having to take some cinders out of his shoe, and when he was off West picked up the lap the champion had on him. West followed Brown for the lap and as soon as the boy wonder saw his dangerous opponent step off the track he went out to make up the lap like a hungry tramp after a roast beef dinner. West stayed with him, and when Hoagland came on the parade circle again he was at a disadvantage of a lap and a half. He sprinted in spectacular fashion, and aroused the crowd to concert pitch. The champion recovered the half lap, but didn't annex the one lap required to make his score the same as Brown's, and when the peds adjourned for the evening the boy artist had a lap to the good.

Hoagland realizes Brown will stand close watching, and he is improving with every walk. It is expected that the "old man" will try to regain his lost ground to-night, and if he does then there will be some racing worth going miles to see.

By the rate the men travelled last night it will be seen that they went better by two laps in the total distance than they did the evening previous, when they went 16 miles 11 laps—two laps less.

In the first hour the crowd was all agog with excitement on several occasions, when the walkers heightened their speed by unexpected breath-taking sprints, Brown, Hoagland and West starring most prominently in the features.

The score at the end of the first hour stood:

	Miles	Laps.
Brown	23	8
Hoagland	23	8
West	23	7
Harrison	23	6
Blake	23	0
Fenton	21	10
Spenceley	21	7
Graham	20	7
Hartley	19	9
Blachford	18	6
Richards	5	0

Richards, whose standing is given last, dropped in quite unexpectedly last night and got away with a vim that threatened to make the American stars look cheap. The vim, however, was more or less of a spark, for it soon went out, and the first five miles saw Mr. Richards leaning up against the scorer's table—done. He did the distance in 49 minutes, though, which is hitting the trail in no lazy way.

In spite of the encouragement of his numerous backers he wouldn't resume the journey, and put on his coat and looked at the proceedings from behind the netting.

At 9.20 Hoagland left the track, and it was then that Brown tacked on his lap and a half.

At five minutes after ten Harrison broke away from this place behind Brown and West and he started walking in very good style. Brown pulled up on him, however, and took his place at the head of the field.

The standing at the close of the season was:

	Miles	Laps.
Brown	33	10
West	33	9
Hoagland	33	9
Harrison	33	7
Blake	32	9
Spenceley	30	11
Fenton	30	2
Graham	29	2
Hartley	28	4
Blatchford	25	11

The 57th regimental band provided most acceptable music during the evening.

A FAIRLY DELIVERED BALL

Rule 31—A fairly delivered ball is a ball pitched or thrown to the bat by the pitcher while standing in his position and facing the batsman that passes over any portion of the home base, before touching the ground, not lower than the batsman's knees nor higher than his shoulder. For every such fairly delivered ball the umpire shall call one strike.

The following T.A.S. players are asked to be on hand at Charlotte street grounds tonight at 6.30 when a practice game will be played; McFadden, Hayes, N O'Brien, Derocher, Cahill, Dougherty, C Giroux, L Giroux, V. If everything goes well and weather permits the Intermediate Leaguers will open the season next Saturday. Park Nines and Rovers play the first game and the T.A.S. and West Ends will work in the second contest. It has not been definitely decided where the games will be played.

Minoru, Owned by King Edward Won Blue Ribbon Event of English Racing Season

Special to the Review.

ST. ANDREW'S WON FROM ALL SAINTS'

First Game in the Junior Church League Was Played Last Night—Score 5-4

The Junior Church Baseball League opened last night at Boswell's field, when St. Andrew's defeated All Saints' in a well contested game, by 5—4. Both teams had a good line-up and the result was always in doubt. A base on balls with the bases full and two gone in the last innings, forced a run which made St. Andrew's the winners. The battery of Hogan for All Saints' and Rankin for St. Andrew's, was a feature of the contest. Mr. Will O'Brien gave good satisfaction as umpire. The teams were:

All Saints'—Wood, c; Taylor, p; Layfield, 1st; Armstrong, 2nd; LeBar, 3rd; Hogan, s; Tovey, r; Flowers, c; Gilbert, l.

St. Andrew's—McCallum, r; Cresswell, p; Minorgan, 1st; Rankin, 2nd; Gibson, 3rd; Lees, s; McWilliams, r; Wade, c; Laing, l.

George street and St. Peter's play the second game to-morrow night.

BASEBALL

Montreal beat Rochester 4—1, as the Royals twirlers were all to the good.

The Skeeters batted Hardy out of the box and hit Sline, who replaced him, enough to run up a score of 9—1 against Baltimore. Newark beat Baltimore 7—5.

The second game in the Junior Church League will be played tomorrow night at Boswell field. George street and St. Peter's should dish up some classy ball.

Benny Taylor had hard luck with his benders last night in the game against St. Andrew's.

This is Derby Day.

London, May 26.—The greatest of all horse races, the Derby, which will be run at Epsom Downs to-day, promises to be the most interesting Derby of a decade, with the possibility that the King's Minoru will win the purse of $32,250.

The latest betting on the Derby is as follows: Minoru, 5 to 2; Sir Martin, 50 to 20; Valens, 6 to 1; Louviers, 19 to 2; Bayardo, 10 to 1. Last year the Italian filly Signoretta won at 100 to 1.

PREPARING FOR THE SEASON

Many Citizens Spent the Holiday at Stoney Lake—Getting Their Cottages Ready for the Summer

Many owners of cottages at Stoney Lake spent the holiday in making repairs and cleaning up their cottages in preparation for the season. Among those from the city were Messrs. D. W. Dumble, W. G. Ferguson, B. Shortly, D. H. Moore, T. C. Elliott, R. Neil, George Cochrane and Thos. Barrie. There is every indication that Stoney Lake will attract a larger number of people this season than ever before.

ADMITTED TO LAW PARTNERSHIP

The well known law firm of Messrs. Hall and Hayes composed of Messrs. E H D. Hall, successor to Messrs. Denniscoun Bros. and Hall, and Mr. L M Hayes, KC, has admitted into partnership Mr Basil D. Hall, the younger son of the senior partner, who recently passed his final law examination very creditably at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, admitting him to practise both as solicitor and barrister. It is a pleasure to see in Peterborough the custom prevailing in older communities of preserving the firm and firm name of old established firms through successive generations. The Review joins in congratulations.

BROWN AND WEST IN FIVE MILE HANDICAP MATCH

On Tuesday night Brown and West will walk a five mile race at the roller rink for $25. The conditions call for Brown to give West a handicap of one lap for the five miles.

Both these boys are exceptionally fast and pretty walkers and the race should prove a strong card. They are walking on pretty even terms at the rink this week and West should make Brown extend himself to the limit to beat him with the handicap allowed.

NEWSPAPERS OF BRANTFORD TELL ABOUT TRIP HERE

Visitors From Telephone City Pleased With Reception Given Them—Favorably Impressed With Peterboro'

The Brantford Expositor and Courier of yesterday contain extended accounts of the visit of the 38th Regiment to Peterborough, and speak very highly of the reception given the Brantford soldiers in this city. The Expositor says in part:

"The entire celebration was a distinct success in every particular. The arrangements provided by the Peterborough people for the reception and comfort of the visitors were perfect. Nothing was neglected. A magnificent spectacle was presented by the regiments in the church parade on Sunday and in the brigade review Monday morning. The people of the city turned out en masse and cheered the soldiers to the echo, being profuse in the compliments and congratulations. From merely a military standpoint the demonstration was a splendid success.

Apart from the presence of the militia the feature of importance to Peterborough people was the opening of the armories. These are a great credit to the city, and incidentally, are somewhat of a wonder. How in the world Peterborough managed to secure $200,000 for a home for the 57th Infantry, 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and 24th Field Battery is a marvel, efficient though all of these bodies are. The structure is both imposing and handsome, and is fitted in a most complete and elaborate style. The citizens are justly proud of it.

"The Brantford regiment played a very important part in all of the events of the celebration. Before the local men left the city on Saturday night Colonel Ashton made a manly appeal to them to conduct themselves in a manner which would reflect credit on their regiment and city. The men did not forget his words, and on all occasions bore themselves with dignity, remembering always that they wore the uniform of the King."

The Courier has the following in its report;

In the afternoon Peterborough officers took the visiting officers for a trip around the city. There were many carriages as well as several automobiles. The views in Peterborough are beautiful and the city has acted very wisely in setting aside large tracts of land for park purposes. The place is situated in a valley with hills on all sides and a number of the parks are situated on the hill sides, affording a beautiful view of the city and surrounding country. Some of the parks were donated by the late Mrs. Nichols, who was a very wealthy resident. They are run by a board of trustees. The water facilities in Peterborough are excellent. The river that runs through the city is a large and deep one. The scenery along the banks is fine and helps to beautify the city to a great extent.... There is a number of different manufacturing concerns, but they do not come up to Brantford in that line. The city is rapidly progressing and building operations are brisk. A great many new houses are in course of erection and a great many of them are of red brick. There are excellent churches and the schools are new and up-to-date. There is a handsome Y.M.C.A. building. One thing that Peterborough is ahead of Brantford in is that they have two town clocks that keep correct time. From all quarters of the place both dials can be readily seen. There are many cement sidewalks and a majority of them are laid outside the boulevards, as this seems to be a favorite plan there. There are many shade trees and the G.T.R. and the C.P.R. are the two railroads that pass through Peterborough, and the way in which they have cut the city up is really a shame. None of the streets are paved and the people do not seem to want anything of that kind. The streets are good as they are. Gravel is put on and the steam roller does the rest. The main street is ahead of Colborne street in the matter of buildings, which are from three to four stories high and very substantial looking.

Winnipeg, May 26.—The sporting public of Winnipeg are exceedingly sore over the fiasco which the Appleby-Acoose race developed into Monday night, by which Acoose was forced to quit owing to tacks being spread on the track. THE KETTLEDRUM.

It Is an Instrument That Is Pretty Difficult to Handle.

The kettledrum has been so far improved that it has a pitch; in fact, it contains the large range of four notes. It is, as its name shows, a copper kettle, or basin, covered over with skin, which can be tightened or loosened by screws placed around the edge. Drums of this shape were used by the Romans, and even earlier by the Greeks and Etruscans. But they were not known in western Europe before the crusades.

Although it may appear so, the kettledrum is not at all an easy instrument to manage, for in order to get each of the four notes the player has to turn all the screws and adjust the parchment anew. For this reason kettledrums are often used in pairs, one tuned to the keynote, the other to the fourth below. In this way the drummer has always the two chief notes in the scale to work upon, and if the composer has not exacted much from him he will have quite an easy time. But when a change of key is approaching it is quite exciting to watch the drummer screwing and unscrewing the the drum and lightly tapping to hear if the pitch is true, and if we recollect that he often has to tune his drum while the whole orchestra is lifting up its voice we realize that he must be no mean musician; that he must possess an exquisitely sensitive and well trained ear and a steady hand and nerve as well.—Jessie K. MacDonald in St. Nicholas.

MODERN ROYALTY.

Hopelessly Handicapped by the Progress of Mankind.

What is a modern king for if not to set a pattern of the brave, courteous, urbane gentleman and make a comely figurehead for state occasions? If he fails there of what earthly use is he? He cannot govern. He dare not attempt to rule. He is so outclassed in professional training by his own generals that he would never be tolerated as an active commander in chief in time of war. He is hopelessly below the requirements of the age if he dreams of leadership in art or learning, literature or science. If he cannot make a brave showing of the virtues and graces of more primitive times when he gets a chance he fails utterly.

The truth is that modern royalty is handicapped hopelessly by the progress of mankind. The age is far too complex to enable a king to play the part he is cast for in the great drama of the world's work and struggles. He would be more than human if he could live up to the demands of his birth and the traditions of his vocation. Kings were formerly tragedies when they were evil and great benefactors when they were both good and wise. Now they are perilously near the border line of comedy, which slides easily down into farce.

Sneezing.

Sneezing has an extensive folklore in many countries. Sometimes the act is considered ominous of good and sometimes of evil. Among the Jews it has always been regarded at an appropriate moment, such as the conclusion of a bargain, as propitious, and a belief still lingers in many parts of the country that the regular habit of sneezing, particularly after meals, is conducive to longevity and a precaution against fevers. The old English custom of saying "God bless you!" when a person sneezed, so as to avoid evil consequences, has its counterpart in many far distant parts of the globe. The early settlers in Brazil found the sneezer saluted with "God preserve you!" while in Fiji it was customary to retort, "May you live!" In superstitious Suffolk there is a sneezing tariff—once a wish, twice a kiss, thrice a letter and four times a disappointment.—London Sphere.

The Water Clock.

The earliest application of the clepsydra principle to produce motion was by Tsiang Hung, A. D. 120, who made an "orrery" representing the apparent motion of the heavenly bodies around the earth, which was kept going by dropping water. In the sixth century of the Christian era an instrument was in use in China which indicated the course of time by the weight of water as it gradually came from the beak of a bird and was received in a vessel on a balance, every pound representing a one-hundredth part of the day of twenty-four hours. About this time mercury began to be employed in clepsydras instead of water.

"Good!" applauded Uncle Michael. "The more the merrier. I believe I can furnish these gentlemen with several valuable clews. I hate to say 'Told you so!' Jake, but if you had listened to me you—what? No, I won't! It's hot enough out here. Goodby."

When Mr. Corrigan left the telephone he found that Harriet and Imogene had gone upstairs. The latter young lady had been unable to restrain her emotions longer, and in the seclusion of her chamber she gave vent to every species of pyrotechnic despair to which the tender age of nineteen is subject. Miss Renwyck was the busiest Samaritan on record, and her ministrations to the stricken one made a word with Richard out of the question for the present.

Mr. Van der Awe perceived that his inamorata was profoundly agitated, but why he could not imagine. Therefore he paced solemnly up and down the hall, looking more like a funeral director than ever. Richard sat on the front porch, smoking one cigarette after another furiously, when Mr. Corrigan came out and accosted him.

"Hello, your lordship! What is your British opinion on hornets' nests in general?"

"The inmates thereof come at you endwise and all at once," observed the young man grimly. "In my humble opinion things are going to wake up presently."

"Right!" laughed the merry little lawyer with what Richard could not but feel was ill timed merriment. "My esteemed brother-in-law is fairly boiling. He's on his way out here now with two policemen. I'm glad you're not mixed up in this particular phase of the comedy, Dicky, boy. You have somewhat of a load to carry as it is."

"Um!" grunted Richard, staring absently at the gravel path.

Mr. Corrigan eyed him suspiciously and started away. Richard was about to ask permission to accompany him, intending again to lay bare his heart to his counsel, but at that instant his attention was arrested in an entirely different direction.

Woolsey Bills was coming toward him from the direction of the railroad station.

CHAPTER XX.

THE adventurer allowed Mr. Corrigan to walk away without offering any further remark, then waited patiently for his servant to reach the porch.

"Good mornin', your lordship," said Bills, with a look of guileless innocence which made the Texan long to throttle him on the spot.

Richard regarded him earnestly, striving to read the secrets of his soul, but came to the conclusion that the servant had no soul, inasmuch as the face before him was as placid as that of a slumbering babe.

"Bills," he said in his sternest tone, "come upstairs. There is a matter which we must settle now—at once."

Contrary to his expectations, the servant did not flinch, but followed him meekly to the upper floor. Once inside the room, the Texan locked the door and turned on his companion savagely.

"Now, my man, just give an account of yourself, and be quick about it!"

Richard had flung himself into the morris chair, while the valet stood before him, nervously shifting his feet and picking at the brim of his hat.

"M' lord"— Richard cut him short.

"Drop that! This is no time for infernal nonsense! Well?"

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir," Bills began again, though the task to which he had evidently nerved himself was proving larger than he at first supposed. "Mr. Williams, sir, I done wrong. I know that. An' I come back to tell you all about it, sir, an' awsk your pardon, sir, if you'll be so good."

"Leave the trimmings out and get down to facts!" snapped Richard, with unconcealed impatience. "You sneaked off last night without permission. Why?"

"Because," confessed the valet, with a sudden spurt of courage—"because I forgot, sir, and drank your brandy up again, Mr. Williams, sir. Honest, sir, I was afeerd you'd shoot me, an'—an' I went away to New York, intendin' to never come back again. I left w'ilst you was 'avin' the play, sir."

"How did you get to New York at that time of night? There are no trains at that hour."

"No, sir. I know they ain't. I—I got on a freight train, sir."

The Texan looked at him keenly, then nodded permission for the balance of the fishy story.

"When I got to New York, sir," the valet continued, "I realized wot a bloomin' ass I was, Mr. Williams, sir, an' I confesses it now, sir, without no 'ope of coverin' up the fack."

"Bills," said Richard calmly, "it comes to me that this is the first gospel truth you have spoken. I have hopes of you yet. Go on."

"Yes, sir; thank you, sir. As I was a-sayin' there I was in a big city, sir, without much money an' no character an' no immejiit prospeck of a place. Says I to meself, 'Bills,' says I, 'you're a bloomin' ass. You left a gentleman wot was only jokin' 'bout shootin' you an' wot wouldn't 'urt a 'air of your 'ead for anythink. Go back to him, Bills,' says I, 'an' tell 'im 'ow it 'appened. 'E's a kindly disposed gentleman with a sweet, forgivin' nature an' won't 'old it agi'n you that you was afeared of 'is terrible pistol, Mr. Williams, sir.'"

"H'm!" sniffed Richard. "What was your other reason for coming back?"

The servant shifted uneasily, turned his hat round and round in his nervous hands and apparently decided to keep back nothing.

"Yes, sir," he began again; "I 'ad another reason. I fancied if I come back, your lordship—er—I mean Mr. Wilship—no, beg pardon—Mr. Williams, sir—that you would pay me wot you promised me, w'ich is better than starvin' to death in Noo York without no character, meanin' no offense an' awskin' you not to be angrier than you can 'elp. I slep' restless, Mr. Williams, sir. Then I come back. That's all."

"Is it?" asked Richard dryly.

"Yes, sir," answered the valet, with profound solemnity, "as Gawd is lookin' at us both, me a-standin' an' you a-sittin' down, m' lord."

The Texan arose and took several reflective turns up and down the room. Then he paused and stood with his hands in his pockets and his legs apart.

"Bills," he said, "I'm going to pay you a compliment. Without an exception you're the biggest liar between New York and San Antonio. It's a long stretch, my friend, and I'm not a flatterer."

Bills stared at him sadly, reproachfully, but made no answer. Richard continued:

"Of course I didn't see you when you left—that is, with my own eyes—and I didn't see you when you got off the train awhile ago, but just the same I have a chain of evidence which I trust will refresh your memory. When I employed you, you came to me with the following recommendations: 'Discharge him at once. He's a thief. The last time it was £2 6d. and my jeweled cigar cutter. His friend, Mr. Drake of Scotland Yard, is also inquiring for his address.' So much for your character as indorsed by your former master. If I hadn't been, as you aptly express it, 'a bloomin' ass,' I would have spared myself the mortification of stating the fact. I didn't discharge you and must take the consequences. But let us proceed. Next you tried to blackmail me for the purpose of extorting £800 from one who had treated you squarely. Item three: Both Miss Renwyck and I saw you in whispered conversation with a—with a cock eyed tramp who was going out of the front gate. By the way, what was it you said to him?"

Bills looked uncomfortable.

"'E awsked me for money, sir, an' I told 'im to go about 'is business, sir."

Richard wheeled upon the man sharply.

"You lie, Bills! You told me at the time that he asked directions to the station."

"Yes, sir," answered Woolsey, flushing to his ears. "I did lie the first time, sir. I—I didn't want to seem uncharitable inclined."

The Texan sneered and turned upon his heel. After another contemplative turn up and down he once more faced the culprit.

"Look here, Bills; I haven't finished with you yet. I have only told you the lightest part of it. After failing to gouge money out of me you hold conversation with a suspicious character and acknowledge that you told a lie concerning it. Next you disappear, claiming to go to New York at a time when no trains were running. For the present we'll accept the story of the freight, but can look that part up later. In the meantime, while you are in New York, of course your cock eyed friend drops in on Restmore at 3 o'clock in the morning. He—er—watches in the billiard room while a pal slips through the open window of the library, opens Mr. Renwyck's safe and drifts away with a cool hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of diamonds. Question is, Who was the pal? I don't happen to be either a detective or a fool, but I have my own ideas. Mr. Renwyck is coming out here presently with a couple of what you call 'bobbies,' I believe. I shall tell him everything about both of us"—and never did the humiliation of his position so enter into Richard's soul as when he had to class himself with that miserable travesty of mankind—"but I have an idea that you will shortly represent an expression used both here and in England, which is to say, 'Collected Bills.' Am I clear?"

As Richard forged this chain of evidence link by link the valet's terror became pitiful to behold. His eyeballs almost started from his head, while his putty-like complexion paled to an ashy gray. His slim hands shook, his weak legs quivered under him, till at last he collapsed and sank upon his knees.

"My Gawd, Mr. Williams, sir!" he gasped. "You don't believe I done it, do you? Honest, sir, I was in Noo York! W'y, it don't stand to reason, sir, that I'd come back 'ere immejitly if I'd done it. 'Deed, sir, it don't stand to any sort o' reason."

"It does," flashed Richard. "You thought I'd swallow that cock and bull story of yours and be grateful for the dose. Why, you fool, the pill is as big as a football. We'll drop absurdity now and get down to business. Can you get those diamonds back?"

In vain Bills groveled at his master's feet, protesting his innocence with sobs and tears. It was no use. The evidence against him was too clear, and, while Richard himself was the real culprit in allowing the man to remain at Restmore at all, still, if he ever hoped to recover the stolen property, he must hold on like grim death to the bird in hand.

He put poor Bills through a sort of third degree, but without results further than copious tears and more copious protestations. Finally, his patience exhausted utterly, he took the terrified valet by the collar and dragged him to the door of the bathroom.

"Go in there!" he commanded in a low, tense tone, which was far more terrible to Bills than any shout he had ever heard. "Go in, I say, and stay there until I come for you. If you try to escape, by heaven, I'll kill you! It isn't a joke this time. It's the word of a gentleman from Texas!"

The servant knew that his master told the truth, so he sank down upon the bare, cold tiles, where he lay in limp distraction until such a time as the terrible Texan came to pronounce his doom.

Richard saw that the bathroom window was far too small to admit of the man's escape. Then he closed and locked the door, placed the back of a chair beneath the knob and went downstairs. In the lower hall he encountered Mr. Van der Awe, whose mournful cast of countenance seemed but a foretaste of what fate had in store for him.

"Beg pardon, Lord Croyland," said that sad young gentleman, with a faint wan smile, "can you tell me what happens to be the matter with Miss Chittenden?"

"Yes!" snapped Richard. "She's got the collywobbles. I've got 'em, too, so look out!"

The Texan crossed the lawn and flung himself upon an iron bench. Then he took his aching head between his hands and cursed the English aristocracy from Alfred straight down the glittering line to a certain noble earl who reposed in peace in a comfortable modern hospital with only a broken bone or two to cause him misery.

"O Lord!" he groaned. "The course of true love never did run smooth, but need it ride forever on a flea bitten, bucking broncho?"

CHAPTER XXI.

MR. BILL WILLIAMS arrived in New York on Saturday morning. He had forethought enough to make the attempt and influence enough to succeed in it to have the limited stopped at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where he took a fast auto cab, for which he had telegraphed, and was rushed directly to St. Luke's hospital on Cathedral heights. He paid the charge—expressing his firm conviction that the price was half the value of the machine and seven times the value of the thief who drove it—and hurried into the hospital, where he gave his name and begged to be taken to his afflicted son at once.

He was informed by the house surgeon that the patient was doing fairly well, though his temperature was still above normal. The physician thought, however, that the father's presence might rouse the patient's flagging spirits, but suggested that the first interview be short. A trim, fresh cheeked nurse was summoned, and without further ado she led the way to the elevator, which took them to the fourth floor. At the door of his son's room the old rancher paused.

"My dear," he said, "are you the young lady who has nursed my poor boy through this spell of sickness?"

"Yes, sir," answered the brisk young person in a tone somewhat more cheerful than the gravity of the occasion seemed to warrant.

"God bless you!" the anxious father murmured in a voice choked by his emotion. "Did—he—ask for me—often?"

The experienced young person hesitated, hanging for an instant between uncompromising truth and the wish to spare this kind old gentleman unnecessary pain. Womanlike, she decided upon charity rather than veracity.

"Oh, yes," she answered nervously, "though you know, of course, he—he has been just—well, a little delirious, I fear. You must be careful not to excite him, to control your feelings, sir."

The Texan's great heart was touched. His boy had been shouting out his name, even while pain and fever held him in their raging grip. The father, who could have faced a battery of artillery in action without blanching, was greatly overcome by what he read in the nurse's halting words. He leaned for support against the wall and furtively brushed his eyes, then looked up, striving to smile, and asked:

"Was he conscious when my telegram arrived? Did he know? Was he glad to hear that I was coming?"

"Very," answered the adroit young woman, blushing to the roots of her chestnut hair, that peeped from under a saucy little cap. She had made the first plunge and had no hesitation in going the limit.

The father's heart went out at once to this dainty angel of mercy and efficiency who had ministered to grief and suffering. He fumbled in his pocket and produced a large, double figured note, which he pressed into her hand.

"For you, my dear," he smiled, "a ribbon or something. There, there; it's nothing."

"But, Mr. Williams," she protested in charming confusion, "this is not at all necessary. I am paid, you know, by—really, I couldn't think of"—

"Honey," he interrupted, while he gave her plump shoulder a fatherly pat, "it's just a little secret between you and me. Now run along. I want to see Dickie alone."

Again the nurse hesitated and, like her prototype in the proverb, was lost. It was best to be present at the interview, yet how could she refuse so simple a request from this moist eyed, generous old dear?

"Very well," she nodded; "I will stand outside. You promise to be very quiet?"

"I promise," answered Bill Williams huskily. Then he opened the door, closed it after him and tiptoed softly across the room.

The father found himself in a bare walled little room that was scrupulously clean and neat. The shades were drawn, yet by the dim religious light he espied a bandaged form apparently asleep upon a narrow brass bed. The face of the patient was in shadow, yet the Texan felt instinctively that he had found his martyred son at last. For a moment he could not speak. His emotions choked him, while two great tears rose up and rolled unheeded down his weather beaten cheeks. He sank on his knees beside the bed, stretched out his trembling arms and murmured brokenly:

"My boy! My boy!"

The Earl of Croyland rolled over on his back and stared at the sobbing apparition in wonder struck amaze. In dropping into a doze he had forgotten to remove his monocle, which by years of habit remained tight set in his noble eye.

"Go way!" he muttered feebly. "Don't be a silly ass!"

Bill Williams still remained upon his knees, his mouth wide open, into which the two tears aforementioned trickled unheeded. He was too bewildered fully to realize his ridiculous position all at once. That he had traveled over 2,000 weary miles for the dubious pleasure of kneeling by the bedside of this glass eyed lunatic was a thought which at first refused to percolate through his stunned cerebrum. He returned the stare and answered, with a series of hoarse, inarticulate gasps:

"Wha—you! My son—you—eh? Who—who the devil are you?"

The earl drew the sheet about his neck, closed his eyes and turned on his pillow languidly.

"No card—in my—ah—nightshirt. I'm Richard Williams—San Antawneo—Texas. Get out!"

"You're a liar!" burst out the old man angrily, rising to his feet.

The Earl of Croyland pulled the bell above the head of his bed and waited in unruffled calm till the nurse appeared. He opened his eyes and pointed to his visitor.

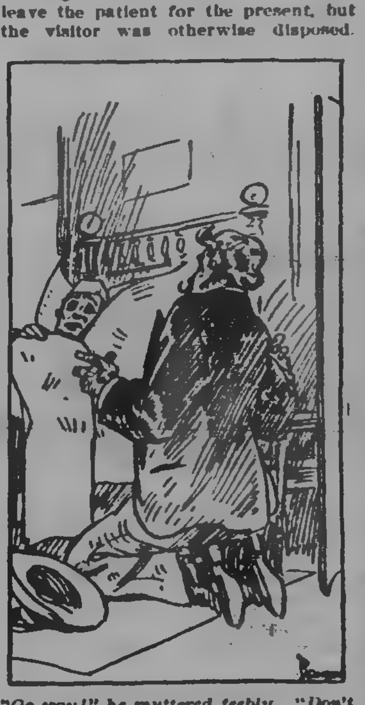
"Er—show this odious person out. I wish to—er—sleep."

The girl stepped forward, laid a gentle hand upon the sufferer's forehead and whispered soothingly:

"There, there, Mr. Williams! Don't excite yourself. This gentleman is your father. Don't you know him?"

"Rot!" said the earl. "I haven't a father; been dead for fifteen years or I wouldn't be an earl—I mean—ah—it's dem nonsense!"

The nurse looked toward Bill Williams appealingly, indicating by a cautious gesture that he would better leave the patient for the present, but the visitor was otherwise disposed.



"Go way!" he muttered feebly. "Don't be a silly ass!"

His face had turned a livid purple, and the flow of speech which had stuck in his throat now burst forth in a furious torrent:

"Good God!" he roared. "Do you think I ever had a thing like that for a son? He's not my boy, I tell you. What, this double jointed son of a one eyed cayuse. My Dick! Look here, young woman, I'll put the sheriff on to this asylum of yours! Oh, I know you!" he cried, excitedly pointing a shaking finger at the astonished earl. "You have swindled me. It was a trick to get me away from Texas while some of your black hearted confederates went for my deep water harbor bill! You and Jacob Renwyck—that's it! I see it now, but I'll fix you yet. I start back for God's country as soon as I find my boy, and we'll see who's running the freeborn legislature of the great state of Texas, by gad! You"—

"Oh, Mr. Williams," the nurse broke in excitedly, "please, please be reasonable! Listen. It is some dreadful mistake—some similarity of names—some, oh, can't you see that we are not to blame? Calm yourself, for the sake of the patient—for your own sake—for my sake! There, now! Let's talk it over quietly and see if we cannot straighten out the tangle." She turned to the earl. "This gentleman," she said, indicating the visitor, "has traveled all the way from Texas to see his son, whom he learned had been hurt and brought to this hospital. Perhaps there are two Richard Williamses, and a very natural mistake may have arisen in"—

"O-h!" said the Earl of Croyland, a light of understanding slowly piercing the fog of his intelligence. "By Jove! Are you Dickie's governor?"

THERE IS NO RAINY SEASON

General Ashton, of Tacoma, who accompanied Moreton Frewen to Prince Rupert, is a firm believer in the future of the town. The present is his first trip here, and he predicts that with the sale of lots, there will be an influx of people who mean business, and who will stay by the proposition. "I believe," he said yesterday, "that in a great measure, the industrial and commercial history of Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver will be duplicated here. Your harbour is a truly magnificent one. Prince Rupert is in the path of the growing Alaskan and trans-Pacific trade. The country between here and the prairies presents limitless opportunities for development, and whatever takes place, Prince Rupert must more or less directly benefit. This port is nearer the ports of the Orient than any shipping port to the south. The new railway has an exceptionally easy grade. These are matters to be considered by the east and middle-west, whose operations extend across the Pacific. Sometimes you hear people talk about the rain. Why the whole coast, from Alaska to California, is in the rain belt. We have no rainy season. The weather doesn't enter into the calculations of the big business men, whatsoever. With them it's a matter of time—of dollars and cents. If they find it more to their advantage to do business through this port, they don't care whether it's hot or cold, cloudy or bridle. And they will find that it will be to their advantage to figure on Prince Rupert."—Exchange.

MEXICO, THE LAND OF MUSIC AND SUNSHINE

An Interesting Article on the Dress and Manners of the Inhabitants — What One Might Expect to See During a Visit.

This article was written by a young man who has spent a considerable time in the land of the music and sunshine, and has recently returned to this city. In it will be found many facts of interest, though strange, as presented in the every-day life of the Mexicans.

Having often heard of the courtesy and hospitality of the Spaniard, and remember when I entered a Spanish home being welcomed and told "this house is yours," and after admiring some object was informed it was mine. On arriving in Mexico I found the descendants of old Spain had lost no whit of cordiality, and the welcome at places of business or the home was warm and spontaneous to a degree. Every house was mine, and all that was in it, and everything was at my order.

THE MEXICAN DRESS.

The dress of the Mexican is a picturesque one, of which the wide sombrero is the feature, often being richly trimmed in gold or silver lace with a crest or monogram on the crown. This elaborate headgear often costs fifty or sixty dollars, though a less ornate hat may be bought for fifty cents without a corresponding decrease in size. A short jacket coming to a little below the waist is often trimmed in gold or silver; the tight-fitting trousers, wide at the shape, pointed shoe, have two or three rows of gold buttons. The complete costume always includes a "zerape" of many colors. A zerape is a blanket or shawl worn over the shoulders, thrown in a knightly fashion, with the fringed or tasseled end over the left shoulder, and men of all classes wear the zerape. The principle and favorite part of a costume is the "sombrero." A Mexican may go barefooted, wear cotton trousers, but he'd have a thirty-dollar hat if possible. The man on horseback in Mexico is a symphony in gold lace and buttons, and the trapping of his horse and saddle are most elaborate.

There are "dudes" in Mexico, but they are called "un lagartigo." They wear the most gold lace and buttons, the tightest trousers and the widest hats.

The ladies of high degree, the Spanish mantilla of black or white lace still does a fascinating duty in place of the hat or bonnet and high-heeled pointed slippers are worn on the feet. The middle classes wear a black "tapalo," a shawl which is both a wrap and headgear. The lower classes and Indian maidens wear in the same way a scarf of cotton, usually blue or brown, this is the "reboso." Mexican women are almost without exception, of fine form, healthy and robust. There are thousands of pretty faces of richest color, long eye lashes, soft and downy ear-locks, black as jet, and with long inky-black hair. Under the tapolo or reboso is many a venus. Ladies embrace each other at meeting and kiss on the cheek. Men embrace their friends and pat each other on the back. Politeness and courtesy are characteristics of Mexico, and it is seen constantly everywhere. A Mexican will not enter a door or pass up a staircase ahead of his companion without an insisting "pase senor." Following the customs of their ancestors, the young people of Mexico have not that freedom of association as in America. A young lady may not indulge in the society of her young men except in the presence of others, in fact, he may not even CALL ON HER as in this and other English-speaking countries. He must win her "haciendo del oso"—playing bear. At a certain hour of the day the devoted lover comes under the lady's window, and when she comes to the casement he may stand and look at her, exchange glances, smiles and nods, go away and come back again the next day and repeat the performance. Anywhere else this would appear to be a flirtation itself, but in Mexico it is "playing the bear," and is perfectly proper. If he is faithful and keeps this up for two or three years he may finally be allowed to call and see her in the presence of another member of the family. If all goes smoothly they "marry and live happy to the end of their days," as in the fairy story.

MUSIC LOVERS.

The Mexicans are a music-loving people, whose souls are moved by a concord of sweet sounds, and if love of music be the test, few Mex's are fit for treason, stratagem and spoils. No "jackal" is too humble but what its adobe walls listen to the tinkle of a guitar, and no village so small but its band of native musicians will play in the little alameda in the evenings. In the larger towns and great cities there is music in some "plazas" or park every day by the military bands—an example set by the government in giving people music that might be emulated by other countries greatly to their credit.

Every store and shop in Mexico has a name which is painted over the door. The name of the store is not always appropriate, but sometimes it is, as in the case of a drug store which is called in Spanish "The Gate of Heaven." This can be questioned in the last word; a drug store may not be the gate of Heaven. One saloon is known as the Port of New York, though there is nothing in it that resembles that place in any way. Another saloon is more appropriately named, "El Triunfo del Diablo," the TRIUMPH OF THE DEVIL.

Whatever may be said of the restaurants in Mexico, it should be added that the good ones are managed by natives and the bad ones by foreigners as a general rule, and with few exceptions the restaurants advertised as English or American are generally to be avoided.

WEDDING BELLS

STARR—LEA.

The marriage of Miss Edna Mary Lea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Lea, to Mr. Chas. Alexander Starr took place at three o'clock this afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents in Sherbourne street.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Wilkinson, rector of St. Peter's Anglican church, in the drawing room with flowers and palms. To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by an orchestra, the bride was brought in and given away by her father. She was attired in an Empire wedding gown of ivory satin and Irish lace. Instead of the conventional tulle veil she wore a wreath of lilies of the valley, and carried a shower of lilies and roses, which, with a handsome diamond ring, were the gifts of the groom.

Miss Hazel Lea attended her sister as bridesmaid, in white dotted Swiss muslin and Maltese lace, and pink mohair hat with roses, and ties, and carried pink roses, and wore the groom's gift, a cross of pearls. Mr. Richard Meredith was best man.

Mrs. Lea held a reception after the ceremony, wearing grey satin with an overdress of marquisette. Mrs. Aldridge, another sister of the bride, was in Dutch blue lace and hat with pink roses. After the usual toasts and speeches, Mr. and Mrs. Starr drove away in a shower of confetti, to catch the train for New York, where the wedding trip will be spent. The bride travelled in rose cloth and tuscan hat, with pale blue and black.—Toronto Star.

MAKES ASTONISHING CURES

Mi-o-na Tablets Cure Dyspepsia by Promptly Removing the Cause, or Money Back.

There is just one way to cure dyspepsia and stomach disorders, trivial or serious and that is to tone up or put energy into the stomach walls, so that they will be able to properly mix or churn the food.

Mi-o-na tablets quickly arouse the stomach from its inaction and in a short time it is able to do its work properly.

Harry Dodd, of Bridge St. Hastings, Ont., says: "For seven years I had suffered and spent much money doctoring but all to no avail. I could eat but very little, as the food would ferment and sour, making gas, which caused serious heart oppression. I was in constant misery, sour gas would belch from my stomach. I was languid and weak and had no ambition. I did not feel like going anywhere or seeing anyone. There was a constant dull pain in the pit of the stomach. I was unable to sleep, was nervous, restless and would awake more tired than on going to bed. I tried Miona and soon found relief, and in less than six weeks Miona had completely cured me.

Wm. Madill, the Peterborough druggist, sells Miona tablets at 50 cents a large box, under a rigid guarantee to do all that is claimed for them or money back.

EX-BANKER PUTS BULLET THROUGH FOOT AT MONTREAL

Former Speaker of Quebec Legislature Springs New Situation in What Seems to be an Attempt at Suicide—Says His Mind is Failing Him and He is Not Responsible—Defence in Bank Case is Ended.

Montreal, May 27.—There are conflicting theories in Montreal and St. John's yesterday as to the motive which impelled the Hon. P. H. Roy, ex-Speaker of the Legislative Assembly and ex-president of the St. John's Bank, now being tried on a charge of wrecking that institution, to apparently attempting suicide early yesterday. There are those who say that Roy really advised and that the attempt was only a ruse to delay the finding of the jury. As it was, he shot himself in the foot while in bed. When the attempt was reported, constables were placed in charge of the Roy household, where the accused has been living all along, and when he came into court Justice Monet ordered that he be kept in till the end of the trial.

"If the act you perpetrated this morning was an attempt at suicide, you committed a crime against law and society," said the judge. "If it was not an attempt at suicide, it was the most criminal farce ever perpetrated in this part of the country and you deserve punishment."

Roy replied: "I beg the court to excuse me for what I have done or for what has happened to me. My case is a very critical and difficult one. I did not have the necessary time to give my attorney all the information that I would like to give him. You know that my faculties, both mental and physical, are becoming very weak on account of the disease I am suffering from. My memory is very bad at the very moment when I need it so much.

"A few days ago I was full of courage, but for five or six days my strength has been failing, and the sessions of the court are killing me. Believe me, I am not able to sustain them any longer, especially now that I am suffering so much. It would be impossible for me to advise my attorney any longer.

"If I were strong enough I would enter the witness box and give my own evidence. I would like so much to prove that I did not act with any intention of fraud."

The defence was concluded during the afternoon session. Mr. Girard simply alleged that the report sent in to Ottawa was an exact copy of the bank's stocks, and that it was not th business of the officials to throw doubt on the solvency of any of the bank's customers. The addresses to the jury will take place to-day.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONFERENCE HELD AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Both Sessions Were Well Attended—Much Valuable Information Contained in the Addresses Given.

A successful Sabbath school conference was held in St. Paul's church yesterday. It was arranged by the Sabbath School Committee of the Peterborough Presbytery, the convenor of which is Rev. J. H. Keith, M.A. Afternoon and evening sessions were held and both were well attended.

The first session was opened at 2.30 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Keith, who introduced Rev. A. Robertson, secretary of the General Assembly Sabbath School Committee, who spoke along the lines of the development of teacher training.

Rev. D. Currie, M.A., of Perth, spoke on the Adult Bible Class, and gave his personal experience in connection with the movement. He was first a doubter, but is now a devoted supporter of the movement.

Tea was served in the Sunday school room by the ladies of the three Presbyterian churches.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening programme included an address by Rev. A. Robertson on "Some Ideals in Sunday School Work." He emphasized the value of the cradle roll department and the home study department, and stated that the motto of the school should be "Everyone in every home in every congregation in the school."

Rev. Mr. Currie gave a very practical talk on the organization and complete success of the home department in the rural part of his congregation. The address was listened to with much interest and many valuable suggestions were received.

Mr. H. O. Fisk gave an exhibition of the use of the lantern in Sunday school work. A number of slides were shown representing hymns, portions of scripture, etc., and scenes in the home and foreign mission work.

Rev. Mr. Keith expressed his thanks to those who had assisted in the meetings.

To-day a convention is being held in Norwood and on Friday one will be held in Port Hope.

POISON PLACED IN MANGERS AND TWO HORSES ARE DEAD

Lindsay, May 26—Messrs. Freedhof and Pearson, two scrap iron merchants who reside on Queen street, east ward, near Mr J R O'eNill's store, had their horses poisoned by some unknown person or persons last week. The first named has been a resident of Lindsay for the past three years, while the other man has only been in town a little over a year.

Mr. Freedhof kept his horse in the stable at the rear of his residence, and upon going out early one morning last week he found his horse dead on the floor.

A couple of days later Mr Pearson put his horse in the same stable and on Saturday morning he found the animal dead. The horses were very serviceable and were valued at $150 each.

It appears that the poison was put on the feed in the manger. The two citizens are Jews, and they suspect a brother Jew for committing the deed. They have placed the matter in Chief Vincent's hands and developments are expected in a few days. The two men are in poor circumstances financially and the loss of their horses is a severe blow to them.

A case similar to this occurred in the east ward a little over a year ago.

THE PREMIER IS RETICENT

He Will Not Tell Which Fleets are to be Equalled — The Finance Bill

London, May 27.—The House of Commons last night concluded the general debate on the budget resolutions, which were adopted after an unusually prolonged and heated discussion.

David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, thereupon introduced the finance bill, dealing with his financial proposals.

Earlier in the evening acrimonious discussion arose over opposition to attempts to compel Premier Asquith to definie anew whether in estimating the number of ships necessary to Great Britain to maintain a fleet 10 per cent. more powerful than the combined fleets of any other two powers, the Government had in mind any specific powers, or if the plan was purely European, the intention being to elicit a statement as to whether the United States was included in the estimates.

Mr. Asquith declined to commit himself, beyond saying that everything would depend on geographical conditions. He said he could not treat powers thousands of miles distant the same as powers only hundreds of miles distant.

A. J. Balfour and others of the Unionist members expressed their dissatisfaction over Mr. Asquith's reply, but the House by a large majority adopted a motion of confidence in the Premier's statement.

SIR JAMES WHITNEY GIVES IDEA OF NAVAL QUESTION

Ontario Premier, Speaking at Big Reception in Morrisburg Declared That Laurier Government Made a Mistake in Not at Least Offering to Build Vessels for Empire's Navy.

Morrisburg, May 27.—The Music Hall was filled last night at a reception given to Sir James Whitney. It was the Premier's first visit since receiving his knighthood, and men of both parties joined in the reception.

Sir James avoided provincial issues in his address, and turned from party topics to Imperial affairs, forecasting a scheme of Imperial federation within the visible future.

The Premier was supported on the platform by leading citizens of Dundas County, including Adam Harkness, Hugh Ross, ex-M.P., Irwin Hilliard, Andrew Broder, M.P., T. W. Ault, Dr. Reddick, James Irvin, Frank McClosky and James Collinson. Fred H. Brody presided. Messrs. Ross and Broder spoke a few words.

Sir James, who was received with tremendous applause, said that when he was asked to meet the club he stipulated that his visit should be non-political in significance. We often had too much party prejudice. Both political parties desired the good of the country, no doubt, but as they were composed of mortals they go astray sometimes.

The Premier did not consider there was any possibility of war between the United States and Great Britain, and the Monroe doctrine of the United States assured Canada protection in the event of European hostilities.

He was glad that Parliament had put itself on record that Canada would go to the aid of the Mother Country in time of need. He was also glad to see those sentiments acted upon unanimously by the other colonies.

"But in my humble opinion," said Sir James, "better results would have followed if the Government at Ottawa had cabled that we are prepared to recommend to the House to appropriate the price of a Dreadnought or perhaps two Dreadnoughts. If they had done that, I am not sure it would ever have been necessary to send the Dreadnoughts, but all the crowned heads of Europe who have looked askance at the prosperity and majesty of the British Empire, would have seen that all around the world the whelps of the lion are glad and ready at all times to stand by the Mother Country."

"Canada's only contribution for the benefit of British institutions was the $50,000 paid to the Governor-General annually, but he was glad that Canada was sending two Cabinet representatives to England for the Imperial conference.

"We are anxious," the Premier went on, "to stand together and discuss this question of Imperial reorganization, and the Imperial burdens which will have to be borne by each component part of the Empire. Canada will be proud of the day when we will stand side by side with our brethren of the antipodes in the great Imperial procession, and when we will cheerfully bear our share of the Imperial burden."

In conclusion, Sir James spoke feelingly to his constituents, from whose midst circumstances had kept him. He was grateful for their confidence and would so order his engagements in the future as to be with them more frequently. He assured them he would be at home this summer and would spend some time among them.

CITIZENS HONORED COL. H. C. ROGERS LAST EVENING

An Address Expressive of Regret Was Read and Presentation of Gold Watch, Chain and Locket Was Made—Pleasing Affair at the City Council Chamber.

In the departure of Col. Rogers from this city one of the oldest, best known and most highly esteemed citizens is lost to the community. During his residence here he has made many friends by giving his close attention to his public duties and by his exemplary manner of living. That he should and will be missed was evidenced by the pleasing affair, which took place at the city Council Chamber last night, when his Worship Mayor Rush on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough read an address expressive of regret at the intending departure of Col. Rogers and when the presentation of a beautiful gold watch, chain and locket by Mr. Peter Campbell was made. A large number of prominent citizens, including many ladies, was present. Dr. Halliday was called upon to take the chair and he presided in a most acceptable manner. He made a few remarks in which he stated that the object of the gathering was to present Col. Rogers with a keepsake in which all the citizens had a chance to do their part. The committee in charge had been overwhelmed by the number of people who wished to show the high esteem in which they held the Colonel. In his going away Peterborough lost a good citizen and honored gentleman. Both in public and private life, he had shown a sterling character. Colonel Rogers and himself had been warm friends and he was sure he held the high regard of every one. He then called upon Mayor Rush to read the address which was as follows:

To Lt.-Col H C Rogers:

Dear Sir—On behalf of a number of citizens of Peterborough I desire to express to you their sincere regret that you are about to remove from the city of which you have for so many years been a most highly esteemed citizen. Your long service as postmaster extending over nearly forty years has led to an intimate and pleasant acquaintanceship between the people of the city and neighboring district and yourself and by all your courtesy has been highly appreciated and the sturdy integrity with which you have performed the duties of that important office has been recognized and admired.

The services you have given to the militia of this district have been most useful as they have assisted materially to foster the true spirit of patriotic service and to build up the militia of the district in accordance with the best ideals. Your deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the city and county has also been shown by the work you have accomplished as the chief officer of the Peterborough Historical Society, and the Peterborough Horticultural Society and in many other ways you have proved yourself to be of that type of citizen who is public spirited and who assists to advance the interests and elevate the ideals of the community. You will leave in this city very many warm friends and on behalf of the citizens. I ask you to accept the accompanying gift which is given as an evidence of the warm feelings and the high esteem in which you are held by them.

We most heartily wish you very many years of happiness after you have retired from the public service wherever you may make your future home.

Signed on behalf of the citizens,
JS RUSH,
Mayor of Peterborough.

The presentation of the watch, chain and locket by Mr. Peter Campbell then followed.

Colonel Rogers made a neat reply. This is a very embarrassing moment, he said. I have lived among you in this city a long time and have seen the old ones retire and the young ones grow up, but did not realize I had so many friends.

I am going away from you and it is hard to say good bye to you whom I have looked upon and loved. The beautiful watch will remind me of the dear friends left in Peterborough. Although I am going to depart from your midst my heart will always remain here, where I have spent the past fifty years. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the kind expressions of regard to me and hope in the future to meet many of you in the west, where everyone will receive a hearty handshake from me. I will remember this occasion to my last day.

Mr. Peter Campbell read a letter of regret from Mr J. R. Stratton, M.P. on his being unable to be present, but he joined with the citizens in their expressions of regret at the departure of Col. Rogers.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was asked to make a few remarks and he stated that he deemed it a pleasure to join with the citizens in their expressions of good will to a good man, who was going to one of the best parts of the earth. I came here in 1863, said the speaker, and among the good looking men of the town were Mr. Strickland and Col. Rogers, and I have had Col. Rogers under my eye ever since. A man who has lived in a community as long as he has and will illicit such a kindly expression, makes citizenship a thing to be desired.

In his going away the city will soon realize what it had lost, and I join with you in wishing him all happiness and peace in the days to come.

Rev. Canon Davidson said that by the example shown by Col. Rogers, the citizens would take more heart in the work before them, as it had been demonstrated in Col. Rogers' residence what it was to be a consistent and honorable, straightforward citizen. He had done much for the religious interests in the city and had stood for the higher type of citizenship.

Sheriff Hall said he was one of the oldest acquaintances of Col. Rogers' and they had learned to like one another early in life and that feeling has not lessened. He was sorry to have to say goodbye to his old friend. In losing Col. Rogers Peterborough lost a worthy citizen and he hoped that young men would follow in his footsteps.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, G. W. Hatton, Robt. Fair, D. Hughes Charles, Dr. Morrison, T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., R. E. Wood, F. D. Kerr and Mayor Rush also made a few remarks in which they stated that their acquaintance with Col. Rogers had been of the pleasantest and while regretting his departure, wished him every success for the future.

The gathering dispersed after the singing of Auld Lang Syne, and cheers for Col. Rogers.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1909.

A BROAD HINT

Mr. Smoke, KC, looking squarely at a good old Reformer of the pre-reformation days remarked suavely, "It is of course because of the very duty that we are now discussing that the American company wishes to establish in Canada. Otherwise it would leave everything, as it is, in the United States." The object of the object lesson took it all without more than a demi-semi-quaver but it bit hard and fair all the same. The pre-reformation Liberal aforesaid had just been making a long, well reasoned and at times impassioned, speech in favor of new factories and here was the plain truth administered to him in a nutshell. No tariff, no new factory. And yet if the subject came up in that way at election time, wild horses would not restrain the gentleman from going up against the walls of Jericho and endeavoring to fell them with hollow sounds. Fallacies die hard. This is characteristic of evil in every form. We are prone to it "as the sparks fly upward."

MR. ROOSEVELT ON BRIBERY

"Mr. Roosevelt has disowned all the "special" despatches from his camp in British East Africa. There is, he says, no correspondent in the party and any stories that have come out can have been secured only by bribery and both bribe giver and bribe taker would be willing to not only invent falsehoods for money, but trade in other forms of dishonor as well."—The Witness.

This trenchant description of the briber and bribee will strike most people as painfully true. A man who thinks it no dishonor to do the one will think it no dishonor to do the other, otherwise he would do neither. Hence it is concluded that the seller of morals is prepared to deal in dishonor of all sorts. No doubt this is true. The weakness of mortals however is never more apparent than in the face of material temptation. Arguments in favor of reducing honor to a business basis are so practical that they appeal almost before being stated. The word "honor" has such a "highfalutin'" sound that to the man who revels in tobacco juice, whiskey and the long green it is unbearable. To the same class of man in other and higher positions the effect is not quite the same although the result frequently is. He too, fond of mere gain and all that it will buy regards consistency with scorn but pays the tribute to virtue of making use of it to help him in his business. It is these latter "gents" that Mr. Roosevelt evidently refers to and it is one of the anchors of a nobler faith in humanity that its greatest men are after all its best.

AUTOMATISM

The recent development of the cult or variation of one known as the gift of tongues has brought to mind in the reviews the other phases of automatism which used to be known as spirit-working. It is indisputable and has been so for many centuries, that visions, prophetic rhapsodies, extraordinary and involuntary feats of strength, clairvoyant trances, the answers to continuous prayer in India so vividly recorded, and other manifestations coming within the same or similar departments of extraordinary phenomena are the outcome of some involuntary or automatic disturbance, formerly called spiritism. Good and evil spirits manifested themselves or were supposed to do so in these different ways. The Bible abounds in accounts of similar experiences. At first it was explained by the so-called explainers or critics as psychical. Now it is "explained" as a process of self-suggestion verging in many cases upon epilepsy or insanity. Self-suggestion may account and no doubt does for many manifestations, but certainly not for all.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Ottawa, May 25—The board under the Lemieux Act, to enquire into the application of the mule spinners in the Dominion textile factory at Montreal, find that the company was justified in reducing wages from 10 to 25 per cent. in April, 1908, and the majority of the board state that conditions do not yet warrant an increase.

Gradually our textile manufacturers are yielding to the preference and being compelled to go out of business.

"Public men ought to realize that such scenes as those which have occurred in the Quebec Legislature of late heavily discredit their profession before the people. They complain that the average citizen is too censorious toward the class he lumps as "politicians"; but it is just such instances as these that arouse his condemnation. When men who should be our prudent representatives before the world indulge in personal bitterness and vicious attack they create the impression that the high cult of statesmanship has perished. —Montreal Star.

Yes and they ought to remember another thing too. This idea some men have that they can act the hooligan when they want to and the saint just when they serenely choose does not go down. The old plan of churchmembers standing fast by the Faith on occasions and then cutting loose when the felt like it has had its passing like many another fallacy. Not before however, it has done incalculable damage to the young to whose ears strange tales of wash-outs, broad yarns and the like have come as poison of the most virulent kind, to say nothing of the hideous inconsistency of it all.

ONTARIO CROP REPORT FOR MAY

Vegetation—In the opinion of many correspondents the growing season of 1909 is the latest for at least a score of years, it being placed at from one to two weeks later than the average.

Fall Wheat. Reports concerning the prospects of fall wheat vary greatly, even in the same localities, some describing the crop as looking well, though late, while others state that the fields are not only backward in growth, but are thin and much "spotted." Owing to the dry period prevailing when most of the seeding was done, much of the new fall wheat did not start until the rains of late September came, and the young plants entered the winter with very little top. Winter conditions, however, were not unfavorable to the crop, except where ice formed, and an early spring growth would have brought the fields along nicely; but the cold and very wet weather of April retarded growth, and on poorly drained or low and almost drowned out the crop. Much better growth was made on sandy and gravelly soils than on clays, owing to the excessive moisture. While there are many patchy spots, plowing up the crop will not be generally resorted to, owing to grass being seeded with the wheat, but barley or other spring grains will be drilled into the bare spots. The latest reports are the most favorable, showing that the crop is rapidly recuperating with the growing weather. There is less injury than usual reported from insects.

Clover.—Old meadows poor, new meadows promising, is a fair summary of the returns received regarding this crop. Early reports spoke of considerable heaving, but later returns state that much of the loose sod is returning to place. Clover was injured by the long dry spell covering the latter part of last summer and the early part of the fall, and in many instances it was pastured too closely owing to the scarcity of fodder. The usually cold spring, with frequent rains, also hurt the crop, particularly on low or badly drained land. Like fall wheat, clover looks best on high land, and on light soils. While many correspondents predict a good yield of hay, others are looking for a comparatively light outt.

Spring Sowing.—The small portion of the spring crops that were put in early found an excellent seed bed, but heavy rains immediately followed, and the land got too soft to work on making further sowing almost an impossibility for weeks, except in a few cases where, to use the expressive language of some correspondents, the seed was "puddled" in. While those on high, light, or well drained land have made fair headway with their spring seeding, the majority of the farmers were not more than half way through with that work in the second week of May, a most unusual record for Ontario. However, farmers were ready and eager to get on the land with the first appearance of dry weather, and while some correspondents were taking a rather gloomy view of the situation others were most hopeful that with the advent of warm weather there would be a quick advance in the growth of the spring crops.

Fruit Trees—All classes of orchard trees have come through the winter in good condition so far as injury from the weather or mice is concerned, although bark splitting is reported in some northern localities. Unfortunately there are a number of references to the presence of San Jose scale and the oyster shell bark louse, and it is very evident that a steady warfare must be waged against these and other insect pests if our fruit trees are to thrive. Several correspondents declare that too many of our orchards are still badly neglected. While leafing and blossoming were about a week or two backward reports were to the effect that barring late frosts and heavy rains at the time of bloom a good yield of fruit may be looked for. Peaches, especially are looked to for a large yield as the buds were but little injured by the winter.

Fodder Supplies—But for the comparative mildness of the winter there would have been much scarcity of fodder before live stock got upon the late grass. As it is, many farmers have had to feed most economically, and some barns are rather bare of supplies.

Live Stock—The general condition of live stock may be briefly described as thin but thrifty. No disease of a serious or epidemic nature has appeared, the mild form of distemper reported in several parts of the province being of a local nature. Horses are said to be in good heart, although not looking so plump or sleek as in some years, owing to stone feeding. The same may be said of both beef and dairy cattle. The chief ailments reported amongst this class of stock were cases of abortion and other parturient troubles with a number of cows, and scours in calves. Most of the stall fed and other fat cattle have been disposed of, but the number of stockers going upon grass is somewhat less than in former years. Sheep have come through the winter nicely, and lambing has been upon a generous scale; but fear of the dog is holding back the sheep industry in Ontario.

A RACE ON ICE.

The Skates That Got Away and Those That Were Recovered.

Thackeray once asked one of the men who let out skates on the Serpentine whether he had ever lost a pair through the omission to exact a deposit, and he replied that he had never done so, except on one occasion, when the circumstances made it almost pardonable.

A well dressed young fellow was having his second skate fastened on when he suddenly broke away from the man's hands and dashed to the ice. The next instant a thickset, powerful man was clamoring for another pair.

He was a detective in pursuit of his prey, and a very animating sight it was to watch the chase. He was, as he had boasted, a first rate skater, and it became presently obvious that he was running down his man.

Then the young fellow determined to run a desperate risk of liberty. The ice, as usual, under the bridge was marked "Dangerous," and he made for it at headlong speed. The ice bent beneath his weight, but he got safely through.

The sheriff's officer followed with equal pluck, but, being a heavier man, broke through and was drowned.

"His skates," said the narrator of the incident, "I got back after the inquest, but those the young gentleman had on I never saw again."—London Telegraph.

A chill, dark, autumnal morning. A breakfast table with an overcrowded tribe of clamorous children. A worried mother and an irritable father muttering something about "no decent elbow room." A small child uplifts solemn eyes from his plate and says, "Hadn't one of us better die?"—London Academy.

TOOK SIX—GOT WELL.

Mrs. R. C. Small, of Ottawa, certainly ought to know a lot about Rheumatism. Goodness knows, she suffered long enough. For years, she was almost a cripple and at times, the pain was so severe that she was compelled to lie helpless in bed.

"About a year ago," writes Mrs. Small, "I saw Fruit-a-tives advertised and decided to try them for my Rheumatism. After I had taken two boxes, I was much better. I took six boxes in all — have had no pain for over six months—and feel that I am completely cured. I have gained over ten pounds in weight and am strong and well."

And yet there are some people suffering with Rheumatism, who have not given "Fruit-a-tives" a fair trial. Perhaps they don't want to get well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are a positive cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia and all troubles arising from impure blood.

OMEMEE DOCTOR'S NARROW ESCAPE

Thrown Out of Buggy Monday Evening and Seriously Injured

Dr. Sutton, of Omemee, was the victim of a serious accident in that village Monday evening and it was feared it would result fatally.

Some boys were discharging fire crackers at Milligan's corner when the doctor's horse took fright and made a wild dash for liberty. When near his residence the doctor was thrown out against a tree with considerable force.

He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to his residence where it was ascertained he was suffering from severe bruises besides having three teeth knocked out. Dr. Snelgrove attended to the injured man and later on Dr Cameron of Peterborough was summoned.

Grave fears were expressed for his recovery but reports to date indicate that he is resting easier although seriously injured.

FATHER DERLING CONDUCTING SUCCESSFUL MISSION AT DOURO

Special to the Review.

Douro, May 26.—There is a very large attendance at the mission at St. Joseph's church, Douro, every morning and evening. Rev. Father Derling of Toronto, who is in charge of the mission, celebrates mass every morning at 10 o'clock, and gives benedictions of the blessed sacrament and other devotions every evening at 7 o'clock.

After every service, morning and evening, the reverend father delivers a strong and vigorous sermon on different subjects pertaining to the mission, and earnestly advises his adherents to strongly resist temptation and avoid all occasion of sin.

On Tuesday evening Rev. Father Derling preached a strong and vigorous sermon on temperance. He announced that drunkenness was a very great sin as it led to committing a great many other sins, cursing, swearing, blasphemy, besides the many many crimes that are committed in drunkenness. He pointed out to the people how many a good wife, working hard for her children, was suffering with them in poverty and want, while the husband and father had lost all love for his home, his wife and his children through the great sin of drunkenness.

Witnesses examined by Government Fisheries Commission at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, state that the regulations are disregarded.

Residents of Point Douglas, Winnipeg, are preparing for an aggres-tract.

GRAND MASTER SPROULE WANTS CORONATION OATH RETAINED

Resolution Prresented by Vancouver Orangemen for Political Platform for the Order—Yesterday's Session an Important One — Officers Will be Elected To-night.

The Orangemen of British Columbia are the prime movers in the motion sented at the session of the Orange Grand Lodge yesterday to the effect that a definite political platform be adopted by the Orange Order. The motion was put before the convention yesterday afternoon by Messrs. John J. Tulk and J. Whiteby, the delegates from Vancouver.

The members of the order in the Pacific provinces wish that a platform should be drawn up which could be submitted to political candidates and that the members of the order should support or oppose seekers for parliamentary office in accordance with their acceptance or rejection of the principals laid down.

The motion was submitted to a special committee for consideration, and their report will probably be taken up to-day. It is not likely, however, that other than an adverse report will be brought in, and the proposal rejected by the Grand Lodge.

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE

Some 150 delegates, representing every province in the Dominion, as well as Newfoundland, were in attendance at the Court House this afternoon when the annual session was opened. The grand officers in attendance were:

Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., Grand Master.

Lieut.-Col. J. H. Scott, K.C., Deputy Grand Master.

Rev. Wm. Walsh, Grand Chaplain, Brampton.

William Lee, Toronto, Grand Secretary.

W. J. Parkhill, Midland, Grand Treasurer.

A. A. Gray, Toronto, Grand Lecturer.

Capt. T. G. Wallace, M.P., Woodbridge, Grand Director of Ceremonies.

W. M. Fitzgerald, Toronto, Deputy Grand Secretary.

H. C. Hocken, Toronto, Deputy Grand Treasurer.

J. H. Delamere, Minden, and J. E. Thompson, Toronto, Grand Lodge Auditors.

THE CORONATION OATH.

Following upon the suggestion made in the Grand Master's address, it is probable that a resolution will be passed condemning the bill now before the British Parliament to amend the coronation oath by removing the clauses held by the members of the Roman Catholic Church to be objectionable. Another motion of interest, more closely pertaining to the conduct of the order, is the proposal that the purple and blue degrees should be restored to the ritual. At the meeting held in Vancouver it was decided that these degrees should be omitted from the ritual, but the necessary amendments to the constitution were never carried out, and as a result many lodges have continued to confer them. It is now proposed that the Vancouver resolution should be rescinded.

THE LADIES' ORDER

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association terminated yesterday, when the new officers were elected—Miss Maud Cullum, Toronto, is Grand Mistress; Mrs. J. Miller, Ottawa, Deputy Grand Mistress; Mrs. W. Fraser, Mistress; Mrs. J. Miller, of Hamilton, Junior Deputy Grand Mistress; Mrs. Ellen Smith, Leamington, Grand Treasurer; Mrs. Cullum, Grand Chaplain; Miss Ida Gallagher, Chatham, Grand Secretary; Mrs. E. Bentley, Toronto; Grand Lecturer; Miss L. E. Calder, Peterborough, Assistant Grand Secretary, and Mrs. J. T. Armstrong, Edmonton, Grand Directress of Ceremonies. Lieut.-Col. Scott, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, acted as installing officer. Dr. R. B. Orr and William Forster, Toronto, were appointed representatives to the Grand Lodge. It was reported that during the year six new lodges had been created, and that the order was flourishing, both as to membership and finances.

GRAND SECRETARY'S REPORT.

In his report William Lee, of Toronto, Grand Secretary, reported the opening of sixty-five primary lodges during the year, namely;—Newfoundland, 3; Nova Scotia, 4; New Brunswick, 5; Ontario East, 7; Ontario West, 20; Manitoba, 5; Saskatchewan, 11; Alberta, 4, and British Columbia, 6. In addition three new county lodges, five new scarlet chapters, eight new Ladies' Orange lodges and three new Orange Young Briton lodges have been opened.

During the year there have been received into the order, 6,414; joined by certificate, 2,188; reinstated, 1,253; withdrawn by certificate, 2,364; suspended, 5,254; expelled, 100; died, 712; value of real property, $701,672; other lodge property, $269.296; insurance carried, $434,506.

These figures show that the increase of members was about 1,500. The total membership is not given.

FINANCES OF THE ORDER.

The treasurer's report showed the total income, including a balance from last year of $4,447,93, to be $9,218.65. The expenses total $ $4,974.41, leaving a balance in hand of $4,244.24. The auditors recommend strict economy, as this year there will be the heavy expenses of printing new constitutions and rituals, and of sending representatives to the Triennial Council of the order, which meets in Liverpool next July. There are no items of special interest in the expense column of the report.

PLEASING PRESENTATION AT GRAND LODGE MEETING

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge a handsome Orange collar was presented to Mr. J. B. McWilliams by the Orangemen of West Peterborough. Mr. McWilliams is one of the oldest and most active Orangemen in the county and the presentation was made in recognition of his long and useful membership.

He replied in appropriate terms.

The presentation, which was made by the Grand Treasurer, was accompanied by the following address;—

J. B. McWilliams, Esq., P.C.M., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On behalf of the members of the Loyal Orange Association in the County of West Peterborough, we deem the present an opportune time to recognize your long and faithful services to our Order, extending over a period of some forty-four years. We realize that it would be impossible to repay you adequately for the time and ability which you have so cheerfully given during this time in the interests of our association, and your devotion to its principles. Time is too short and space will not permit us to enumerate the many occasions on which your wise counsel, your manly personality and valuable services have been so freely given to promote and perpetuate the interests and objects of our institution. We feel, however, that to allow such a long period of uninterrupted and faithful services to pass without some slight recognition, would manifest the grossest ingratitude on our part. We ask you, therefore, to accept this collar as a token of our appreciation of your long services, and as a memento of the admiration and esteem in which you are held by the Orangemen of the County of West Peterborough.

Trusting that you may be long spared to meet with us at our gatherings in the future, and favor us with the sound and matured advice which years of experience has rendered you so capable to give. We beg to remain,

Yours in the bonds of F.H.C.

W. H. G. ARMSTRONG,
County Master,
E. G. CLARKE,
County Secretary.
Peterborough, Ont., May 25, 1909.

MR. McWILLIAMS' REPLY.

Mr. McWilliams desired to thank the Grand Treasurer and the District Master for their kind words, and for the beautiful regalia presented to him. This is not the first present I have received from the Orange Order. I have received the beautiful Past Master's Jewel which I now wear, from the Lakefield District, besides a very valuable present from the County Lodge. Much as I appreciate these presents I appreciate more the kindness received from the Orange Association for the past 46 years, during which I have been a member. I have filled every position from secretary of private lodge to County Master. The last mentioned I have filled for nearly 20 years, and during my whole 46 years' service have been elected to every position by acclamation, except twice, and then by large majorities, so I have every reason to appreciate the kindness of the society. Although only 46 years in association with the society, yet I might claim over 60 years, for one of the longest things I can remember is an Orange lodge being held in my father's house in Norwood. I again thank the Grand Treasurer, and also the Peterborough Orangemen for their kind words, and trust they never will have reason to change these opinions.

VISITING ORANGEMEN WERE WELCOMED BY MAYOR RUSH

At the Grand Lodge Session This Morning—Secret Work of the Order Discussed—Report on Organization Presented by Dr. Sproule.

A pleasant feature of the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge at the Court House this morning was the civic address of welcome read on behalf of Peterborough by His Worship Mayor Rush. Ald. J. J. Turner, jr., chairman of the Reception Committee, was also present, having been deputed by the Council to extend the civic courtesy.

The address is as follows;—

To the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, Officers and Members of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America:

Gentlemen,—On behalf of the people of Peterborough we wish to give you a hearty welcome to this city on this occasion of your eightieth annual meeting. It always gives us pleasure to welcome visitors, whatever may be the occasion of their coming and it is an especial pleasure to receive the representatives of a large and influential association, and who are gathered from all parts of our great Dominion and Newfoundland. There was a time, however, when there was a certain amount of jealousy or rivalry that was not as friendly as it should have been between the different Provinces, but that happily has passed away, but whether our home is in the Provinces washed by the Atlantic or laved by the Pacific, or on the great lakes or on the mighty St. Lawrence, or in those western Prairie Provinces of great promise, we are all Canadians, loyal to our country and to each other, happy that our lot has been cast in this favored part of the world, and proud to be British subjects and part of the great British Empire. Your jurisdiction goes beyond the boundaries of the Dominion and includes the sister colony of Newfoundland, and that island we regard with the spirit of brotherhood, wishing it prosperity as a sister colony so long as it wishes to occupy that position, and ready to open our arms to it whenever it comes to the conclusion that union with the Dominion is to be preferred to the state of independent blessedness. We in this section of Ontario are acquainted with your Order, and have residing here several who have occupied honorable positions in it, and we recognize among them our best citizens.

We know that, along with upholding those principles which it is your especial aim to protect, you also carry on the benevolent work of providing for the helpless, and that in the labors which will engage your attention your time will be pretty fully occupied. but we hope you will be able to have a look over our city while you are here. We think that you will be well repaid if you will do so. Our manufacturing industries are numerous but many of them are of such importance that you should not fail to visit them and their combined importance is shown by the fact, established by the last Government report, that the value of the manufactured products per head of population is larger in Peterborough than in any other city in Canada. Our public buildings we also think are worthy of your attention, including the armories which were opened last Monday, the Normal School, the Collegiate Institute, the hospitals, public schools, churches and other public buildings, as well as many private residences and our parks, of which we have several are just putting on their summer garb in time to welcome you. The lift lock on the Trent waterway—a waterway of which the greater part is completed and which will open navigation through the heart of Ontario from Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay—you should not on any account miss seeing and I am pleased to know that many of you have had an opportunity of visiting it, for there is not another like it on the continent and it is the highest in the world.

We hope your stay in Peterborough will be a most pleasant one, so that you will carry away with you only favorable recollections of your visit and not a tinge of regret that you chose Peterborough for your annual meeting this year.

H. RUSH, Mayor.

Special to the Review.

L'Orignal, May 27.—Salm Assly, the Syrian pedlar who murdered his brother Joseph at Hawkesbury in December last, was tried at the spring assizes here today. A mixed jury brought in a verdict of murder with a recommendation to clemency.

Judge Teetzel of Toronto, who presided sentenced Assly to be hanged at L'Orignal on July 23rd next. The evidence showed that Assly was not drunk at the time the crime was committed but that he and his brother had quarrelled over the business in which they were partners.

Assly, who is only 22 years old had his legs so badly frozen before being captured that both had to be amputated below the knee.

THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

What we stand to gain by the passage of this by-law and the successful operation of the works:—

(1) The establishment of a business at the southern end of the city equal in magnitude to the Auburn mills at the north end.

(2) The consequent employment of a large number of skilled workmen in a quarter of the city that needs developing in order to round out the street railway system and our municipal plan.

(3) The increase in property assessable for school purposes by probably $200,000.

(4) The increase in population and importance necessary to a young city just coming into general public notice.

(5) The subsequent development of a comprehensive power policy which will enable the city to outrival the favoured municipalities of Western Ontario.

On the otheer hand what do we stand to lose?

(1) All that we have pointed out above if the by-law is defeated.

(2) In the event of failure of the company a loss in money wholly insignificant in comparison with that suffered by the American company co-operating, the stockholders and the firm undertaking to underwrite the stock. At least that is the way it looks to us. Mr. Kendrey is, of course, by far the most formidable opponent of the scheme. He lays it down as a principle not to be departed from on any pretext that sound business is the only kind that is good business and loaning money to irresponsible and possibly incapable persons is not good business. To this objection the City Council replies that the men who will compose the directorate are the very best. They guarantee this, and if it is true, the objection of Mr. Kendrey is answered. It could all be cleared up in a moment if the names of all parties could be published, but this is objected to on the ground that it would do all concerned harm in the commercial world in the event of the by-law's being defeated. That is of course, the usual plan to follow. So far as we can see at present, the by-law should pass, and then if the pretensions or professions of the promoters do not "pan out" we need not pay, that is all.

CHARGE OF GIVING LIQUOR TO MINOR WAS DISMISSED

Case Against Hotelkeeper Was Dismissed at Police Court This Morning

The proprietor of a hotel was charged in the Police Court this morning with having on May 24th sold liquor to a young man under 21 years of age.

Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the defendant and pleaded not guilty.

The case was dismissed on the ground that the young man who received the liquor looked like 21 years of age and the defendent had not been told by the mother when she notified him not to serve liquor to her son of his being any particular age.

The first witness was the person to whom the liquor was given.

The first witness was the person to whom the liquor was given.

He said he was 19 years of age last October and was at the hotel on Monday, May 24th, where he was served with several drinks of lager. The proprietor had been warned four years ago by his mother not to supply him with liquor. He had been in the habit of going into the hotel but nothing had been asked in regard to his age.

To Mr. Kerr witness said that different people had remarked that he appeared to be 21 years of age.

The mother of the witness, next called, said that he had given his correct age. She had gone to the hotel four years ago and told the proprietor not to give her son any liquor and had gone into the hotel several times since then on the same mission. The proprietor on every occasion had said that he would not furnish any more liquor, but he had not kept his promise.

VISITED LINDSAY ON THE HOLIDAY

Miss Bertha Adams, Elocutionist and Musical Director Visited Cousin There

The Lindsay Post says:—An interesting visitor to Lindsay on Victoria Day was Miss Bertha Adele Adams, elocutionist and musical director, of Toronto, who is now in Peterborough arranging for the production of the play, "When the Toys Awake." Miss Adams was the guest of her cousin, Mr. J. E. Adams, Sussex street, while in town. She is a lady of many accomplishments, and has travelled very extensively. During the last year she had been in the larger cities of Canada, in numerous centres of population in the United States, and in Mexico. With her uncle as manager, she arranges and puts on the play mentioned previously. For seven weeks this play delighted Cleveland.

The story of the play is an interesting one. It is derived from an old German legend. The child of the toy-maker to the king asked his father if the toys he made ever came to life. The father answered that they did and the story subsequently tells how the toys really came to life.

Miss Adams spent a very pleasant day in Lindsay.

HOAGLAND COULDN'T GET BACK HIS LAP

And Brown Still Retains First Place in Six Night Walk —A Terrific Battle Between the Two Leaders —Seven Miles an Hour.

The phenomenal walking of Brown last night fairly electrified the crowd and he received the most demonstrative applause in his nerve racking race with Hoagland. It was the third night of the six night walk being held at Brock street rink, and the walking shaded down to a duel between the champion and the phenomenal boy performer from Auburn. Hoagland was a lap behind Brown when the walkers left the scratch, and he worked as he never worked in any of his walking in this city before. The battle between the two leaders eclipsed all other interest in the performance of the field, and the champion and his game and fast opponent fairly walked their heads off, one trying to add a lap to his score, and the other endeavoring to prevent his competitor from accomplishing his object. And Brown deserves the greatest credit for maintaining this lead, for Hoagland had the same relative standing between the two as when the start of the night's walking was made, and when the last lap was scored, Brown was still one round to the good.

The pair got away even and walked that way for a considerable distance before Hoagland commenced that gruelling, grinding pace of his to gradually tear himself away from Brown and put himself on the same footing. For lap after lap the boy followed the star walker of the continent, urged on by an appreciative audience "to stay with it," but the majority of the spectators in spite of their friendly coaching thought that he would be unable to do so. Still he kept dogging Hoagland right at his heels, and exerted himself to the utmost to save that hard fought for lap. At length Hoagland began to pull away by degrees and secured quite a lead. Brown showed unlooked for stamina and several times closed the gap and again resumed his place directly behind his leadeer. Hoagland, however, managed to gain about two-thirds of a lap and it looked certain that he would be successful in getting back the whole lap before the evening was over. At twenty minutes to ten Brown started on a long sprint to make the difference that there was between the two on the track, and after some wonderful walking managed to do so, and a little after showed that he was not by any means dead beat by taking the pace himself. Hoagland took it again, and Brown stuck to him and crossed the mark when time was up a lap in the lead.

During the two-man struggle the rest of the field was lapped time and time again. The remarkable performance of Brown was entirely unlooked for, and not a person in the audience imagined that he was capable of doing what he did. Both men wringing wet with perspiration when the time was called.

As fast as the walking has been on Monday and Tuesday nights, it was better last night as far as Brown and Hoagland were concerned, both covering seventeen miles, five laps, making the amazing showing of just an almost imperceptible shade under seven miles an hour. This was altogether too much for a third night effort for the rest of the field, including West, who had displayed form and kept right up with the top score, with the difference of only a couple of laps.

The walking commenced at 8.10, and the men appeared very fresh after their hard grind of two nights at such a killing pace. The fastest mile ever made at the rink was done in the early part of the evening, when Hoagland stepped it to the time of 7 minutes and 54 seconds. Harrison covered the ground nicely for some distance and then dropped back a little and did not show his usual speed. He was very much discouraged by the size of the crowd, which, despite the fact that the walking during the week has been above the high water mark, has been for some unexplainable reason, depressingly small. Those who have attended have obtained more than their money's worth in exciting and scientific sport, and it is very difficult to understand why the audiences have not been considerably larger.

One athelete who takes things very philosophically is the Buffalo ped, Jimmy Graham. He keeps going at his usual pace and amuses the spectators by his bright remarks. Jimmy had one particularly original spell last night and had the track-side in the best of spirits. Blatchford still maintains his position at the bottom of the heap, but keeps plugging along at his uniform rate of going. He has the average of 3 miles an hour, and while it is a low one in this walk, is good for a man of his years and a brand new performer at the heel and toe game.

Outside of Brown and Hoagland's walking, the feature of the latter part of last night's chapter was the brilliant way in which West picked up a lap when it was entirely unexpected of him. At twenty minutes after ten and with 13 minutes to go he increased his score by gaining a lap in a few circuits. He cut loose at a great swing and didn't let up till he made the desired acquisition.

The standing at the close was:—

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	51	1
Hoagland	51	0
West	50	0
Harrison	49	2
Blake	48	6
Spenceley	46	0
Fenton	44	7
Graham	43	9
Hartley	42	2
Blatchford	38	11

WALKLETS.

"O, you kid," they said to Blatchford, and "O, you kidder," to Graham.

Blatchford at one time easily gained ten feet on Hartley in a sudden sprint. Some of the fans predicted he would make up a quarter of a lap on him before the night was over. However, he couldn't keep up the terrific clip and was forced to go slower.

It was more like a hockey match than a walk so excited was the crowd over the fight Brown and Hoagland was putting up.

MINORU WINS DERBY

King Edward's Horse Is Victor in Famous Event.

For First Time In History the Reigning Monarch Carries Off Great Trophy—Thousands Witness Race and Spectators Go Wild With Enthusiasm and Almost Mob His Majesty In Their Delight.

Epsom, May 27.—King Edward's brown colt, Minoru, yesterday justified his name, which is Japanese for "Success," by winning the Derby, which will be remembered always in the annals of Epsom as one of the finest races ever run on that historic track. W. Raphael's Louviere, with France's star jockey, Stern, on his back, came under the wire so close an attendant upon Minoru that the spectators were undecided which led until the King's number was displayed on the blackboard. The Derby stake of $32,500 are for three-year-olds and fillies, over a mile and a half course.

On Minoru the betting was 7 to 2; on Louviere 9 to 1, and on William the Fourth, which finished third, 20 to 1.

A heavy downpour of rain, which commenced early yesterday morning and continued until noon, with threats of showers during the afternoon, kept thousands of the casual racegoers from journeying to the downs. King Edward and Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other members of the royal family came down by train. Upon arriving at Epsom they were driven to the royal enclosure in semi-state carriages, accompanied by outriders.

To Englishmen the King's success was inspiring as a victory in a great international contest, and compensated for a rain which drove across the field, making a wallow of mud under foot. On every side it had been asked whether, if he won, His Majesty would consider it compatible with his exalted position to lead his horse from the track, as the winning owners have done for more than a century. There was no precedent for this, because no king before had ever won the Derby. King Edward, however, with the Prince of Wales following him, lived up to the custom, and in the minds of Englishmen clinched his claim to the title of a thoroughbred sportsman.

The scene when His Majesty's victory was certain was unprecedented in the enthusiasm aroused, and the round after round of lusty British cheering.

The crowd, wild with excitement, broke through the police cordon and almost mobbed King Edward as, following the time-honored custom, His Majesty, as owner of Minoru, led the champion into the paddock.

Reports from all sections tell of enthusiastic scenes when the news of His Majesty's good luck was received.

While it is the first time that a King of England has owned the Derby winner, His Majesty Edward VII. twice, while Prince of Wales, enjoyed the distinction, in 1896 with Persimmon and in 1900 with Diamond Jubilee.

Richard Croker, who wandered about the paddock alone, with his hands in his pockets and bowler cap drawn over his eyes, must have contrasted the tumult yesterday with the silence that fell over the stands when he led in Orby II. the winner in 1907.

Minoru is a bay colt by Cyllene, out of Mother Siegel, and is consequently a high-class animal in the thoroughbred list. Cyllene is sire of Cicero, who won the 1905 Derby for Lord Rosebery.

As a two-year-old Minoru was not much of a success on account of some eye trouble, but he made a few good attempts, showing that he possessed speed and stamina. His work as a three-year-old continued to show improvement.

The King entertained 60 members of the jockey club at the annual dinner at Buckingham Palace last night.

The only persons present at the dinner not members of the Jockey Club were the lords and gentlemen-in-waiting on the King, the Prince of Wales and Prince Christian. There were also half a dozen foreigners who are honorary members of the English Jockey Club, including Prince Auguste Arenberg, from Paris. After the dinenr the King and his guests adjourned to the house of Lord Farquhar, in Grosvenor Square, where Lady Farquhar gave a large ball for the debut of Prince Alexandra, eldest daughter of the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife.

Gowganda Wants Recorder.

Gowganda is not a Last West "proposition" exactly, but it is a much-talked of spot in what, after all, may be called newer Canada, with which this department aims to deal. Gowganda will, it may be presumed, soon have a newspaper of its own. In the meantime The Daily Northern Star of Sudbury is acting as one of the spokesmen for the new camp. The Star at present is urging the necessity for a recorder there. A prospector, as yet, in order to record his claim, has to travel thirty-two miles over the worst kind of trail at an expense of at least $10. This, The Star points out, is a hardship which the Department of Mines might make haste to remedy.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

DELAYING THE GAME.

Rule 33, sec. 2.—The umpire shall call a ball on the pitcher each time he delays the game by failing to deliver the ball to the batsman, for a longer period than 20 seconds, excepting that at the commencement of each inning, or when a pitcher relieves another, the pitcher may occupy one minute in delivering, not to exceed five balls to the catcher, or an infielder, during which time play shall be suspended.

Sec. 3.—In event of the pitcher being taken from the game by either manager or captain, the player substituted for him shall continue to pitch until the batsman then at bat has either been put out or has reached first base.

THOSE CERTIFICATES.

Intermediate League teams can secure the remaining number of certificates any time now by applying to the secretary.

President B. B. Johnson, of the American League, has devised a scheme whereby the national game will be faster. He has obtained a baseball which is springier and faster than the one now used, and will distribute it to the various clubs in his league. The teams will try out the ball in their practice, and if it is found satisfactory it will be used in all championship games.

The ball is much the same as that employed when Delhanty first used to whack out ten or twelve home runs during a game. In those times such a brief hit as a double was scorned. It had to be a triple or a home run; nothing else went. If the ball stands the test the patrons of the American League will see an increase in batting.

The following players of St. Peter's baseball team are asked to be on hand at seven o'clock at Boswell's Field to play their Church League game to-night with George street:—J. Eano, F. Conroy, E. Kelly, C. Callaghan, V. Hayes, H. Giroux, H. Hickey, H. Callaghan, P. Melloy, O. Kenneally.

Weather permitting, George St. and St. Peter's Church League teams will play a game at Boswell's field to-night.

Saturday will see the opening of the Intermediate League. The lineups of the different teams are being kept dark, and there will likely be a surprise sprung.

The Ottawa City Amateur Baseball League have suspended a number of players for playing with professionals last Sunday.

COMMITTEE WILL SECURE INFORMATION FROM OTHER CITIES AS TO LIGHTING

Representatives of the Peterborough Light and Power Company met the Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council last night and took up, in a preliminary way, the request of the company for a thirty year franchise of the streets in order to consolidate their debt by placing a bond issue on their plant and property.

After considerable discussion it was decided to get information as to rates for electric lighting from other towns and cities. After this is done the committee will formulate a proposition to make to the company.

THE VISITING ORANGEMEN WELCOMED

Replies to the addresses were made by Lt.-Col. Belcher, of Southampton; A. W. Wright, of Toronto, and Grand Secretary Milley, of Newfoundland. All speakers expressed eloquent appreciation of the hospitable way in which they were received.

Addresses of welcome were also read by the representatives of the county and district lodges of Peterborough.

Quite a section of this morning's meeting was occupied in the discussion of the secret subjects of the order. The reports of the committee on secret work and that of the financial committee were presented.

It was decided to give a substantial grant to the True Blues and Orphans' Home in Nova Scotia. The report on organization for the past year was presented by the Grand Master, Dr. T. S. Sproule, MP on behalf of the executive committee.

A large volume of other business of the order was discussed at length and very many important matters were disposed of.

The Grand Master was in the chair and Col. J H Scott of Walkerton occupied the deputy chair.

During the meeting Grand Secretary Milley of Newfoundland dealt interestingly with the question of confederation between Canada and Newfoundland.

He said the way to establish confederation was by commercial relations and not political methods. He said that the visit of commercial men to the province and the establishment of amicable trade feeling was the desirable way of bringing about confederation.

The meeting adjourned at one o'clock and was resumed again at two.

"Yes," snapped the Texan. "I am. What of it?"

The Englishman lay back on his pillow and laughed. It was an American joke, but he saw through it. Bravo!

"O-h," he spluttered, "really, you know, 'pon my word, it's droll—ha, ha—dash me—immense, by Jove!"

"Stop it," commanded Bill Williams sternly and turned to the nurse in charge. "Just leave us for a few moments, will you? There; you needn't be afraid. Nothing is going to happen. This gentleman and I will talk the matter over between us calmly, and I'll leave in ten minutes."

"It's all right, nurse," the earl seconded; "leave us, please. I understand the situation, but hanged if it isn't ripping. All the way from Texas, eh? Ha, ha!"

The puzzled nurse departed, leaving the two incomprehensibles to themselves, and so soon as the door had been closed the elder of the lunatics demanded an immediate explanation. The Earl of Croyland gave it to him, wondering the while how this droll old party could fail to appreciate a joke of so clear and so excellent a quality. He told of his meeting with Richard, the automobile accident and his own craftiness in assuming his friend's name and why he did it. Croyland had never seen Richard's father while in Texas, for he had visited the son on the latter's own ranch while the boy and his father had been temporarily estranged.

"Oh, I say," he asked, "don't you think it was awfully clevah of me to think of that on the spur of the moment, we might say, without any preconceived thought whatevah?"

"Brilliant," said Mr. Williams, with dry irony. "But let me tell you one thing, young man—it's a good thing that you're a cripple."

"Er—why?" asked the Briton vacantly.

"Why?" echoed the giant of the Lone Star State in genuine disgust. "Why? Because if you weren't one already it would take a bigger doctor's shop than this to patch you up. Who sent me those telegrams? Where's my son?"

"Don't know anything about either of 'em," the other responded carelessly, while he marveled at the Texan's show of spirit. "The last I saw of Dick he was going up to Irvington to call upon the Renwycks—Jacob Renwyck, ye know—millionaire and all that sort of thing."

"What!" gasped Mr. Williams. "My son gone to call on Jacob Ren— Drop it! Drop it! No nonsense now! What are you talking about?"

Lord Croyland explained, but the very fact that Richard had dared to communicate with Jacob Renwyck, even to oblige a friend, put the father in a new fury.

"Of course," said the earl, "he couldn't possibly be out there now, but you might phone and make certain. I dare say they have a telephone."

"No, sir," stormed the old gentleman, walking up and down excitedly. "No more long distance lies for me. I've had enough of that already. I'll just go up to Irvington myself and pick up his trail. I want my boy, I tell you, and I'm going to find him. If he isn't at Irvington my trip won't be wasted after all. I'll have the satisfaction of wringing Jacob Renwyck's neck. I'll bet he's responsible for those wires and the whole thing. Where's the infernal place, and how do you get to it?"

Lord Croyland, who was not particularly interested in Mr. Renwyck's neck, gave directions cheerfully, and the distracted father started on his way. When he had gone the nervous nurse came once more to the patient's side.

"Mr. Williams," she asked, "is there anything that I can do for you?"

"Yes," lisped the earl, with a languorous smile. "I'm not at home to any one else to day unless Miss Sempton calls, and now just open the window, will you, my dear, and let the—ah—sulphur out? A most disagreeable old party—really."

CHAPTER XXII.

Mr. BILL WILLIAMS took the first train for Irvington, settled himself with a long black cigar in the smoking car and began to churn his brains for answers to many perplexing questions. That his enemies were trying to euchre him was as clear as day. His son might have sent one wire of warning, but why a dozen? That was Jacob's fine Italian hand. If Richard was at liberty, why had he not written? Why had he left his baggage at the St. Regis without returning? How dared he go to Irvington? Where had he gone thereafter? Where was he now? The old gentleman gave it up and chewed the end of his cigar in savage impatience. Of one thing only was he certain—he would get on Richard's trail and follow it to the end.

On reaching Irvington he hurried to the telegraph office and sent the following dispatch to his representative at Austin, Tex.:

> Watch harbor bill. Skin game on. Learn when legislature will adjourn and answer.
> BILL WILLIAMS.
> Irvington, N. Y.

There was some considerable delay in sending his wire, which he further lengthened by telephoning to his New York representatives, making an appointment with them for later during the day. As he had plunged straight for the telegraph office, he neither saw nor was seen by Mr. Jacob Renwyck when that gentleman, accompanied by two plain clothes men, got off the rear car of the same train, rushed across the platform, jumped into a waiting surrey, the only carriage that happened to meet that train, and drove rapidly away. Nor did he hear several people inquire of the station agent for walking directions to Mr. Renwyck's place. First there was a well groomed, somewhat pompous, official looking Englishman, with a red face and white side whiskers, evidently a man of authority and importance. Next there was a tall, blond young woman, with a "ripping" figure, who expressed surprise that no vehicle was there to meet her. And finally there were an excited old farmer, a hard featured man in plain clothes—also with an official look—and a fussy little representative of a motor company, if one could judge by his cap and general automobile rig.

In despair of a carriage all of these walked slowly up the hill in the direction of Restmore, although in the fact that, save the farmer and the plain clothes official, each pursued his way alone, holding no communication with the others, was conclusive proof that their simultaneous arrival and their common destination were merely coincidences. Mr. Renwyck and his companions arrived long before the others. With the two detectives he went immediately into the library, where he met his wife and Mr. Corrigan. The safe was wide open, showing the tumbled contents just as they had been found when the door was unlocked two hours earlier by Uncle Michael. In utter silence the two sleuths made an examination, but beyond one tiny scratch near the keyhole of the inner door the safe showed no evidence of having been tampered with. Besides Mr. Renwyck, there was no one else who knew the combination except the old butler, who was confined to his bed with rheumatism in a small village several miles away and who was quite above suspicion anyway. Clearly, then, the thief had in some way learned the combination or else he was an experienced cracksman.

On hearing of the robbery the first thought that flashed into Mr. Renwyck's mind was his curious meeting in the library with his English guest at 3 o'clock in the morning, with the window open and the burglar alarm turned off. The prowler's explanation had been quite simple. Mr. Renwyck had honestly striven to persuade himself that it was entirely satisfactory, although he could not drive away a sneaking suspicion that everything was not just right. In the light of present developments his mind recurred to this suspicion with added force. Then there was that draft which the earl had so inexplicably refused to sign after first offering to do so, a small matter in itself, yet coupled with the strange nocturnal wanderings of a gentleman who wished to seek for a book at a quarter past 3 o'clock in the morning—well, it troubled Mr. Renwyck not a little. All the way to Irvington he had turned the matter over in his mind, yet on meeting Lord Croyland on the front veranda he was forced to admit that the frank appearing young man looked as little like a burglar as himself.

Mr. Corrigan was the first to give his evidence. He explained about the tramp with a cast in his eye and told how he had first observed the man on the train coming from New York, then how the same man had come to Restmore begging. He offered to bet his brother-in-law a thousand dollars to five hundred that the cock eyed fellow was the robber, but Mr. Renwyck coldly declined to take the wager.

Mr. Corrigan described the appearance of the man with enthusiastic minuteness, at which the foremost of the detectives smiled an oily smile.

"Well, by gad," he exclaimed indelicately, "if that doesn't hit Jack Bibbs, then I'm a Dutchman! If Jack's got your shiners, Mr. Renwyck, you'd better whistle for 'em."

"Why?" asked Mr. Corrigan.

"Because he's the slickest crook in seven states," returned the sergeant, nodding vigorously. "He's a hundred and fifty miles away by this time, sure."

"Um!" said Uncle Michael. "If you had listened to me, Jake, instead of trying to be humorous, you"—

"Oh, shut up, will you?" growled Mr. Renwyck. "This is no time for recrimination. You'd argue the sun, moon and stars out of the sky together if you found any one to listen to you."

"Now, who ever saw sun, moon and stars in the sky at the same time?" queried the irrepressible Michael.

"There you go," retorted his brother-in-law. "Your story of the tramp is just as absurd now as it was in the beginning. Come; let's get down to business. Call everybody in. These officers will question every inmate of the house. Gentlemen," he said, turning to the detectives, "you have my permission to proceed in any manner which seems best to you. We are entirely in your hands."

"All right, sir," answered the detective sergeant, whose name was Flint. "We'll take the servants first."

Richard was crossing the hall in a vain search for Harriet when he chanced to overhear this last remark. His heart went down again. If Woolsey Bills were questioned it would mean far more than turning a guilty villain over to the authorities. He, the master, would be forced to explain also, and, taken in conjunction with his own meeting with Mr. Renwyck in the library, the outcome would be ghastly, to say the least. Yet he must act on the detective's suggestion at once.

"Shall I send for my man?" he asked of Mr. Renwyck, who at that moment came out into the hall.

"No," said his host; "we'll take my own servants first. James," he called to a sphinxlike butler in the hall, "tell all the servants to come into the library—all of them. Understand?"

"Yes, sir," answered James, with a solemn bow, and departed on his mission.

Richard's heart went up again. He had a slight reprieve. It would last perhaps twenty minutes, yet much might happen in that span of time. He wondered idly if they would put handcuffs on him, but dismissed the thought in his determination to pay for the stolen diamonds, inasmuch as he felt responsible for Woolsey Bills. When the time came he would confess like a man and take his medicine. He would be denounced. It would be dramatic, like the play of the "Man and the Bird," only the name would be changed. It would now be the "Man and the Jailbird." How simple to have opened that library window, while Bills went out into the night, boarded a freight and deposited the plunder in New York! The Texan was innocent, of course, but would other people think so? Yet she would. There was comfort in that. If she believed in him, nothing else mattered very much.

At this stage of the proceedings there was quite a commotion on the front porch, due to the arrival of several visitors. Harriet and Imogene went out and greeted Miss Sempton nervously, explaining the state of affairs briefly, while Mr. Renwyck also came to the door, impatient at the unlooked for interruption.

"Sir," questioned the pompous English gentleman, who had arrived a few minutes after the lighter footed young lady, "am I correct in assuming that that is Mr. Jacob Renwyck?"

Mr. Renwyck bowed.

"H'm! My card," went on the visitor. "I am, as you see, Sir Rodney Hickwich, British ambassador at Washington. I have written repeatedly on matters of most urgent business to a gentleman who I learn has been a guest at this charming home, but my letters and telegrams have elicited no reply. Humph! I allude, sir, to the Earl of Croyland. Does he chance to be still with you?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Renwyck. "Come in. I must apologize for our upset state, but the fact is we have just discovered a serious robbery. Pray be seated, Sir Rodney. Lord Croyland was here a moment ago. I will send for him."

"I shall be obliged, I'm sure. I regret to disturb you under the circumstances, but it's really most important, you know, and"—

"Not at all," said Mr. Renwyck courteously. "James," he called to the butler, "send some one to Lord Croyland with this card."

"Yes, sir," answered James. "I think I see him on the lawn, sir. He's coming now."

Richard, having spied Miss Sempton coming up the path, had promptly moved out upon the lawn in order to postpone the inevitable discovery as long as possible. He saw her go with Harriet and Imogene up the stairs; then he turned once more toward the house. At the steps he was stopped by a farmer, the hard featured official and the fussy little mechanical individual who seemed to have joined forces on the way.

"That's one of 'em now," loudly declared the rustic, pointing a grimy finger at Richard. "I recognize him, officer. He was there all right."

"What's this—what's this?" demanded Mr. Renwyck, hastening out at the sound of the excited voice.

"It's all right, Mr. Renwyck," said the fussy little man, touching his cap. "I think we can settle it without any trouble whatever. Is this Lord Croyland?"

"Yes, it is," answered the puzzled master of Restmore. "What is all this fuss about? It is very annoying to have you people coming here at this time. What do you want? Be brief."

"My name," said the man, "is Parker—John Parker of the Layton Motor company. Lord Croyland here rented one of our machines a week ago and never brought it back. We learned incidentally that he smashed it up and failed to report the accident. We inquired for him at his hotel, but he had left without giving an address. We had a great deal of trouble in locating the damaged motor, but found it at last at New Rochelle. And we have had more trouble in locating him here too. I have a heavy bill against his lordship."

But here the farmer broke in angrily:

"Yes, an' he broke up my waggin an' kilt my dawg. I'll have the law on him. Here, you," he cried, turning to Richard—"you got to come along with us back to New York! My lawyer says you've got to pay a thousand dollars damages. This man has a summons fer you. That's him, constable. Take him in."

Mr. Renwyck turned to the Texan with a look of refined astonishment.

"Really, Lord Croyland," he began, but Richard smiled brazenly and checked further speech.

"Mr. Renwyck," he said, "I must apologise to you for this unfortunate interruption. I did have an automobile accident, it is true, but I paid to have the damaged machine towed to the nearest garage and thought, of course, that the matter would be reported promptly by the officer employed. I gave my address and heard nothing further from the owners of the automobile nor from this worthy farmer whose wagon and dog were both butted into kingdom come." Richard turned to Mr. Parker. "At what hotel did you inquire for me?"

"Hotel Astor, sir, the address on our books."

"Ah!" smiled the Texan. "That accounts for it. I had changed my address to the St. Regis. Meet me there on Monday morning at 11, both of you. The matter will be adjusted to your entire satisfaction."

"There," said Mr. Renwyck impatiently to the farmer and Mr. Parker. "Does that satisfy you?"

"No, it don't!" protested the rustic one. "He's a slick one, I kin tell ye. He didn't give no sich name as Croylan' w'en he run me down. I disremember wot it was, but it warn't Croylan'. No, sir; that man's tryin' to squirm out'en it."

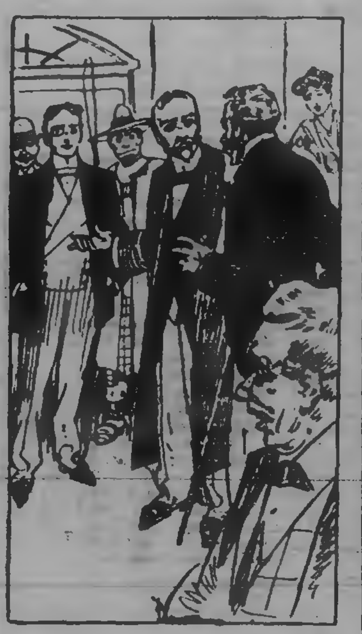
"Get off my place!" shouted Mr. Renwyck furiously, these successive contretemps proving too much for his unstable equilibrium. "Is my house to be overrun by every imbecile in the state of New York? Take him away, Mr. Parker, before I forget myself and have him ejected forcibly!"

Mr. Parker looked doubtful, the farmer was obdurate, the officer handed Richard a paper, while Uncle Michael looked on, rubbing his plump white hands and chuckling softly. At this juncture Sir Rodney Hickwich happened to spy a monocle in the eye of a gentleman outside. At the same time he caught the name of Croyland. He rose from his seat in the drawing room and appeared upon the scene. He had been greatly troubled over the fact that Lord Croyland's plans for purchasing submarines for Japan had been disclosed to the authorities at Washington, at the instance of the Russian ambassador, and unless the plans were dropped forthwith grave complications were certain to follow. For this very reason he had made a flying trip to New York in an endeavor to save his friend from serious blunders. He had not been able, as he said, to get a reply to three telegrams and five letters and was the more anxious to learn the reason of this inexplicable silence. He was a little near sighted, but he was sure he recognized his friend among the group upon the porch.

"Why, Croyland," he exclaimed, "how are you?"

"How d'ye do?" returned Richard audaciously, taking the outstretched hand and shaking it cordially. "By Jove, old chap, I'm glad to see you!"

Sir Rodney stared at this strange young man before him, gasped and took a backward step; then he jerked his hand from the other's grasp and turned to Mr. Renwyck.



"This isn't the Earl of Croyland, Mr. Renwyck."

"Er—bless my soul," he spluttered, "is this the—eh?"

"The Earl of Croyland, of course," answered Mr. Renwyck, striving to control his growing impatience at all these interruptions.

"Of course," said Richard solemnly. "Didn't you just recognise me yourself?"

"Fellow! Chap! This isn't the Earl of Croyland, Mr. Renwyck. He's an impostor, sir. You are being grossly deceived."

If a lyddite shell had been exploded on the lawn of Restmore it could not have created a more profound sensation. There were several startling exclamations, short and sharp, then a sudden silence, which finally the farmer broke.

"Dog my cats!" he roared exultantly. "I knowed he was tryin' to woozle us!"

"Come into the house," said Mr. Renwyck sternly, "all of you. We'll sift this matter to the bottom."

The assemblage which gathered in the large wide hall was indeed a mixed collection. Besides the haughty Miss Schermerly and the dismal Mr. Van der Awe, there were one wondering English gentleman, two detectives, a constable, several more or less terrified servants, a farmer, an automobile agent, a lawyer, a financier and a scapegoat. This is not counting Mrs. Renwyck, who found herself in a frightened state of agitation which Miss Schermerly could not soothe, nor Miss Chittendon, who was worse off; nor Miss Renwyck, nor Miss Sempton, who was displaying her "ripping" figure from a point of vantage on the stairs between the other two.

"Now," said Mr. Renwyck, facing the scapegoat in the center of the hall—"now, sir, pray be good enough to give an account of yourself."

"What would you like to know first?" asked Richard in an exasperatingly level voice.

"Are you an Englishman?"

"An Englishman! Well, rather not," sneered the ambassador.

"No, thank God!" came the fervid answer. "An American and proud of it!"

ST. CATHARINES' VIEW OF PETERBOROUGH TRIP

Thursday's St. Catharines papers contain excellent reports of the military celebration at Peterborough on May 24th. The Star-Journal says in part,

Quite a number of St. Catharines people took the trip to Peterborough to attend the festivities. Among them were Messrs Chas Southcott, W Lowe, Mr and Mrs Fred Cavers, Mr Wm Lee and party. Among those who were at the station to welcome the 19th were the following former St. Catharines residents; Sergeant Stanley Ecclestone, 57th; Mr Fred Garden, Miss Dillon and Mr Ed Patterson.

A noticeable feature of the service in St Paul's was that the choir members male and female were garbed in black gowns, and that the ladies wore students' caps. The effect was excellent and many of the 19th members remarked that the innovation might with profit be introduced into St Catharines churches.

The special train which carried the 19th to Peterborough was composed of twelve Grand Trunk Pacific sleepers and baggage cars. The sleepers had never been used before and are perfectly adapted for military transport purposes. Sleeping berths are ranged one above another along each side and each car is equipped with a cooking range, oven, sink with tap, coal bunker, etc. Splendid time was made and only three or four stops were made on the trip.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the manner in which the officers non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th entertained their visitors, particularly the members of the 19th. Everything was done that good comradeship and good will could induce, and all ranks of the 19th will carry away the warmest feelings of friendship for their fellows of "The Rangers." The 57th band went to special pains to give the musicians of the 19th the time of their lives. Their mess rooms were open continuously, and were handsomely decorated. Refreshment tables were continuously in commission and one and all who hailed from St Catharines was laden with attentions. Bandmaster Gliddon and President Cronk of the 57th band the latter an old Kingston boy, were untiring in their attentions, as indeed were all the members of the band of the 57th.

The Review of Saturday contained excellent portraits of Lieut-Colonel Campbell and Chaplain Ker of the 19th and of the armories in this city. Peterborough's main streets were handsomely decorated, the parks were brilliantly illuminated at night and few houses or stores in the city were without their flags or bunting.

The men thoroughly enjoyed themselves and their memories of the Peterborough trip will not soon be forgotten. The 57th left nothing undone to give the visitors a happy time, and the citizens held out both hands to them. The Sergeants' mess of the 57th of which Sergeant Roberts is president and Acting Sergeant Major Edwards is secretary, took the non-coms into camp and exerted themselves to the utmost to make the visit one that will not soon be forgotten. The fine mess room in the new armories was open continuously and every sergeant of the 19 and the 58th was given a warm welcome and all that it was posible to do was done to render the stay in Peterborough "the best ever." The band of the 57th also kept open house to all visitors. The bandsmen of the Rangers are big hearted, whole souled fellows, and unrivalled entertainers. The welcome that the men of the 19th received was one that will never be forgotten but which will ever remain green in the memory of all who took part in it.

The band of the 57th is one of the finest in the service and Bandmaster Gliddon is one of the most accomplished musicians in Canada. The concert given by the band in the park on Monday evening was a very brilliant affair and reflected great credit on director and men.

The 19th entrained at 10.45 pm. and at 11 o'clock sharp left for home. The run was made in excellent time, and the regiment reached the city shortly after six o'clock.

ANOTHER REPORT

The Standard says in its report;

Members of the visiting regiments received the best kind of attention from the Peterborough Rangers. The officers and sergeants' messes kept open house and the 57th band received and gave to the bands of the 19th and 58th in its band room. The 19th took meals in the market hall where they were well served by Jacobi, an old friend. The quartermaster was very attentive to his duty there."

The band of the 57th regiment gave a concert in Victoria park in the evening and seventeen men of the 19th regiment band filled other engagements for their entertainers at two different points in the city. Before leaving Bandmaster Peel on behalf of the 19th band presented Bandmaster Gliddon and the 57th with copies of the scores of Masaniello, by Auber; Russian Airs, by Lotsky, and Nearer My God to Thee, by Bandmaster Robinson of the 13th regiment, Hamilton. These pieces were played by the 19th band at the Sunday evening concert and were much admired.

About ten o'clock there began the rush of preparation for the departure of the visiting regiments. The 58th entrained first and got away by the Canadian Pacific. The 19th was ready by 11 o'clock but its train did not pull out till about 20 minutes later. All were soon settled in the cars and sleep was wooed till the arrival of the train at home about six o'clock this morning. The regiment marched promptly to the armories and disbanded, its members well satisfied with the most enjoyable trip in its history.

Peterborough was neatly decorated, the council having made an appropriation for public display of flags and streamers. Private displays were numerous.

The most appropriate motto was in a window. It read; "These colors never run."

DAMAGE WAS NOT DONE WILFULLY

Magistrate Dumble Held That the Young Man Who Drove Through Railway Gates Was Not Negligent

James Wallace, the young man who was charged yesterday morning with wilfully driving a horse and buggy through the railway gates on Sunday morning, and whose case was enlarged so as to allow the defendant to secure witnesses to testify as to the conduct of the horse, was acquitted by Magistrate Dumble this morning.

Three witnesses gave evidence to the effect that the horse was a spirited one and had a habit of shieing at objects on the road.

Magistrate Dumble held that no evidence was shown that would justify him in thinking that the young man had wilfully driven through the gates. The evidence given in regard to the horse was sufficient to make him think that the horse was responsible for the accident, and he did not feel that the defendant should be made pay for the damages sustained to the gates.

YOUNG MAN WAS HEAVILY FINED

Assaulted Police Officer Who Attempted to Arrest Him for Disorderly Conduct — Was Fined $40.00

The young man who became disorderly on May 24th and assaulted P. C. Adams who attempted to arrest him, was fined $40 by Police Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in the interests of the defendant.

The defendant and his mother gave evidence pertaining to his manner of living and his habits.

Mr Gordon asked for the leniency of the court. The young man was uncontrollable after using liquor and did not realize the seriousness of the offence. He had come to the police station willingly and told all about the trouble. The young man had many good qualities and if given a chance would endeavor to be a better citizen. He was sorry for his past duct and would lead a better life in the future.

The Magistrate held that the offence was a serious one and the officers should be protected. It was up to the young man to take advantage of the lesson he had received, but he could not let the offence go unpunished so he imposed the above fine.

BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR MAN WAS OBSERVANT WHILE HERE

The Brantford Expositor, under the heading "Some Pointers about Peterborough," says:

There are no street pavements, but the roads are good, being of hard rolled broken stone.

There is a considerable similarity about the houses. Practically all are of common brick, either red or white. There is very little pressed brick.

Five new churches are in the course of erection, or were recently opened.

It is said Senator Cox owns two-thirds of the business section of the town.

The lift lock cost about half a million.

The new Normal school, erected in [illegible] this city, is a very handsome building. The citizens are proud of it.

There are parks galore. Some are handled by a committee of the City Council and others are administered by trustees under a deed of trust by which large tracts of land were set aside for park purposes.

Speaking of parks, Peterborough has been possibly the most fortunate city in Ontario in getting land. Mrs. Nicholls died without heirs, leaving a million dollars, much of it invested in real estate in various parts. She named certain trustees and provided that the land be set aside for park and playground purposes. As a result there is an abundance of recreation space.

The City Council is elected by general vote of the people. There has been an agitation for a return to the ward system, but without avail.

The newspapers of the city are enterprising and hustling.

Mayor Wood will be interested in knowing that the city has lots of fountains. And they were not all donated by private citizens, either.

Building is fairly brisk, although not noticeably so.

The stores are all very neat in their appearance. It is said that during the last year many of them have been improved in the appearance of their quarters.

On the commons with the new armories is a fine new Collegiate building, which has been built recently.

Sidewalks are laid on the outside of boulevards. This principle has been laid down and has been followed for some time, judging from the number of outside walks. Walks are not laid on the local improvement plan as in Brantford.

A company was kind enough a while ago to come along and take the street car service out of the hands of the city and operate it in proper style.

Electric light is used everywhere. The rates are cheap. There is no natural gas. Manufactured gas is said to cost $1.25 per thousand.

They say the dual telephone system is not as great a nuisance as some people claim. The statements of the Peterborough Times on telephone questions are not taken seriously in the town.

The cemetery is on the river front, and is two-thirds surrounded by water.

The Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. have fine buildings, well located and splendidly conducted.

Most of the houses have more land space than in Brantford.

The Canadian General Electric Co., a new industrial plum of the city, employs a thousand men.

The girls say there are five girls to every boy.

The Salvation Army band gives concerts in the park.

All of the civic buildings are substantial and creditable to the city.

Many of the workingmen own their homes, as in this city.

There is no particular residential section. The good houses are scattered throughout the city.

On the outskirts large tracts of land have been purchased by syndicates and are being held for sale as building lots for finer classes of residences. In order to purchase certain stipulations must be made as to the character of the house to be erected.

There is a splendid line of factories, including some large ones, and many of the small but growing class.

Peterborough is undoubtedly a very picturesque city, with fine parks, pretty houses and scenic hills and valleys.

Peterborough also has a Water Commission and municipal ownership.

OUTING OF ORANGEMEN WAS SUDDENLY TERMINATED

A large number of the visiting Orangemen were the guests of Peterborough County Black Chapter for a trip planned over the liftlock on the steamer "Otonabee." An unfortunate accident to one of the air chambers of the lock marred the pleasure of the outing and the lock refused to work.

The accident occurred when the boat was near the top of the lock and the passengers had to get down over the trestle work and down the steps. This is the first time the lock has failed to work since it was opened and it is usually in splendid order.

The failure of the Ottawa Government to supply a system of lighting at the lock for night use has resulted in a failure of the lock that will advertise itself from Canso Bay to Puget Sound. A more unfortunate affair could not have well occurred. It has always been alleged by some critics that the lift lock was only an expensive toy, and this mishap will give food for further criticism of the same sort. It is said that proper lighting would have obviated the whole unseemly difficulty. In the meantime, what can be said?

MANUAL TRAINING, DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND ART EXHIBIT

The parents and friends of the students of our city are again reminded of, and invited to visit, the exhibit to-morrow (Friday) afternoon and evening in the old Collegiate building.

There will be classes of Public school and Collegiate Institute students at work in the Manual training and Domestic Science departments, and exhibits of the year's work in drawing from both the Collegiate Institute and the Public schools.

Come and see what the students are doing in these branches of study.

PROFESSOR IS ENDORSED; IS INNOCENT OF HERESY

Rev. Elmore Harris' Charge Against Prof. Matthews Falls Flat—Senate Decides That McMaster Will Stand for Freedom in Scriptural Exposition—Better Work Troublesome Passages Out in Class.

Toronto, May 27.—After a session lasting for six and a half hours the Senate of McMaster University last night found Prof. I. G. Matthews, who occupies the chair of Old Testament exegesis in the college, not guilty of the charges of heretical teaching brought against him by Rev. Elmore Harris at the senate meeting on May 11.

The finding of the Senate not only exonerates Prof. Matthews, but also outlines the general attitude towards critical enquiry in the realms of theology. "McMaster University," it states plainly, "stands for freedom, for progress, for investigation. It must welcome truth from whatever quarter and never be guilty of binding the spirit of free enquiry."

The senate met at 3 p.m. and continued in session until 6.30, when an adjournment was made till 8 o'clock. It was 11 o'clock before their deliberations were brought to a close, when the chancellor handed out the following authorized statement to the press:

The senate, after careful consideration, finds the charges against the teaching of Prof. Matthews not proved.

The senate is assured that Prof. Matthews is regarded by his students as a strong and inspiring teacher, that he is a man of humble and devout spirit, sound on all the fundamentals of the Baptist faith, and that he is highly respected as a Christian and a gentleman by all those who know him best. In matters of Biblical criticism he is conservative; though accepting many of the results of modern critical scholarship, he holds firmly to the inspiration and supernatural character of the Old and New Testaments, accepting the definition of inspiration given by Dr. A. H. Strong in his work on Systematic Theology as essentially representing his own view: "Inspiration is that influence of the Spirit of God upon the minds of the Scripture writers, which made their writings the record of a progressive divine revelation, sufficient, when taken together and interpreted by the same Spirit who inspired them, to lead every honest enquirer to Christ and to salvation.

The chair of Old Testament exegesis is, in the opinion of the senate, one of the most difficult in the whole university to fill, because of the critical problems that are necessarily raised in dealing with the religion and literature of the Semitic peoples. There are different ways of facing these problems. One method is to ignore them altogether; another is to recognize them, but to seek to deal with each individually as it arises in the mind of the student, and a third is to state the problems frankly, face them, and then seek to find some solution that will stand the severest strain that may be put upon it. Prof. Matthews adopts the last of these methods, believing that it is better for the students to face the problems in the privacy of the classroom, under the sympathetic guidance of their teacher, than to meet and solve them alone and unaided, as they are bound to do in after years in the course of their ministry. And in this Prof. Matthews has the endorsation of the Senate.

McMaster University stands for freedom, for progress, for investigation. It must welcome truth from whatever quarter and never be guilty of binding the spirit of free enquiry. As a Christian school of learning under Baptist auspices, it stands for the fullest and freest investigation, not only in the scientific realm, but also in the realm of Biblical scholarship. Holding fast their historic position on the personal freedom and responsibility of the individual, refusing to bind or to be bound by any human creed, rejecting the authority of tradition and taking their stand on the Word of God alone as the supreme and all-sufficient rule of faith and practice, the Baptists have ever been ready to accord to all students of the sacred Scriptures the largest possible measure of freedom consistent with loyalty to the fundamentals of the Christian faith.

STEEL PLANT FOR THE SOO

Algoma Company Plans Huge Works to be Built at Once

Pittsburg, Pa., May 28.—Another move toward centering the iron and steel industry of the United States on the borders of the Great Lakes was made yesterday, when a contract was closed by the Algoma Steel Co. for $500,000 worth of heavy steel machinery to be delivered at Sault Ste. Marie, Canada, as quickly as possible. It is the intention of the Philadelphians and the Londoners back of this plant to have two immense steel mills in Canada turning out bars and other steel products by Nov. 1 next. The nature of the machinery ordered shows that the mills to be erected will be rivals worthy of even the biggest and best Pittsburg mills. The mills will be by far the largest in Canada.

After six years' study those concerned in this project at the head of the Great Lakes have decided that it would be cheaper to carry the coal to the iron ore than bring the ores to the coal, as has been the custom for years. It is the intention to go after the Canadian trade and the trade of the Northwest States, a specialty being made of the steel entering into the making of farming machinery.

Announcement of placing this order caused some interest in Pittsburg last night as Pittsburg steel barons have looked on this northwest territory as their own, even though the Algoma concern has had a rail mill there and ore mines for some time. There is little doubt now that the most formidable rival the Pittsburg steel mills have encountered in years in the northwest is now securing a better hold, as local concerns will hardly be able to compete with a freight of over 1,500 miles added to their cost of manufacture at Pittsburg.

LATEST NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Murderer to Distribute Charity.

London, May 28.—The Times' Constantinople correspondent says that much apprehension has been caused among the Young Turks and Armenians by the news that the new Vali of Adana, who is described as a somewhat fanatical Kurd, has entrusted the important task of the distribution of the Government relief fund to Bagdadi, a Turkish land owner, who was the first to lead a band of armed men into the bazaar at Adana and begin the slaughter of Armenians.

Preston's Triumphal Progress.

London, May 28.—According to Japanese newspapers W. T. R. Preston is getting receptions and banquets everywhere, with arches, flags and banners in evidence. The reporters of all the principal newspapers are in the train of the procession, and Mr. Preston's speeches are telegraphed all over Japan for publication.

Extradited to Russia.

Ottawa, May 28.—Jan Buchgolz was yesterday before Judge McTavish on application of the Russian Government for extradition. He is charged with conspiracy to murder one of his neighbors in a northern province of his home land. On the sworn depositions of the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs being presented the application was granted and a Dominion police officer will take him to Russia. Buchgolz was arrested at Winnipeg.

Street Preacher Goes to Jail.

Vancouver, B.C., May 28.—A. S. Veale, a street preacher, took a 30 days' sentence yesterday morning in the Police Court rather than pay a $35 fine. When asked by the magistrate if he wished to be sworn to give his statement of incidents which led up to his arrest, he declined with the declaration that the Bible forbids men to swear.

PURITY WARE LIMITED

We, the undersigned, Aldermen of Peterborough, do hereby commend for the approval of the citizens the by-law now before the people, to grant aid to the Purity Ware, Limited.

1. It is proposed to give said Company ten acres of land costing $3,000 on their erection of buildings and completing and equipping the shops at a cost of about $150,000 to $200,000, and on their undertaking to employ not less than 100 hands the first year.

2. To lend said Company $50,000 at 4% interest, to be repaid to the city in 10 equal annual payments.

3. The repayment to be secured by mortgage on the land, buildings and fixed machinery.

4. The people who are putting up the most of the capital are a well known manufacturing firm of New York, who have been 50 years in business and are rated very high—this is a guarantee for business methods and success. Every precaution is being taken to secure the repayment of the loan.

5. If we let this opportunity pass it will be hopeless to attempt to build up the city by new manufactories, as this promises to be a large concern and already other municipalities are after it.

6. The factory will be within city limits and is well located for the purpose. We must take factories subject to the proprietors' selections, they must be somewhere, and the proprietors place them to suit their requirements—the general benefit to the city is the same.

CELEBRATED HER 95TH BIRTHDAY WEDNESDAY

A short time ago reference was made in the Review to the fact that Peterborough had a centenerian resident in the person of Mr. Jos. Mantell, but it was probably not generally known at the time that there was another in the city who is fast approaching the century mark. She is Mrs. Caroline Wright, widow of the late Albert Wright, and formerly resident at Downer's Corners.

Yesterday Mrs. Wright celebrated her 95th birthday, and is by no means feeble physically and mentally, as her advanced age would indicate. While all the years she has lived have necessarily had their effect on her, Mrs. Wright has retined her faculties to a remarkable degree, and her mind was clear and alert as it was in middle life, and she has a splendid memory, not only for things of some time ago, but also for happenings of most recent occurrence.

Mrs. Wright, whose maiden name was Caroline McCamus, was born in the village of Sherlock, County Cavan, Ireland, which is also the birthplace of her late husband. She has resided in Canada since 1857, and for a number of years lived near Bailieboro with her brother the late John McCamus. She has been in Peterborough for a number of years.

She is an aunt by marriage of Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, of Boston, and also a distant relative of Mr. Robt. Fair, of this city. Rev. John McCamus, of Odessa, and Rev. David McCamus, of St. Mary's, are nephews of the lady.

Mrs. Wright is very fond of reading and takes much pleasure in perusing the news columns of the local papers.

H. P. Roy Sentenced to Five Years for Falsifying Bank Returns.

Special to the Review

St. John's, Que., May 28—Mr. H P. Roy, late president of the defunct Banque De St. Jean, found guilty yesterday of making false returns regarding the bank affairs, after addressing the court for an hour and a half in his own defence, was sentenced this morning to five years in the penitentiary, the maximum term.

Postal Clerk Charged.

Ottawa, May 28.—Another young man employed in the Ottawa postoffice was arrested last night for stealing a registered letter. The third offender to be caught is Claude Walters, aged 22, of respectable family. He was caught under the new scheme of screened watching. The others caught were given long prison terms.

A Double Bereavement.

Kingston, May 28.—John D. Renton of the railway mail service, Winnipeg, came here to bury his mother. He reached Winnipeg yesterday only to learn that his only son Frank, aged 18, had, in his absence sickened and died. Deceased was a second year student in Manitoba College.

To Arbitrate a Civic Dispute.

Ottawa, May 28.—K. W. McKay, editor of Municipal World, St. Thomas, has been appointed by the City of Ottawa as referee to settle a dispute between the city auditor and city treasurer over the effect of recent civic legislation and the general system of civic finance.

HON. P. H. ROY IS GUILTY; FALSIFIED BANK STATEMENTS

Former Head of Defunct Banque St. Jean is Found Guilty After Twenty Minutes Deliberation by Jury—Sentence is Postponed Pending Motion for Reserve Case—Judge Charges Jury Against Prisoner.

Montreal, May 28.—Hon. P. H. Roy was yesterday afternoon found guilty by a jury composed of French-Canadian farmers of the better class of having sent false statements to the Finance Minister concerning the Bank of St. John, of which he was president and general manager, resulting in the fall of that institution and utter ruin to very many people in the district.

Justice Demers delivered a dispassionate charge, all the inference being against the accused. His honor told the jury they must do their whole duty irrespective of social considerations, and at the end of twenty minutes, the twelve men came into court and said they found the accused guilty. Mr. Roy appeared dazed and was evidently deserted by every one except his son-in-law, Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., and his son, L. P. Roy, a clever student at St. Mary's College, both of whom were in court. Both went over and shook the unfortunate man's hand at the end of the trial.

Mr. Girard, counsel for defence, asked for delay as he intended to move for a reserve case and the court adjourned till to-day.

The maximum term is five years. When the late W. H. Weir, president of the ill-fated Ville Marie Bank was found guilty of about the same offence, he was given 23 months.

The judge in discharging the members of the jury, intimated to them that they had done their duty to society.

SAFE BLOW OPEN AT NORTH BAY

North Bay, Ont., May 28.—The postoffice at Cache Bay was burglarized Wednesday night, the safe being blown open and $20 in cash and stamps stolen. Money order forms were not molested. The job was evidently the work of expert cracksmen, who have been working along the C.P.R. line for some time.

About two weeks ago the general store of Michaud & Levesque, at Verner, was broken into and considerable money and goods stolen. This was followed in a few days by a raid on several places at Cache Bay.

Two suspicious-looking characters were seen boarding early yesterday morning the eastbound express and are being looked for by the North Bay police.

PRESIDEN TAFT IS PROGRESSIVE

New York, May 28.—"President Taft will voice into our laws what Roosevelt voiced into the nation's heart. Those, therefore, who are so mistaken as to suppose that President Roosevelt's policies and moral principles may become a dead letter in this administration will be undeceived. They will discover that President Taft is not a reactionary, but progressive."

This prediction was made by Henry Clews, the New York banker, last night in an address at the service dedication of the Roosevelt memorial window of the Metropolitan Temple, in this city. The service began last Sunday and has been continued throughout the week, with different prominent speakers each night.

OFFICERS OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY

Ottawa, May 28.—The Royal Society closed its sessions here last night with a dinner, at which were the delegates from associated societies. The officers elected yesterday were:

President, Rev. Dr. George Bryce, Winnipeg; vice-president, Rev. Dr. R. Ramsay Wright, Toronto; hon. secretary, Dr. W. D. Lesueur, Ottawa; hon. treasurer, Lawrence M. Lambe, Ottawa.

The society decided to send a memorial to the Dominion and Provincial Governments notifying them that cities and towns are allowed to dump their sewage and refuse into rivers and streams, and pointing out the danger thereby to public health.

Unique Masonic.

Washington, May 28.—President Taft was informed yesterday that the English grand lodge of Masons had granted a dispensation most unusual in the history of masonry for the organization of a blue lodge of masons at London to be composed entirely of Americans.

The dispensation was granted by the Duke of Connaught, grand master of the Grand Lodge of England. The duke and President Taft will be made the first honorary members of the lodge, which will be instituted June 3.

GENTILES MOBBED

Mormons in Alberta Attack and Maltreat Three Persons Near Lethbridge.

Lethbridge, Alta., May 28.—A crowd of thirty or forty Mormons on Wednesday mobbed, threatened to hang, and severely handled two men and a woman at Magrath, a Mormon settlement about 22 miles southeast of here. The matter arose from the marriage a year or more ago of a Mormon girl to a "Gentile," as the Mormons call all non-members of their church.

H. Barclay and his wife, the couple concerned, after their marriage lived in Calgary. Mrs. Barclay about five months ago returned to her mother's home at Magrath and intended to return to her own home in the course of a week or two. Once back in Magrath, however, her parents and the church determined to keep her and in spite of her husband's entreaties she refused to return to him. Barclay, accompanied by his sister of this city, and a friend named Harrison, went to Magrath to urge his wife once again to come back to him. She refused. He finally declared that he would have his child, which he did. A mob got together and Barclay was shackled by a man who called himself "sheriff." He, his sister, and Harrison were hauled before a Mormon magistrate who gave orders that the child was to be returned to its mother and that the three "Gentiles" leave the place on the first train. The three were taken, handcuffed, to the depot by the sheriff who meanwhile had sworn in deputy "sheriffs." They had been in the waiting-room some time when the mob appeared.

"We will hang you," called out some of the mob. "Get a rope." The mob rushed the three "Gentiles," knocked them down, kicked and beat them, "soaked" them with eggs and threw Harrison through a window. The top of one of his fingers was severed.

Ottawa, May 28.—Hon. A. B. Aylesworth and J. S. Ewart, K.C., left yesterday for England, where they will prepare, in conjunction with the Newfoundland representative and Sir Robert Finlay, the case to be presented to The Hague tribunal regarding the fisheries dispute with the United States.

Hon. Charles Murphy will act as Minister of Justice in the absence of Mr. Aylesworth, who is not expected to return to Canada until late autumn. He will undergo further aural treatment at Vienna.

IMMENSE DRY-DOCK MAY BE BUILT AT MONTREAL

English Company Has Had Experts at Work, Says Chairman Stephens of Harbor Board, and Will Put in a Dock at a Cost of $2,500,000—Government Will Secure Site at Longue Point and Lease It.

Montreal, May 28.—A 25,000-ton floating drydock for the port of Montreal in two years was the important announcement made yesterday by Major Stephens, chairman of the harbor board. An English company will build the dock, and other commercial enterprises, at an expenditure of $2,500,000, provided the Government will create a good site for the floating dock near Longue Point. This the Government will do at a cost in two years of $1,500,000, and rent the site to the company for a term of years.

Negotiations were opened up, and carried on continuously from October to May, with various large shipbuilding establishments. This has resulted in a business proposition being made whereby drydock facilities will be provided in conjunction with large industrial developments. The firm that has made the proposition is one of the largest and strongest in England.

Before submitting any proposal they sent a commission of six expert engineers, master mechanics and shipbuilders to Canada, and investigated the opportunities for the investment of capital, and studied the navigation conditions of the River St. Lawrence from Montreal to Rimouski.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, MAY 28, 1909.

THE SENTINEL AND PATRIOTISM

The following editorial of the Sentinel the chief organ of the Orangemen of Canada, expresses the opinion that Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster acquiesced in a certain recent naval resolution in order to please the French-Canadians. As a matter of fact Hansard will show that the resolution which they acquiesced in was one of a general character approving the principle of helping the Mother Country. So far, we are sure, the Sentinel would itself, have gone even if its action did "meet the views of the French-Canadian element." But straightway when the manner of carrying out that desire to help came up for discussion the Liberals stood for an independent Canadian navy while the Conservatives asked for a unit in an Imperial navy. It was on this "imperial" point that the two policies differed and while we have, of course no brief for the Conservative party, beyond our little share in it, we maintain that the Conservative policy is the right one and deserving of the Sentinel's support, not censure. Reverting to the general question of patriotism again which started the discussion, we can only say in further reply to the Sentinel that the evidence of Canadian patriotic energy is like the monument of Wren, all about us. That it is mixed with an alloy of crookedness, narrowness and selfishness we do not deny but the Conservative party is not open to the charge of sectionalism or of entire lack of patriotism, on that account. Its patriotism however, is both Canadian and Imperial not merely Canadian and partisan. The article referred to is as follows:

"The Sentinel is criticized adversely by the Peterborough Review for a recent article in which we stated that the desire of both parties was simply to gain power. The Review says that it is a laudable ambition for politicians to seek power and continues; "To criticise our representatives as if in their anxiety "they grasped at and longed for power, is to say, that they all lack patriotism and all that fine sense of love of country, which, as a matter of fact, they have done so much to build up."

We take issue with The Review on this very point. We venture to say that with the majority of the members of the House of Commons the chief purpose is to build up the party instead of the country. Party advantage is more important in their eyes than adherence to sound principles which have been advocated for years. If we were disposed to go over the history of the Liberal party we could prove that it has abandoned the policy which it advocated in the Opposition and has thrown aside those professions of zeal for the public welfare which were made in Opposition.

But The Review, we presume, replies to The Sentinel on behalf of the Conservative party. In dealing with the present Opposition is it not apparent from recent events that Mr. Borden and his followers are actuated chiefly by a desire to put their opponents in a different position, if thereby a political advantage can be secured, regardless of the results of their actions? We find this in the course taken by the Conservative Opposition in connection with the proposal to show Canada's loyalty to the Mother Country in contributing to the naval strength of the Empire. Mr. Borden did not follow the sentiment of his party in the country when he acquiesced in the resolution presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In order to secure harmony, and make the resolution unanimous, Mr. Borden and his followers surrendered their own opinions and violated the sentiments of the party which they represented in the country to meet the views of the French-Canadian element.

If proof is asked for our statement we point to the attitude of Sir James Whitney, Mr Roblin and Mr. McBride the Premiers respectively of Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia. All of these leaders of Conservative opinion were pronouncedly in favor of a substantial contribution after the manner adopted by New Zealand. They represent the true sentiment of the Conservative party in Canada, as well as the English speaking Liberals.

Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster knew that in falling in line with Sir Wilfrid Laurier they were offending their own followers. In fact just before the prorogation of the House, Mr. Foster attempted to reintroduce the question and make some party capital. He failed because the time to raise objections to the Government's resolution was when it was introduced, not after it had been accepted by those who were at heart opposed to it. This instance we submit, supplies ample and sufficient proof for any statement that has appeared in The Sentinel to the effect that the desire of both parties is to gain power regardless of the necessity of sacrificing their principles to do so."

In reply to the general tenor of this editorial we may say "Be just and fear not." Nothing else than a desire to be just can endure because nothing else is really strong. There is need of a greater world view on all our parts a more comprehensive understanding of the mental development of the peoples of the whole world. Whereas two centuries ago the world was a congeries of antagonistic atoms, today it is approaching a system of international understanding that makes the true patriot no longer a fierce watchdog of his own and a hater of all other homes but a cosmopolitan who takes a brotherly interest in all mankind. In this way the world moves forward as never before and it is not "patriotism" in any sense to advocate sectional hostility and internecine strife. We must not, we submit, forget that faith in humanity is an absolutely necessary condition of advancing civilisation. Without that faith we must eventually revert to the frenzy of the savage. And while it is by ebb as well as flow that the tide of time progresses, the gain exceeds the loss. We must not lose faith. We must trust "our brethren" for we may rest assured that "the people" will have liberty whether they be French, German, Italian or anything else. To refuse to make common cause, to decline to proceed in our intercourse with them, with the idea that they are really our friends or would be if they knew more, is a mistake. No system of philosophy or religion supposes the final triumph of evil. Why should we let it be our nightmare? To do so is weak and not only weak but unnecessary. The world is strong. It is no longer possible to burn for opinion's sake. The cry of distress does not fall on deaf ears simply because they are not of the same race. Again we put in our little word on behalf of greater faith for the development of mutual faith is our greatest need.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The age of the earth is now given at 280,000,000 years, which is probably greater than that of any of its inhabitants.

King Edward's winning of the Derby adds the one item of glory to that event, necessary to it in the eyes of every true Britisher.

The Australian cricket team now playing in England is a powerful aggregation. Their batting is "terrific." Ransford and Bardsley two left-handers are "phenoms."

American tariff revision has meant by the almost unanimous vote of both Democrats and Republicans that the present high tariff shall remain. Now let the Globe cut loose and anathematise both parties as a lot of blockheads, knownothings and everything except poverty-stricken idiots.

It is currently reported, if not believed, that the mishap to the operating machinery of the lift lock while the "Otonabee" laden with Orange Grand Lodge officers, was high up in the air, was directly due to a ban put upon the occasion by St. Peter, "by request."

A sensation has been caused in Leigh, Lancashire by the return home of John Marsden, a collier, who was supposed to have been found drowned in the river Irwell at Salford on Easter Sunday. The body was identified by a daughter and cousin as that of the deceased, and was buried in that belief at Leigh cemetery. Marsden had been searching for work.

Many a man has been hanged on just such evidence.

The question has been placed before the congregation of the Inquisition in Rome as to whether Catholics who have contracted marriage with non-Catholics with an heretical minister and who have either expressly agreed to have their children brought up non-Catholics, or who have actually so brought them up, and who have finally died without giving any sign of repentance, can be given Catholic funeral and burial. The congregation has decided that they may not be buried as Catholics. — The Catholic Register.

Archbishop Bruchesi, in the course of a pastoral charge delivered at Longueuil on Sunday, referred to the growth of several Masonic lodges in the province. He regretted to say there were French-Canadians who were members, and that recruiting was going on strenuously. The Archbishop reminded his hearers that the members of such lodges, which were mostly affiliated with the Grand Orient of France, were not in communion with the Catholic Church at all, and must not deceive themselves on this point. Reference was likewise made to the Knights of Pythias and the Oddfellows as banned to Catholics. The Archbishop, referring to Sunday's service, said he noticed on his visit a falling off from the former observance of the Lord's Day, it being now more and more a man's day for pleasure and amusement.

Long have these rumors of rampant Masonry in Quebec been heard. The situation is indeed serious.—The Catholic Register.

The Young Turks matured their plots of revolt in Paris, the Hindu reformers conspired against British rule in London itself, because they were not safe in their own country, so likewise those Chinese leaders who are conspiring against the tyranny of the present regime at Peking fight shy of their own Flowery Land and go abroad. Most of them, according to the Nichi Nichi (Tokyo), make their headquarters in San Francisco and Vancouver, B.C. The figures given by this Japanese organ include not only men of Chinese nationality, but many foreigners engaged in the propaganda of Chinese rebellion. While everything seems to be quiet in China, the Government, we are told, is really sitting on a volcano, which may at any moment burst out into a terrible explosion, as will probably be the case when the people have become thoroughly indoctrinated with the revolutionary literature and revolutionary addresses which are all the while being circulated among them from beyond the seas.

Fishing Schooner Ashore.

North Sydney, N.S., May 28.—The French fishing schooner P. F. 42, was driven ashore at White Point in the gale which has just swept the coast, and is a total loss. The captain and crew remained on board until their lives were endangered, when they launched the dories and started for the shore. Two of the dories were upset in the heavy seas and only the prompt action of the fisherfolk saved them from being dashed to death on the rocks.

Finds "Dead Son."

Kingston, May 28.—George Robinson, Gananoque, who had a son drowned several weeks ago, got word Wednesday night that another son had perished at Ivy Lea, in the St. Lawrence. With an undertaker he started for the place. At Lansdowne he found his son alive and well. The telephone message had been misunderstood.

Chinamen Buying Lots.

Prince Rupert, B.C., May 28.—Townsite sales so far have been mostly put through by local men, but Thersch Bros. of Vienna, Austria, are buyers to a very large extent of business property. The feature yesterday has been the purchase by Chinamen of a number of lots in the eastern residential section.

New Anglican College.

Vancouver, B.C., May 28.—An educational institution to be known as Bishop Latimer College, will be opened in Vancouver by the evangelical branch of the Anglican Church. Bishop Stringer of the Yukon is heartily in favor of the scheme, but Bishop Perry of Victoria is opposing it.

Professor May Go to China.

Washington, May 28.—The latest name under consideration as a possible successor to Mr. Rockhill as United States Minister to China is that of Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks of Cornell University.

French Marine Strike.

Paris, May 28.—The strike of the sailors, stokers and stewards of the merchant marine is extending. The men demand a weekly day of rest and equalization of pay on passenger and freight boats.

Found Drowned.

Ottawa, May 28.—George Purcell, an elevator man in the Government employ, missing since Saturday last, was found drowned in the canal basin yesterday morning. He had been drinking.

Marking the Boundary.

Ottawa, May 27.—W. F. King, Canada's representative in the international boundaries commission, left yesterday for New Brunswick. Work is to be started immediately on the demarcation of the boundary at the St. Croix river and in Passamaquoddy Bay.

He Fell Among Thieves.

Detroit, Mich., May 27.—Earl Young, a youth, from Leamington, Ont., is short $880 as the result of too much confidence in three pool sharks. Young became of age two days ago, and received $800 as his share of his deceased father's estate.

Yachtmen See Premier.

Ottawa, May 27.—Offering on behalf of the club to form a unit in any naval militia that may be established, a deputation from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, saw Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Fred. Borden and Hon. L. P. Brodeur yesterday.

DEPARTURE FROM MILLBROOK IS REGRETTED

Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., moved his family to Peterborough this week, where of late the greater part of his time has been spent, and where in future they will reside. He has rented the house lately occupied by Mr. Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank. Although Mr. Ruddy is still to be a citizen of Millbrook, since he retains his office here and will be here every Monday to look after the interests of his clients, we need not say that there is a general regret that he and Mrs. Ruddy have taken up their abode in the city. For twenty years Mr. Ruddy has lived amongst us, taking a deep interest in the affairs of the village and township, and as a man highly esteemed. The best wishes of everyone will go with our departing friends, knowing as we do that the wider field opened up for Mr. Ruddy will give him what his abilities and application deserve, a greater influence than is possible here.—Millbrook Reporter.

RECKLESS USE OF FIRE-ARMS

Ball Passed Within Foot of Baby's Head in Millbrook Home

Millbrook, May 27.—Someone more foolhardy than wise fired a rifle on Friday morning last about 9 a.m. from the village or station way, and the ball went through the front door of Mr. Nash's house down at the Octogon Mills, and passed within a foot of the baby's head and struck the wall, then fell on the table. This is a terrible reckless use of firearms, and quite contrary to by-law, and if it could be known who did it prosecution would follow. Mr. Nash says that he is quite ready to meet the shooter with firearms if he wants a fair trial at shooting, but not with the baby as target.

LINDSAY'S RATE TO BE 26 MILLS

Lindsay, May 26.—It is anticipated that Lindsay's tax rate for 1909 will be 27 mills one mill less than the rate for 1908.

The town council has not as yet discussed that matter in regular session, but it is understood that the rate will be 27 mills.

For some years this town has had the unenviable notoriety of having one of the highest tax rates of any town in the province but this rate is gradually increasing.

On property valued at $600 the tax rate for the present year will probably be about $16 20. Last year the taxes on the same property was $16 80.

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

VIII.—Corn Growing

By C. V. GREGORY,

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

ONE of the most important factors in crop production is the selection of seed. This is important not only in producing a large yield, but also in obtaining a product of the highest quality.

The use of the fanning mill as a means of sorting out the heaviest, plumpest grains was spoken of in the previous article. The importance of this means of seed selection cannot be too greatly emphasized.

One of the principal reasons for selecting the largest grains for seed is that they contain so much more food for the young plant. This enables it to make a strong, vigorous start. Such plants have more vitality, grow faster and produce larger yields than plants from shriveled seeds, which have a struggle for existence from the time they germinate. Another reason for selecting plump seed is that the resulting crop is likely to be of better quality and will thus bring a higher price when sold. The old law of "like produces like" applies to plants as well as to animals. One of the surest ways of bringing about improvement is by using parents of the desired type year after year.

Selecting seed according to size by screening out the small grains is not enough. Some of the largest grains are shriveled and light in weight. The only way to separate these is to use plenty of wind in the fanning mill so as to blow them over. Such grains are all right for feed, but are entirely out of place in the seed bin. This method of selection is especially important in the case of wheat, as it separates the hard from the soft grains to some extent, since the soft ones are lighter. Hardness is an important factor to look after, since a hard wheat is much more valuable for milling purposes, making a larger amount of high grade flour.

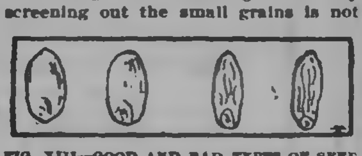

FIG. XIII—GOOD AND BAD TYPES OF SEED WHEAT.

[Note the shriveled, shrunken condition of the kernels to the right.]

If the most value is to be obtained from the selection of seed some definite plan of improvement must be followed. By a little care a variety of wheat or oats may be so bred up as to increase the yield from ten to twenty bushels per acre. The work is a small item as compared with the benefits.

In starting the work of breeding the variety which does best in your particular locality should be selected. Go into the field just before harvest time and select forty or fifty of the best heads. In doing this the size and plumpness of the grain and the length of the head should be considered. This latter point has a great deal to do with the yield, since a long head often contains twice as much grain as a shorter one. The character of the straw is also important. It should be straight and strong, with no tendency to rust, as a weak straw or one that is badly rusted cannot hold up a heavy head of grain. Another point to notice is the stooling—that is, the number of stalks that grow up from one seed.

When the required number of such heads have been found they should be put away in a dry place until spring, when they should be thrashed out separately and planted in a little plot in the garden. The seed from each head should be sown in a row by itself. The rows should be about four inches apart and the plants the same distance apart in the row.

As harvest time comes on a great difference in these rows will be noticed. Some will be badly affected with rust. Some will have weak straw and will go down badly. Some will have short heads containing but a few grains each. A few of the rows will contain plants and heads of the type you are looking for. Select the best heads from these rows to plant in next year's plot.

The second year, if the first year's selection was properly carried on, considerable improvement will be observed. This year the seed from each of the strongest rows should be saved in bulk after sorting out any heads that are not of the required type. The seed from each of these rows is to be planted in a little plot by itself the following spring.

Notes on these plots regarding the strength of straw, amount of stooling and resistance to rust should be carefully kept. The main point to be considered, however, is the yield. The grain from each of the plots should be weighed and the preference given to the heaviest yielders. Seed from five or six of the best producing plots may then be saved for larger plots the fourth year. The yield of these, together with the quality of grain and strength of straw, will determine which strain is to be selected for field use.

A factor which often cuts off as much as 10 per cent from the yield of small grain is smut. Unlike rust, the treatment of this disease comes more under the head of preparation of the seed than that of selection. It may be well, however, to give a brief outline of the methods of prevention here.

Smut is a fungous growth—that is, a low form of plant which lives on other plants. It usually attacks the heads of small grain, filling the place where the kernels should be with a black, worthless mass. The black dust of which this mass is made up is comprised largely of spores, which correspond to seeds of higher plants. These spores become scattered over the seed in thrashing and storing. In the spring, when the grain sprouts, the smut spore germinates also and sends a tiny thread up through the stem to the head, where it develops into the familiar smut ball. Often these smut balls are inside of a hull that appears perfectly sound from the outside, so that the damage from smut is much greater than would appear from simply glancing over the field.

Any method of treatment which will destroy the smut spores on the grain will prove effective, although the smut which is scattered in the field sometimes infects the plants the next year. When rotation is practiced, however, this is seldom the case, as the oat smut will not attack corn, nor will corn smut grow on oats.

The selection of seed corn is even more important than the selection of small grain, since so much less corn is required to plant an acre, thus permitting of much more careful choice. The most important point to be considered in the selection of seed ears is maturity. An ear that is not entirely mature will be light, the kernels will be loose on the cob and have a dull, chaffy appearance, and the germs will be shrunken and the back of the kernels wrinkled.

Such corn should not be selected for seed because the amount of food material stored in the kernel is too small to give the young sprout much of a start. The germ is also likely to be weak from being frozen while still in the immature, watery condition. The fact that an ear is not entirely ripe indicates, too, that it belongs to a variety just a little late for the locality.

Ears that are not entirely ripe are not nearly so valuable for seed as riper, sounder ones, even if the latter are not so large. By selecting only ears of this early maturing type a strain of corn can soon be developed which can be depended upon to ripen in the particular locality in which it is grown.

Since the size of the crop depends to a considerable extent on the size of the ear the seed ears selected should be as large as is consistent with early maturity. Mere size of ear is not enough, however. The ears should be well proportioned and not too big around for their length, since ears of this sort are late in maturing and slow to dry out. The size of an ear should be made up of corn instead of cob. This means deep kernels and a relatively small cob.

There must also be the largest possible amount of corn in proportion to the cob. To secure this the ear should be well filled out at butt and tip and fairly uniform in size from end to end. The kernels should be so firm on the ear that it cannot be twisted in the hands. There should be no spaces between the kernels next to the cob, nor should the spaces between the tops of the kernels be too great. They should not be packed together too tightly at this latter point, however, as this hinders rapid drying out. The rows should be straight and the kernels of uniform size.

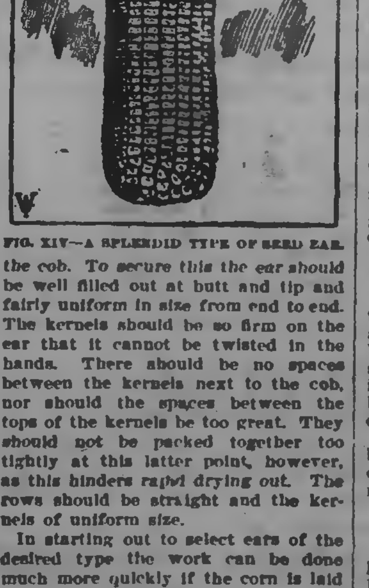

FIG. XIV—A SPLENDID TYPE OF SEED EAR.

In starting out to select ears of the desired type the work can be done much more quickly if the corn is laid out on a table or bench. Then by taking an ear for a sample which most nearly represents your ideal you can go over the entire lot and quickly pick out the ears that are most like it. The point of selecting ears of a uniform type is an important one, as only in this way can the corn grower hope to make improvement from year to year. The methods of breeding corn to secure increased yield will be taken up in detail in the next article.

AFTERNOON SESSION

"A move worthy of a Jesuit" was the manner in which the Correspondence Committee of the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America characterized the amendment of the land laws of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with regard to the allocation of the proceeds of the sales of school lands. The committee endorsed the attitude taken by the Grand Master, Dr T. S Sproule, MP, in his address with regard to the legislation, and commended the action of the Ontario Government in insisting on the withdrawal of the Racine and McGarry bills at the last session of the Legislature.

At yesterday's session of the Grand Lodge it was decided that a monster petition should be promoted against the proposed amendment of the coronation oath. The petition will not be confined to members of the Orange Order but copies of it will be sent broadcast through the country and the various Orange lodges will be requested to assist in obtaining the signatures of as many Protestants as possible.

One item of business transacted by the Grand Lodge yesterday which is of particular interest to members of the order was the decision to restore the blue and purple degrees to the ritual. At a comparatively small meeting held in Vancouver in 1907 it was decided that these degrees should be dropped. Since that action was taken however there has been constant agitation for their restoration and this was accomplished yesterday by a majority vote of nearly three-quarters of the delegates.

At the afternoon session a resolution was passed protesting against an article on the Orange Order appearing in the London Times' edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica. The various delegates who entered into the discussion of the matter waxed warm in their expression of disapproval. The article was described as a grotesque misrepresentation of the order. It was also claimed that its statements were almost in identical terms with a ludicrous description which has been common among the Roman Catholic community for a century, and that the author had apparently gone to a Roman Catholic source for his information.

Regret was also expressed that a newspaper of the standing of the London Times should have lent itself to such a misrepresentation, and a special committee was appointed to draw up a resolution of protest to be forwarded to the publishers.

After a discussion that waxed warm and kept the Grand Master's gavel going frequently, the proposal that an Orange platform should be drawn up for submission to political candidates was snowed under.

Deputy Grand Master Lieut.-Col. J. H. Scott, moved that a committee consisting of the Grand Master, himself; Controller Hocken, Toronto; J. Whateley, Grand Organizer of British Columbia; W. G. Weblock, Grand Master, Alberta, and J. H. Delamere, Supreme Grand Auditor, should be appointed to draw up the platform for consideration at the next meeting of the Grand Lodge.

Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., opposed the proposal strenuously. Political candidates should be dealt with, he contended, on their record. Personally, he objected to having any platform thrust upon him.

A delegate pointed out that in the case of Col. Hughes and Dr. Sproule they had established records, but it was desirable to bind down new men to some principles.

The discussion wandered somewhat from the point, and a delegate attacked the Ontario Government for allowing too many Roman Catholics to hold office in one department. In the department referred to nearly every employee was a Roman Catholic, while there should only be one to each seven Protestants.

The Grand Master advised the Grand Lodge to reject the motion. It would be impossible to frame a platform which would meet all the diversified political conditions prevailing in different provinces. They would, he thought, by adopting a platform be placing a lever in the hands of their enemies.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR

This statement brought up the Duty of the Hour, and some strong remarks were made with regard to the use of that famous pamphlet in the last general election. It was pointed out by several that the Roman Catholics made no bones about approaching candidates and endeavoring to bind them down. Finally the motion was rejected by an overwhelming majority.

As a result of a resolution adopted last night, and one engaging in the liquor business after joining the order will be expelled. The resolution was submitted by the Grand Lodge of British Columbia, and, contrary to expectations, was carried by two-thirds majority.

The delegates left for their homes to-day.

THE CONVENTION WAS A MOST SUCCESSFUL ONE

Chief Business at Grand Orange Lodge Meetings Was the Discussion of Secret Work of the Order—Dr. Sproule Pleased With Attendance and Convention Results.

Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., of Markdale, who was re-elected Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge last night, expresses himself as highly satisfied with the convention just concluded here. The convention has fully come up to all expectations and in fact was more successful than was anticipated.

The representation of members was large and Dr. Sproule states that the business of the utmost importance was transacted. This was chiefly bearing on the secret work of the order although many other weighty matters were dealt with. Among the most significent of these was the restoration of the Purple and Blue Degrees.

PURPLE AND BLUE DEGREES RESTORED

At Yesterday Afternoon's Session of Grand Lodge---T. A. Duff Made Honorary Member---Protest Against Definition of Orangeism

At yesterday afternoon's session of the Grand Orange Lodge most of the time was spent in discussing the restoration of two degrees which were eliminated in 1907 in the meeting of the Grand Lodge in Vancouver. These were the Purple and Blue degrees, and by a large majority it was decided to restore them. An agitation to have them put back has been continued ever since they were taken out at the Vancouver meeting and the agitation culminated in their restoration yesterday. The idea in dropping the degrees was to simplify the ritual and when they were done away only two degrees, the Orange and the Royal Arch were left. There was a long discussion over the advisability of again placing the degrees in the ritual the speakers both for and against the procedure making strong arguments.

MADE HONORARY MEMBER

Mr. T. A. Duff, the general agent of the Orange Benefit Fund had the unusual distinction of being made an honorary member of the Grand Lodge conferred upon him. There is a very limited number of honorary members in the Grand Lodge and the fact of Mr. Duff being made one is a mark of high appreciation and esteem.

GROTESQUE EXPLANATION

The County Master of the Peterborough lodge, W H G Armstrong, presented a resolution to the committee of the Grand Lodge to protest against the definition of Orangeism as given in the Encyclopedia Brittannica issued by the London Times. The description is grotesque and unreasonable and was obviously not learned from an authorative source. It commences with an antique toast and is extreme and absurd in further detail. It is a peculiar thing that Chambers' Journal published a similar definition ten years ago and had to be called to account for doing so and the desired correction had to be made. The committee yesterday passed a resolution of protest against definition and it will be acted upon at the earliest moment possible.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, May 28.—The body of Albert Dunn, who was drowned in the Trent River near Mackenzie Island last winter, was recovered last week in what is known as Rutherford's marsh where the clothes had caught on the branches of a fallen tree and detained the body from making any progress down the river.

Havelock, May 27.—After an absence of three years, during which time his family knew nothing of his whereabouts, Mr. Robert John Graham, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Graham, of town, came home to die. That young man came to Havelock on the midnight express yesterday morning in a state of collapse. HIS HONOUR JUDGE ROGER

To Mr. George M. Roger, K.C., head of the law firm of Messrs. Roger, Bennet & Goodwill, the new judge of the new district of Thunder Bay, the Review extends its heartiest congratulations, and to the district of Thunder Bay and Rainy River as well. Mr. Roger, who is the second son of the late Rev. J. M. Roger, formerly minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church here, has filled many important offices in the gift of the city, the latest being that of mayor, in all of which his good judgment and genial disposition have been highly prized. The congregation of St. Paul's, the Y.M.C.A., the local bar and the citizens generally will greatly miss him, if he decides to accept his new appointment. Whether in the practice of law or in politics, he has always been scrupulously fair, and possesses an ideal of citizenship which he has done much to establish and develop. To be upright, self-controlled and consistent is to be strong, and these qualities Mr. Roger possesses in an eminent degree. He will undoubtedly make a good judge. At present he is on the Atlantic Ocean on his way to Scotland.

THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

16 Rosehill Ave.
Toronto, 27-5-09

Editor of Daily Review;
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 26th inst. you quoted me as follows:

"Mr. A. Q. C. O'Brien in an interview with the Review expressed the opinion that the city could not do better than pass the Purity Ware by-law. He thinks the whole project a good one and the city amply secured."

Will you kindly correct that statement by publishing this letter for not knowing what the project is I cannot pronounce it good or bad.

I am interested in the Company, and unable to get satisfactory information concerning it, for this reason I attended both the public meetings of the Board of Trade and listened attentively to several hours of talk which I am bound to say did not add to my knowledge of the project or furnish me with information sufficient to base an opinion on of its value to me or to your city.

I did say "If the project is a good one then I think the city amply secured."

The representatives of the Company the members of the Board of Trade, and City Council, present at the meetings did not tell us enough about the project to base an opinion of its value and I will leave it now with "Old Father Time" to enlighten us.

Yours sincerely,
A. Q. C. O'BRIEN.

Mr. O'Brien informed the Review that he has a large interest in the promotion of the Purity Ware Company but that he did not consider it, or was afraid that it was not, of much value hence he wished to get back from the promoters the money he had furnished to them for promotion purposes. This he claimed amounted to about $1100, while he said the promoters had offered him only $780. Mr. O'Brien appeared to us as a very honorable gentleman who did not know whether to go on with the promotion or to withdraw. After listening to the debates, etc. of the bylaw he very distinctly informed us that "the city is not taking a very long shot anyhow." These were his words. He left us with the impression that he considered the enterprise good enough to stay with. His letter now seeks to convey the idea that Purity Ware is still in the air. We feel bound to publish the letter but to publish it without explanation would deal the bylaw at this late stage a very unfair blow which we are sure Mr. O'Brien does not wish to do. The last clause of Mr O'Brien's letter however shows that he has nothing really against the project and for one who has been so intimately associated with it, this is a good deal. And for ourselves, we can only say as we have said before that the arguments against Purity Ware do not seem strong enough to blight its prospects while if it "goes" the city will have done an exceedingly good thing in showing enterprise and wit enough to secure it. As for the city, it does not run a really serious risk so far as we can see and when we consider that responsible business men who are necessarily anxious that the city shall make no serious mistake, are with the exception of Mr. Kendrey, all in favor of the scheme, it is difficult to find an excuse for voting against it. Even if it is all that Mr. Kendrey says, what then? At the same time we are free to admit as candour compels us to do that the state of the market, the lack of direct communication—so far as we know.—with the American company and other things as Mr Kendrey urged of that sort, might if we wished to invest as individuals, give us pause but the city is simply a mortgagee who if the whole enterprise disappears as a thief in the night, will yet have a property worth the amount of the mortgage on its hands. This Mr. Kendrey denies. And yet who will say with our cheap power and rail and waterway communications that even that contingency would be a dangerous one? We hope to see a letter from Mr. Kendrey to the public press setting out in detail his further opinions for that he is a well wisher of the city goes without saying and his reputation as a business man, lends the greatest weight to his statements.—Ed.

Young Boys do Not Like Going to School—Have Been Sleeping in Barns

Three young boys appeared before the magistrate this morning to give a reason why they didn't go to school, and why they had been sleeping out in barns.

One of the boys stated he did not like going to school, but when he was given a chance by the magistrate to choose either going to school or take a flogging he decided to do the former, and on this condition he was allowed off.

The other two offenders appeared to be sorry for their past conduct, but their case was enlarged until to-morrow morning and their parents will be asked to be present.

Orders for Immediate Delivery Coming Fast—The Clergy and Laymen are Taking Advantage of the J. M. Greene Co's Clearance Sale

From Campbellford came in special request from the Rev. W. C. Sage to ship at once one of those beautiful Ennis Vertical Grands, also another 'phone order from Campbellford to ship one of the celebrated New Scale Williams productions, a beautiful mahogany style Krydner, and many others. Miss A. Millar, of Young's Point, after visiting the other music houses of Peterborough, called on the J. M. Greene Music Co., to see the special bargains, with the result that Miss Millar was so delighted when she heard the beautiful tone and saw the artistic design of the New Scale Williams, style 49, Sandomingo mahogany Grand, she at once decided, and to-day Miss Millar is happy enjoying one of Canada's finest, and most artistic piano productions.

If any intending purchasers wish for further evidence of the superior quality of those splendid high-grade pianos now being offered at clearance prices by the J. M. Greene Music Co., Mr. Greene would be willing to give the addresses of a hundred or more in Peterborough and vicinity who have bought already and have nothing but the highest praises to sing now. Some say it is not all gold that glitters, but suffice it to say here, that those pianos are not gold, but worth more than their weight in gold.

THE INTERMEDIATE BASEBALL LEAGUE TO OPEN SATURDAY

Two Fast Games Will be Played at the Oval—Rovers vs. Park Nines at 2 p.m. and T. A. S. vs. West Ends at 4 p.m.—Danny McCabe to Umpire.

The intermediate league will open to-morrow afternoon at the Oval The Rovers and Park Nines will play the first game at two o'clock, while the TAS. and West Ends will clash in the second contest beginning at 4 o'clock. All four teams have been practising hard for several weeks and the games are sure to be interesting. The Park Nines, formerly the Lakeviews are considerably stronger than last year and will be a big factor in the league race. The Rovers are a new team and look good to give the Park Nines a hard battle. The West Ends will be without the services of Butcher, their star twirler of several season but the management claim the team to be stronger than that of last season.

The TAS. will play practically the same men as represented them in the league last year and when they and the West Ends come together there will be something doing all the time.

It is now up to the fans to turn out and support the teams, who claim they intend to put up such an article of ball that will be worth going to see. The small sum of 10 cents will admit anybody into the grounds to see both games. Danny McCabe will likely umpire.

The teams will be picked from the following men;

PARK NINES	ROVERS
Mahoney	Woods
Laing	Neary
Miloy	Hawkins
Quinlan	Billington
Ferguson	C Gilbert
Gorman	E Gilbert
Price	O Grose

CHAMPION PADDLER WILL USE A PETERBOROUGH CANOE

The Ottawa Free Press says;—Horace Merrill, the single paddling champion of Canada has decided to accept the special racing canoe made for him by the Peterborough Canoe Co., and will use it in all the big regattas this season. Horace tried the craft out last week and found it much to his liking.

Morley Neate will therefore paddle in the racing single presented the New Edinburgh Canoe Club by Mr. L. N. Bate.

Last night the red and white were out in their war canoe for the first time this season, paying little heed to the high water and swift currents on the Ottawa. Capt. Horace Merrill was in the stern.

THE WHOLE FIELD WAS IN THE BEST OF RACING TRIM AT THE WALK LAST NIGHT

Harrison, Blake and Graham All Stepped in Lively Fashion—Brown and Hoagland Walked in Same Relative Positions—Great Entertainment for Audience.

THE SCORE TO DATE.

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	67	11
Hoagland	67	10
West	66	9
Harrison	65	12
Blake	64	4
Spenceley	60	3
Fenton	59	3
Graham	58	7
Hartley	56	2
Blatchford	51	1

The crowd at the walking match last night were provided a bill of entertainment that was a thoroughly interesting and pleasing one. All the walkers made the sawdust circuit in excellent time to the lively music of the band and there was no lagging on the part of anyone. In fact the men seemed to be feeling in the best of trim and the going generally speaking, was uniformly better than it has been any evening.

The most interesting feature of course, was the great contest between Brown and Hoagland, but the others of the field were also right on edge all night and sped along at a sensational clip.

Jim Harrison showed that he had only temporarily eased up when he slackened his pace the night previous and last night he walked in splendid form and followed the pace of Brown and Hoagland for some time, stepping in grand style. He showed great bursts of speed on several occasions and he and West gave the crowd some interesting battling as Harrison would sprint by the New Yorker, who generally managed to pull down the short advantage, however, and take his position in front of the Peterborough ped.

Blake, the negro, walked in a markedly improved manner and Jimmy Graham gave the best performance he has since he commenced the race. The Buffalo man was right on last night and made things lively from the start walking half a mile farther than he did any other night of the race.

Spenceely went well in the earlier stages and stayed with the men ahead and the local Columbus of the walking game, David Hartley, had it on Blatchford in every way, making a big increase in his lead over the old newcomer and passing him with as much pleasure as if Blatchford were Jimmy Reynolds.

West left the track for a short time at five minutes to nine and while he was off the leaders took three-quarters of a lap on him. When he came back he sprinted very prettily and was given loud encouragement by the crowd to make up his loss. Brown, Hoagland and Harrison were setting a stiff pace by going at top speed. West managed to make up the difference in a few laps and chimed in with the trio ahead of him.

Around ten o'clock, Harrison, who seemed particularly strong, had many interesting little tilts with Brown that aroused considerable excitement. They kept up their exchange of sprints for quite a while when Brown suddenly let out at high racing pressure and pulled away for half a lap with the band playing "Yankee Doodle."

The distance covered last night by the men ahead was 16 miles 10 laps, just one lap short of the first night's score. Hoagland and Brown walked neck and neck all night and the boy still leads the champion by the lap he gained on Tuesday and which was fought so hard for the evening following.

It is of interest to know that on Wednesday night it was the first time Hoagland ever started out to get a lap on a man and didn't accomplish his object. This is the one exception in thirty years' walking and Brown had practically "had his cork pulled" when he revived sufficiently to catch up to Hoagland, and still has the lead.

Quite a lot of comedy was supplied by Richards, who gave a five mile dash the second night, coming on the track last night and doing eight laps apparently for nothing, but the intoxicating fascination of the game and the applause of the crowd. Richards disappearance was as sudden as his advent.

"BOBBY" KERR ON HIS WAY TO ENGLAND

Passed Through Peterboro' To-day on C.P.R.—Telephoned to a Friend Here

The CPR. train which passed through Peterborough at 11.16 today had on board "Bobby" Kerr, of Hamilton, the champion sprinter. He is on his way to England to defend his titles at the British championship games which will be held in June. Kerr holds the British championships for the 100 and 220 yard dashes, winning the titles while in England last summer.

"Bobby" got off the train at the local station and telephoned Mr. Geo. Evans, of the YMCA. staff who is an Hamilton boy and a friend of the sprinter.

LORD ROBERTS ON GAMES.

I notice that young Canadians take great interest in athletics. I am a firm believer in their value, if carried out in a true spirit and in moderation. But I hope that young Canadians will always remember that in athletics, as in all the relations of life, they must play the game in the truest sense of that term. They must play for the sake of the game, preferring to lose it fairly rather than to win it unfairly. They must be ready not to grudge their opponents' every fair advantage, and they must be prepared to lose with good temper, and to win without boasting.

The standing of the teams in the Western Canada Baseball League to date is as follows;—

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Medicine Hat	3	0	1000
Winnipeg	7	3	.700

TIME MADE WEDNESDAY PROBABLY CONSTITUTES AN AMERICAN RECORD

One of the greatest two and a half hour a night walking contests ever held in America is taking place at Brock street rink this week. The speed at which Brown and Hoagland are travelling is almost unbelievable, and the way they swoop round the track is urging them both to their utmost limit.

Hoagland is not walking against a field that offers him no real opposition like he was last year, but is competing against a man that, so far, has succeeded in making the champion go as fast as his legs can carry him. Of that there can be no doubt, and the time made on Wednesday night was as fast as any on the record books, and probably constitutes a record for America for a third-night of a six-night 2 1-2 hour walk.

By this it will be seen that Hoagland worked himself to the utmost to pull away, and, as mentioned in the account of last night's walk, he said it was the first time in this life he ever tried to lap any man at any distance and failed to do so.

The strain on Brown must have been terrible, but he is young and fresh, and his powers of recuperation stood him in good stead when he started his marvellously fast sprint and closed up the gap between himself and the champion.

In doing so he established the record for a lap of 36 seconds, which is one second faster than Hoagland made it in last year, in one of his great sprints.

THE Y.M.C.A. BOYS' RELAY RACE WILL BE RUN TO-MORROW

The Y.M.C.A. boys' relay race will be run from Lakefield to Peterborough to-morrow.

The team for the Y.M.C.A. relay race to-morrow has been selected. If the weather permits the first relay winner will leave Lakefield at 2.30 and the other nine runners will take up the race. The winners will be placed in the following position;—

Start—Harold Hill.
9 miles—H. Lees.
8 miles—W. Eastwood.
7 miles—M. Hart.
6 miles—F. Halpany.
5 miles—R. Laing.
4 miles—P. Telford.
3 miles—A. Darling.
2 miles—N. Phelan.
1 mile—B. Lees.

The runners and automobile will meet at the Y.M.C.A. at 10 o'clock, and leave for Lakefield. The runners will be dropped off at their respective posts.

The finish will be at the Examiner office.

LINDSAY TO HAVE MOTOR BOAT CLUB

Organization Meeting to be Held at an Early Date

Lindsay, May 28.—Motor boat enthusiasts seem to be taking a keen interest in the proposed Motor Boat Club. Even though the club is as yet unformed, letters have been received by Mr. Jos. Brown from Toronto asking for particulars and expressing a wish to join as soon as the thing is in running order.

An organization meeting will likely be held early next week, and all who are in any way interested in aquatic sports should make it a point to attend in order that the club will be satisfactory to all. It is not the intention to limit the membership owners of motor boats alone; canoeists, automobilists, and mere landsmen who have a hankering after the briny deep will likely be accepted as members.

The whole matter will be talked over at the meeting, whether a club house would be possible, how about a club flag design, weekly picnics, parties to attend regattas, such as Stoney Lake, Chemong, etc., a club regatta, and all the different enjoyable features which are possible with such an organization.

THE CONSULTATION.

What Her Sister Heard When She Listened to the Doctors.

One of two sisters who lived together was suddenly taken with a lung attack she feared was serious, says the London Telegraph. She therefore sent for a specialist and asked her doctor to meet him. Talking over his coming with her sister, she said: "Mona, I wish I could know Sir Henry B.'s real opinion. Neither he nor Dr. M. will tell us if there is anything really wrong, but I would much rather know."

Her sister replied: "Do not worry, dearest. You shall know everything, for I will go down to the dining room and stand behind the big oak screen and listen to every word they say."

"And will you be sure to tell me, Mona?"

"You may rely on me, dearest. I will tell you every word."

"Even if I am not to get well?"

"Even then, dearest," promised the loyal Mona.

The hour for the consultation arrived, and the sister went to the dining room and, standing behind the great oak screen, ensconced herself and prepared to listen.

By and by the two doctors were heard descending the stairs, and a moment later they came into the room. Walking over to the fireplace, the specialist sank into an easy chair and the local doctor sank into another. Then followed a moment's silence, broken by the specialist, who leaned a little forward.

"My dear M.," he said slowly as he looked across at his colleague, "of all the ugly women that's the very ugliest woman I've ever seen in my life."

"Is she?" replied the local doctor. "You wait until you've seen her sister."

$10,000,000 In Succession Dues.

London, May 28.—Charles Morrison, a comparatively unknown millionaire, whose estate it is estimated is worth between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000, died Wednesday near Reading, aged 92. The succession dues to the Government under the new budget will total ten millions.

Ottawa, May 28.—There is no foundation for the report that the United States is attempting to send the training ship Nashville through the Canadian canals to the great lakes without permission of the Dominion. The Canadian Government made an order over a year ago allowing the Nashville without armament to pass through the Canadian canals.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—Mistaking her for a burglar, George W. Thompson shot and killed his wife. Thompson went to bed early, leaving his wife downstairs sewing. Later she entered the room, carrying a lighted match. Thompson said he awoke, thought the light was from a burglar's lantern, took a revolver from under his pillow and fired twice.

"I knew there was something wrong," began Miss Schermerly in malicious triumph. "I always thought his manners had not the repose that"—

"Silence!" commanded Mr. Renwyck, glaring about him savagely. Then he turned once more to Richard. "You have imposed on my hospitality, sir. Who are you?"

"Now, whom do you think I am?" asked the Texan, with a most engaging smile.

There was silence for a moment; then Miss Sempton spoke:

"Pardon me, Mr. Renwyck, but I think I can supply that information. He is—or says he is—Peter Wilson, chauffeur for the Layton Motor company. He learned to drive a car on a broncho."

"On a broncho!" exclaimed Miss Harriet, to whom an illumination was dawning.

"He isn't," spoke up Mr. Parker promptly, "asking your pardon, ma'am, for contradicting a lady. I belong to the Layton Motor company, and I never laid eyes on this man before in my life."

"'Tain't so!" shouted the farmer. "He is Peter Wilson; I recall it now. I heard him say so himself. The lady hear'd him, too, an' she'll back me up."

"Officer," said Mr. Renwyck, with quiet ferocity, "oblige me by putting that man out of my house."

Sergeant Flint complied willingly, and for the balance of the conclave the rustic looked on and listened from afar. When quiet was restored Mr. Renwyck returned to the matter in hand.

"You admit, then, to having sailed under false colors?"

"I do," said Richard equably.

"Is your name Peter Wilson?"

"No."

Mr. Renwyck's face went red, then deathly pale. He had heard enough. In the excitement of the exposure he had lost sight for the moment of the robbery. He pointed a shaking finger at the Texan and exclaimed in a tone which was loud enough for all to hear:

"Where are my diamonds?"

"I give it up," said Richard cheerfully.

"That's what they want you to do," interrupted Mr. Van der Awe, with a sudden burst of intelligence, which surprised everybody.

"You've got them, my man," said Mr. Renwyck. "Officers, arrest him!"

"Father!"

Shrill and anguished came the cry, and the desperate Texan's warm blood tingled at the sound. To him it meant one friend at least, no matter what his name might be. As Harriet stepped forward Uncle Michael caught her hand, whispered a word in her ear and pulled her gently back.

"Be careful, Jacob," he admonished. "You are laying yourself open to a suit for libel. If you had listened to me at first, you"—

"Hold your tongue," retorted Mr. Renwyck sharply. "This is my affair."

"Oh, all right," agreed Mr. Corrigan, shrugging as he turned away. "I wash my hands of the matter entirely."

This he proceeded to do, but with the proverbial "invisible soap," seeming to derive much joy therefrom.

CHAPTER XXIII.

RICHARD was not angry at Mr. Renwyck's accusation, false though it was. He had expected it all along and had steeled himself to bear it without the turning of an eyelash. This would seem to be his opportunity for confessing his deception, yet now he was checked by the part the two young ladies had played on the previous night. To make a clean breast of it would be to involve them also, and even though it would clear him personally he could not entertain the thought for a single instant.

Yet when Sergeant Flint, the detective, put forth his hand the blood of the Texan seethed into action. There was no evidence of anger, no movement to resist the law, but in his cold gray eye there came a warning glint, which was further backed by a calm, dispassionate tone.

"Don't do that, sonny," he said in words that carried conviction. "There'll be no trouble. But hands off!" Once more he turned quietly to his host. "Now, Mr. Renwyck, kindly explain your charge."

"It is scarcely necessary," answered that gentleman in undisguised contempt, "but if you wish to be further unmasked before this company I have no objection, I assure you. You entered my house under false pretenses and with an assumed name. By your own confession you have abused our trust and hospitality. I find you in my library at 3 o'clock in the morning, fully dressed, while the window is wide open and the burglar alarm switched off. Can you account for this extraordinary proceeding on the part of a guest in a gentleman's house?"

"I can," he answered calmly. Harriet made an involuntary movement at this, but Richard, whose eyes never lost sight of her, in spite of all that occurred, checked her with a motion of his hand. "As I told you, I had come downstairs for a book. The night was warm, and through the window came a very grateful breeze. If I wished to open a window, why should I alarm the entire household with a furious clatter from a big brass gong?"

There were murmurs of approval from several persons among the company, especially the ladies, but this only made Mr. Renwyck more firm in his just convictions.

"Nonsense," he cried, "utter bosh! Do you mean to tell me that you will swear in court—as you certainly will have to—that you opened that library window merely to let in fresh air?"

"There was no other reason," the Texan answered imperturbably.

Mr. Renwyck tried another tack.

"Was there any other man with you in the library last night?"

"There was."

Imogene gasped, and Harriet put an arm around her soothingly.

"Ha!" cried the financier triumphantly. "Perhaps you will turn state's evidence. Well, who was this other man?"

"You," smiled Richard. "I remember you perfectly on account of your costume, which was—er—quaint in the extreme."

Uncle Michael broke into a jovial roar, while a snigger of amusement rippled among the other listeners. The culprit had scored a point, but it only served to put Mr. Renwyck in a warmer rage.

"Officers," he cried, "do your duty! I accuse this man—he's a thief!"

Miss Harriet stepped forward, a crimson spot glowing on either cheek, but Imogene held tightly to her arm and dragged her back. Mr. Van der Awe was in a state which bordered on despair. He also had been watching Imogene and Harriet, and he saw that they were far more interested in the proceedings of the case than their silence warranted. Three times Miss Harriet had started forward, but her whimpering friend had always detained her, once going so far as to stop an exclamation with a pretty hand across a prettier mouth. What was it Miss Renwyck seemed so eager to tell which Miss Chittendon seemed equally determined to withhold?

At Mr. Renwyck's order to the detectives great excitement filled the room. Sergeant Flint and his subordinate closed upon the Texan, and for a moment it seemed that trouble was inevitable.

"Stop!" said Richard. The tone was incisive, and somehow the wondering company gave obedience. "Mr. Renwyck," he went on quietly, "you have called me a thief before many witnesses. You will be required to answer for this to me! As to the manner of that answer you know enough of men from Texas to"—

This time Harriet broke away from Miss Imogene, whitening to the lips and stretching out her hand to the group beneath her.

"Texas?" she cried. "Then you are"—

"I am," smiled Richard, "and don't you say a single word. We'll get out of this 'mill' too."

Miss Renwyck sank back against the balustrade, trembling from head to foot, while her color came and went, as she stared in silence at the cowboy of her dreams. In her heart she had known it from the first, yet now she recognised the fact that she loved the pseudo Englishman even if he had not turned out to be her hero of the plains. How splendid he looked as he faced the company, striving to shield two helpless girls by taking the blame of the robbery upon himself! For her sake he was being branded as a thief, but this thing should not be!

"Imogene," she whispered, "I must tell. I must, I must!"

But Imogene clung to her appealingly.

"Oh, don't!" she pleaded. "Cornelius will be so angry at me. Look at him glowering now! Just wait a little while. I shall die of shame. Please, please!"

Harriet bit her lip. It was too late now, anyway, for her lover was speaking again, and she did not wish to miss a word.

"Gentlemen," he was saying, "Mr. Renwyck has accused me of a crime. Perhaps he is justified in connecting me with the loss of his valuable property; but, on the other hand, I appeal to you as level headed, thinking men. His evidence is purely circumstantial."

"Can you prove your innocence?" sneered the financier.

"Unfortunately, no, nor am I compelled to do so by the laws of the land," returned the Texan quietly. "But I can weld as strong a chain around any member of this household whom you choose to select."

"Done!" retorted Mr. Renwyck angrily. "Make the choice yourself. Go on."

"Very well," laughed Richard, "I will. Mr. Renwyck, I select you!"

"Me!" stormed the millionaire, starting back in genuine astonishment. "Preposterous!"

There was a chuckle of delight from a distant corner, and Mr. Renwyck had no trouble at all in fixing it upon Brother Michael. Richard stood with his feet slightly apart, his hands in his pockets, while he began to rock forward and backward on his heels and toes. The humor of the situation was coming back again.

"Gentlemen," he said, "and ladies, too, if you will allow me—this is merely for the sake of argument—our honorable host, for whom, believe me, I have the utmost respect and admiration, has unfortunately placed himself in a very ugly light. To begin with, he is involved in a certain financial scheme, the details of which I am not at liberty to disclose. Suffice it to say it requires a vast amount of capital. That Mr. Renwyck is pinched for money is proved by the fact that night before last he urged me to place $100,000 in his enterprise."

"What!" gasped Mr. Renwyck. "Why, sir—why"—

"Wait!" said Richard sharply. "I have the floor." Again he turned to the company. "I declined to invest this amount of money for reasons of my own, though my host was much annoyed thereat."

The speculator, who could not imagine what Richard was driving at, stood speechless with amazement, while his brazen guest went on:

"Failing in this attempt, gentlemen, the prisoner at the bar next looks about him for other means to relieve his need. His daughter is possessed of diamonds valued at much more than the amount required by him. He has these gems in charge and claims to have put them in his safe. Did any one see him do it? No. Can he prove that he placed them there at all? I think not, gentlemen. By his own admission he is the only person who knows the combination of that safe. He was warned by an eminent lawyer to place detectives in his house and declined to do so for obvious reasons. He did not wish to be spied upon!"

"Bully!" chuckled Uncle Michael to himself behind the shield of a handkerchief stuffed into his mouth. "Oh, bully! I didn't think he had it in him! Go for him, Dicky, boy! Go for him!"

Mr. Renwyck was far too thunderstruck even to defend himself. He glared at his accuser savagely, while his lank cheeks grew paler still with impotent rage.

"Stop!" he shouted. "This is nonsense, infernal nonsense! What! I steal my own daughter's diamonds? Ridiculous!"

"Can you prove it?" asked the Texan suavely. "If so, the court will acquit you gladly. It's up to you, Mr. Renwyck. Fire away!"

"Well, by Jove!" exclaimed Sir Rodney, actually letting his monocle fall in his excitement.

"How dare you, you villain?" cried Mrs. Renwyck.

"Come, come; we'd better git this foolin' over an' take along our man," said the detective sergeant.

"And he was going to teach me about English aristocracy!" sniffed Miss Schermerly scornfully, suppressing with difficulty a hysterical desire to scream.

"Where is the real Lord Croyland, I want to know?" asked Mr. Parker, taking advantage of the general disturbance to find voice again.

The old speculator was so handicapped by anger at the impudent assurance of the real culprit that coherent utterance was out of the question. He gagged and spluttered in a most incriminating manner, which gave a certain color to Richard's otherwise unthinkable charge. Beyond doubt a stormy scene would have followed had not Mr. Corrigan at last come forward to take a hand.

"Steady, Jake!" he cautioned, while Mrs. Renwyck, appalled at the term after the strain of hearing her husband accused of stealing, burst suddenly into tears, requiring the combined ministrations of Miss Schermerly and the three girls. "Jake" declined positively to be steady, so the little lawyer determined to bring matters to a close.

"Look here!" he shouted. "It seems all of you have had your share of talking. I want to do some of it myself." He turned to the company. "As for my brother-in-law, I feel that I must take his side and declare his innocence of theft. As for this young gentleman, he is equally innocent, though I must admit that he has taking ways." Uncle Michael paused to smile in appreciation of his own humor and continued, "As for me, I haven't the least doubt that any of you hot headed people would slap me in jail at once for the simple reason that I have those diamonds in my pocket."

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 1938 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

"You!" cried a dozen people in a breath. "You!"

"Yes," he laughed. "Here they are!"

He pulled several jewel cases from his pocket, opened them and held them for all to see.

"So you're the robber, are you?" said Richard coolly, glad of a chance to pay back some of Uncle Michael's gibes. "Well, I'd never have believed it if you hadn't confessed it."

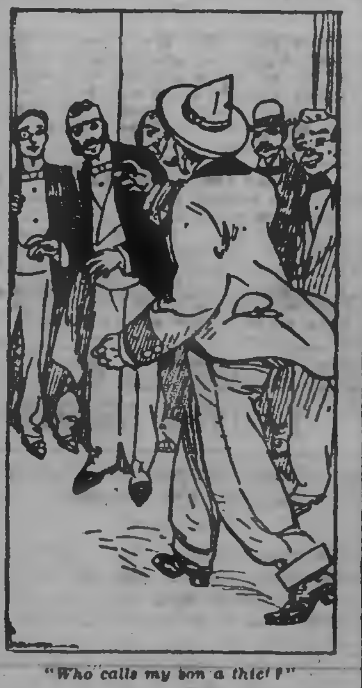
"You score one, Dick, but wait," returned Uncle Michael.

"If this is a joke, Michael," began Mr. Renwyck, frowning heavily, "I must say"—

"It's no joke, as you'll find, Jacob, and if you had followed my advice in the beginning you wouldn't have laid yourself wide open to this awkward libel case."

For a moment there was silence. It was difficult to say who was the most dumfounded—Mr. Renwyck, who saw at once what a blunder he had made; Miss Harriet, who knew that the diamonds had been taken by Mr. Fitzgeorge's pal and who wondered how her Uncle Michael had got them, and Imogene, who was confident that her secret would now be disclosed to every one, or Richard, who had locked up poor, innocent Woolsey Bills for a theft which evidently he had not committed. So his ecclesiastical valet had told the truth, after all! Consternation reigned, and everybody began to talk at once, but Mr. Corrigan raised his hand for silence and continued his most effective address.

"You are no doubt wondering," he laughed, "how I happened to come by this valuable property, and I, in spite of our brazen young friend's suggestion, hasten to assure you that I got it honestly. My worthy brother-in-law, who never would listen to any one except himself, declined to heed me when I told him of a danger which threatened his daughter's jewels. To prove that I was right—as I usually am, by the way—I employed several experienced private detectives and lay in wait for the fun. The first night I was terribly disappointed. The second time, though, I bagged my game. I got the diamonds, gentlemen, and I also have the thief securely locked up in my coach house under guard of the limb of the law who caught him." Mr. Corrigan turned to his brother-in-law with an irritating grin. "Perhaps you may be interested to know, Jacob, that the man has a cast in his eye!"



"Who calls my son a thief?"

The effect of this last statement was striking. Miss Imogene sent up such a wail of anguish that she had to be assisted upstairs, where hysterics of a most pronounced character set in. Miss Harriet unceremoniously left her young friend in charge of the maids and hastened down again, though on the upper landing she was stopped by Mr. Van der Awe, who had followed his loved one as far as he could with reasonable propriety.

"Oh, heaven!" he moaned in his most sepulchral voice. "What—what is the meaning of it all?"

"No time now," breathed Harriet, brushing past him. "Don't be silly!"

That Brother Michael had got the better of him was gall and wormwood to Mr. Renwyck's pride. He was furious with himself and every one else connected with the terrible affair, and in his rage he rushed headlong into another blunder.

"Hold on!" he cried. "You've gained your point, Michael, but only in part. You caught the man on the outside, but I have the accomplice on the inside. The accomplice is just as culpable as the actual thief." He frowned at Richard and continued: "This man is an impostor. He switched off the alarm in my library window, let in his partner in crime and was about to cover up his tracks when I chanced to awaken, heard a noise and came downstairs. I caught him in the very act, I tell you, and the law shall take its course. Here, officer, I command you to arrest that man! He's a thief!"

Richard wheeled upon his accuser, his own anger now bubbling to the boiling point, when a deep voice boomed upon them like the roar of a heavy gun:

"Who calls my son a thief?"

With one accord the company turned toward the speaker, and several of them started at the sight of the giant form of old Bill Williams towering in the doorway.

ALD. MORGAN ENDORSES THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

One of those who are supporting the Purity Ware bylaw enthusiastically is Ald. Harry Morgan. He has conducted a personal investigation as have most of the aldermen and he has reached the same conclusion, viz, that it is one of the best propositions which was ever placed before the ratepayers and one which the city cannot afford to let go by. Ald Morgan is working for the bylaw and is putting in a good word for it every opportunity he gets. He says the future of Peterborough rests with its manufacturing interests. These must go forward or the city will go backward, and in these days of keen competition for factories among the cities and towns of Ontario the people must make concessions to a new concern which, under other circumstances, would not be made. In the case of the Purity Ware Limited, however, he does not see that the city is taking any chance which would not be taken by any private citizen who had the means to enter into the transaction. There is a certain amount of risk in every business deal. Nothing is certain, except death and taxes.

Looking at the bylaw from a citizen's standpoint, Ald Morgan could see nothing in it but what could be commended. The city is getting a great deal more than is being given in return and the chance to lose is extremely small. He says that he is going to vote for the bylaw and he will ask all his friends to do so.

The Toronto Judgeship and two new Ontario Judgeships were created by an act of the Ontario Legislature last session. The question of filling the vacancy on the Ontario Court of Appeal Bench caused by the promotion of Mr. Justice Anglin to the Supreme Court was left over for further consideration.

LECTURE ON THE OLYMPIC GAMES WAS A BIG TREAT

Views Were Clear and Realistic, and Were Explained in an Interesting Manner

The illustrated lecture on the Olympic games by Mr. W. Tait, secretary of the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto, was one of the best athletic treats that has been given in this city for a long time. The lecture was held in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last evening, but the audience was not as large as it should have been, when the excellent programme, which was presented is considered. The views which numbered about seventy-five, were all clear and realistic and the lecturer explained in a clear and interesting manner. In the Marathon race, won by Hays, and in which Fred Simpson came sixth, the pictures demonstrated that the Indian ran a fine race. Other races in which popular and well-known runners took part, were shown and the speackr told many incidents of a highly interesting nature. Bicycle races and different games were shown and explained and Mr. Tait kept his audience intensely interested throughout the entire lecture.

MASKINONGE DIE ON PLOWED LAND

Left There When Recent Floods Subsided at Bobcaygeon

Bobcaygeon, May 27—There are no fewer than eleven maskinonge decaying in the warm sun in a plowed field up Nogey's creek a mile or two from Pigeon Lake. During the very high water this field was flooded and the lunge made their way all over it depositing their spawn. But they had not reckoned on the lumberman who wished to take advantage of the high water to float his timber out to the lake. By the closing of the water off rapidly in the lower dam, the fish were left high and dry on the plowed land. Great quantities of maskinonge spawn will perish this season as it is now on dry land.

AWFUL DEATH OF A SUICIDE AT TORONTO

Special to the Review.

Toronto, May 28.—Elizabeth Ranshaw, aged 46 years, a nurse in the employ of Mr. Strachan Johnston, barrister, hurled herself to death over the glen road bridge, which spans the Second Rosedale ravine, at 8.25 this morning.

The woman suffered from heart trouble, and ill-health is the reason given by her relatives for her act. The bridge is the highest in the city, and the drop from the middle is 115 feet. Before taking the leap which laid her a crumpled and broken mass on the sward below, the woman passed over the bridge several times with deliberate step.

HALIFAX WOMAN CHOKED TO DEATH

Beaten By Drunken Man and Death Follows--Assailant Under Arrest--Murder Charge Will Be Laid

Halifax, May 29.—Lying dead at the rooms of the undertaken is the body of Mrs. Johanna Harrison, while in the police station Percy Wallidge is under detention, and may face a charge of murder in connection with the affair. At present there is a mystery as to whether the woman was choked to death by Wallidge, or died from fright and a weak heart. Several physicians who made a superficial examination of the body incline to the latter theory.

Late last night Mrs. Harrison, in company with her sister, Miss Comfort, left the Argyle street entrance of the Nova Scotia Furnishing Co.'s building, where they had been working. As they came out of the door Wallidge staggered along the street under the influence of liquor and fell in the doorway. Miss Comfort went across the street to get some person to remove him, leaving her sister on the sidewalk. With three young men she came back in a moment or so, and found her sister in the door in the grasp of Wallidge. They dragged him off. "He's choking me," exclaimed the prostrate woman, and then sank back. Those were the last words she spoke. Wallidge was at once arrested, but made no statement. There were marks on the side of the woman's neck, and her face was cut, the latter injury being received by falling.

WEATHER CONDITIONS IN WEST ARE VERY FAVORABLE

Report of Crop Experts is That "Timely Showers and Warm Weather" Are Bringing Up the Wheat—Fine Progress is Noted in All Districts and Delay in Seeding is Made Up.

Winnipeg, May 29.—"Timely showers and warm weather" is the summary of the weather conditions throughout the past week in the Canadian prairie west.

In other words, conditions have been ideal, and everywhere the spring wheat is making a brave showing above the ground. Farmers have been busy without a check, getting in coarse grains and roots, and such progress has been made in this respect during the past ten days that the situation is more forward than in any average year.

This is not to say that spring wheat was gotten in as early as last year, for it was quite ten days later, but conditions since have been so perfect that farmers have already caught up all leeway and many of them have already set to work on summer fallow for lack of something more insistent to do.

So far, then, everything has been favorable to the spring crop of this country. While wheat has been earlier, it has never been in under more favorable conditions, and provided that decent weather conditions obtain through the vernal season, there is no reason at the present time to expect anything less than a bumper crop.

Opinions are divided regarding the increase in acreage, and this cannot be determined until official reports are received from each of the three prairie provinces, but with the high prices obtaining for the prime cereal, it seems hardly doubtful that an increase of from ten to twenty per cent. in wheat seeding has been made.

Reports of fall wheat in Southern Alberta are so far all to the good, and though the acreage is comparatively small, it is clearly demonstrated that a great future lies before that country along this line, most of its production being destined tor westward shipment via Pacific ports.

LATEST NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Great Drydock.

Port Arthur, May 29.—Port Arthur is to have the biggest drydock and shipbuilding plant on the Canadian side of the great lakes. The agreement was signed yesterday on behalf of the city with a new company, known as the Western Drydock & Shipbuilding Co., Limited, composed principally of Cleveland capitalists, and including Mr. A. F. Bowman of Southampton, who is representing them in the negotiations here. A bylaw will now be submitted to the people.

Shooting on Sunday.

New York, May 29.—Four best cases against proprietors of minor Coney Island shows who were charged with violating the Sunday laws were dismissed yesterday by Magistrate Tighe. The real test was in the case of Thomas Decers, proprietor of a shooting gallery. The magistrate sustained the contention of the defendant and counsel that the use of the gallery on Sunday did not constitute a crime.

Jumps From Bridge.

Toronto, May 29.—Elizabeth Ranshaw, 46 years of age, a nurse employed by Strachan Johnston, 118 Isabella street, committed suicide at 8.20 yesterday morning by throwing herself over the Glen road bridge into the second Rosedale Ravine, a drop of 115 feet.

Despondency induced by ill health was the probable reason given by her relatives for her act.

Calgary Grain Exchange.

Ottawa, May 29.—The incorporation of the Calgary Grain Exchange with a capital of $100,000, with all the powers usually granted to a grain exchange, indicates the development of Southern Alberta as a wheat-growing centre. It has also a bearing on the movement to ship grain from the new provinces to Europe via Pacific ports.

Charged With Wrecking.

St. John, N.B., May 29.—U. Bald Michaud and his son, Paul Michaud, of Baker Brook, Victoria County, were arrested recently on the charge of placing obstructions on the Temiscouata Railway track, near Baker Brook. They fled to the United States, but on Thursday were arrested in Maine, and have been brought back to Edmunston to await trial. On eight different occasions between April 7 and May 1 trainmen found obstructions on the track, usually a spike driven between the rails or a horse shoe spring over the track.

History Repeating.

Montreal, May 29.—La Presse says: "About the year 1879 a political party was formed in the Province of Quebec, which imposed upon each one of its candidates the obligation of being Roman Catholic, before everything else. Of course it came to nothing, but now we have the other side of the medal in British Columbia, a proposition to impose upon all candidates an anti-Catholic profession of faith, and one must be Protestant before all. * * * * The true Conservative party is in duty bound to protest against this false situation."

At War Over an Island.

Vancouver, B.C., May 29.—The city yesterday afternoon took possession of Deadman's Island, despite the protests of Theo Ludgate's commissionaires, who intend building a big amusement park there. Two police officers accompanied city workmen to the island. The workmen had been busy but a short time when Ludgate's men ordered them off. It started to rain just then and both sides declared a truce.

Death of Sir John Colomb.

After over a year's delay the company has at last started work on the hotel.

GERMAN CAPTAIN CHECKS MUTINY

Victoria, B.C., May 29.—Attacked by six of his crew at once, Captain Wagner of the German ship Eliza Lihn from Antofagasta for Puget Sound, succeeded in beating off his opponents with his fists and quelling a mutiny, which bid fair to develop into larger proportions, and which resulted in the death of one man.

On April 10 the crew tapped a barrel of wine aboard and rapidly becoming intoxicated attacked Wagner and the boatswain in an effort to make the former a prisoner and to throw the boatswain overboard. Wagner fought off his opponents, stretching them one after another on the deck.

The boatswain was carried as far as the rail by the infuriated men, but managed to escape, and going to the assistance of Captain Wagner, helped to bring about order. One of the crew fell in the hold and was killed.

HIS BEQUESTS TO CHARITY LARGE

Halifax, May 29.—The will of the late Hon. Wm. Chisholm, member of the Legislative Council, will be probated Saturday. The estate is worth about $140,000. Bequests of $200 are left to the school for the blind, institution for the deaf and dumb, and the Halifax Dispensary. The residue of the estate is to be divided into 20 parts and is disposed of as follows: Two parts to St. Vincent de Paul Society, to be invested in purposes of society, six parts to the Monastry of the Good Shepherd, six parts for St. Mary's College, three parts for the Roman Catholic Orphanage, two parts for the Convent of the Sacred Heart, one part for the Home of the Guardian Angel.

DETECTIVES UNDESIRABLE

Montreal, May 29.—Before the royal commission yesterday Detective Dan McLaughlin testified that Quartermaster Holland had asked him for $100 on his promotion, and, although he had refused to give it, his promotion came all the same.

A similar story was told by Detective Laberg, after which Holland took the stand and emphatically denied asking for money. He admitted, however, that he had told McLaughlin that his promotion would be worth $100 a year to him.

Chief Detective Silas Carpenter complained that his authority as chief of the detective force had been interfered with. Several men had been appointed to the force against his wishes, thus destroying the esprit de corps, which was so essential.

TRIED TO BLOW UP MODEL TOWN

Pittsburg, May 29.—The model town of Marianna, where more than 100 miners lost their lives seven months ago, escaped destruction when an insane miner planned to blow it from the face of the earth with dynamite.

Because a friend had been sent to jail and another friend had been killed by a fall of slate, Martin Richiliski, a giant miner, became temporarily deranged, and placing dynamite at different points connected it by wire with the intention of exploding it all at once and destroying the town. Something went wrong with the wiring and there were only two small explosions. The police captured Kichiliski, after a hard fight.

Had the wires not failed, great loss of life would have ensued.

BELT HELD HIM FROM DEATH

Windsor, May 29.—Jos. Pero, an employe of the Windsor lighting plant, had a close call yesterday morning in the vicinity of Pitt and Goyeau streets. Pero and another workman were stretching wires across the trolley wires of the W.E. & L.S. Electric Railway, when the feed wire of the railway company came in contact with one Pero held in his hands. The shock which he received threw him from his position on the cement pole, but his belt fastened to the pole, held him suspended in mid-air more than ten minutes before he could be rescued. His hands and arms were badly burned. He was removed home, and will recover. The feed wires of the railway company carry 6,500 volts.

Rocco Broconia, who purchased the notes in the first place at St. Ignace, was also arrested. Maloney, it will be remembered, operated in the city on Saturday night two weeks, after the postoffice was closed. He called on Wray & Co., jewellers, and presented a $25 money order, and bought a $15 watch. At the city hotel he had a $25 order cashed, and at Rowland Hill's shoe store he also presented a $35 postal note in payment for a $5 pair of shoes, and received $31 in change.

High Constable Gale was cabled to hold him until an officer from Scotland Yard, with legal papers for his apprehension and return to England, would arrive in Canada. The accused was booked for Toronto.

EX-BANKER SENTENCED BY FORMER POLITICAL COLLEAGUE

Judge Monet Fixes Penalty on Roy With Tears in His Eyes—Roy Bitterly Protests Against Appearance of a Rival Bank in Case and Threatens to Make Revelations—Claime He Was Misled by Employes.

St. Johns, Que., May 29.—With tears in his eyes Justice Monet condemned his former Parliamentary colleague, P. H. Roy, to five years' imprisonment in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary at 11.30 yesterday morning, after having listened for over an hour to the statements of the prisoner.

"I want to render the sentence in so very few words," said the judge, "that all bankers who could be tempted to act the way you did, can learn it by heart and always remember it. You will have time during your detention to think of the clients of the bank you have ruined. Some of them are dead from the sorrow suffered by your crime, and some of them have lost their mind. The verdict rendered against you was just and impartial."

Before sentence had been passed Mr. Roy asked the court to suspend his sentence till the month of October, when the regular term of the Criminal Court will open here. He said that he would suffer unfairly if he were condemned when he is to go before the Court of Appeals to have his verdict quashed. On the other hand he pretended that he felt confident he could help the liquidator of the bank in his work and save many thousands of dollars to the depositors of the defunct bank.

Mr. Roy, with anger, bitterly protested against what he called the interference of a rival institution in this case. "I would like to spend a few minutes in the books of this bank," he said, "and I promise to throw light on very interesting facts."

Another point Mr. Roy insisted upon was the fact that he never defrauded anybody and that he was himself misled by his employes. "One of them," said Ray, "was even criminal enough to compel clients of the bank to pay proscribed papers."

Then the prisoner declared that he is still confident that the financial situation of the bank was not desperate when it was put into liquidation. There was only 50 per cent. paid on the capital subscribed, and another appeal of 20 per cent. would have prevented the crisis.

He was very severe on his former political friends. He said he had done more for them in work and money than they ever did for him. He had subscribed money generously for the higher lights of the party, and he did not understand why it was that the Government had been so anxious to have him condemned when he was not the guilty party.

He was only one of three accused, and he always felt that he could not obtain impartiality in St. Johns. The other accused were more guilty than he, as he had but signed the reports to the Government after they had been confirmed by others. There were twelve or thirteen other accusations. Why had they not proceeded in these at the same time? All his worldly goods had been swallowed up by the failure of the Banque de Jean. One thing only was left him, and this was his honor. He had done everything possible to sustain his bank. It was not his fault, but his misfortune.

Roy said he had to thank his lawyers because they refused pay for their services, but he protested against the way they conducted the case, laying their defence more on points of law than on the evidence and the facts.

He received his sentence with a smile.

DOUBLE BELL EUPHONIUM A BEAUTIFUL INSTRUMENT

One of the most beautiful and tone of the finest toned band instruments made is the 'Buescher True Tone," five valved, double bell euphonium that has been purchased for Mr. Ed. Cronk, the euphonium soloist of the 57th Regimental band, through the agency of the Canadian agents, the J. M. Greene Music Company. The instrument was manufactured especially for Mr. Cronk.

The euphonium is of satin silver finish with two gold plated bells. By the employment of the fifth key the trombone effect from the smaller bell is produced.

The euphonium is attracting much attention in the window of Talbot's tobacco store, George street, where it is on exhibition.

BABY BOY TOOK WRONG ROAD FOR "PIGTOWN"

Little Lad in New York Started Out on Strange Errand-- The Police Took Him Out

Special to the Review.

New York, May 28—Little Vincent O'Donnell two years old, found a strange fascination in the row of "little piggies" that hand all scraped and white with their tummies slit open, in his father Thomas' butcher shop at No 174 Montauk avenue, Brooklyn. Unless coaxed out of the shop with candy, he would sit for hours staring at the dressed porkers.

A few days ago Vincent asked his father where the piggies came from.

"Pigtown," said the elder O'Donnell.

"I wanner go Pigtown an' see big biggies wen they stands up on der legs," observed Vincent.

His father told him he would take him some day and that the starting point of the journey was the "L" station near their home. O'Donnell then forgot all about the conversation.

Not so with Vincent. Yesterday he slipped out of the house and being so tiny managed to crawl unseen up the elevated stairs, wiggle through the gate with some grown up passengers and board a downtown train. He scrambled into a seat and pressed his face to the window.

Several women in the car observed the tiny boys unescorted state and called the train guard's attention to his passenger.

"Where are you going son," asked the guard.

"Pigtown" said the boy.

The guard scratched his head and thought. There was no station by that name on his line so at Tompkins avenue Vincent was turned over to Patrolman Duffy of the Gates avenue police station who took the baby before the Lieutenant.

Vincent was put through the third degree, questions and candy, then questions and more candy until Marcella Penna, the matron, managed to obtain a fairly definite idea of his parents' address. O'Donnel was notified and within a half hour Vincent was back in his mother's arms without having found Pigtown and the nice kind of piggies that stand on their own legs.

FEARED THAT MAN MAY HAVE BEEN DROWNED

Lindsay, May 28—Wm. Cock, who boards at Mrs. Barjarow's on Wellington street east of the bridge, and who is employed on the Baker Lumber Co's. steamer, the Marie Louise, suddenly disappeared on Monday last and has not been since heard of.

Mr. Cock is well known among the mill men of Lindsay but they have not heard of his whereabouts since Monday last and his many friends are at a loss to know where he is.

Cock, who is a young man, came to Lindsay from Fenelon Falls a couple of years ago. He worked on the Kathleen last summer and at the locks this spring until about April 15th when he secured a position on the Marie Louise, where he has since worked. He was last seen on Monday by some of the employees of the Baker Lumber Co. He complained of being ill and did not make the trip down the river, and where he has since been or where he went is still a mystery.

It is feared by some of his friends in Lindsay that he was drowned or met with some other serious accident.

A BICYCLE WITH WINGS

Special to the Review.

Paris, May 27—The latest invention in means of travel is the aerial bicycle or a bicycle with wings. It looks not unlike a bicycle with a parachute Its buoyancy is such as to permit of a very high gear. Sixty miles an hour on a good road is an ordinary rate of speed for it to attain.

Paris, May 29.—David Henderson, believed to be of New York, aged 51, last night shot his daughter dead in a cafe here and then committed suicide. The dead woman's name was Martha. She was 23 years old. With Mr. Henderson in the restaurant were his wife and three daughters and a governess. All had supper together, and the party was most cheerful. At the end of the meal Mr. Henderson rose from the table and fired four shots at random, one of which killed his daughter, Martha. Henderson then turned the weapon upon himself.

Mr. L. P. Brown of Auburn, N.Y., father of George Brown, the boy who is making such a great performance against Hoagland, is in the city, accompanied by his daughter, to see the finish of the six-day race being held at the Brock street rink.

Mr. Brown received local papers with accounts of the race showing his son was making, and was surprised and pleased to know that he was following Hoagland at the champion's fastest pace.

Two Italians, wanted in London, Ontario, for forgery, were arrested by the Kenora police.

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1909.

WANTED NO LAWYER.

It Was a Simple Matter to Satisfy the Accused.

"Jed Blake to the bar," ordered the judge in a rural Alabama court.

A big, hulking negro ambled up to be arraigned for murder.

"Jed," began the judge, "you are charged with the gravest crime known to the law, that of taking the life of a fellow man. One of the forms of punishment for murder is death. Have you made any arrangements for your defense in this case, Jed?"

"No, suh, jedge. I ain' done nuthin'."

"Have you a lawyer, Jed?"

"No, suh, jedge. I ain' got no lawyer. I ain' got nuthin', jedge."

"Well, Jed," said the judge, showing a little impatience, "have you talked to anybody about this case?"

"I talked to de sheriff some dat night when he come after me, jedge, but you knows dat didn't do no good."

"For your information, Jed, I will state that it is within the province of this court to appoint counsel to any defendant who has none. I am now ready to appoint you a lawyer. Do you want one?"

"No, jedge. I don't want nuthin'," replied Jed rather dolefully.

"See here," snapped the judge, "I won't have any more of this foolishness. You say you don't want any lawyer. Well, then, what do you intend to do about this case?"

"Well, I tells you, jedge, I ain' 'tendin' to do nuthin'. Ef it's jes' de same to you, jedge, as far as I's concerned I's willin' to let do whole matter drap right here."—Everybody's.

Woman and the Jewish Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has these sentences about women: "A good wife is heaven's noblest gift. A housewife never allows herself to be disturbed from her work. Even while conversing she is busily spinning. An old, experienced woman in a household is an ornament to it like a pearl. He who lives in an unmarried state knows no joys, none of the blessings of home, and is without support. The man who stands at the deathbed of his wife feels like those who saw the temple of Jerusalem reduced to ashes, for the wife is the temple in which each man finds repose and quiet, where he rests after the labors of the day and where he can give expression to his feelings, joyful and mournful. God has given to woman more ability of judging correctly than man."

How He Manages Her.

"How is it that your wife is so tractable?"

"Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and of course she finds no pleasure in doing it."—Chicago Post.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

THE BAR ROOM BEING ROUTED

Those people in Peterborough who contend that while local option may be practical in small places like Stirling and Norwood, it is not feasible in a city like Peterborough, can have no idea of the vast areas that are under prohibition in various states of the Union. In many cities and towns there, some of which are much larger than Peterborough, it has proved just as decided a success as in the smaller places. The campaign against the bar is worldwide.

A writer in the American Monthly for May, under the caption "Another Year of Defeat for the American Saloon," gives the following information:

Finland abolished intoxicants by a vote of its parliament.

Iceland adopted national prohibition in September last.

The Duma of Russia ordered the removal of the royal eagle from the vodka bottle, and the substitution of the skull and cross-bones, the symbols of death, and the word "poison" written in large letters beneath them as a warning to the people.

The temperance revolution in the United States continues with unabated energy. Eleven thousand saloons were put out of business during the year 1908, and at the rate of decrease it would require but twenty years to abolish all the saloons of the country.

About eighteen of the twenty millions of people of the Southern States have already outlawed the saloon. In New York city alone there are 1,000 more saloons than in all the fourteen Southern States.

On May 8, 1908, North Carolina followed her sister States of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi in the adoption of state prohibition by a popular vote.

The fight for prohibition in 1909 was begun by Tennessee, following the example of her old mother state, North Carolina, passing a bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicants by a vote of 24 to 13 in the Senate, and 62 to 36 in the House. This bill will go into effect the first day of next July, at which time every saloon in the State will close its doors.

In South Carolina each county having a dispensary will vote on the question of option between the county dispensary and prohibition in August of this year.

Thirty-six of the forty-six counties of Florida, including 525,000 of the 650,000 of population, have abolished the saloon.

Louisiana has more than 32,000 square miles of "dry" territory.

Fifty-nine out of the seventy-nine counties of Arkansas are dry, and 1,612,000 of the 1,750,000 of the people in the State are living in the territory where the drink traffic is forbidden.

During the past year 800 saloons were driven out of Texas, and fifteen new counties voted no license. Of the 243 counties 150 are "dry," 66 are wet, and 25 license the saloon. Two hundred thousand of the 267,000 square miles of the state is "dry" territory, containing a population of 3,000,000 people.

In Virginia during the past year 400 liquor places were put out of business. Seventy-one of the 100 counties in the state have not a licensed saloon.

Illinois the third state in the union in wealth, population and importance, never gave its people the benefit of a local option law until last year, when the people voted in 1,300 towns, 1,000 of which went "dry."

In Indiana of the 36,300 square miles of territory 26,170 are dry, and 1,000,000 of a population of 2,600,000 are living in "dry" territory. Sixty-three of the ninety-two counties have abolished saloons.

In Ohio of the eighty-three counties in the state, sixty-three have gone "dry," and none have gone "wet."

One year ago there was but one county entirely "dry" in the State of Michigan. Early last month, after one of the fiercest fights in the history of the state, local option elections were held in twenty-seven counties, twenty of which went "dry," closing at one stroke 600 saloons and ten breweries.

After a tremendous struggle, the Nebraska Legislature passed at its last session the Daylight Sale bill, permitting the sale of liquor only between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

A local option bill for cities as a whole is pending before the New York State Legislature. Now, the law only applies to townships, and of these 330 are dry, 330 wet, and the rest part wet and dry.

Massachusetts has gained ten municipalities in the dry column.

During 1908, 429 saloons were driven out of Rhode Island.

For several years the temperance people have undertaken to secure an amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act, forbidding the importation of intoxicating liquors into territory made dry by state legislation, and have failed. This year a bill was passed which does three things: Prohibits C.O.D. shipments; prohibits delivery of fictitious consignees, and requires all packages of liquor for interstate shipment shall be plainly marked, designing the contents and consignee.

A recent editorial in Bonfort's Wine and Spirit League, expresses the opinion of many liquor dealers upon the present temperance revolution. It says:—

"The anti-saloon league is backed by able men and plenty of money. In the last eighteen months the business we represent has been outlawed in the states of Oklahoma, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, and Tennessee, and it is no wfaoing destruction in West Virginia, Texas, Kentucky, Arkansas, Utah, and Idaho. The saloon is fighting for its life in practically every state of the union."

A Fearful Struggle.

In an address delivered in Winnipeg a few weeks ago, Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D.D., General Secretary of the Presbyterian Assembly's Committee on evangelical work in the United States, gave some incidents from his experience, of the terrible fight some men have to make against the legalized temptations to strong drink, which are everywhere established. He said:—

"One of the dearest friends I have, gives the following experience, which, to me, is most pathetic. I know him to be such a noble man, one of brilliant intellect, and in the old days before rum marked him as its victim, one of the most brilliant attorneys in the United States. He was saved but gives the following experience concerning temptation after his salvation:—

"One night in a New England train and very ill, I met a stranger, who pitied me, and gave me a quick powerful drug out of a small vial, and my pain was gone in a minute or two, but—alcohol was licking up my very blood with tongues of flame. I should have gotten drunk that night if I could. I thought of everything—of my two years of clean life; of the meeting I was going to, vouched for by my friend and brother, D. L. Moody; of the bright little home in New York; of Mary and the boys. I tried to pray and my lips framed oaths. I reached up for God, and He was gone; and the fiercest fiend of hell had me by the throat, and shouted: 'Drink, drink, drink!'

"It was yet not daylight Sunday morning when I stood on the platform at Pawtucket, Rhode Island, alone. I flew from saloon to saloon; they were shut up; so were the drug stores, and all that day, locked in my room at the hotel, I fought my fight, and won it in the evening by the grace of God. But the people of Pawtucket never knew that the man who spoke to them that night had been in hell all day.

"Several years ago, at another time after a long lecture tour in the west, I telegraphed to my wife in Boston, 'I will arrive home to-night at eleven.' The train was late, and long after midnight I came under her window. The light was burning, and I knew that she was waiting for me. I let myself in; there were two flights of stairs, but twenty would have been nothing to me. She stood in the middle of our room as pale and cold and motionless as a woman of snow, and I knew at a glance that the sweet, brave life was in torture. 'What is it?' I cried, 'what is the matter?' And in my arms she sobbed out the everlasting tragedy of her wedded life: 'Nothing—at any rate, nothing ought to be the matter. I do believe in you; I knew you would come home; but I have listened for you so many years that I seem to be just one great ear when you are away beyond your time; I seem to have lost all sense but that of hearing, when you are absent unexplained, and every sound on the street startles me, and every step on the stairs is a threat and a pain, and the stillness chokes me, and the darkness smothers me. And all the old unhappy home-comings troop through my mind, without omitting one detail; and to-night I heard the children sighing in their sleep, and I thought I should die when I thought of you having to walk this midnight through Kneeland street alone.'"

"I am against the rum office because it has broken the hearts of women," said a woman to me in Philadelphia, recently. "Do all you can against this awful curse. It has robbed me of my husband, taken from my children their father. He was once noble, kind and pure, but he is to-day a hopeless and a helpless wreck. And as for myself," she said, "I am an aged woman before my time; life has lost all its attractions for me." And when there could come from a woman's heart such a cry as this, I would be less than a man, certainly much less than a Christian, did I not in every way fight this awful evil."

TIME LAST NIGHT WAS FASTEST YET

Went One Lap Further Than Wednesday Evening —Hoagland Unable to Shake Brown--- Grinding Pace From Start.

Hoagland certainly went after Brown's bacon at the fifth night of the walk at Brock street rink, and out a furious pace as soon as the starter set the field on their two and a half hour journey. The distance covered was 17 miles 6 laps, which is one lap farther than the greatest distance walked previously. The former was made on Wednesday night when the audience thought that Brown would certainly break down under the champion's race-horse speed, but he managed to hold his place, and has done so ever since. Last night, in spite of Hoagland again walking at his very limit, as the distance made shows, Brown clung to him like a leech, and was making the pace when the two crossed the line for the final lap of the evening.

There was not so much sensational sprinting by the leaders as on Wednesday night, but at times they increased their speed by the most brilliant kind of dashes, and they went a faster uniform rate than any night before.

Over seven miles an hour is burning the track some, and that's what the leaders made last night. Round after round at this dizzy rate they walked, and Hoagland was walking for all that was in him. He never made better time in any six-day race than he did last evening, and the strength and staying power shown by Brown was little short of amazing. He seems to be almost invincible and there can be no doubt that without a single exception he is the most worthy opponent Hoagland has in America. He has astonished the spectators each evening by his superb walking, and considering he is only a youth of 19 summers, he has a store of vitality that is really remarkable. Any man that can force Hoagland to walk is a good one, and it must be admitted that Brown has certainly succeeded in doing this, and made the champion go at his very best.

West showed no let-up in his battle with Harrison for third place. In the first hour the Peterborough man, who has been walking a fine race all week, reduced West's majority by a lap. The American came back strong, however, and lapped Harrison four times in succession during the rest of the evening, and at the end of the 2 1-2 hours had a lead of 1 mile 3 laps. This looks too big for Harrison to overcome in the grind to-day, and West should be able to comfortably land third place.

As the score shows the rest of the men walked in fine form. The most exciting happenings of the evening occurred in the last half hour when Fenton went out on a sudden sprint and stepped ahead of Brown and Hoagland maintaining the lead for quite a stretch to the thunderous applause of the crowd.

From then on to the end of the walk he made the best time he has since he started.

The standing at the end of the first hour and at the finish was;

HOAGLAND WILL HAVE VERY LITTLE TIME TO RECUPERATE

After to-night's race Hoagland will have to leave town on very short notice. On Monday, Decoration Day, he is booked to walk a relay race against two runners at the opening of the Cayuga Lake Park, Seneca Falls, New York.

He will have to leave town on Sunday morning at 5.26 to make connections. At the opening of the Park, Ted Cook will race Alfred Corey 15 miles and a motor cycle race by the fastest men in Central New York.

POLICE GAZETTE AUTHORITY LEFT TO DECIDE THE POINT

Brown, the walker, called at the Review office to-day to find out if there was any authority on hand to refer to to find out if he won tonight's walk if he could claim the championship at the distance—in the time divisions made—over the champion, W. A. Hoagland.

The point is a delicate one to decide. There are no sweepstakes and no posted money. But on the other hand, the walk is being conducted in the regular manner of holding six day walks, and if Brown beats Hoagland is he entitled to the championship?

The sporting editor is writing about this point to Richard K. Fox, of the Police Gazette, the authority on sporting matters, and his reply will be of interest, regardless of who wins.

The Review takes off its hat to Bill Taylor. This young lad had the misfortune several years ago to have both legs cut off at the knee by being run over by a freight train. After recovery from the effects of the accident he maintained his former cheerful disposition and in spite of the big handicap against him entered into the various sports of his companions. His wonderful performance while pitching for the King Edward school has always been a feature of the game. He has good control and several deceptive curves. At the bat he knocks out singles and doubles in a manner which in itself would be highly creditable to a player with the full use of both legs. But he does not spend all his time at sport. He attends school regular and is a particularly bright scholar. In the evenings he may be found at the Hunter street corner selling the evening papers. The undaunted spirit which the young man is showing every day may safely be taken as an example to those of us who are not placed in such unfortunate circumstances.

WALKERS PICK HOAGLAED TO WIN BUT ADMIT THAT BROWN MAY HAVE CHANCE

Last night after the walking in the six day race being held at the Brock street rink was over, there was considerable speculation among the walkers as to whether Brown would be able to hold Hoagland to his present position of one lap behind him and thus win the walk.

The opinions of Brown and Hoagland are perhaps of the most interest. Brown realizes that he is up against an awful proposition to win over the champion. He says he would have confidence that he could hold his place if the walk were for only two and a half hours to-night, but is just a little doubtful about his ability to hang out in first place when the grind is for seven hours and a half. Hoagland is a strong and powerful walker and looked upon as practically invincible but the boy wonder is determined to defeat him if possible, as a victory over Hoagland would be a great accomplishment for him and be the means of making him a great drawing card and of securing him many profitable "guaranteed money" engagements.

"The boy is walking far better than I had any idea he could," said Hoagland to the Review, "and it will keep me busy to beat him. I used to be able to give him half a mile and beat him in four hours a night walk with two hours and a half the night's limit, but he is performing in such fast time that it may bother me to get back the lap. I'm going right out after it, however, and hope to find myself in the first position when the time is up tonight."

Blake, West and Graham are inclined to think that Hoagland will win, by a small margin, perhaps by a good sized one, and hardly figure on Brown being able to maintain his lead in to-day's long and hard grind. They all admit that he is a very fine walker, however, and say that he might surprise them by clinging after the champion till the time is up.

And that's the way the ground lays. There is no room for argument that has been trying hard to get his lap back, as the time made is exceptionally fast, even for him.

BROWN IS HANGING HARD AFTER THE CHAMPION

A couple of minutes after two the walkers got away at the commencement of three and a half hours' journey this afternoon. Hoagland is setting a very stiff pace, with Brown sticking right after him. The pace is a severe one, but both the leaders appear fresh, and should battle hard for first money. After an hour's walking they were in the same positions as they have been since Tuesday night, and Brown evidently will work very hard to hang on to the lap and win the race.

Blake followed the leaders well for the first hour and is walking in about the best form he has for the week. West is also walking, fast and strong.

There promises to be a very large crowd this evening, and a good sized band will be in attendance to enliven the proceedings.

THE SCORE.

The standing at 5.15 today was;

Brown	95	8
Hoagland	95	8
West	91	6
Harrison	90	1
Blake	87	12
Spenceley	82	9
Fenton	80	5
Graham	78	3
Hartley	77	7
Blatchford	69	8

Hartley is walking in great form and his showing today was the greatest surprise of the afternoon. In an hour and five minutes he had gained a mile.

Hoagland and Brown walked six miles 10 laps in the first hour which is a killing pace for the commencement of such a grind as is before them this afternoon and tonight.

LATER.

At four o'clock Brown still had his lap on Hoagland and was walking right behind him.

CENTRALS WERE THE WINNERS

King Edward School Baseball Team Were Defeated by 12-8

The Central school baseball team defeated the nine from the King Edward school yesterday afternoon in a classy exhibition of baseball, at the former's grounds. The score was 12—8. The King Edward team were ahead at the third innings by 6—2, but the Centrals did some good batting which enabled them to secure a lead that was maintained until the end of the contest, in which there were few errors and numerous pretty plays. Frost, for the south end team, contributed three nice catches in his position at left field. Both twirlers pitched well, although Wade was inclined to be steady at times. The teams were;—

Centrals—Wade, Otrom, Hill, Laing, Long, Dobson, Pearson, Crocker, Smith.

King Edward—Taylor, Williamson, McClennan, Charton, Wise, Martin, Frost, Hatcher, Bartley.

Umpire—Principal Downey.

AT THE WOODBINE.

Wet Weather Interfered Little With Yesterday's Events.

Toronto, May 29.—Once more the elements were favorable for the sport at Woodbine, and the rain kept off during racing hours, with the result that there was a large attendance for the sixth day, and some of the best racing of the meeting was seen. The track was soft and slow, but the fields were mostly of good size, in spite of scratches.

The results were as follows:

First race, $500, maiden 3 and 4-year-olds, 1 1-2 furlongs—Shore Lark, 1; Croydon, 2; Devanson, 3. Time, 1.16 2-5.

Second race, $500, maiden 2-year-olds, 5 furlongs—Fauntleroy, 1; Pulka, 2; Chilton Queen, 3. Time, 1.04.

STOP THAT SCRATCHING

Just as long as you have dandruff your head will itch. It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part but when they do they will destroy life of the hair in a very short time. "My hair was falling out rapidly and becoming gray when I heard of your guaranteed Hair Restorer and, after using one bottle my hair stopped turning gray. The first application removed the itching, my hair stopped falling out and I now have a new and it is soft, glossy and pliable." Carrie Williams, 844 Clinton Ave., South, Rochester, N.Y.

Parisian Sage, the delightful Hair Restorer, is guaranteed by W. Madill, Druggist, Peterborough, to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and all diseases of the scalp or money back. It is the most refreshing hair dressing in the world. Ladies use it extensively, because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant. 50 cents a bottle at W. Madill's, or by mail from Giroux Mfg. GOOD WORK BEING DONE

The action of the Dominion Government in voting $10,000 to send a commission of Canadian farmers to Ireland and Denmark, to study the swine industry in those countries, is a result of the efforts of Farm and Dairy, the agricultural paper now printed in Peterborough.

Last December Farm and Dairy pointed out that unless something was done to stop the decline in Canadian exports of bacon, this country would soon lose its export bacon trade.

Farm and Dairy suggested that the Dominion Government should appoint a commission to visit Denmark and Ireland to study the methods of farmers in those countries. This suggestion was endorsed by the members of the Dominion Swine Breeders' Association last January, as well as by many readers of Farm and Dairy, with the result that the Dominion Government has voted $10,000 to defray the expenses of sending such a commission to Denmark and Ireland.

The articles published in Farm and Dairy a year ago on the question of free rural mail delivery, and that were secured by a member of the editorial staff of the paper, who visited the United States to look into the matter, are generally believed to have had a good deal to do with the Dominion Government introducing this system into Canada.

ARMENIAN HORRORS FIRE AND SWORD

The following letter, written in Arabic, has just been received by Constantine Kabley a builder, of No 26 Washington street, from Bandar Kamel, both Christian Arabians, not related by any family ties.

Mersina, Asiatic Turkey,
April 26, 1909

"To my much beloved brother and apple of my eye; I kiss you and from afar off send you my brotherly love and present you a multitude of regards and salutations.

"While writing this I am in great fear and perturbation. This fear has been over our heads for a long time on account of the great number of people killed and because of robberies and the sacking of communities and their extermination.

"I hasten upstairs to the house of Elias Nader. There you see us a people who know not what to do. A great many have gone to escape massacre. In the province of Adana not a store is left unsacked; not a Christian house remains unburned. Thousands upon thousands have been slain and so thick do their bodies lie that these are trod upon.

"There's no bread to eat and no water to drink. All of the dead are thrown into the river.

"Only two days ago in Adana, five hundred Christians took refuge in a large stone house. There were all well armed. They defended themselves gallantly against a hail of bullets that the besiegers rained upon them. They could not be dislodged by bullets. The besiegers then brought cans of petroleum and placed them against the wooden door of the house. Then they set the petroleum on fire. The door took fire and the flames were quickly communicated to the interior of the house, which was finished in wood. Quickly the entire inside of the house was in flames.

"All but twelve of the five hundred were burned to death. You could have seen their skin burning like candles. The twelve men escaped into an outer court. The Mohammedans quickly broke down the door of this court and placing the head of one Christian in the lap of another beheaded the men thus in succession.

"The Syrians have been able to take refuge in the French school but not without the assistance of the Armenians. I saw women and children rescued by Armenians, who formed a circle to protect them, firing upon the charging Mohammedans. Many of the brave young Armenians were slain while defending the helpless.

"All the mountaineers of Mersina, Adana and Adana, it is feared will come down and kill the few Armenians that are left.

"So you see, there is great fear in the heart of every person. The few Christians left here have no one to assist them and they will die by fire or be slain.

"We are all now seeking refuge in the house of Nader, unable to sleep from fear. We are all in terror of the ghoulish Mohammedans who infest the country and who are atrociously cruel. They may at any moment come down upon us and kill us all. We call the names of our beloved and bid them good by, and we hourly say farewell to each other, not knowing that we will be alive the next hour.

"People are dying from hunger. A loaf of bread now is worth thirty-two cents in American money and a measure of wheat $16. Nobody is working. There is no store open. The poor and the rich are all like one class. None will lend another a penny. Such is our fate."

SPOOK CROOK HELPS HIMSELF TO BANK ROLLS

Strange Story of Montreal Man—Greenbacks Disappear Mysteriously and Owner is Puzzled

Montreal, May 28.—Some Raffles of spook-land has been following Mr. A. L. Friedman, of the Bellevue Apartments, for the past few weeks, and he is at a loss to fathom the mystery of the disappearance of money from his roll even as he clutched it with his hand.

The spook-crook first made itself apparent on May 10, when Mr. Friedman drew $25 from the City and District Bank, just before starting for the ball game. He counted the money carefully, as he always does, and boarded a car for Atwater Park.

When he arrived he found he had been touched for $15. It couldn't have slipped out of his pocket, and he was sure that a "dip" hadn't picked it in the crowd, so he put it down to one of those things that cannot be explained.

Mr. Friedman probably would not have told the story at all if on May 13, three days later, he wasn't visited in some supernatural way, and relieved of another piece of coin. On this day, as before, he went to the City and District Bank, and drew out $25. His destination was the ball game, as on the previous occasion, and remembering it, he very carefully counted the money and kept it under personal guard all the way to the ticket office at the park.

But it was of no use. —A five dollar note was missing—slipped out of the roll while the owner's very hand gripped it.

The occurrence took a whole lot of pleasure out of the game for Mr. Friedman.

The third and last escape of the Friedman exchequer happened Sunday. On that day he went from his rooms on the third floor of the Bellevue to the office to have a ten dollar bill changed. He got the money in two $2 bills, one $1 bill and a five dollar bill. He looked them over and started back to his room on the hustle for fear that some of it would escape.

Reaching the room, he counted the bills again. The five was gone.

Mr. Friedman has told many of his friends about the coincidence, and none of them can equal it without resorting to fiction.

Mr. Friedman's story isn't a fake, he says, and he will take his oath on it.

A car of 1904 wheat was sold on the Winnipeg exchange at $1.16 per bushel.

Peter Fairburn, from Hamilton, was arrested at Guelph on a burglary charge.

James Gullett was sentenced in Belleville to two years for stealing a watch.

Gave Them Reception

The marriage of James Maher, of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough to Miss Bessie Weyer, took place at the latter city last Tuesday. On their arrival at Ottawa the bridal couple were entertained at a reception at the home of Mrs. Eugene Plouffe, sister of the groom at 175 Rochester St., when many friends attended to wish the couple the best of luck in their joint life in Ottawa.—Ottawa Citizen.

MANUAL TRAINING

The exhibition of art work in crayons, colors, charcoal, carpentering, and cookery, held yesterday and the day previous in the old Collegiate building on Murray St. was an excellent introduction to the new methods now employed to give pupils instruction thoroughly useful as well as ornamental. It is possible now for a pupil to study Cicero's orations in one hand while munching a tea biscuit of his or her own making in the other. The body and the mind work in harmony. It is possible also for the youth learning the rudiments of technical training, that absolute necessity for the future, while cultivating a sense of the beautiful which will make him a better as well as a wiser man. It is a movement full of meat and meaning for the great mass of the people who will thus [illegible] begin to learn those methods which have given the Germans and the Americans such a commanding position in the industrial world and which we must know if we are not to be left behind.

THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW

It is difficult to understand why our evening contemporary, The Examiner, has not devoted some of its talents to a discussion of this by-law. Surely something more than a mere record in its news columns of the happenings at the meetings of the City Council, the committees, and the Board of Trade was to be expected of a journal that we hope takes pride in a measure of up-to-dateness. If the Examiner as a paper is hostile to the Purity Ware it is treason to the interests of the city not to say so. If, on the other hand, it is of opinion that the by-law should be passed, it would have undoubtedly said so. Therefore, naturally, it is concluded, that the Examiner is either hostile to the scheme per se or has fallen asleep in its editorial chair and doesn't know what is going on in the city at all. This attitude of an influential portion of the local press is not less than extraordinary and bespeaks a doubt with regard to the whole Purity Ware scheme that is more damning even than faint praise. Is this silence justified? Silence on such a topic is never justified on any plea whatever. The Review may be wrong, but it cannot be accused of cowardice or double-dealing. It is this same feeling, too, no doubt, that has actuated Mr. Kendrey, who feels that it is his duty to speak out even though he cannot endorse a scheme whose management is, in his opinion, the vital part of the whole affair and of which it is manifestly impossible to enlighten the public. The public must take the opinions of others just as in the case of any other mortgage the opinion of a valuator is taken. But this does not excuse the Examiner, which, evidently prefers "to say nothing and saw wood," for which it apparently considers itself best qualified. The by-law has had nothing new sprung against it, even though it has had very able critics, and it is just here that the city is under an obligation to these critics, who by their criticisms have made plain to the public that even the worst against the by-law is not really bad. While, as Mr. Kendrey says, the only sort of business that is good business is sound business, yet we submit that to stand too exactly upon that maxim is to run a risk of missing the substance while looking at the shadow. It will not do for the Examiner to come back at us with sallies of cheap wit. The season of firecrackers is past. We want good, sound, honest common sense from our contemporary, and this we hope is not too much to expect.

ST. CATHARINES COMMENT ON THE PETERBORO' TRIP

Under the heading, "Aftermath of the Peterborough Trip," the St. Catharines Star-Journal says:—

Lieut. Gray was one of the most soldierly officers on parade.

The orderly conduct of the men of the 19th was favorably commented on by Peterborough people.

The Electric City girls made first choice the boys of the St. Catharines regiment, and during leisure hours a 19th uniform and a latest style that were to be seen together.

A wide-awake Peterborough hardware merchant made a specially attractive window display, the "eye-catcher" of which consisted of two big Union Jacks crossed, stacked Lee-Enfield rifles on right and left with a pile of tins of paint between, and underneath the legend, "These colors never run."

Peterborough City Council voted a big sum for decorating expenses and the streets blazed with the National colors, and welcoming mottoes. Incandescent lights strung in profusion in the various parks, had a brilliant effect, and business houses and private houses were gaily bedecked.

Mr. Charles O'Donnell, of this city, accompanied the 19th band on the trip, and sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales," at the concert given in Victoria Park, by the band on Sunday evening. His solo was splendidly rendered and the vast audience listened to it in spell-bound silence. An enthusiastic encore brought him to the stand again and the crowd demanded a third appearance. A music dealer informed a Star-Journal reporter that he received orders for 800 copies of the song on Monday forenoon. And there are several similar firms in town.

A St. Catharines visitor made the assertion that he and a friend walked the banks of the Otonabee River for eight hours on Sunday and nearly perished of thirst. "The aridity of the town on Sunday was positively parching," said he.

It was worth the trip without a wink of sleep to see Frank Dixon defend the Lincolns' flag during the lacrosse match. There were no "bingles" nor blunders there, and the one score made against him was well-earned. Frank, this season, will more than maintain his Olympic reputation.

Sergt.-Major Stuart, of the 19th, received an ovation from the non-coms. of the 38th and 57th. Demands for a speech "the first to-day" were insistent and the genial warrant officer concisely but emphatically told his hearers how high the Rangers stand in the estimation of the 19th and the people of St. Kitts. The reception he received was sufficient evidence of the good-will of the 57th to Sergt.-Major Stuart.

The band of the 19th will present the musicians of the 57th with complete scores of Auber's "Masaniello," "Russian Airs," by Tosky, and "Nearer My God to Thee"—adaptation by George Robinson, 13th Regiment band—as a mark of esteem in which the Peterborough band is held by the donors.

BIG REGATTA AT LAKE SIMCOE

Will be Held on July 31st — Arrangements Already Being Made

Orillia Canoe Club held its annual reorganization meeting this week. The annual regatta of the Western division of the Canadian Canoe Association will be held there on July 31st and Orillians propose to make it a never to be forgotten affair.

It is not unlikely that a number of Peterborough boating enthusiasts will take a trip through the canal to Lake Simcoe to take part in the regatta if the date does not clash with any of the events on the Kawartha Lakes.

ONE OF THE HITS OF 'CAPTAIN BLUFF'

Is Mr. Walter H. Cluxton's Captivating Song "The Stream of Life"

"The Dream of Life," the latest song by Mr Walter H. Cluxton, is scoring quite a hit in Richard Legrand's musical comedy, "Captain Bluff." It is a sentimental ballad, pretty in both lyrics and music, and should enjoy a wide popularity.

The song is on sale at the J. M. Greene Music Company's store, George street.

PARTY OF 100 GIRLS ARRIVE

Were Taken to the Margaret Cox Home---Had Pleasant Trip Across the Ocean

One hundred bright young girls arrived in the city this morning from Quebec and were taken to the Margaret Cox Home. The girls came across the ocean on the "Corsican" of the Allan Line and had a speedy and enjoyable trip. There were also a party of 300 boys on board, but these went through to Toronto to the home for boys. Both parties were under the direction of Mr. Alf. D. Owen. Mr. Hynd-Smith, a member of the Dr. Barnardo Council, also accompanied the party and is registered at the Oriental Hotel. The young girls will be distributed to different points next week as there are many applications on file at the superintendent's office.

ECZEMA VICTIM SAVED—WANTS EVERYONE TO KNOW

Wintergreen Compound Stopped Itch at Once—Disease Soon Disappeared

After taking treatment from two doctors and trying many different remedies from drug stores, that only seemed to make the disease more intolerable Mrs H. E. Johnston of Hespeler, Ont, found a cure. It is simply a preparation of oil of wintergreen, compounded with such well-known healing and antiseptic substances as thymol and glycerine, but it certainly cures the disease.

Here is what Mrs. Johnston says of it:—

"Your preparation has cured me of Eczema after doctoring with two doctors and trying different ointments from drug stores, that only made it worse. I feel as though everybody should hear of it so they might be helped."

Why go on suffering from torturing skin diseases, when there is a cure that is simple, safe and sure.

Best Toric Lenses

For the past ten years we have been supplying the deep toric curved lenses to our most particular customers. The toric costs more to manufacture than any other form but our patrons who get these are increasingly pleased with them and many would have no other. In quality, neatness and accuracy they excel but there are different qualities of torics. We believe the eye is worthy of the best, and therefore supply no other.

DEMONSTRATIONS SHOWED THE PUPILS TO HAVE ATTAINED HIGH PROFICIENCY

Large Numbers Were Present Yesterday Afternoon and Evening to Witness the Art Exhibits and Demonstrations in Manual Training and Domestic Science the Old Collegiate Building.

The art exhibit and the demonstrations in manual training and domestic science at the old Collegiate Institute building held yesterday afternoon and evening were largely attended, both by friends and parents of the pupils. That the pupils are being taught these subjects by capable teachers and in these departments of their education are attaining a high proficiency must be the conclusion arrived at by those who were present.

ART EXHIBITS.

The art works in water colors, charcoal and crayons by the pupils, of the publics schools were very pretty and artistic. In this work were those subjects which would appeal to a young person's mind. There were landscapes, trees, animals, houses, flowers and many others. The pupils are under the supervision of Miss McRae of the Normal School. The art exhibit of the Collegiate students in which a model was used elicited much favorable comment.

MANUAL TRAINING

The manual training demonstration by the public school pupils in the afternoon and by the Collegiate students in the evening was very interesting to watch and the idea of teaching this department can readily be understood. Here the pupils draw the plans, make the models and assemble the objects which they wish to make. A complete set of tools is furnished and each has a bench and vise.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

In the Domestic Science department the pupils are taught the art of cooking. The recipe is first written out on the blackboard and one pupil is asked to read it to the class. The teacher furnishes any further information and the necessary articles with which to make the cookery are supplied each pupil who then [illegible] about making the pastry [illegible] the recipe calls for. [illegible] cakes were made. [illegible] is the instructor in this department.

The exhibits and demonstrations were very interesting and they showed that the pupils are being put through a course of training which will be sure to be beneficial to them in the future.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Dan Mc. Gee's Backache

He used the old Reliable Kidney Remedy and found a Speedy and Complete Cure for His Trouble.

James River, AntigonishCo., N. S., May 28.—Special.—It has again been proven in the case of Mr. Dan McGee, a well known farmer living near here, that backache is only a symptom of Kidney trouble, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it quickly and completely.

"I suffered from Backache for two months," Mr. McGee states. "It started from a strain and grew steadily worse. I also had occasional attacks of Lumbago. I was always tired and at times my eyes were puffed and swollen. In the mornings I had a bitter taste in my mouth.

"Then I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and the result is that to-day I am a well man. I advise all persons suffering from Backache or Lumbago to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Mr. McGee caught his Kidney Disease in its early stages, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it almost at once. Neglected Kidney Disease develops into Rheumatism, Dropsy, Bright's Disease or Heart Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure any and all of those.

A New Version of It.

Robert, the small son of Mr. Brant, has lately acquired a stepmother. Hoping to win his affection, this new parent has been very lenient with him, while his father, feeling his responsibility, has been unusually strict. The boys of the neighborhood, who had taken pains to warn Robert of the terrible character of stepmothers in general, recently waited on him in a body, and the following conversation was overheard:

"How do you like your stepmother, Bob?"

"Like her! Why, fellers, I just love her. All I wish is I had a stepfather too."—Woman's Home Companion.

DARING WORK OF BURGLARS ON THE C.P.R. BETWEEN OTTAWA AND TORONTO

Express Train Again Burglarized and $25,000 is Said to Been Taken—Supposed That Robbers Get in Their Work in Vicinity of Perth — The Second Time in a Few Weeks.

The facts are made public for the first time since the perpetration of the crime of a second daring and successful robbery of the Dominion Express Co's. car, running between Ottawa and Toronto. In the first robbery several weeks ago, a package of bills to the amount of $25,000 consigned from Ottawa to Toronto was lost some place in transit between those two points. In this latest robbery however an even larger amount than this was taken the exact sum not being obtainable but it is learned that the package contained gold and negotiable bills aggregating more than $25,000. The express and railway officials are under orders of secrecy and whatever they may know about the thefts they are in no hurry to spread about. The Express Co. at the time of the first robbery attempted to minimise their loss and stated that the money stolen was small in amount and consisted of unsigned bills. A similar attempt is being made to hush up this latest theft but it is said on excellent authority, that the facts are as above.

The manner in which the thief or thieves reaped their rich harvest has provided a problem which has been engaging the undivided attention of the Express officials and a squad of Pinkerton detectives since the discoveries of the thefts. At the present time, the CPR. route along where the valuable parcel is supposed to have been taken is overrun with sleuths whose efforts so far have been unavailing. Several employees of the Express company whose duties brought them in touch with that portion of the company's routine where the loss occurred have been summarily dismissed from the service, although no proof of their guilt or complicity could be found. One of these, residing not far from Kingston took occasion to land a knock out blow on one of the detectives who was "shadowing" him this violent action leading to the more speedy retirement of the official.

The details of the robbery would provide a rare morsel for a Sherlock Holmes in real life. From Ottawa to Smith's Falls the express and mail cars contain a large safety vault in which are deposited the valuables handed over to the company for transportation. This vault has two compartments an inner one in which the more valuable consignments from Ottawa through to Toronto, are placed and an outer one for local use between Ottawa and Smith's Falls. The inner compartment is locked with a special combination by an official of the company in Ottawa this combination being entirely unknown to the messenger on the car, the only other person who is supposed to know it being the receiving agent at Toronto. Thus the inner vault should not be molested on its long run. But it has been molested, recently on the two occasions mentioned above, and the molestation has been expensive. Both robberies have occurred on the night run and there are apparently no clues to the robberies but a theory is advanced as to how it occurred.

When the run from Ottawa to Smith's Falls is completed, the express and mail car is locked on the outside with a padlock and is then attached to the fast train from Montreal to Toronto, no officials or guards remaining in the express end of the car. The theory is that somewhere along about Perth the padlock has been unfastened and access gained. The thieves then set to work on the safe and either knowing the combination or working it out, the inner compartment is looted and the robbers get away with their spoils at the next station. The postal officials in the other end of the car report having heard no suspicious noises.

For several nights after the first robbery detectives slept in the car, but no robbers appeared. A few nights after they relaxed their vigilance the second robbery occurred. The manner of working would indicate an inner knowledge of the express business also inside information as to when large shipments of money were to be made. A connection may be also established between these two robberies and the recent daring daylight hold up in Truro, NS. where the thieves evidenced similar knowledge. The case is one which will require some probing and at present little light is available.

Distances Are Decreasing.

One of the Ottawa newspapers refers to the fact that the member of the House of Commons for the Yukon can make the distance from Dawson to Ottawa in seventeen days. As the means of communication with the far north and our knowledge of it grows, the distance between old Canada and the furthermost borders of newer Canada becomes less and less. In fact it is nothing short of astonishing to contrast the eastern attitude toward the far west and north with that of twenty, fifteen, or even ten years ago.

PURITY WARE LIMITED

We, the undersigned, Aldermen of Peterborough, do hereby commend for the approval of the citizens the by-law now before the people, to grant aid to the Purity Ware, Limited.

1. It is proposed to give said Company ten acres of land costing $3,000 on their erection of buildings and completing and equipping the shops at a cost of about $150,000 to $200,000, and on their undertaking to employ not less than 100 hands the first year.

2. To lend said Company $50,000 at 4% interest, to be repaid to the city in 10 equal annual payments.

3. The repayment to be secured by mortgage on the land, buildings and fixed machinery.

4. The people who are putting up the most of the capital are a well known manufacturing firm of New York, who have been 50 years in business and are rated very high—this is a guarantee for business methods and success. Every precaution is being taken to secure the repayment of the loan.

5. If we let this opportunity pass it will be hopeless to attempt to build up the city by new manufactories, as this promises to be a large concern and already other municipalities are after it.

6. The factory will be within city limits and is well located for the purpose. We must take actories subject to the proprietors' selections, they must be somewhere, and the proprietors place them to suit their requirements—the general benefit to the city is the same.

THE DRAGOONS WILL DO TRAINING AT PETERBORO'

A Militia Gazette order yesterday gives details of the military camps to be held this year under the terms and conditions as to reduced establishment said down in a previous general order. Ottawa is to have two camps—B O and D squadrons, 5th Princess Louise Dragoons and two sections 3rd Field Company, CE, on June 14 and the 8th brigade CFA. on June 28.

At the outset several directions are laid down among them being a provision that no artillery, cavalry or infantry will go to camp unless on its strength there is at least one qualified officer. Before artillery details are allowed to proceed to gun practice the inspecting officer at annual training shall report to the officer commanding the command or district whether they have attained the state of efficiency to enable them to carry out practice.

The Niagara camp will be held on June 15th, the London camp on June 8th, Barriefield on June 15th. Three Rivers June 29, Levis June 29.

The following Eastern Ontario corps will hold local camps: 3rd Dragoons, Peterborough, June 22; 42nd, Renfrew June 21; 45th, Lindsay, date to be notified; 46th Port Hope, date to be notified; 56th, Prescott, June 21, and 59th, Cornwall, June 21.

SONS OF ENGLAND WILL ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE AT PARK ST.

The Sons of England have arranged a special service at the Park street Baptist church on Sunday, May 30th, when a special sermon appropriate to the occasion will be preached by the Rev. W. C. Riddiford. The members of the Loyal Orange Association have been invited to participate in the parade, and it is expected that there will be an unusually large attendance. The parade will leave the Sons of England Hall, corner of Water and Hunter streets, at 10.30 o'clock. This will be the first service of the kind held at the Park street church since it was built.

HOW AUTHORS WROTE.

Pope Thought Best When In Bed—Victor Hugo Wrote Standing.

Alexander Pope, who was the literary pontiff of his time, thought best when in bed. Whenever a thought came to him he would jot it down on a scrap of paper. His servant often found bedclothes and floor covered with white bits containing aphorisms which have now become hackneyed quotations.

Victor Hugo wrote "Les Miserables" standing up, an attitude which Hawthorne also assumed when he wrote many of his romances.

One leg thrown over the arm of a chair or sitting on the arm of his secretary's chair were Napoleon's favorite positions while dictating to Bourrienne, a position which he varied now and then by patting that scribe on the head or pulling his ears.

Sir Walter Scott could while reclining on a lounge dictate to two amanuenses, who frequently had to stop writing, so funny the dictated passages seemed to them.

Balzac, in a monk's robe, frequently wrote from midnight till noon, taking drafts of strong coffee when drowsiness attacked him and thus shortening his life by many years, no doubt.

William Morris made one of his famous translations from the Greek while riding on the steam cars. Walt Whitman and Horace Traubel, original in all things, were most original in the position they took while thinking. They were wont, so Mr. Traubel says, to climb upon a pile of lumber and lie down upon their backs. In that way each found out what the other's best thoughts were.—Boston Globe.

Palmer Merritt's home in Hamilton was damaged $800 by a sky-rocket.

Marshmallow Cream.

Here is a delicious and attractive dessert: Buy half a pound of fresh marshmallows and cut into pieces about a quarter of an inch square. Have ready a third of a pound of nut meats, almonds, pecans and English walnuts, ground in a meat grinder. Mix these with the marshmallows, blending them by stirring in lightly the white of one egg whipped to a stiff froth. Have ready a rather shallow cut glass bowl. Put a layer of the marshmallow mixture first, then one of Malaga grapes, seeded, another layer of the marshmallows and nuts and finally a sprinkling of shredded pineapple—the canned is best—or maraschino cherries cut fine. Chill in the icebox and serve with whipped cream, the latter in a separate bowl.

Novel Chicken Salad.

Genuine chicken salad takes time and skill to make. It is not a pick-up dish. Here is a new kind of chicken salad that can be done in a few moments if one has had a chicken left over from another meal.

The legs have the bones removed from them, are neatly laid on leaves of lettuce and covered with mayonnaise dressing. If one has a jar of asparagus in the house a few of the tips laid across the lettuce leaf would add flavor to the salad.

FORTIFIED AT FIFTY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Bring Health and Strength to Women at a Critical Time.

Few women reach the age of fifty without enduring much suffering and anxiety. Between the years of forty-five and fifty health becomes fickle, and acute weaknesses arise with rheumatic attacks, pains in the back and sides, frequent headaches, nervous ailments and depression of spirits.

The secret of good health between forty-five and fifty depends upon the blood supply. If it is kept rich, red and pure, good health will be the result, and women will pass this critical stage in safety. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help women of mature years as no other medicine can, for they make the rich, red blood that means good health, and brings relief from suffering. Mrs. C. Donavon, Newcastle, N.B., says;—"About two years ago I was greatly run down and very miserable. I did not know what was wrong with me. I was hardly able to drag myself about, had severe headaches and no appetite. I felt so wretched that I hardly cared whether I lived or not. I had often read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for others, and I decided to try them, and I can now truthfully say I found them all they are recommended to be. Under their use my health gradually came back; I could eat better, sleep better and felt stronger in every way, and before long I was enjoying as good health as ever I had done."

Dr. Williams' Pills cure by going to the root of the trouble in the blood. They actually make new blood. That is why they cure such troubles as rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion, kidney troubles, headaches, sideaches and backaches, and the ailments of growing girls and women of mature years. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATES

The people of this city will want a very good reason for agreeing to a meter rate instead of the old cheap flat rate before they will consider it for even a moment. Electric light should be plentiful and cheap, in fact nearly as cheap as daylight, here, and any attempt to put it on any other basis will meet with the prompt disapproval of the citizens. The man with a small income and a large family wants plenty of cheap light, and he will not forget the good old nights when $1.00 per light per annum enabled him and his family to enjoy the blessings of home in comfort. Ald. Morrow deserves credit for the warning he has uttered in view of the request for a renewal of the light and power franchise.

SOCIALISM AND DIRECT TAXATION

The evil of direct taxation is that it opens the door wide to the immediate creation of a socialistic state. Once the propriety of expropriating property by direct tax instead of by tariff is admitted, there is no limit to the temptation to hit the prominent features hard. Of course there is not the slightest doubt that the monopoly of land made possible by practical exemption from taxation is unjust and injustice is neither excusable nor tolerable. The interests that enjoy the protection of the laws and of the state must pay for them and in proportion. But that is quite a different thing from applying the weapon of direct taxation without regard to the principles of individual liberty. That will lead to a cessation of the general desire to build up a commercial world, which, while it contains many heartless features, is taken all in all the best that humanity has evolved so far for carrying on the business of mankind. Socialism is the rule of the majority, and where the majority is wise the rule is wise, but where it is not the rule means rapine and the destruction of civilization. It speedily re-introduces the rule of the strongest, and where might is right there is no right at all. The rule of the majority is a good "working proposition," but to say that it is so far infallible as to be above reproach is to extinguish individualism, and, therefore, liberty. Direct taxation in "the books" is academically and theoretically all that is claimed for it, but in fact it is used, or is likely to be used, as a sword instead of a pruning-hook, and the danger of edged tools is well-known. The one advantage of indirect taxation with all its waste is that if one does not use one does not pay a tax for using. It is the nearest thing to preserving the liberty of the individual, while direct taxation is the nearest thing to the coercing of the individual by the state. That the state should coerce the individual is according to the principles of British liberty just as improper as that the individual should coerce the state. Both are intolerable.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

If the Welland Canal is not to be superseded altogether by the proposed new Georgian Bay Canal it will have to be enlarged. If it is enlarged we shall not need the Georgian Bay Canal known as the Perks project another piece of folly to be matched only by the G.T.P. The new Mackenzie and Mann transcontinental does not cost Canada one cent and yet it far surpasses the G.T.P. in effectiveness. It has crept upon us as a matter of private enterprise needing no press agency and doing better without it. Now the press is filled with Perks interviews. This man is rousing the people, beating the tom-tom and otherwise picturing our future to us as in a tale of the Arabian nights. We should like to hear him lecture on the Ontario farmer when the Georgian Bay Canal and G.T.P. are completed. The said farmer will look like a deserted shack on an ancient highway, gone and all but forgotten. Meanwhile our dairy exports decrease by "leaps and bounds." It is a great scheme in more ways than one.

Wood's Phosphodine, The Great English Remedy. Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new Blood in old Veins, Cures Nervous Debility, Mental and Brain Worry, Despondency, Sexual Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhoea, and Effects of Abuse or Excesses. Price $1 per box, six for $5. One will please, six will cure. Sold by all druggists or mailed in plain pkg. on receipt of price. New pamphlet mailed free. The Wood Medicine Co. (formerly Windsor) Toronto, Ont.

DECLINE OF THE HOG TRADE

The tremendous slump in our bacon trade and also in our butter trade, comes upon us like the proverbial bolt from the blue. The outlook for the farmer is serious. "Farm and Dairy" is doing what the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa should have done long ago, viz: taking note of the slump and taking measures for investigating the cause. "Farm and Dairy" turned back the Laurier Government from its active condemnation of Free Rural Mail and Parcel Delivery although not far enough to make Peterborough county one of the 37 routes now established. It has caught the attention of the same government in the case of the serious slump in the bacon trade. It has done well. But are we to understand that this journal is so much more efficient than Mr Fisher's boasted department of Agriculture? If so why not substitute the one for the other and at a vast reduction in expense too. Loss of trade and loss of value in farms are burning the candle at both ends for the farmer with a vengeance.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The president of another bank found "guilty." Better get the headlines for a petition out.

The Grand Trunk Pacific like the Georgian Bay Canal unites western and eastern Canada and leaves Ontario out in the cold.

A recent cartoon depicts a jury-room to which John Bull, Uncle Sam and all the other chief nations of the world have retired. With one exception they all declare for Protection and high protection at that. Whereupon John Bull says he never saw such a pig-headed lot in his life.

It is now the settled policy of the Knights of Columbus to confine their activities to the western hemisphere. At the last meeting of the national board a petition from Stockholm, Sweden was received indicating that Catholic men there want a branch of the order. The petition was rejected, the Knights of Columbus covering only the territory added to the known world by the discoveries of Christopher Columbus. France, England and Ireland have all been refused the right to establish branches. —The Catholic Register.

McMaster Senate has decided that Truth consists in searching for it. Obedience must therefore consist in the actuating motive of that search and salvation must be the reward of it. It follows then "as the night the day" that actual Truth itself is of no value to us else why should it be not definitely ascertainable? The essence of evangelical Christianity is, if we understand it as advocated or explained by Marcus Dodds, Smith, Bastiat, &c. the revelation of God to individuals through faith and prayer, by progressive stages. This "revelation" then is that of an uplifting struggle and nothing more and any attempt to localize God or to define infinity is apparently futile.

"When the Bar-Room is abolished, will the Church take its place? This is a question which thoughtful observers have been asking for a quarter of a century. The Church, using that term in its broadest sense is inclined to put the Bar-Room out of existence by legislative restrictions and local option. It is succeeding moderately well but the question remains. "Will the Bar-Room be abolished?"

"If churches and YMCA's supply the social needs which the Bar-Room supplied, if they will provide the young man of limited means and the poor man who cannot afford club membership with social opportunities of a suitable character, the Bar-Room may not return. If they fail to supply that need, the Hotel keeper will again come into his inheritance."—The Canadian Courier.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Editor of the Review

Sir.—The renewal of the franchise in connection with the pole line of the Peterborough Light and Power Company Ltd. has brought up the question of the rate charged for electric current. The question is one which interests the writer both as a citizen and through business relations, and having made a study of the subject over the whole province can offer some suggestions which may prove worthy of consideration.

The consumer of electricity naturally wants a "flat rate" as thereby his expense for lighting is limited, while he may be as extravagant as he cares regardless of the waste. From the standpoint of the consumer the fixed charge is ideal. He may have say 20 lights in his house, and as he likes to see his home well lighted he naturally allows the majority of the lamps to burn whether needed or not—for the cost is the same.

But is the flat rate fair to the company? Some companies prefer it. With plenty of power unused it makes but little difference whether or not the surplus is consumed one way or another so long as the resulting revenue produces dividends on the investment. But the flat rate is quite impossible to the power company with business on a proper basis.

If consumers generally would treat their lights with ordinary economy, when on the flat rate the companies would find it advantageous to hold to that basis exclusively as the cost of meters and their upkeep is a considerable item. But unfortunately the meters seem necessary.

The Peterborough meter is very fair indeed when compared with a number of the larger cities in Ontario, viz. 7 1-2 net per 1000 watt-hours, or kilowatt hour, whereas Toronto asks 8 cents and Montreal 12 cents net. Coming nearer home, we find Lindsay operated entirely through meter and charging but 5c.

While the comparison of these rates may be very interesting, we desire for Peterborough the lowest possible rate which will give the power company the margin of profit necessary to operate the business successfully, and pay fair dividends on actual money invested irrespective of the rates charged in other places under perhaps totally different conditions.

The basis of charge which seems most feasible from all standpoints is a combination of the flat rate and the meter system. Every house in the city is now listed at the city offices as a house of so many rooms. It may be an 8-room or a 10-room house. These are living rooms and do not include halls, pantry, cellar or woodhouse. Now take this rating of each house as a basis and let a flat rate of 10 cents per room per month be levied irrespective of the number of lights in each room or that may be placed in other parts of the house. In addition to this let a charge of 2 1-2 per kilowatt hour be levied for all the current consumed.

Let us see how such a system would work out.—The reader will be able to figure readily for his own house by taking his average light bill now under the meter system.—As the majority of houses in the city would average about eight rooms take such a house for example. The flat rate on this system would be 80 cents per month. For lighting purposes only, and observing strict economy would consume say 16 kilowatt hours in the month and at 2 1-2 cents per hour would thus pay 40 cents more, or a total of $1.20 At the present meter rate of 7 1-2 cents the 16 kilowatt hours would cost exactly the same —$1.20.

Now suppose a consumer wants to light his house from cellar to garret brilliantly and to use the modern conveniences, the electric iron, toaster, radiator and other electric apparatus, he would pay only 2 1-2 per kilowatt hour for all current he would use over that required for economical lighting.

This dual system works to the advantage of both the company and the consumer. With the extra current so very cheap it induces the consumer to have his house better lighted, and to take comfort in using the current for cooking, heating and other purposes. It is better for the company as they would receive a good, fair revenue for additional current.

The flat rate system as used now has many very objectionable features. Many customers take undue advantage of it by using current carelessly and needlessly and then not show their house well lighted. With a charge of $1.00 or $1.50 per lamp they will do without a lamp in the pantry or hall or in the most desirable place of all for the good of the city on the front porch. But to my mind the most objectionable feature of the flat rate only is that the company using such feels compelled to require "spotters" to go the rounds of the houses and count the lamps in use, for many people will add one or two more lamps without the trouble of notifying the company, or possibly exchange for the 16 cp. lamps on the contrast a few 32 cp ones.

The dual system of charging undoubtedly presents most desirable features and would in every way prove advantageous. Trusting that the suggestion may be of assistance to the city council in dealing with the franchise, I remain,

Yours very truly,

HERB. B. COLLIER.

DISEASE IN THE SCHOOLS

More than 100,000 children of school age are annually laid prostrate by the three preventable diseases of diphtheria, tuberculosis and scarlet fever, and 20,000 of these illnesses terminate fatally. In diphtheria and scarlet fever the infection generally passes from pupil to pupil in the early stage of the disease, which only medical inspection can detect.

How widespread may be the infection resulting from the presence of one source of contagion is forcibly demonstrated by an occurrence in a school at Millgrove, Ohio, where a boy with incipient measles infected every member of the school, including the teacher, so that they all fell sick within ten days. If discovered early, the sick are not only prevented from infecting the well, but are, in most cases, easily cured. In one year about 700 pupils with diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis were found attending the schools of Massachusetts. During the same period several thousand children with other contagious diseases, such as measles, mumps, grippe, and syphilis were excluded from these schools in the interest of health. There can be no doubt that the early discovery of these ailments prevented them from infecting hundreds of other children. Over 15,000 cases of contagious eye diseases were found in New York City schools in one year, and 65,000 other children were excluded for various transmissible ailments ranging from diphtheria to whooping-cough. In Philadelphia about 10,000 of the school attendants during the year are excluded at some time, because of diseases which menace the health of their associates.—From "Slaughter of the Innocents," in June Technical World Magazine.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"WHY, Dad!"

Richard sprang forward and grasped his father's hand in both his own, while the old man eyed his son with a strange, conflicting mixture of reproach and parental love.

"Dicky," he sighed, "I'm glad to see you all right, my boy, but you've given your poor old dad a heap of worry. Now, what's all this mess about?"

The greeting between father and son was brief, because the bombshell revelation of the son's identity brought another powerful actor to the fore. To Harriet it had come as a tingling relief, for in a flash she understood why Richard had concealed his name, and she found herself smiling happily in answer to his father's courteous bow, but to Jacob Renwyck the effect was far more serious, inasmuch as he seemed to be the target at which this particular shell was aimed. In speechless rage he glared at his former colleague, glared also at the son and finally glared more fiercely still at Michael Corrigan, who advanced, with a smile of greeting, to the visitor.

"Hello, Bill! How are you?" he began cordially as he shook the other's mighty fist.

"Hello, Mike!" was the return greeting. "Where's the tarantula that calls my boy a thief?"

He did not await an answer, but turned instinctively toward his enemy, and for an instant the two fearless promoters stood sizing up each other in utter silence; then Jacob Renwyck spoke.

"I do!" he cried as it flashed upon him how Richard might have used his information in the harbor deal. "I do, you villain, and I include you in the charge! You sent your son to spy upon me, to steal my plans by a miserable, underhand fraud! You"—

"Jacob, Jacob!" wailed Mrs. Renwyck. "Be careful what you say, please!"

"S-s-h!" admonished Uncle Michael. "Don't spoil the fun, Julia. Let the old boys go it. It'll do 'em good."

The old boys in question proceeded to go it, but not for the sake of fun, nor did it seem to do them any good whatever. When Mr. Renwyck paused to catch his breath Bill Williams saw his chance and took the floor.

"Why, you old spavined skate," he thundered, doubling up his hairy fist, "don't think that you can cover up your tracks by abusing me or my boy either! You tricked me away from Texas on a blind trail, that's what you did, while your buccaneering dummies jumped my claim in Austin! Fooled me on a cold scent, did you, you fox? Well, I'll have your brush yet if I have to auction off my last stump tailed steer to do it!"

"Dear me!" quavered the horrified Miss Schermerly. "What frightful language!"

"Extrawd'n'ry!" nodded the British ambassador, who had not the remotest idea what it was all about. "Most extrawd'n'ry! 'Pon my word!"

The two gladiators were now the center of a human ring, which gathered closer and closer about them, each glowering at his hated adversary, each waiting for the final crash to come.

"I didn't!" shouted Mr. Renwyck.

"You did!" the Texan bellowed in flat contradiction. "Why did you call my son a thief?"

Mr. Renwyck looked abashed.

"Well," he hedged, "perhaps I was wrong in that. I—I apologize."

"Won't do!" stormed the angry cattle king. "You've got to settle this with me! Understand me, sir—with me!"

Matters between the two frenzied financiers, both equally courageous and both equally enraged, had by this time risen to an alarming pitch, and it devolved upon Mr. Corrigan to prevent a personal encounter. A telegraph messenger had come to the door, and the lawyer himself received the dispatch. He tore open the envelope, glanced at the contents, smiled and turned to the two contestants.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," he urged, "you can accomplish nothing by tearing each other to pieces. I suggest that we dismiss the major portion of our audience, then settle this dispute in the bosom of our respective, gentle minded families."

Even Mr. Renwyck saw the wisdom of this sage suggestion, and in a moment more the detectives and Mr. Parker were requested to wait outside, while the servants were for the time dismissed. There remained in the hall, besides the active threads of the hopeless snarl, Sir Rodney Hickwich, Miss Schermerly and Miss Sempton. Both ladies, being like members of the family—not to refer to their human feminine curiosity—made no move to leave, but the British ambassador, glad of any excuse, took up his hat and gloves. He rather fancied that he had happened upon some private though loosely conducted sanitarium, and during this temporary lull in the tempest he tapped Richard on the shoulder and said in a shaking tone:

"Er—pardon me, young man, I haven't the remotest idea what all this means, and I seem to have stirred it up myself by innocently asking for my friend, Lord Croyland. Since you—er—since you had his name awhile ago, could you chance to inform me where I might find his—ah—person?"

"Yes," replied Richard, with a glint of merriment lighting up his eyes. "You will find his person—somewhat damaged, to be sure—in St. Luke's hospital, New York. Send in your card and ask for Mr. Richard Williams. The earl changed his name for fear that a submarine would blow him up."

"What!" exclaimed Miss Sempton under her breath. She had called frequently at the hospital and had spent several long afternoons in administering cheer to the sick man, which the sick man had reciprocated through the assistance of the rosy cheeked nurse with flowers, confectionery, and so on, for both of which the nurse had an excellent taste. Miss Sempton had belonged for years to a hospital visiting association and flower mission and had never been so glad of it before. "So he's an English lord! How nice! Goodness me! I always knew he was something out of the common. I think I'll have him call as soon as he is able," her thoughts ran.

"Oh," said Sir Rodney, having taken a full minute to digest Richard's astounding bit of information, staring vacantly at the young man the while, "I—I don't understand, of course, but anything is preferable to this."

He waved his distinguished hand in the direction of all the asylumites collectively, bowed and departed on his way.

"I can give you some tidings of him, Sir Rodney," began Miss Sempton, following him out on the porch. "He was quite badly hurt in an automobile accident, but is doing well. I've been in to see him a number of times. Will you remember me most kindly to him and say that—Miss Sempton, you know—will be in again before long?"

"I shall be delighted, my dear young lady, and so, I am sure, will Croyland," answered the baronet, bowing himself away with an appreciation of the young lady's charm, couched in the earl's very words: "Ripping girl! Croyland always was a lucky beggar, by Jove!"

It may here be said that the ambassador, leaving Miss Sempton under the wistaria, indulging in dreams of a coronet which might and eventually did grace her brow, found his friend and gave him a hazy explanation of what he had seen at Irvington, though when the earl discovered how Richard had turned the tables on him, using a noble title for his own advantage, the Englishman failed to see that this stroke of genius was the least bit "clevah."

"Deuced bad form!" he muttered in unreasonable resentment, quite forgetting his own turpitude in the matter of name appropriation. "I wouldn't have believed that Williams fellow such a selfish beast, you know." However, in the pleasure he took in Miss Sempton's message the noble earl soon dismissed the other episode from his mind.

"Now," said Uncle Michael when the doors of the hall were closed, "we can breathe once more." He unfolded his telegram and smoothed it out with a soft, caressing hand, cleared his throat and began again: "I have here a message from a friend of mine in Austin, Texas, in which one or both of you gentlemen may perhaps be interested. It seems that the state legislature adjourned just after a certain deep water harbor bill was passed."

In truth, both gentlemen were more than interested, and in the tantalizing pause which the little lawyer made that poor old hackneyed pin might have again done service in dropping.

"Ha!" triumphantly shouted Jacob Renwyck, who could wait no longer. "I knew it! Longmatt!"

"Not on your life!" corrected the cattle king. "Matagorda City!"

Uncle Michael laughed.

"Which? Which?" both the assured speculators questioned in the same breath.

"Neither, gentlemen, and here's my advice to prove it." He laughed again and struck the telegram with his fist. "The joke's on both of you. Olivia!"

"What?"

Again there was a breathless pause.

"Julia," whispered the stately Miss Schermerly into Mrs. Renwyck's wondering ear, "I was positive from the first that some woman was mixed up in this affair. Her name is Olivia!"

Mrs. Renwyck rose to her feet, bristling.

"Olivia who?" she demanded sharply, though in the excitement no one paid the least attention to her, for Mr. Renwyck sank limp and stunned into his chair, while the puzzled Texan leaned against a table and turned the color of his reddest steer.

"But—but," stammered the champion of Longmatt, "I don't understand. Why, the legislature is fixed! I—I bought it!"

"So did I!" asserted the cattle king.

"Wrong again, gentlemen!" chuckled the little Irishman. "That august and honorable body can't—be—bought!"

"Explain!" cried Mr. Renwyck, tottering to his feet. "What do you mean, Michael? What do you know about it, anyway?"

"Lots," laughed Mr. Corrigan. "Besides, it's very simple when you get down to the facts. You see, there was a gentleman in New York the other day—the Hon. Mr. Kinwalt, I believe he is called—a man wielding quite a big stick among certain members of the legislature. You, Mr. Williams, mixed a toddy for him in San Antonio, while Jacob took him out to lunch in New York and presented him with a fine cigar."

The Texan and the New Yorker glared savagely, but Uncle Michael smiled blandly and continued:

"The Hon. Mr. Kinwalt, being thus beholden to both of you for your generous hospitality, became doubtful as to which to serve, and while struggling with his india rubber conscience a third party came along and offered him board and lodging in the penitentiary. All things being equal, he forgot both toddy and cigar and dumped his influence on the side of sweet Olivia and the Peace and Good Will Realty company. Am I clear?"

He was more than clear, for both of the old casehardened schemers saw at a glance how cleverly they had been overreached by a little one horse organization that masked a serpent's fang under the cloak of a pious, inoffensive title, with a guileless individual named Fishcall as its outward exponent.

"Good Lord," sighed Bill Williams, "and I sold 'em the land to do it with!"

Mr. Renwyck had done the same, but had not the grace to admit it.

"Who the devil is back of this Peace and Good Will Realty company?" he demanded, forgetting the presence of the ladies in his anger and chagrin.

The little Irishman made as graceful a bow as his embonpoint would permit.

"I am."

"You!" gasped Mr. Renwyck.

"Yes, Jakie, dear. I also interviewed the Hon. Mr. Kinwalt."

"But, man," stormed Mr. Renwyck, "don't you know that half my fortune is invested in that deal? You—you've swindled me!"

Bill Williams laid his hand on Mr Corrigan's shoulder and spoke calmly, but reproachfully:

"It was my pet scheme, Mike, and you knew it. Half my pile is gone too. I didn't think you'd do me up like that."

"I was merciful," said Uncle Michael coolly. "I left you each half. You won't starve. I might have taken all."

If Mr. Corrigan fancied that he was ironing out the crinkled shirt of trouble by proving to the rivals that neither one had been successful, he found himself vastly mistaken. The tempest was loosed again, and Richard the Brazen took a turn at the thunder box.

"Look here," he cried, striding up to Uncle Michael and spinning that portly little man about without deference to his age or size, "Mr. Corrigan, if you were twenty years younger I'd give you the soundest thrashing you ever had in all your life!"

At this surprising development the entire company, with the exception of the lawyer, were too amazed to do aught but stare at the furious young man. The furious young man continued, oblivious to his surroundings:

"I came to you in confidence, sir, as my attorney, at your own suggestion, and asked advice. I was helpless, as you knew, hanging between duty to dad and my pledge to Mr. Renwyck. You've swindled us all, sir—these gentlemen of their harbors, me of what I placed confidently in your hands—my honor."

"Honor!" sneered Mr. Renwyck. "Honor!"

"What!" bellowed the cattle king. "You knew all about it, Dick, and you didn't tell me! Oh, Dick, Dick!"

Richard turned to explain to his reproachful father, but Mr. Renwyck turned upon the young man fiercely.

"Ha!" he almost screamed. "So that's the reason you couldn't sign a draft? You had sold me to Michael, had you—sold me when in the kindness of my heart I tried to help an impoverished Englishman? Englishman!" he laughed derisively. "A spy, a traitor to me—yes, and to his own flesh and blood too!" The financier paused for breath, then wheeled upon his brother-in-law. "And you," he stormed—"you, with your arguments and your chuckling mask that hides a rascal! That's what you've been laughing at for the past three days, is it—you and your psalm singing Mr. Fishcall? You cheated me out of my land at Olivia! You've blackmailed the Texan legislature! You—you—you"—

"Oh, Jacob, darling!" sobbed Mrs. Renwyck, coming to his side as he sank, exhausted, into his chair.

"It is perfectly disgraceful!" sniffed Miss Schermerly. "I am almost tempted to go upstairs!" However, she successfully resisted temptation.

It seemed at this stage that poor little Mr. Corrigan had not a leg of honor to stand upon, and, to be correct, he did not attempt to stand, but sank into a seat and laughed until an apoplectic stroke seemed imminent. He was most aggravating, too, when he laughed.

"Goodness!" now observed the solemn Mr. Van der Awe, "He's worse than my poor Imogene!"

But Mr. Corrigan at last mastered his emotions, arose and, dabbing his eyes with his handkerchief, began to explain his case.

"Jacob," he said, "upon my honor, Richard never told me a single thing that I did not already know. My company was in the field long before he came to New York, and here are my papers to prove it. I knew every move of both of you, and while you and Bill were treating the legislature to whisky and cigars I got into the game myself. Our brazen young friend here had nothing to do with it whatever."

Richard heaved a sigh of deep relief, and old Bill Williams laughed.

"Look here, Mike," he said, "you've got all the money you want. Why in the name of common sense are you wading about in deep water harbors?"

"Several reasons," chuckled Uncle Michael. "First, I wanted the fun of the thing; second, I wanted a rap at Jacob, who is inclined to think he knows everything in the world; third, I wanted a joke on my friend, Bill Williams; fourth, I wanted to prove to you two old gray rats that your teeth are getting dulled by age; fifth, I had at heart the real welfare of the great state of Texas; sixth, I would not see a helpless legislature led astray; seventh, the Peace and Good Will Realty company is a bridal present I intend making to the son and daughter of two of my friends."

"What friends?" asked the two frenzied financiers together.

"Bill and Jake!" answered Mr. Corrigan, bursting into another laugh.

Four people flushed, two in anger, the other two for secret reasons of their own.

"Now, listen, boys," continued Uncle Michael earnestly. "You two have had a very foolish quarrel, and it's time to shake hands and make it up. So far as your harbor schemes are concerned, you are both out of the running. I own it—every share. I will turn my interest over to Richard, to do with as he chooses, but if I know him—and I'm inclined to think I do—I have a pretty fair idea as to how he will act. What do you say, Dicky, boy?"

Richard came forward and grasped the lawyer's hand.

"Mr. Corrigan," he said, "forgive me for what I said just now. I take it all back. You're the finest counsel on earth!"

"Oho!" chuckled the little man. "Changed your opinion, have you? Well, go on."

"I couldn't begin to thank you for what you have done for me," continued Richard, "and what that is I am now going to confess. I have been longing to do it for a week. But first let's settle this harbor tangle. I suggest that dad and Mr. Renwyck consolidate their interests with me and we'll open up at Olivia. Olivia is the best place for a harbor, anyway."

"Bully!" chuckled Mr. Corrigan, rubbing his plump hands until the skin was almost peeled. "Well, Jake? Well, Bill?"

"Um! Not a bad idea," admitted the cattle king, with a flickering smile. "What do you say, Renwyck?"

"I think," said the old financier slowly—"I think I'd rather wait for the confession this young man has mentioned. From what I know of him already it may lead to complications."

Richard smiled hopefully at Harriet and stepped to the center of the hall. He made a clean breast of it, beginning at his meeting with the real Lord Croyland, the automobile accident and the cool effrontery of the earl in taking the name of Richard Williams for his personal convenience. The Texan then told how he had been met by his host at the railroad station and how he had been mistaken for the Englishman. At this point Mr. Renwyck interrupted him.

"Excuse me," he said, "but why did you pose as some one else?"

"Well, you see," confessed Richard, blushing to the roots of his hair, "you informed me at the time that the Williams family was a—well, a generation of vipers, to be exact, and, besides, I knew that dad would rave if he knew I came."

"You scalawag!" laughed the cattle king. "What were you up to anyway?"

"I'm coming to that, dad," answered the young man, shyly casting another glance in Harriet's direction. That young lady had already turned for flight up the stairs when Richard stopped her with:

"No; wait, please, Miss Harriet. This concerns you. As I couldn't come here in my own name, Mr. Renwyck—and"—

Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

PURITY FLOUR

You can buy as little as a 7 pound cotton bag or in 14, 24, 49, and 98 pound sacks. Also in barrels and half-barrels

THIN light weight and transparent fabrics of all kinds are essential to comfort in midsummer weather, but there are many days, often the majority, during the summer season when heavier materials are demanded for comfort as well as for health. In ordering the outfit at this time of year much must be taken into consideration whether the heated term is to be spent at the seashore or inland, whether at a watering place or in a country house, whether in England or America. The fashionable woman, as a rule, has to provide for all, for the fashionable summer life now includes a stay, short or long, in every conceivable climate; and even the woman who plans a summer in only two places or perhaps one place has to face the constant and abrupt changes of weather.

Dainty and fascinating as are the gowns of the very thin order, those that possess some weight and warmth are most attractive also, and again there is an endless variety of choice in the materials displayed. Voile is a fabric that apparently is possessed of a hundred lives, for not a week goes by that some new and irresistibly tempting novelty does not appear under that term. There is not a great deal of warmth in most voiles, but they have to be lined with silk in order to look well, and the lining gives all the warmth needed. Then there are some varieties that have wool in their construction, and these really have some weight and warmth. The all silk are exquisite in color and texture, both in plain and figured effects, and the stripes are so varied in width of line and color that it is hard to decide when ordering a gown.

Light colors are for the moment not so smart as dark, all shades of blue, gray and brown being the favorites. Blue especially has asserted itself so strongly this season that it stands in imminent peril of sudden oblivion, for when any color becomes so very popular it ceases to appeal to the conservative and exclusive taste. Still, there are so many and such marvellously becoming shades of it that for a time, at all events, it will be smart. There is one shade that should be avoided—a crude, harsh navy blue that is at its worst in serge. The darker marine and pastel blues are far smarter, while in the brighter, lighter shades are some fascinating tones in pongee, voile and foulard. In the latter, mixed with white and in crêpe de Chine, most attractive gowns are turned out.

Crêpe de Chine is to be noted again as the chosen fabric for many a smart gown, but of a heavier quality, more on the charmeuse order and with the satin finish duller than last season. It is a fabric that is always in demand for summer and indeed for all the year—in summer for the street and in winter for the house. The all-in-one gown, with coat to match, or the coat and skirt with separate waist, are equally good in crêpe de Chine, and there is no hard and fixed law as to what shall be the model. In fact, the only positive order from Dame Fashion is that a becoming model be chosen, and with long, medium length and even quite short coats appearing as the latest styles it is not a difficult matter to choose wisely.

Collarless Coat Popular.

The collarless coat, with long V shape effect, is popular again this year, and the loose rather than the tight fitted effect is the more fashionable. Skirts are short, medium length or long; one favorite but uncomfortable and ungraceful model is the all round length that lies on the ground, not only at the back but in front and at the sides. Almost without exception the skirts of all the coat and skirt styles open at the side under a fold of the material or a blind flap. This gives a better opportunity for the skirt to fit well at the back. The habit back, the circular skirt with seam at the back, and in truth all the new skirts are far more easily made to look well fastened at the side.

All qualities of pongee are in great demand, and some of the new importations have considerable weight and some warmth, although pongee is always to be classed with the summer fabrics. Medua, tussor and tussah royal and rajah are among the names that designate the different qualities or weaves. White, gray, blue in all colors, old rose, brown in all shades and some exquisite tones of green are among the popular colors. Soutache and the heavier cord or rattail braid are both favorite trimmings, but there is nothing smarter than the folds of the material, with an edging of taffeta silk the same shade. A touch of contrast is given by the introduction of another color and material in the facings, and a black collar, cuffs and sash are often seen on the old rose, mustard yellow and natural color pongee; but the all-one tone in trimmings, lining and material is far smarter and more popular with more conservative taste. There is a curious shade in the heavy cream white pongee, the shade that is identical with old laces, and a gown of that shade trimmed with real Valenciennes in yoke and sleeves and braided in soutache of the same tone is delightfully smart and becoming.

Cloth is not a summer fabric, but there is often a day, in truth there are many days during the summer when a cloth gown is the only thing to wear. There are new cloths of such fine texture that, while possessing the desired quality of warmth, at the same time are so light in weight that they are quite suitable for summer. Lined with the thinnest of silks and made with unlined yoke and sleeves, they are really as cool as a voile gown lined with taffeta. The one-piece gown is the smartest model made on the princess lines, but with more fulness in the skirt than was fashionable six weeks ago. Then there are fascinating loose coats to be worn with these gowns. The cloth, always of the finest texture and lined with the softest of silk, makes an ideal garment to slip on over the gown if any protection be needed. The double skirt, or tunic effect, is also popular for the cloth gown, and white or the lightest shades of color are to be noticed in the newest and smartest gowns turned out on this order. Under the term "white" are many shades of extremely light gray, tan and yellow, so that if a woman takes up the fad of wearing nothing but white she can this year have a remarkable variety. The latest information from the headquarters of dress is somewhat disconcerting for any one who is fond of light and bright shades of color, for unless one of the shades of "white" or a vivid light blue be chosen there are presented for inspection a depressing number of dark colors from which to make selection. A bright, hard mauve is also put forward in the effort to gain favor, but like all extremes of style that appear in the beginning of the season the process of moderation soon eliminates the worst features, and if the color is unbecoming or too hard it is simply treated with such disdain that others are substituted, and in the meantime there is sufficient choice among the old-time favorites to enable any woman to be becomingly attired.

Sleeves and Skirts Still Problems.

Sleeves and skirts are still problems for the woman who wants only the very latest fashion. The introduction of pleats at the sides, the back and the front of many of the models seems to presage a revolution of style. As for the correct length of sleeve there is no one bold enough to assert that any stated length is the only one. Large sleeves look old fashioned, that is a fact, but the glove fitting sleeve is not obligatory. Coat sleeves are as small as possible, with no fulness at the top, but many of the dress sleeves are put in with fulness, and the sleeve below the elbow is obligatory from a late fashion standpoint, but not necessarily must it be long. The new sleeves are extremely smart and becoming and are not in any way exaggerated, but one fashion that is threatened will strike dismay to the hearts of the majority of womankind, the bishop sleeve effect, with the full puff below the elbow. This puff or pouch, as it might more correctly be termed, effectually hides any beauty of line or contour of the arm, and it is to be hoped it will never be approved.

FASHION DETAILS THAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW.

THE cry for long lines is still heard among fashionable women, who think that they must depend on their dressmakers to give them height as well as slenderness. It was to meet this demand that the pleasing soft silk dress shown herewith was designed, and it is highly recommended as a model for the home dressmaker to copy. There is really nothing very difficult in the style, and it lends itself exceptionally well to the making over of a half worn gown.

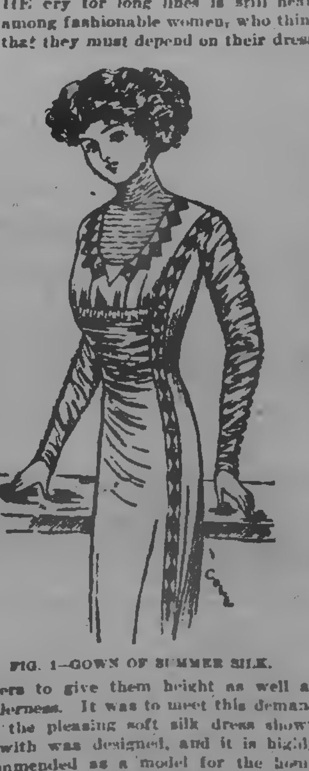

FIG. 1—GOWN OF SUMMER SILK.

Two materials can very easily be combined to carry out the style, using one for the under arm panel and the other for the front and back. A band of lace, or passementerie, serves to cover the joining of the sides and other sections. The front is slightly draped in crosswise folds, while the back is plainer but has the panel effect just the same.

IN the illustration is shown a particularly good model for a linen gown. The costume shown was developed in pale green linen, with trimmings of soutache braid. Linen covered buttons are also used on the skirt and sleeves.

The model is exceedingly plain and close fitting. The skirt, perfectly plain and close fitting at the sides and back, has a plain panel down the front which broadens into rectangular side pieces below the knees, five buttons on each side being used to trim the side extensions.

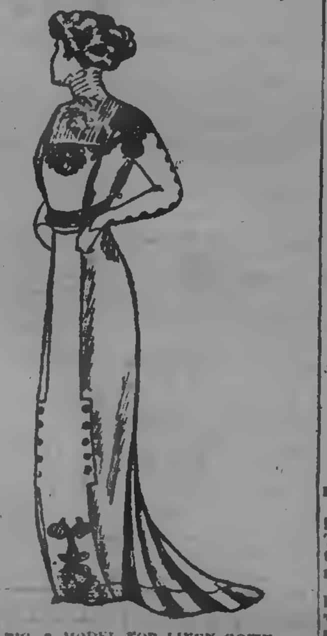

FIG. 2—MODEL FOR LINEN GOWN.

A BODICE which may be used as a separate waist or as part of a costume is shown in model No. 3. It is quite unusual in design, which is an infinite boon in a separate waist model. The material used is chiffon cloth, with trimming of embroidered net and a guimpe of white lace.

The model illustrated was made of yellowish ta[illegible] chiffon cloth and was to be worn with [illegible] suit of rajah of the same shade. Th[illegible] material is draped in a very graceful s[illegible] around the figure and is used in [illegible]quetaire fashion for the sleeves.

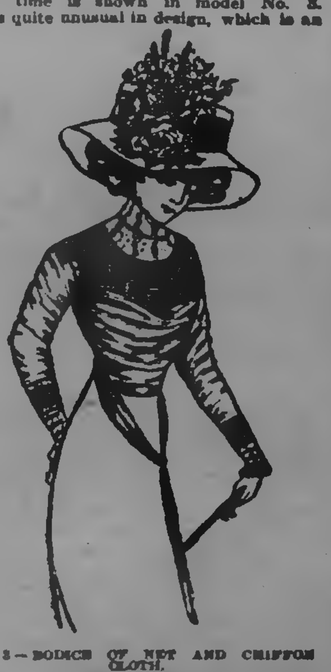

FIG. 3—BODICE OF NET AND CHIFFON CLOTH.

MANY DEATHS FROM TORNADO DEVASTATION IN THE SOUTH

Texas and Oklahoma Are Swept and Thirty Are Reported Dead in Town of Brownwood—Several More Are Killed in Depew and Key West, Okla.—North Dakota is Also a Sufferer.

Brownwood, Texas, May 31.—A tornado wrecked Zephyr, a village in Brown County, early yesterday, killing more than thirty persons, seriously wounding fifty and hurting a score of others. Extreme darkness made the catastrophe awful.

The known dead: C. A. Cabler and wife; County Clerk Thad Cabler, wife and two children; C. M. Charter, wife and child; Gertrude Houston, Oscar Ware, wife and three children; M. G. Simmons, wife and three children; Mrs. W. A. Ramsay and child; B. F. Brown and wife; Mrs. Tom Hart and child; Gibson Clois.

Among the seriously injured are: Robert Campbell, wife and four children; Dr. Wren and wife; Prof. Cloyes and family, and Capt. Collier and wife.

The storm formed half a mile southwest of Zephyr and swept down on the village, cutting a wide swath directly through the residence and business quarters.

Nearly fifty houses were demolished. Lightning struck a lumber yard and started a fire which destroyed an entire business block. No effort was made to fight the flames as the care of the dead and wounded demanded all attention.

A section hand pumped a handcar to Brownwood and spread the alarm. In two hours the Santa Fe Railroad was speeding a special train to Zephyr with nine surgeons and a score of Brownwood citizens.

Hundreds of persons in the country around Zephyr saved themselves by taking refuge in storm cellars.

The big stone school building and two churches at Zephyr were razed. Daylight found sixteen surgeons working on the wounded. Brownwood hurried her second relief train at noon yesterday, loaded with provisions, clothing and necessaries and forty nurses.

Two children were found dead yesterday two miles from Zephyr, having been blown that distance.

While the tornado's path was 300 yards wide, the twister swept the earth for a distance of only about eight miles. Its fury was more terrific than any previous tornado experienced in this region.

When the first relief party reached Zephyr, a desolate scene awaited. The hillsides were covered with debris of all kinds intermingled with bodies of animals and human beings. The ruins were dimly lighted by burning buildings and the cries of the wounded, rising above the screeching of the dying storm, directed the rescuers in their work.

Human bodies were found twisted about trees and distorted in inconceivable shapes. Survivors, mad with grief and terror, walked the streets almost naked, crying for relatives.

Ruin In Oklahoma.

Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, May 31.—Several persons were killed Saturday night in a tornado which devastated the Oklahoma towns of Key West and Depew. Forty or more are injured.

At least ten negroes were killed in Key West. Five are dead at Depew. The tornado swept over a wide stretch of farming country.

Following the wind came a deluge of rain. Floods then added their terrors to the situation. The wreckage of Key West soon was overwhelmed by the rising waters. Practically nothing was left of the town of 200 inhabitants. Rescuers hastened to the place, but could not cross Salt Creek, which had become a raging torrent.

Depew was destroyed by a double-twister that formed from that striking Key West and which traveled northwest and another coming from the east.

Eight Die In North Dakota.

St. Paul, Minn., May 31.—Special despatches received here state that seven persons are known to be dead, many are dying and over a score are seriously injured as a result of tornado which swept over northwestern Dakota last Saturday. The storm was especially severe at Langdon where the residence section of the city was practically wiped out, four people killed and twenty injured.

The tornado swept up the James river from Ypsilanti to Jamestown, demolishing farmhouses and destroying much valuable property. The farmhouse of George Graves, near Ypsilanti was blown into the James river and Mrs. Graves and her two young daughters were instantly killed. Two other members of the family were injured.

CHANGES RUMORED

Sir Frederick Borden is Mentioned as Successor to Lord Strathcona.

St. John, N.B., May 31.—The Evening Star (Liberal) says: "The Star is informed by men closely in touch with public affairs that New Brunswick will in a very short time have two representatives in the Cabinet, and that Nova Scotia will have only one.

"Everybody knows that in a few weeks Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, will leave for London to attend the defence conference. It is hinted that he will not come back, but will carry with him his appointment to the office of Canadian High Commissioner. Lord Strathcona has for several years been desirous of retiring, and it is intimated that he will do so this summer.

"Sir Frederick's promotion leaves vacant the portfolio of militia, and it is to this office that report says Mr. Carvell, M.P., is to be called. Mr. Carvell's ability has long been recognized and his elevation to a more responsible position than he now occupies has several times been predicted."

REALIZE DANGER TO THE ALLIANCE

Rome, May 31—The German Kaiser, realising the importance thereof to the stability of the triple alliance, has attempted to arrange a return visit to Rome by the Emperor Francis Joseph or the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of King Humbert's official visit to Vienna in 1881. The opposition of the Vatican could not be overcome, but the idea was to get the Emperor to write to the King of Italy that old age prevented his making the long journey to Rome, thus giving the Italian King an opportunity for offering to receive him in some other city. The scheme failed as the Emperor would not consent, basing his refusal on the ground that it was his duty as a Catholic sovereign not oppose the wishes of the Pope.

Runner Accidentally Shot.

Pittsburg, May 31.—Poised at the starting point of a foot race, Percy Barber, aged 19, member of the senior class of the Pittsburg Academy, was accidentally shot in the head and probably fatally wounded by Prof. H. B. Fetterman, a member of the faculty of the school, who was acting as starter. Fetterman was taken into custody.

Calgary Real Estate Soars.

Calgary, May 31.—Another large real estate deal was put through yesterday, when the Union Bank purchased two lots on Eighth avenue with thirty-foot frontage, the price paid being $1,000 a foot. Less than four years ago these lots were sold for $20,000.

DOUBLE DROWNING AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, May 31.—Harry McKeown, 476 York street, 25 years of age, and his companion, Abe Millburn, were drowned in the bay Saturday afternoon, while sailing in a gasoline launch.

They went to the beach with David McKeown, 310 North Catherine street, uncle of Harry McKeown. The uncle was in the front of the boat steering and had his back turned to the other two, who were working in the stern, in some way he does not know how both the young men fell out of the boat. The uncle did not know how to manage the boat and drifted about in the bay until he was towed in.

VALUABLE NECKLACE SENT TO TORONTO

New York, May 31.—A big French steamer trunk, brought into port by a wealthy Boston woman, has revealed to the customs men, they say, not only $3,000 worth of smuggled goods, concealed under a false bottom, but also the fact that such trunks are being regularly manufactured by a firm in Paris, "especially for the American trade." The exposure resulted from a search in three trunks brought in by Mrs. Fremont Cheesebrough, wife of a rich Bostonian. Among a bundle of bills and invoices was one showing that Mrs. Cheesebrough had purchased a necklace costing 90,000 francs ($18,000). This her husband says is now in Toronto, Canada, awaiting the tariff decision on set pearls. He said that if the duty was reduced from 60 to 10 per cent, he would immediately bring in the jewels.

RUSSIAN LEADER HAS PASSED AWAY

St. Petersburg, May 31.—Ossip Y. Pergament of Odessa, a member of the Douma, against whom the Minister of Justice Saturday announced proceedings charging complicity in the escape from Russia in 1907 of Olga Stein, died yesterday from heart failure. He was one of the most noted leaders of the Jews, a leader of the Constitutional Democratic party and one of the most prominent members of the Russian Bar.

M. Pergament was the attorney for Mme. Stein at her first trial charged with having committed a series of embezzlements and forgeries and it is said that when he became convinced of the hopelessness of the defence he virtually insisted upon his client jumping her bail and going abroad. She was extradited from the U. S. and sentenced to 16 months.

Awakened by Fire.

Brantford, May 31.—Fire early yesterday morning destroyed the handsome residence of Isaac Rosenfelt. The family almost perished in the flames. One of the sleepers was first disturbed and was able to get to the telephone to send in the alarm. On his return the others, including children, had barely time to get out. The origin of the fire is unknown. Loss [illegible].

VOTE IN FAVOR OF THE PURITY WARE BY-LAW TO-MORROW

Everyone who does not vote is against it. The aldermen have spent a lot of time in looking into this project, and they are satisfied that it is in the interest of the City that the by-law should be carried.

If all the conditions of the by-law are not complied with, that will be the end of it, and the City will not have to bear the expense, as the City Clerk holds a marked check for $250. for that purpose.

We must have new manufacturies; this is a good proposition and if the ratepayers turn it down, the council will understand that the people do not wish them to try to get other factories here.

Support this by-law and trust to the City Solicitor and to the Aldermen to see that the interests of the City are safely protected. It behooves every citizen to see to it, that this by-law is carried.

The small town of Strathroy granted $20,000 to the Royal Furniture Co. on Friday last, by a majority of 84 over the required two-thirds vote.

VOTE FOR THE BY-LAW TO-MORROW.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

Chauffeur Guilty.

New York, May 31. Wm. E. Darragh, the chauffeur who ran down and killed Ingvaard Trimble, the 11-year-old son of a well-known Kentucky lawyer, in an uptown street on March 27 last, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree.

Darragh, who is 21 years old, after his machine had knocked down the boy and crushed him, put on extra speed and fled, leaving his victim to die in the street. He lost his derby hat during his flight and by means of this his identity was established. He was traced to Texas, where his arrest occurred.

Slashes His Throat.

Chatham, May 31.—Responding to a hurried call at 12 o'clock Saturday night, Policemen Dezelia and Dodson found John Halter, aged about 55, in a pool of blood in a ditch near the Brooks Farm, with his throat and both wrists cut.

Halter had a few minutes before wandered into the Paxton farm house nearby, where he turned on the light, selected a butcher knife from the kitchen, and then calmly walked out on the roadside to suicide.

Went to Sleep on Track.

Belleville, May 31.—Alfred Page, aged 55, a gardener, was killed on the G.T.R. track early yesterday morning, being completely cut in two. It is supposed he was drunk and fell asleep on the track. He had a wife and a grown-up family in Buffalo.

Accidentally Shot.

Morden, Man., May 31.—John Pieper, aged 26, was accidentally shot Sunday afternoon by Wm. Shorter while gopher shooting. The bullet lodged behind Pieper's ear and he soon died. His mother is prostrated. His father left for Ontario Saturday, and an effort will be made to intercept him at Sault Ste. Marie.

Big Mill for Victoria Harbor.

Montreal, May 31.—Robert Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., who is now in England, has floated his enterprise for the erection of a large mill at Victoria Harbor, with a daily output of 5,000 barrels, doubling the company's output. Mr. Meighen will sail from Liverpool June 4.

"Adam God" Goes to Prison.

Kansas City, Mo., May 31.—The jury in the case of James Sharp, or "Adam God," charged with the murder of Policeman Michael Mullane in a religious riot here on Dec. 8 last, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Sharp was sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

Grand Jury's Request.

New Westminster, B.C., May 31.—The grand jury on Friday suggested to Justice Irving the advisability of some kind of legislation whereby barristers would be prevented from charging excessive fees to clients.

RATEPAYERS WILL VOTE ON BY-LAW

Purity Ware, Limited, Proposition Will be Pronounced Upon To-morrow—The Main Features of the By-law.

To-morrow the ratepayers of Peterborough will vote upon a by-law to aid Purity Ware, Limited, an industry which will be of great benefit to the city.

It is proposed to give said company ten acres of land costing $3000 on their erection of buildings and completing and equipping the shop at a cost of about $160,000 to $200,000 and on their undertaking to employ not less than 100 hands the first year.

To lend said Company $50,000 at 4 per cent interest, to be repaid to the city in 10 equal annual payments.

The repayment to be secured by mortgage on the land, buildings and fixed machinery.

The people who are putting up the most of the capital are a well known manufacturing firm of New York, who have been 50 years in the business and are rated very high—this is a guarantee for business methods and success. Every precaution is being taken to secure the repayment of the loan.

If this opportunity is let pass it will be hopeless to attempt to build up the city by new manufactories, as this promises to be a large concern and already other municipalities are after it.

The factory will be within city limits and is well located for the purpose. We must take factories subject to the proprietors' selections, they must be somewhere, and the proprietors place them to suit their requirements—the general benefit to the city is the same.

The polls will be open from nine o'clock till five and the polling places are as follows:—

Polling Subdivision Nos. 1 and 2.—Place, B. McGill's grocery, corner Aylmer and Lake streets. Deputy Returning Officer, Josiah Robertson, Poll Clerk, W. VanEvery.

Polling Subdivision No. 3.—Place, L. Spry's, 210 Stewart street. Deputy Returning Officer, F. J. A. Hall. Poll Clerk, John Comstock.

Polling Subdivision Nos. 4, 5 and 6.—Place, the City Council Chambers. Deputy Returning Officer, Angus McIntosh. Poll Clerk, J. P. Bryson.

Polling Subdivision Nos. 7 and 8.—Place, A. J. Warne's 356 Charlotte st. Deputy Returning Officer: J. M. Greene Poll Clerk, Henry Greene.

Polling Subdivision No. 9.—Place, N. Routley's 392 Brock street. Deputy Returning Officer, John Sawers. Poll Clerk, N. Routley.

Polling Subdivision Nos. 10 and 11.—Place, Mrs. Mann's store, 601 George street. Deputy Returning Officer, A. Sawers. Poll Clerk, G. H. Howson.

Polling Subdivision No. 12.—Place, Mrs. Wm. Lee's shop, Smith street. Deputy Returning Officer, T. W. Robinson. Poll Clerk, J. H. Metheral.

Polling Subdivision Nos. 13 and 14.—Place, the former Village Hall. Deputy Returning Officer, John Malane. Poll Clerk, Robert Hamilton.

Those entitled to vote on the by-law are free-holders [illegible]

STARVED IN THE MIDST OF PLENTY

Lockport, May 31.—Mrs. Edward Skinner died Saturday night from starvation. Almost four months ago she swallowed a dose of sulphuric acid in an attempt to end her life on account of domestic troubles. The lining of her mouth and throat was destroyed and for weeks nourishment was taken with the greatest difficulty. About three weeks ago it became impossible to administer food and the woman began to waste away and when death ended her sufferings Saturday night, she had become almost a skeleton.

The coroner yesterday issued a certificate of death from starvation.

BANKERS PRAY AT A BANQUET

New York, May 31.—Elmer Ellsworth Black, of the banking firm of N. W. Harris & Co., and who was to have been toastmaster at a dinner given by that firm in the Plaza Saturday night, was stricken ill in his apartments in that hotel Saturday and taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where an operation was performed. While the dinner was in progress word that Mr. Black was dying was sent to the party. N. W. Harris, president of the company, called on the one hundred and seven men who were present to rise while he and they prayed silently for the recovery of Mr. Black.

Georgia Strike Is Over.

Atlanta, Ga., May 31.—The strike of the firemen on the Georgia Railroad, which began May 17, was officially declared off at 8 p.m. Saturday. An hour and a half later the first train after the resumption of service was sent out of Augusta with a negro fireman in the cab.

The men return to work under conditions existing at the time the strike began until final adjustment is made; all negro firemen at the terminal stations will be dispensed with; all discharged brotherhood firemen will be reinstated.

The Rise In Wheat Prices.

Ottawa, May 31.—The census and statistics monthly report shows that the price of wheat in the British markets has continued to rise. At the end of April and beginning of May the best English was being quoted at 47 shillings per quarter. The American speculation may have influenced prices, but there is also a scarcity of English wheat, which is required by millers for flour.

BONNYCASTLE DALE FINDS REMAINS OF THE "CONDOR"

Mysterious Disappearance of Warship With 140 Officers and Men in 1901 Seems Solved at Last—Naturalist Discovers Wreckage on West Coast of Vancouver Island—Vessel Was Never Heard of After.

Vancouver, B.C., May 31.—The wreck of the ill-fated Condor, the British sloop of war, lost in December, 1901, has, it is believed, been located off Long Beach, 14 miles south of Clayoquet, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A heavy spar, evidently attached to other wreckage, over which the heavy surf was breaking, was observed floating for several days, and on its breaking away and floating ashore, it was recognized as a navy spar, stamped with the Admiralty mark, and patched with copper in navy style. Near her, previously, a jib-boom, stamped with the name "Condora" and several rocket cases, marked similarly, came ashore.

An obstruction, which looks like the hull of a submerged vessel, is visible from the shore at low tide, about a mile and a half from land.

The Condor left Esquimalt for Honolulu, Dec. 3, [illegible], with 140 men. She was to engage in gun-laying off the straits for several days, but from the time of her departure, nothing has been heard, but some little wreckage has floated ashore.

It is believed that the vessel, with high bulwarks, was pooped by a heavy sea in the gale which raged for several days, and before the water had a chance to run off, another sea struck her, and she foundered.

The news of the discovery of the long missing sloop of war was brought from the coast by Bonnycastle Dale, a naturalist and journalist, who has communicated his discovery to the British Admiralty. He regards the evidence of identity as incontrovertible, and it is expected that immediate investigations will be made by the Admiralty upon his report.

COUNT ZEPPELIN ACCOMPLISHES ANOTHER GREAT FLIGHT

German Inventor and Aeronaut Makes a Trip of 456 Miles Extending Over 22 Hours and at Last Reports Was Still Traveling Southward—Great Crowds Witness His Feat in All Parts of the Country.

Berlin, May 31.—Count Zeppelin, whose remarkable performance in his first airship brought unbounded honors to the inventor, yesterday accomplished the most striking feat in his career. He guided his Zeppelin II. from Friedrichshafen to Bitterfield, a distance of more than 456 miles, without landing. The journey lasted nearly 22 hours, and as far as is known Count Zeppelin is still in the air, on the return journey to Friedrichshafen. He had already beaten all records for dirigible balloons, with the opportunity of greatly improving the performance.

It was announced and widely distributed in special editions of the newspapers that the count would come to Berlin and land at the Tempie of Parade Grounds. Hundreds of thousands gathered there Friday afternoon. The Emperor and Empress, several of the princes and the leading military officials were present.

Toward evening searchlights were set to work, in anticipation of the approach of the airship. Soldiers kept an enormous space cleared until half-past ten o'clock, when a despatch from Bitterfield announced that the airship was returning to the starting point at Friedrichshafen, which caused the most intense disappointment.

Count Zeppelin, who personally was in charge of the airship and whose hand was on the tiller during the greater part of the journey, had not allowed a word to be made public relative to his intention to undertake an endurance trip.

The voyage began under rather unfavorable conditions. There was a lowering sky, rain clouds and a strong side wind when the airship left the floating hall shortly after 9 o'clock Friday night. The residents did not pay much attention to this, as they were accustomed to night flights.

Early in the morning the people of Treuchtlingen, a small city in Central Bavaria, were awakened by the noise of the propellers of the craft, which was passing slowly at a low altitude. At this place the count dropped a card, divulging his intention to proceed further north. This was the first occasion he had journeyed over Bavaria, and his arrival an hour and a half later at Nuremburg caused the greatest surprise to thousands of pleasure-seekers.

The ship manoeuvred over the city and then a card was thrown out, stating that a greater amount of water and benzine had been used than was expected and the craft would descend to the surface of Lake Dutzenteich to replenish the water supply. This, however, was not carried out, owing to the large number of boats on the lake. Count Zeppelin continued his cruise onward without interruption in a direct line for Berlin, passing over several towns at a low altitude, amid the cheers of the populace, until he reached the frontiers of Saxony, where the airship was headed straight for Leipzic. Instead of landing the count put his craft through a series of manoeuvres for half an hour, coming at times comparatively close to the tops of the buildings. He then went on, crossing Halle to Bitterfield. No time was wasted there and to everybody's surprise the airship, after describing a great circle, turned again and sailed to the south.

With Count Zeppelin in the airship were two engineers and a crew of seven.

TO TAX MUNICIPALITIES

The attempt to load upon the municipalities, rural and urban, even a part of the burden of removing level crossings from their present dangerous condition, was sharply resented by Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., whose remarks as reported in Hansard, are as follows:

Mr. Sexsmith. I think it would be a mistake to place any more burdens on the municipalities. I think the minister knows that the urban and rural municipalities of the Dominion, or, to speak more particularly of the province in which I live, are heavily taxed at the present time to keep up their schools and highways. To make them liable for another burden, it seems to me would be unfair.

Mr. Graham. This has been in the Act for years.

Mr. Sexsmith. If there has been no action taken to relieve the municipalities I think the time has come when it should and they should be responsible for removing it. If the government wish to assist I have no objection, but when it is proposed to further tax the municipalities I certainly object. The municipalities are over burdened with taxation now.

There can be no question that but for the sturdy opposition thus given to the attempt, the Laurier Government would have placed upon the rural municipalities especially, a load greater than they can bear. The G. T. P. can get ten millions for the asking, or any other favor, but the poor farmer can get little else than taxes, either direct, as in this case, or indirect, in the lessened value of his farms brought about by the over-speedy development of the west.

THE LUST OF MONEY

There was a time when Canadians were in a position to sermonise on the subject of grain and point to their neighbor's breathless chase after the almighty dollar. We are fast getting to the point, if we are not already there where money is a national fetish. A wave not only of materialism, but of feverish greed seems to be sweeping over this land and the effect, especially upon the rising generation, is already being felt in the number of convictions for gambling and embezzlement. Success is being estimated by the rapidity with which men reach the possession of a certain amount of money and with our mining, wheat growing and even our steady going commercial enterprises haste to be rich is coloring the whole view of life. Young fellows are staking their own money and sometimes that of others in the wheat pit. Women are putting their savings into mining stocks and grey haired preachers are following the stock markets with an interest they ought to have in more enduring things. Canada is today in need of a prophet who will raise against this wave of materialism a ringing cry of warning. —Home Journal.

The greed of gain, the lust of money, which the Bible declares to be the root of all evil is taking hold of Canada after the manner of an epidemic. "Give us plenty of money" is the cry "and we can avoid all avoidable evils." It is this crazy heresy that is at the bottom of the whole trouble. It is not realized that wealth as the world understands it does not consist in possessions but in the disproportionate distribution of those possessions. If every man, woman and child was worth $100,000, we should be on a par of poverty, not of riches. To be rich is not to have as much as others, but more. It is fluctuation, which riches consist in and it is fluctuation that makes poverty all the poorer. It is because of all this that communism is impossible. Riches depend upon the desire to amass them and that desire depends upon the rise and fall of the market which the enriched man knows how to take advantage of. It is of course well known that French people in France are possessors of evenly distributed wealth, but the outside world furnishes the corresponding antithesis required. Otherwise there would be no rise and fall and therefore no such thing as getting or being rich. That a man might possess land, cattle, houses, etc. in abundance would place him simply at his natural limit. He cannot eat or sleep any more than before and it is not in the abundance of these that "being rich" consists. It is for this reason therefore that the love of money is really the root of all evil, since it depends for its gratification upon the loss of others. A world of very rich men is and necessarily must be one of a multitude of very poor also.

WE MUST HAVE IT HERE

The special article writer of the Mail and Empire, writing of German national insurance, says:

As regards insurance against accident, Dr. Charles H. Jaeger gave the following example in an address before the American Academy of Medicine: "If a mason whose wages amount to $316 yearly falls from a scaffolding and injures his chest, he immediately receives the sick benefits and hospital treatment at the expense of the Employers' Accident Insurance Corporation. This costs the corporation $76. During this time his family, composed in the chosen example of a wife and two children under 15, receives a pension of $39. If at the end of the hospital treatment the injured man is totally incapacitated for labor, he receives an annual pension of $210. If he dies because of his injuries his family receives a funeral benefit of $21, and a pension of $160 a year. The widow receives this pension until her death or remarriage. In the latter case she receives a sum equal to $190. The children receive a pension until they are 15 years of age." Insurance against invalidism and old age have followed from the sickness and accident insurance, and is compulsory upon all persons more than sixteen years old, regularly employed. They are permitted to drop the insurance when their annual wages exceed $500.

x x x x x

It is estimated that 350,000 people are yearly getting the benefit of these wonderful machines, in addition to a skilful medical treatment that in Canada could only be obtained by persons of means; and that this treatment reduces the period of convalescence by one-third or one-half. Another benefit of the system is that in case of accident or death the victim's family or friends are not compelled to go to law to prove damages and negligence on the part of the employer. Unless it can be proved that a workingman caused the accident intentionally the employer is held liable, and no contributory negligence on the part of the injured man can be pleaded in defence. In round numbers 11,500,000 are insured against sickness; more than 18,000,000 against accident, and almost 14,000,000 against invalidism and old age. After all claims for the year have been met a huge sum remains in the hands of the government; and of this surplus already $100,000,000 has been applied to the erection of model workmen's houses, hospitals, baths and health resorts. It would appear that in Germany compulsory insurance is an extremely profitable undertaking.

The plan sketched above, by which the Germans protect their working-class is better than anything Socialism can suggest, for it does not conflict with the workman's liberty, while giving him very present help in time of need and trouble. It is such measures as these that show how wisely a nation can be governed, and causes Germans to remain happy and contented under an enormous burden of military taxation and waste. Why can Canadian workmen not have such a boon? Is it because the selfishness of the capitalist, exploiter and contractor is so great that they think only of themselves. The day has come for less bombast of enterprise, more economy and greater consideration for the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The latest thing in fire-fighting seems to be the production of an intensified form of Scotch mist.

It is contended that evil consists always in mere excess. This would not apply to profanity we suppose.

Wolves have increased in Algonquin Park so that they threaten the extinction of the deer. It is a strange thing that the removal of these pests who are the "one fly in the sportsman's ointment," cannot be brought about.

The betting evil has struck Peterborough hard. The woodbine races and the little boys are like Derby day and the city clerks of London. It should be tempered before it does damage. The touts driven from New York are thronging Canada.

"Compulsory insurance has stood the test of a quarter of a century in Germany, and though the laws which regulate it are revised and improved almost annually, the principle itself is as thoroughly established as the principle of protection." It is only necessary to say that the Globe considers the Germans as protectionists quite too silly for anything. Which is right?

It is quite probable from late developments that the twelve apostles were higher critics. It is also quite probable that much learning is making some people mad, and that these things have really been hidden from the wise as the Good Book says. According to the McMaster finding daily bulletins of "progress and truth" should be hung outside that college every morning like the weather-bulletins, which they would probably rival in accuracy.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 26.—While hearing recitations of one of her classes in the Wheeling, Mo., public school, yesterday, Miss Lizzie Dauncher, a pretty girl, twenty-two years old, suddenly became a raving maniac. Pupils called assistance from a store near by and the young woman was taken into custody and this morning brought to St. Joseph and placed in State Hospital No. 2. Miss Dauncher, it is said, became worried because of the backwardness of some of her pupils, and this, together with overwork, is said to have caused her mind to fail.

Mr. Wilkins, C.E., P.L.S., of Norwood, was discussing fish the other day when he remarked that the Indians, amongst whom he has lived a great deal in the north and west, call a pike a kenon jay, and the large pike a muskenonjay, or as we call it maskinonge. Many people insist that a pike and maskinonge are not the same, differing in spotting and ground, but Mr. Wilkins says that the same difference exists between fish of admittedly the same species. The pickerel comes within the same classification also.

The Lundy Water By-law discussion has developed considerable heat. While the council, headed by Ald. Gillespie and the Mayor accept full responsibility for the by-law, and it is a serious one, it is open to others always to differ. Mr. Kendrey stands to gain very largely by the acquisition of factories. Every time a hundred horse power is taken from the visible supply his Auburn power goes up in value. The one thousand horse power required by the new company will take up about all the Hydraulic Co. has to spare, or nearly so, therefore, for the next factory Mr. Kendrey's power is the nearest available. It is at considerable personal sacrifice, therefore, that he opposes the by-law, and he must be given full credit for it.

THE STORY OF ESAU WOOD

Esaw Wood sawed wood!
Esaw Wood would saw wood!
All the wood Esaw Wood saw Esaw Wood would saw. In other words, all the wood Esaw saw to saw Esaw sought to saw.
Oh, the wood Wood would saw! And oh, the wood-saw with which Wood would saw wood.
But one day Wood's wood-saw would saw no wood, and thus the wood Wood sawed was not the wood Wood would saw if Wood's wood-saw would saw wood.
Now, Wood would saw wood with a wood-saw that would saw wood, so Esaw sought a saw that would saw wood.
One day Esaw saw a saw saw wood as no other wood-saw Wood saw would saw wood.
In fact, of all the wood-saws Wood ever saw saw wood Wood never saw a wood-saw that would saw wood as the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood would saw wood, and I never saw a wood-saw that would saw as the wood-saw Wood saw would saw until I saw Esaw Wood saw wood with the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood.
Now, Wood saws wood with the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood.
Oh, the wood the wood-saw Wood saw would saw!
Oh, the wood Wood's woodshed would shed when Wood would saw wood with the wood-saw Wood saw saw wood!
Finally, no man may ever know how much wood the wood-saw Wood saw would saw, if the wood-saw Wood saw would saw all the wood the wood-saw Wood saw would saw!

LOCAL LABOR CONDITIONS FOR APRIL

The Labor Gazette for May contains the following account of labor conditions in Peterborough and district;

GENERAL CONDITION OF THE LABOR MARKET.

The general condition of the labor market during April showed an improvement over the previous month. The ratepayers carried a bylaw to provide $120,000 for the erection of a new dam and pumping station for the waterworks department, but disapproved a bylaw from the city council asking for $15,000 for the construction of a power house at the waterworks dam.

The Central Milling Company's directors met and declared 8 per cent. dividend; it is their intention to double the capacity of the mill this summer and to turn out 400 barrels of flour per day.

Custom returns for the month of March show an increase of $4000 over the figures of March last year. The increase in railway traffic, in bank clearings and customs revenue all point to improved commercial conditions.

The annual general meeting of the Canadian General Electric Co. was held on March 29. The management presented a satisfactory financial statement; the profits of last year's operations were somewhat in excess of those of the preceding year, presenting an addition to the credit side of profit and loss. The current liabilities were more than cut in half the reduction being from $2,191,266.00 to $1,095,123.88.

The barbers have signed a petition and have presented it to the city council asking that a bylaw be passed to close barber shops at 11 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES

Agriculture— Farmers have been very busy, although the season has been somewhat backward.

Lumbering—The lumber companies are all busy getting their logs cut. The Baker Lumber Company has about twenty-five cribs to bring down and thirty-five men left the city to drive back to Eel's Lake to bring logs for the Peterborough Lumber Co. The McDonald Lumber Co. have also a large gang of men bringing logs for their mill.

Railroad construction and employment—A large quantity of new rails will be laid on the C.P.R. line west of this city.

Manufacturing — Exceptional activity prevailed in the brick yards this month and a very busy year is anticipated.

CONDITION OF PARTICULAR TRADES

Bricklayers were not doing much, but look for a busy summer. Stone masons were beginning work. There were no large contracts in progress, but a lot of small houses were under way and carpenters were fairly well employed. Lathers and plasterers were not doing much. Painters and paperhangers had a good month. Plumbing and gasfitting has been quiet and very little stone cutting was done.

Iron moulders have been well employed, also iron workers and helpers and core makers. Machinists reported some improvement. Electrical workers reported conditions better than for some months. Woodworkers and furnishers showed improvement. The Peterborough Furniture Co. will enlarge its factory one half the size of present building this summer. Pattern makers and coopers were active. Printers and pressmen have been fairly busy. Tailors have also had a busy month. Bakers and confectioners have been busy. Cigar makers and tobacco workers have had a quiet month. Leather trades reported a good month. Railroad workers have been fairly well employed. Steamboat men were getting busy the latter half of the month, as the locks and bridges opened on the 15th. Unskilled labor was fairly employed.

The city will start on sewer construction at once.

HOUSEHOLD WIPED OUT BY PRAIRIE FIRE

William, Charles and Watson Butcher, the three sons of M. T. Butcher, Water street, located this spring on land in the west, about one hundred and twenty-five miles from Moose Jaw. They left their farms to go to Moose Jaw to bring to their newly-made home the wife and family of Mr. Wm. Butcher and some goods left at Moose Jaw. While away the prairie fire made a clean sweep of their possessions. It is a cause of their possessions. It is a cause for great thankfulness that no lives were lost. Their financial loss will amount to quite a large sum.

SAMSON'S STRENGTH

Will Not Resist the Pulling Down Influence of a Kidney Aching Back.

The strongest man or woman with a back constantly aching find daily existance a struggle. It is the same way with urinary troubles. Booth's Kidney Pills cure these ailments. Peterborough people prove this statement.

W. Worthington, No 121 Brock St. Peterborough, Ont., says;

"I had suffered with rheumatism for over three years. I had found little or no relief in any of the remedies I had tried. I became so stiff and sore that I could scarcely turn in my bed and had to lay off from my work. The urine was highly colored and filled with a heavy sand-like sediment which plainly told the disordered state of the kidneys. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's pharmacy. I was surprised to see how quickly the urine cleared. The kidneys were soon active and the uric acid went from my system. The rheumatism gradually became less severe and finally left me. I am better than in years previous and could not hesitate to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the city council last night, the plan of publishing the complete assessment returns of the city were discussed. The decision was unanimous that the returns should not be published unless they were complete.—Brantford Expositor.

A GRAND OPERA COMPANY CONFINED TO THE DOMINION

Scheme Has Been Perfected by Ivan Abramson and Peterborough Will be Given a Chance to be on the Circuit

A Grand Opera Company confined to Canadian Territory.

Toronto to be one of its pivotal points, with Montreal as official head quarters.

All cities of Eastern Canada to be treated to a season of Italian, French, German and [illegible] opera, with artists imported from Europe.

This somewhat quixotic plan has this week been perfected by Ivan Abraham, whose company is now playing at the Grand Opera House in New York, and under the management of a new company, called the International Grand Opera Company, he will place permanently and exclusively on the Canadian circuits an operatic organization of very superior calibre.

Though a rumor of this was given last winter during the visit of the company at the Princess, Toronto, the definite completion of the plan was reached only this week. The New York company will tour the United States during the summer, playing eight weeks in San Francisco, and going into Montreal next September. Quebec will be regularly visited, several times during the season, and the smaller cities of Ontario will be given a good opportunity to express their favor for the best in opera. It is said that many wealthy Canadians hold stock in the new company.

45TH REGIMENT WILL BE REDUCED TO FOUR COMPANIES

Lindsay, May 29—It was rumored around town this morning on good authority that the 45th Regiment will not go to camp at all this year, as Col. Sylvester will ask the officials at Ottawa to be relieved of the burden of commanding such a small regiment, composed of only four companies, such as the 45th will be this year.

Another rumor has it that the officials at Ottawa will grant the request of the Colonel, and pay the transportation expenses to Sturgeon Point and return, for the purpose of drilling. A third rumor has it that the regiment will go to Kingston as in previous years to camp.

These rumors were told to a Warder reporter to-day at noon on good authority, and the citizens of Lindsay will have to judge for themselves what is really going to happen. An official notice was received this morning from the officials at Ottawa stating that the regiment must be reduced from eight companies to four companies. The four companies that will drill in the event of the regiment going to camp will be:—

No. 1—Lindsay, Capt. Henley.

No. 4—Omemee, Capt. Fee.

No. 5—Bobcaygeon, Capt. Lancaster.

No. 6—Tory Hill, Capt. Anderson.

The four companies to be left out are two in Lindsay, Mariposa and Norland.

THE PERMANENCY OF A NATION DOES NOT REST ON THINGS MATERIAL

Quality of its Men is Far More Important Says Rev. E. A. Pearson in Sermon to Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters.

The annual church parade of Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters, was held to George street church last evening. There was a large attendance of the members and the special sermon by Rev. E. A. Pearson was followed with close attention. The music by the choir was of a high standard and added greatly to the services. "The Ideal Man" was the subject of Mr. Pearson's address and he strongly emphasized the point that the permanency of a nation did not depend on material things but on the kind of men she was producing in the process of development. The text was Isaiah 32nd Chap. 2nd verse.

"And a man shall be as a hiding place from the wind and a covert from the tempest, as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

In a few preliminary remarks, Mr. Pearson welcomed the members of Court Stanley to George street church and referred to the origin of the Ancient Order of Foresters and the work of the society. The order was instituted in England in 1790, but the first court passed out of existence. Later, in 1854, the order was re-organized and since then had met with steady growth. The society in Canada was in good condition. The scripture motto of the order was "Bear ye one another's burdens" and the speaker congratulated the society on the nobility of its aim.

Rev. Mr. Pearson said that material things were not the prime factor in the up-building and permanency of a nation. History showed that when nations paid too much attention to things that were material they deteriorated and if the same policy was continued, passed out of existence. The quality of the men that were being developed in the process of government was the feature of national life of the greatest importance. This was the matter that the nation should look to. Without the right kind of men Canada would deteriorate and pass away like other nations had done in the world's history. The ideal man was the one described in the text, which was just as true today as in the time of Isaiah. He who possessed true manhood helped his brother, cheered those who were cast down, protected the weak and encouraged those to whom life might seem dark. The agency which brought about the ideal man was Jesus Christ. The source of inspiration was found near the cross. The story of the cross meant more to the world than anything else. It touched the heart of man as nothing else could.

During the offertory, Mr Leadbetter sang a solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," in good voice and Miss Reesor sang "The Ninety and Nine" in her usual excellent manner. Mr Fred Myles took the solo in the anthem, "Pardon." A quartette, "Hark, Hark my Soul," was given by a mixed quartette.

RALLY DAY OF MURRAY ST. BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Large Number of Scholars and Members at the Morning Service—Sermon by Rev. J. R. Webb.

Rally Day is always an important and interesting event in connection with our Sunday schools. At Murray street Baptist church yesterday the annual rally of the Sunday school was held, and a large number of scholars and members of the church were present at the services in the morning. The scholars assembled in the basement of the church and marched from there up into the auditorium. The musical part of the service was in the hands of the scholars, under the direction of Mr. Finch Miller and was very beautiful. The superintendent, Mr. W. J. Dunlop, assisted the pastor.

The sermon, which was especially to the children, was an appealing and appropriate one. The Rev. J. R. Webb took his text from Genesis 37 chapter, 29, 30. "And Reuben returned into the pit, and behold Joseph was not in the pit, and he rent his clothes. And he returned unto his brethren and said the child is not and I, whither shall I go."

The story of Reuben's part in the betrayal of his brother Joseph was the subject of the discourse to the scholars. The reverend gentleman divided the subject into four parts. Reuben's sense of right, his influence, the compromise he made and his remorse. Reuben knew what was right and what was wrong, but he did not make any decided stand on either side. The name Reuben meant a fulfilment of a great hope, and his parents had expected that he would fulfil this great hope. He knew what he should have done in regard to his brother, but he made a compromise with his other brothers, and this is where the mistake was made. When we are asked to do anything we know to be wrong, there is only one safe course to pursue, and that is to be decided, and say no at once. If this is not done we may be sure our sins will find us out. We should show the spirit of leadership at all times, and although it sometimes meant sacrifices, the knowledge that we were in the right would bring joy and happiness. Reuben had been stricken with remorse when he found his brother was not in the pit, and then he realized what he had done. So it is with us, when we find that we have sinned. We should see in Jesus the one who wants to be our friend, and do what is right and pleasing in his sight at all times, and thus our hopes would be filled with happiness and joy.

SONS OF ENGLAND AND ORANGEMEN AT PARK ST.

Heard Excellent Sermon Preached by Rev. Mr. Riddiford—Brethren are Urged to be Strong in Faith.

Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, accompanied by a large number of the members of Orange Order, attended service in a body at Park St. Baptist church yesterday morning and listened to a splendid sermon by Rev. Mr. Riddiford. His text was taken from 1 Cor. 13-14. "Watch ye; stand fast in the faith. Quit yourselves like men, be strong. Let all that ye do be done in the spirit of the Lord." He urged his hearers to watch that some outside force should not shake our municipal liberty. All must be interested in our municipal and national politics. The man who said he did not take an interest in such things was far from being an ideal citizen. The speaker urged the brethren not to let greed or avarice blind them so that some other force might strike the principles of their lodge, which stood for a united empire, religious liberty and a consolidated educational system. The church should be separate from the state, and no church should be state-aided. Mr Riddiford also came out against religious schools. They caused discord in the land.

The speaker urged his auditors to be strong in faith—the faith in Christ, against which all hell could not prevail. One should also have faith in his fellowmen. The stories of the gossip monger should receive no attention.

In closing Mr. Riddiford appealed to the brethren to be men — men of strength and purity. These were the kind of men that Canada needed.

Excellent music was given by the choir, and the service was a very successful one generally.

VALIDITY OF WILL IS QUESTIONED AS THE DONOR BECAME INSANE

Interesting Point Raised in Connection With Will of Miss Catharine Carr, of Port Hope, Who Gave $500 to Barnardo Home at Peterborough.

The validity or otherwise of the will of the late Miss Catherine Carr, of Port Hope, has been referred to Sir William Mulock for a ruling. After having been twice under treatment in an institution for the insane, Miss Carr was discharged as cured in December, 1893. In March, 1904, having in the meantime shown no indications of a relapse, she executed a will by which she left $11,500 to charities and churches. Her solicitor took the precaution to ask her medical attendant, both before and after she had executed the will, if she was sane and competent to execute the will and received a reply in the affirmative. Less than six months later, however, she again showed signs of mental derangement and had to be placed in an asylum, where she died in December, 1908.

Besides the affidavit of Mr. D. H. Chisholm, Miss Carr's solicitor, there is one from Mr. F. Outram, who knew Miss Carr from 1895 to September, 1906. Mr. Outram's opinion of her was that she was "more than ordinarily strong minded and businesslike for a woman."

Upon Sir William Mulock's decision depends whether the charitable and religious institutions named in the will receive the legacies or nothing. The bequests in question are:—Hospital for Sick Children, $2,000; Gravenhurst Sanitarium, $1,000; Port Hope Benevolent Society, $4,000; Dr. Barnardo's Home, Peterborough, $500; Methodist Mission Fund, $2,000; Morrish Methodist Church, $2,000.

A sum of $19,000 has been paid into court and awaits Chief Justice Mulock's decision.

ACTION AGAINST PETERBORO' MAN

Thomas Vlakos of Toronto is Suing Michael Pappas

Thomas Vlahos, of Toronto, is suing Michael Pappas, of Peterborough, claiming a declaration that the restaurant business at 59 Queen street, west, Toronto, and the goods and chattels and plant connected therewith, are the property of the plaintiff, and for a declaration that an alleged chattel mortgage executed by plaintiff and one Spelios is null and void and should be delivered up to be cancelled, and also that thirteen promissory notes of $50 each as collateral, are null and void, and should be cancelled. He also wants an assignment of a lease, and the return of $612.40 now in defendant's hands, alleged to be the property of the plaintiff, portions of which, he alleges, were obtained by fraud.—Toronto Globe.

MR. MONTIZAMBERT LEAVES

The departure of Mr. Montizambert local manager of the Bank of Montreal for Brantford will mean the removal from Peterborough of a most popular gentleman and one who has lived up in banking affairs to the best traditions of the great institution he represents. The city will lose in the removal of Mrs. Montizambert, a lady who has done much in a social way to make life pleasant in Peterborough while there is general lamentation amongst the "young people" over the departure of their charming daughter. The Review must, however, congratulate the new manager on his promotion and wish him and his household a long continuance of his prosperous career.

BRIGHT LIFE HAS A SAD ENDING

Death by Drowning of Melvin Zimmerman who was Well Known to Many in Peterborough

The Toronto Star of Saturday says: No further word has been received from Shining Tree Lake, where Melvin Zimmerman, the membership secretary of the West End Y.M.C.A., was drowned ten days ago. The only information which has come to hand was the telegram from Ed. Archibald, with whom Mr. Zimmerman was prospecting, announcing the young man's death.

Mr. Zimmerman was known in Peterborough especially among those connected with the Y.M.C.A. He was groomsman at the marriage of Mr. "Had" Pearson and Miss Edna Halls which took place here last summer. His friends here will be pained to hear of his death.

A Nuisance

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I wish through your paper to call the attention of the city police to an intolerable nuisance that takes place every day from morning until ten o'clock at night by a lot of children racing on the sidewalk down the steep hill from Mr. E. Mason's house corner of McDonnel and Aylmer sts., on all sorts of hand carts, to the great annoyance of foot passengers and also the householders. It ought to be put a stop to before an accident takes place. Last Sunday I had to tell them to quit or I would call up the police.

Thanking you for this space.

THE SECURITY SATISFACTORY

Mr. Kendry is Satisfied That the Men Behind the Purity Co. Project are All Right.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—At a Board of Trade meeting at which the by-law to aid the Purity Ware Company, Limited was discussed, I gave my views frankly on the situation, and said that if I was shown that the New York concerns were behind it, or was given names of satisfactory Montreal men interested in it, I would be satisfied. This morning I was shown letters from Montreal and New York which are satisfactory, as they show that both substantial and financial men are interested in it.

Yours truly,
JAS. KENDREY.

SENIOR CITY LEAGUE TO START NEXT SATURDAY

Strathconas T. A. S. A. C. and Park St. A. C. Will Have Strong Nines—Schedule Will be Drawn up To-night.

The Strathconas, TASAC and Park Street A.C. have decided to form a senior baseball league and in all probability the games will start next Saturday at Riverside park. This step has only been taken after receiving due consideration by each of the teams as it means that no player in the city will be barred.

All three teams will have strong nines and as the officers of the league were elected and the constitution drawn up some time ago, it is only necessary to draw up a schedule and this will be done at a meeting tonight.

That the league will be a success from a playing standpoint, can readily be seen when such men as Dan McCabe, Jack, Jimmie and Teddy Fillmore, Ab Quinlan, Jimmie Callaghan, Ab Long, Dan McCurry and the pick of the younger players will be on the lineups of the teams. A fast senior leaggue is what has been wanted for a long time in this city and now it is a reality, there is every reason for its being a big success.

Y.M.C.A. RELAY RUNNERS LOWERED 10 MILE MARK

The road race record from Lakefield to Peterborough was broken on Saturday afternoon in the relay race held under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Department, the splendid time of 53.28 4-5 being made. The straight record for the distance—10 miles—is held by Ernie Wilson and was made in 1907.

Ten runners took part in the race, each covering a mile, and the fastest time was made by Harold Lees, who ran the record mile over one of the slowest stretches of the road in 4 minutes 51 2-5 seconds, and the showing of the rest of the field was an excellent one.

Messrs. V. Eastwood, E. Warne and G. L. Stevens kindly supplied automobiles in which the runners were picked up as they finished their miles.

The great form displayed by the competitors shows that there is most promising material among the boys of the association.

The results are as follows:—
Harold Hill, 1st mile, 5.19.
Harold Lees, 2nd mile, 4.51 2-5.
W. Eastwood, 3rd mile, 5.11 2-5.
R. Morrow, 4th mile, 5.27.
P. Telford, 5th mile, 5.18½
R. Laing, 6th mile, 5.28.
V. Miller, 7th mile, 5.38 1-5.
A. Darling, 8th mile, 5.29 2-5.
N. Phelan, 9th mile, 5.34.
B. Lees, 10th mile, 5.13 3-5.

PARK NINES 23---ROVERS 0; T.A.S.A.C. 8—WEST ENDS 2

Intermediate Baseball League Opened at the Oval Saturday Afternoon—Park Nines Won Easily in First Contest—Second Game Was Well Played.

There were fireworks galore at the first game of the Intermediate League which opened at the Oval Saturday. The explosives were handed out by the Rovers in their game with the Park Nines. The score was 23-0 and is a fairly good indication as to the playing ability of the teams. The Rovers were outclassed in every department of the game and although Neary, who twirled, worked hard at all times his team would not or could not support him. Gorham and Menzies worked well together for the Park Nines and their support was fair. The game was stopped in the seventh innings by President Laing.

The batteries were;
Park Nines—Gorham and Menzies.
Rovers—Neary and Woods.
Umpires—Dobson and Heaslip.

SECOND GAME.
West Ends 2; TAS 8.

The second contest between the Ends and TAS was a good exhibition of baseball as both teams were strong in all departments. Up to the 7th innings honors were about even, the score being 3-2 with the TAS in the lead. But the West Ends saw visions of an airship and went sailing with the result that five of the TAS men crossed the counting station. There was little to pick between the teams in the battery line, both pitchers having a number of strikeouts. The classy work of Minorgan at short, for the West Ends was a feature of the game.

The batteries were;
West Ends—Kirn and McNirn.
TAS.—Hayes and McFadden
Umpires—Shaw and Crowe.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

Some Dont's on Pitching by Christy Mathewson.

Don't experiment with several styles of delivery. Underhand, overhand and side-arm pitching have their exponents, but a man who tries to combine all styles invariably finds he is master of none. The overhand for control and effectiveness is best. It is natural and pitchers who use it generally last for years.

Don't sprawl after delivering the ball. If your feet are "tangled" an innocent grounder may develop into a base hit.

Don't wear a tight jersey or anything that prevents freedom of the arm, shoulder or body motion. Even long-spiked shoes have been known to affect a pitcher's control. The ball must be released at the right moment and anything that interferes with a free and natural delivery is likely to handicap control.

Don't practise pitching the day before you expect to work. It has been my experience that I can get a sharper curve and a better shoot if my arm has had a rest the preceding day.

Don't spend a long time warming up. Start slowly and when thoroughly warm just try a few balls at top speed. A man may pitch his game before the grand stand and find by the seventh innings that he is all in.

Don't walk half way to the home plate after delivering the ball; let your swing carry you eight or ten feet, and step in position to handle a batted ball. If you wish to use up time, stand on the rubber in position and look at the batsman. This will keep his nerves at tension and worry him.

What has become of the intermediate baseball league? Surely there is material enough in town for a fourth team to complete the schedule. Come, boys, don't all speak at once. Get a nine together and get the league going.—Lindsay Post. Peterborough can extend sympathy as we have troubles of our own.

The senior league is getting busy; there is sure to be some good baseball for the fans at Riverside Park.

The Strathconas will practise on the Oval each night of this week, and every old and prospective member is asked to be out in uniform, so as to be in good shape for the first game in the senior city league next Saturday. Players should make it a point to be on hand early. Practise will start at 6.30.

Once get a Lindsay team in the Mariposa League, and then you'll hear a bouquet of rude jibes coming from Peterborough way. Let them throw mud! We don't care!—Lindsay Warder

Of course we admit Lindsay has Peterborough trimmed when it comes to mud-throwing, having a greater supply of the stuff on hand.

Toronto broke even in the two games with Rochester Saturday, winning the morning game 4—1 and losing by 6—2 in the afternoon. Holmes twirled both games for the Broncos.

Waddell did not give Cleveland a lookin on Sunday, winning easily for St. Louis 2—0.

Hans Wagner won another game for Pittsburg against Chicago on Sunday by slamming out a two-bagger with the bases full. The score was 5—4.

The best ball player is the man who sits in the grandstand and pays his money to see the game. It's wonderful how much he knows about the game—to hear him tell it.

There were 8,600 people at the double header in Toronto on Saturday.

At to-night's meeting of the Senior City League the West End Baseball Club will ask to be admitted into the league. The management have been seriously considering the advisability of making the move for some time past and mostly on account of the splendid showing the team made in the game Saturday with the T.A.S., the decision to play senior ball was finally arrived at.

The Brintons journeyed to Bethany Saturday and met defeat at the hands of that team in a Midland Football League game by 2—0. AT THE WOODBINE.

H. C. Hildreth's King James Wins the Toronto Cup.

Toronto, May 31.—Saturday at the Woodbine was one of the best days of racing seen at that track in years. The Toronto Cup, the richest purse on the Woodbine card, valued at $4,680—was carried off by King James in a keen contest. The results were as follows:

First race, $500, 3-year-olds and up, selling, 6 furlongs Centre Shot, 1; Smoker, 2; Security, 3. Time, 1.15.

THE OLD MAN COULDN'T STAND THE GRIND AND BROWN WON

Hoagland Set Pace That Proved Too Much for Himself and Quit the Track at 10.03—West Took Second Place---Fifteen Miles in Two Hours--End of Sensational Two Man Fight.

One of the biggest athletic surprises of the last ten years was sprung at the Brock street rink on Saturday night when George Brown, the 19-year-old boy walker from Auburn, N.Y., defeated the famous pedestrian, champion of America, Willard A. Hoagland, of the same town. When the walk started on Monday night of last week, May 24th, there was not a man in the rink on or off the track, that imagined Brown would be able to accomplish what he did. Brown himself was confident of being able to give the champion a hard run but did not know that he would be able to stay with Hoagland at the rate the travelling was kept up at.

All the walkers say that they never saw "Brownie" walk such a race as he did and they wouldn't have believed that it was in him to do so. Hoagland, who has held the name of America's star walker for so many years, was thought to be in a class by himself. He undoubtedly is a wonderful walker but he has an opponent in his pupil of the heel and toe game, that he may well fear from now on. The champion claimed that he was not in the best of shape for the contest and remarked that he was far from right. There are followers of the game, however, who think that Brown can defeat the "old man" regardless of the latter's condition. The distance covtance covered by Brown for the week was 127 miles, which is about record gloing for nineteen hours. The schedule called for twenty hours, but nineteen hours was the limit covered, half an hour being taken off the afternoon and evening performance on Saturday.

The remarkably high average of six and thirteen nineteenths miles was made by the winner and it is probable that no faster walk was ever made in America in the time divisions walked—two and a half hours a night and six and a half hours on Saturday. Hoagland probably never walked faster than he did in this race and the most astonishing feature of it all was that the pace set on Saturday night for the first two hours was the fastest one of the week. The champion was right out to kill off Brown, if possible, and let out at the highest speed that he could move at. It was a case of a continual sprint from the time the two got away until Hoagland left the track at three minutes after ten—defeated in a six day race for the first time in fifteen years. The rate at which he was walking was too fast for himself and Brown, who remained the fresher of the two, stayed right with his man all the time that the terrible grind was going on.

It mustn't be imagined that he was not working at his highest pressure to hold on, for it was a combination of speed, science and grit that kept him up and he had to fight for his place all the way. He knew that even a moment faltering might lose him the race and he made up his mind to stay with Hoagland until either one of them had to quit. It happened to be Hoagland who had to drop out first and he was ill and faint when he was seen in his dressing room by the Review a moment after he left the track. In over thirty years Hoagland has only quit a dozen times and he has such a reputation that he could not possibly afford to drop out of a race unless he was compelled to.

It was on Tuesday night that the greatest race for a single lap of any walk in the international history of the game started and a finer duel was never seen on a walking track than the one that took place between Hoagland and Brown. Hoagland left the track to adjust his shoe and when he came on again Brown was a lap and a half in the lead. Hoagland soon recovered the half lap, but couldn't get back the lap, although he fought for it at top speed from that time to the finish of the race on Saturday night.

At one time Brown was in imminent danger of losing his lead and that was on Wednesday night when Hoagland got three-quarters of a lap ahead of him. But Brown, by an almost superhuman effort, made up the difference and from then on to the conclusion the walkers tore along like a pair possessed and stayed neck and neck till Hoagland had to leave the track Saturday evening. It was certainly a wonderful race and Brown deserves the greatest credit for his marvelous showing and his defeat of the famous master of the walking game.

By mutual consent the walkers quit at 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and it was 7.30 when they got going again in the evening. They walked until 11, which made the time of the night's walk three and a half hours.

They started at two o'clock in the afternoon and therefore went three hours in the after dinner session.

The same relentless pace was struck up by Hoagland in the afternoon and Brown followed him in his usual bulldog manner. The score at five o'clock was:—

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	105	0
Hoagland	104	12
West	101	21
Harrison	100	7
Blake	97	2
Spencley	91	11
Hartley	87	0
Graham	85	11
Blatchford	77	1

At 7.30, when the men got started the crowd was very small in spite of the fact that the walk had been announced to commence at seven o'clock. The spectators commenced coming in in goodly numbers shortly after eight and the total assemblage of the evening is estimated at about 850. This was by a long way the largest crowd of any night of the week, but was comparatively small for the last night of the walk. The audiences of the evenings previous were so unprofitable that the amount reserved for expenses by the management—$500—was not covered and as a consequence there was nothing left for the walkers after their week's work. Before the walk was held all the peds competing signed a contract to walk for a share of the receipts exclusive of the $500 expense money and as the total receipts have not come up to that figure they are as far behind as at the beginning of the race. A collection was taken up among the crowd on Saturday night to help the walkers along but only a comparatively small sum was collected and it was divided among the last four men, Blatchford, Hartley, Graham and Fenton and the losers therefore got more than the leaders whose money was represented by a zero and the money getters only netted about four dollars and a half each at that.

In spite of the great clip Brown and Hoagland had been walking at all week they went faster than ever up to the time that Hoagland quit and did almost an even fifteen miles in the first two hours. The rest of the field did well for the last night, after such a fast week, but none of them could follow for any distance the pace of Hoagland and Brown.

The standing at the end of the end of the first hour was:

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	112	2
Hoagland	112	1
West	107	8
Harrison	107	6
Blake	103	7
Fenton	97	9
Spencley	97	7
Fenton	94	6
Hartley	92	8
Graham	82	4

The sensation of the week happened at exactly 10.30, when Hoagland left the track and disappeared through the door at the end into his dressing room. Brown came up the side alone at a somewhat slackened pace, and was smiling with satisfaction. The crowd applauded and cheered for him as he walked around with nothing to fear from the man who had made him walk as he never did before.

Toward the end of the race the pace of the walkers decreased considerably. West picked up in his gait and succeeded in getting second place as Hoagland did not come on for fifteen minutes and walked very slowly when he did.

After the "old man" had dropped out, Brown, just to show that he had speed left in him, sprinted a lap in spectacular fashion, and won loud applause from the audience.

The final score read:

	Miles.	Laps.
Brown	127	0
West	123	2
Hoagland	123	0
Harrison	122	5
Blake	116	3
Spencley	107	9
Hartley	100	2
Graham	98	6
Blatchford	92	2

Owing to an hour being deducted from the originally set time the limit at five miles an hour was 95 miles. Blatchford was the only man who didn't make the grade.

SVANBERG WON MARATHON AT CHICAGO SATURDAY

Chicago, May 29.—John Svanberg, the Swedish champion, won the international Derby to-day, against a field of the world's best long distance runners. The champion's time was two hours 48 minutes and 11 1-5 seconds, more than eight minutes slower than Henri St. Yves' time in the New York Marathon. St. Yves led until the fifteenth mile was passed, when he was forced to drop out because of a blistered foot. He was 50 seconds ahead of Svanberg. The Swede passed him in a sprint and St. Yves fell. It looked as though Svanberg had tripped the Frenchman, but St. Yves explained after he had limped off the track that he could not have run any further anyway.

Johnny Hayes finished second in 2.52.57 2-5. Fred Appleby, the Englishman, finished third in 3.01.07 2-5. After the accident to St. Yves Svanberg kept the lead until the end. Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, dropped out of the race after the fourteenth mile. He explained that he felt the effects of an old sunstroke, and did not dare run any more. The others who finished in order were;—Matt Maloney, fourth; Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, fifth, and Alex. Thibeau, the Chicago amateur, who turned professional for this race last.

The day was perfect for an outdoor race. There was a big crowd. The race started at 3.09 o'clock, when James J. Jeffries fired the pistol. The track was eight laps to the mile.

Appleby took the lead at the start, but St. Yves passed him after the first lap. His time for the first mile was 5.04 3-5. Longboat kept second place until the eighth mile. At the fifth mile St. Yves led Svanberg by two laps, with Appleby third. In the sixth mile St. Yves' time was 33.42 4-5, eight seconds faster than his New York record. He increased this lead until he was three laps ahead of the Swede. Longboat sprinted after the eighth mile, passing St. Yves and Svanberg. Hayes forged up to third place. There was little change until the fourteenth mile was passed. Svanberg was 50 seconds behind. The crowd went wild with excitement when St. Yves dropped out, cheering him as he tied a big cloth to his foot and limped away. After this was little change in the position of the runners. At the nineteenth mile Hayes sprinted on the soft ground and gained a lap but he could not keep up the pace. Svanberg evidently had no doubt of winning after the twenty-second mile. At the twenty-fifth mile Hayes was three laps behind and the finish was seen by all.

The runners all ran the distance, 26 miles 385 yards, and each will get a share of the money.

FELL ON STREET CAR FENDER BUT WAS NOT INJURED

On Saturday afternoon a man, who was quite plainly under the influence of liquor, had a close call to being seriously injured. He was walking across the Simcoe street crossing at George street, when he fell onto the fender, apparently being unable to keep his balance. He walked very close to the car, and approached much nearer than the motorman expected he would.

Fortunately the man, whose name was unknown, was not injured.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE PROMINENT WALKERS

George Brown, the winner of the six day walk just completed in the Brock street rink, on Saturday night is 19 years old and has only been in the business for a little over a year. He walked six or seven amateur preliminary events in the Auburn armories and won them all.

His first professional race was in Trenton, N.J. on April 4th, 1908 when he finished third to Hoagland and Slater. It was for four days, at three hours a night. His next race was a 2 1-2 hours a night a four night's fixture and he walked second to Hoagland.

This was followed by a four night, 2 1-2 hour a night walk at Oswego in which Hoagland handicapped Brown half a mile and won the race. The "old man" later repeated the trick at Auburn in a handicap race of the same character.

In Milwaukee, Brown's next race, he also got second money to Hoagland walking 112 miles in 17 hours. His next race was at the Brock street rink last week and administered Hoagland's first defeat in fifteen years in a six day race and walked 127 miles in 19 hours.

West, the second man has been about five or six months in the professional ranks walking four races in Oswego, Auburn, Milwaukee and Peterborough. He got third in Oswego, third in Auburn and 5th in Milwaukee.

The walking career of Hoagland, the taker of third money, was published in the Review a short time ago. He has been in the game for 36 years and taken part in over 500 races, winning them all at all distances with the exception of a very few.

Jim Harrison, the local man, got fourth place and walked farther on Saturday night than any man on the track covering 22 miles in the 3 1-2 hours. His performances at the heel and toe game are well known to the local public.

Blake, the fifth finisher, started in the game in Syracuse a couple of years ago when he lost a five mile race to Hoagland. He has done well in several six day walks since.

Spenceley, the last man who would have obtained a share of the money had there been a purse to split commenced walking when he took part in the six day walk in Lindsay last year. He walked last fall at the Brock street rink in a handicap race against Stacey of Toronto and made a creditable showing in the walk here last week.

PRINCE RUPERT LOTS

Advice was received this morning at the head offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, Montreal, that the sale of lots of the townsite of Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway being held at Vancouver, May 25th, to 29th., was proceeding satisfactorily. At a two hours' sale yesterday morning 88 lots were sold at an average price of $2,700 per lot, the highest price paid $8,250, which was from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. above upset prices.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS

The following is issued from the Dominion Department of Agriculture;

"Now that the factory season is getting into full swing, farmers are wondering how the cows will do this year. Cows are expected to make sound profit. Great expectations are not always realized, and if pasture is poor, how is the milk flow to be kept up? Happy the man who has provided for a supply of green feed, and who has a silo for summer feeding.

Some check should be kept on the yield of each cow. If the milk is weighed on only 3 days a month and samples tested once a month, then the owner will know very closely which are the heaviest producers. If weights are taken at every milking any such variation will be immediately observed, steps can be taken to remove the cause. If a record is kept of the feed, the most profitable cows can be detected, and some that might produce more if fed better will be given the opportunity.

This is what members of the Cow Testing Associations are doing, studying each individual in the herd so as to make sure that each single cow kept gives a profit. This is evidence of good business management. No one wants to harbor a cow that is incapable of making a good profit. Does each one of your cows pay? Do you know that she does? Guess work won't do these days.

Record blanks are supplied free on application to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa. Many men since commencing to record are now receiving $60 per cow when they used to get but $40, because they know which are the economical producers. It certainly does pay to test cows.

POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Drunk and Disorderly Fined $2.00 —Boys Dismissed on Disorderly Charge

Matthew Edwards was arrested Saturday for being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $2 this morning at the police court as the leniency given to him on previous occasions, of this kind have not had any effect.

NO EVIDENCE TO CONVICT

Four boys were charged with being disorderly last Thursday but the evidence to convict them was not forthcoming and they were discharged. The boys according to the complainant's story annoyed him by hiding his tools and calling him names while he was engaged in moving a house at the corner of Dickson and Rogers Sts.

Several witnesses were called but they stated that they had not noticed anything particularly disorderly about the actions of the boys.

MORE TAGS

There have been nearly 800 licenses taken out for dogs this year, but there are still many canines wandering around whose owner has not yet secured a tag. Many of these animals are worth the price of the license, while others are not worth the trouble they cause. Still they all look alike to the police and it would be well for all persons interested to pay the fee of $1, and do away with the trouble hanging over their heads.

ENGINEER WAS BADLY SCALDED BY BOILER TUBES BURSTING

Special to the Review.

Smith's Falls, June 1— Yesterday morning's Toronto-Montreal CPR express, which passes through Peterborough at 5.26 was delayed an hour and a half near Smith's Falls by the bursting of one of the tubes of the boiler. The firebox door was blown off and the engineer, Thos Bennett, was exposed to the stream of scalding hot water under 180 lbs. pressure.

Both his hands were badly burned, as well as his face, but the fireman, Martin Riley escaped with a very slight burn.

He was blown out of the van over the tender but fortunately clung to the end of the tender and was saved from going down between the cars.

A physician on the train did what he could to relieve the suffering of the engineer who was brought to the hospital here for treatment. The engine ran about two miles and went dead. It is said that Bennett received his burns from sticking bravely to his post and setting the brakes, but for which the engine would have ran wild like the one in Montreal a few weeks ago.

Chicago Youths Confess to Series of Robberies and Attack on the Police

Chicago, June 1.—The blood and thunder doings of two youths were disclosed by the arrest of Ernest Halverson, 22 years old, and Peter Dumont, 19 years old, who confessed to wounding a policeman and committing two robberies Saturday night, three robberies on May 23, and Halverson confessed that he had arranged to shoot Detective O'Keefe, who had arrested him twice before.

While driving on the north side, they held up two men with revolvers and robbed them. One started to run and Halverson fired at him and jumped back into the rig, and they drove on until a policeman tried to stop them. Halverson fired four shots at him and the wounded policeman returned the shots. Another policeman tried to stop them and Halverson lashed him with a whip. They saw an automobile load of policemen coming after them and the thugs jumped out and ran home, where they were arrested.

NEW INDUSTRIES AT PORT ARTHUR

Port Arthur, June 1.—The C.P.R. will probably induce some industries of considerable magnitude to locate on their lands in Port Arthur, in order to procure a renewal of exemption from taxation.

Ten years ago an agreement was made fixing the yearly assessment at $50,000. That has now expired and the property is assessable at one million dollars, and as they now face $20,000 yearly taxation, it is expected they will bring some independent company, most likely flour mills, here, to distribute wages sufficient to get exemption again.

William Whyte and Solicitor Aitkins had an interview with the City Council yesterday and said as much, though they will not make any definite proposition until they return from Montreal, for which place they left last night.

DOG SAVES A CHILD'S LIFE

Ottawa, June 1.—To the instinct and strength of a large collie dog a little Ottawa girl owes her escape from death by drowning. While some children were playing near the St. Louis Dam on the Rideau Canal one of them fell off the dock into the water. The others set up a scream of terror, which attracted the attention of an automobile party on the driveway and also of some men in the locality. Meanwhile, however, a large collie dog, which happened to be on the dock, leaped into the water, grabbed the little girl by the dress and kept her up till one of the men pulled her out.

He denied that he was going to finish his divinity course in Glasgow, and said that the report that he was married to Miss Kinrade was a dream.

FIREMAN FELL OFF TRAIN AND MET WITH TERRIBLE INJURIES

Young Man Named Reid Victim of Peculiar Accident at Myrtle Last Night --Taken to Nicholls Hospital---Must Have Been Dragged Some Distance While His Head Bumped Along the Ties.

With his face and head terribly injured, a young man named Reid, a CPR fireman, lies in Nicholls hospital in a very critical condition.

Reid is the victim of a most peculiar accident which occurred last evening. He was fireman on the C.P.R. local train from Toronto which is due here at 7.51. Just after the train had pulled out of Myrtle, Reid fell off the engine and the engineer did not notice that he was missing until the train had gone about two miles. When it was noticed that the fireman had disappeared the train was backed up and Reid was found lying beside the track in an unconscious condition. His head was covered with blood and it was thought at first that he was dead. Although very little is known about the accident, it looks as if the unfortunate fellow's foot or clothing had caught on something on the train and that as a result he was dragged for some distance. From the injuries on his head it would seem as if he was dragged for some distance while his head bumped along the end of the ties.

The injured man was taken to Peterborough, the train arriving here about an hour late and was removed from the station to Nicholls hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance. Dr. Gray took charge of the case, being the CPR's physician. An examination at the hospital showed that Reid had two bad scalp wounds and that his nose was almost split open. The injuries will disfigure him for life. His condition last night was exceedingly critical but this morning he recovered consciousness and hopes are now entertained for his recovery. In addition to the injuries on the head, his body is also badly bruised. He is very weak and has only been able to mutter a few words.

Reid is about nineteen or twenty years of age and is a big strapping fellow, weighing about 200 pounds. It is thought that his home is at Windsor.

Conductor Baker was in charge of the local last night.

BIG DECREASE IN IMMIGRATION BUT BETTER CLASS COMING IN

Startling Figures Issued by Winnipeg Department--Record Influx Across Border — What the Decrease Represents

Winnipeg, Man., May 31.—Figures which are nothing short of startling are contained in the report of the immigration department for the fiscal year, which was issued from the local offices this morning. The year closes on March 31, and the report contains statistics for all Canada. It shows that the immigration to Canada, via ocean ports, or, in fact, from Great Britain and the European countries, decreased to the extent of 117,081 persons from the preceding fiscal year. This decrease represents approximately a populated city of about the size of Winnipeg. This decline is to be attributed to the results of restrictive legislation aimed at indigent or somewhat worthless immigration; but it is gratifying to know that it has not seriously affected the inrush from the British Isles.

The immigration of settlers from the United States not only shows an increase over the last fiscal year, but it breaks all record for migration across the southern border. In the twelve months prior to March 31, 59,832 settlers from the United States came into Canada, bringing with them money and effects, the estimated value of which was $60,000,000. It is computed that each settler that comes from over the boundary is worth on an average $1,000.

This announcement will be welcome news to the travelling public in this city, as this service will fill a long felt want. A new fast train will also be put on at Toronto, commencing June 7th.

Fine Animals in Shipment made by Mr. R. H. Leary

Mr. R. H. Leary shipped a carload of horses to Wardner, B.C. There were eighteen in the lot, and it was generally remarked that they were as fine a carload of horses as ever went out of Peterborough. They were all purchased in this district by Mr. Leary. A bay team that weighed 2,900 pounds would make a splendid fire team.

Mr. F. E. Drew took a picture of the animals before they were shipped and a cut of the same will appear in "Farm and Dairy" at an early date.

The horses were shipped via C.P.R.

Toronto, June 1—One of the old residents of Ontario passed away yesterday afternoon in the person of Mr. Thomas Thomson at 892 Dundas St. Mr. Thomson was born in Scarborough township nearly 83 years ago, and was a descendant of one of the oldest families in that place, his grand father having settled there in 1796. Prison Farm far Away From the Cities is Being Considered

Toronto, May 31— The provincial government has under consideration important plans for providing improved prison accommodation in Northern Ontario. The necessity for building is emphasized by the enormous travelling bills presented for transferring prisoners to Toronto and the crowded condition here.

It is reported unofficially that important and constructive proposals may be considered. These will probably comprise, in addition to the erection of a permanent prison farm on similar lines to those to be adopted in connection with the new Central, the utilising of several temporary jails in the districts now being developed for short term prisoners.

At the present time the Central is overcrowded and many prisoners are waiting idle in the county jails. It is believed the government has in view a plan by which such prisoners may be able to work out their terms in the building of needed colonization roads and other provincial improvements. Such a plan is regarded as likely to relieve the congestion in the jails, provide work for the idle prisoners and prove unpopular with the ease loving tramp fraternity.

AND THIS IS IN NEW YORK

New York, June 1.—Because of the recent determination of Mayor McClellan to strictly enforce the Sunday laws as they were in vogue years ago, the Memorial Day parade Sunday of 3,500 veterans to decorate the graves of dead comrades, was without music. Bands marched with their instruments, but the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," "Marching Through Georgia," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and other inspiring melodies which have inspired the aging veterans, were missing until the cemetery was reached.

THE NEGRO HAS A LIGHTER BRAIN

New York, June 1.—A national conference in the interest of the American negro was opened in the United Charities building in this city yesterday by Prof. Burt G. Wilder of Cornell University, and Profs. Livingston Farrand, E. R. A. Seligman and John Dewey of Columbia University. Prof. Wilder, after exhibiting several brains, including those of an orang outang, an unscrupulous politician, an illiterate colored janitor, and an eminent mathematician, made some interesting deductions to the conference.

The brain of the average American negro, he said, seems to be about two ounces lighter than that of the average white man, and probably there occurs more frequently than in the white man less development of the prefontal lobes. These two conditions render it likely that the whites will remain the dominant race. But there are individual exceptions to the above general conditions of both kinds and among both races.

EX-BANKER NOW BREAKING STONES

St. Vincent de Paul, June 1.—Hon. P. H. Roy, former Speaker of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, and ex-president of the Bank of St. Johns, is now breaking stone in the penitentiary yard.

Governor Beauchamp was well-known to Roy, who started to talk to him like an ordinary friend, but the governor immediately ordered the guards to put Roy in a prisoner's garb. Fifteen minutes later Roy, registered as No. 5,204, dressed in the prisoners' uniform and with his hair and bear cut, was given a hammer and sent to break stone with other convicts.

NOTHING TO FEAR FROM UNITED STATES TARIFF

Opinion of the Government at Ottawa—Favors Will Be Asked From Ottawa as Soon as Reaction Sets in, Says Laurier.

Ottawa, June 1.—The Canadian Government is not at present worrying much about the fate of the Payne tariff bill, now being revised upwards in the U. S. Senate. In respect to the commodities mentioned in yesterday's despatch from Washington—barley, hops, potatoes and oysters—which are now given even higher protection than under the Dingley tariff, the exports from Canada to the States are comparatively so insignificant that a still higher tariff will make but little difference to the country as a whole. In fact on most of the items affected by the Payne tariff the protective duty either under the new or the old tariff is so high as to prove almost an absolute prohibition of trade.

In the case of coal, lumber and wheat, however, Canada is vitally interested. The question of reciprocity in coal, raised by the Payne tariff, will undoubtedly be one of the main tariff issues to be discussed at the next session of Parliament. In respect to lumber and wheat, it is felt here that it is only a question of time before the United States will be compelled to come to Canada more and more for its supplies. Western American millers are already seeking an admixture of the best grade of Canadian wheat to produce their flour, and this demand must steadily increase. All Canada need do is to wait until the time when the inevitable reaction sets in across the line, and, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier has frequently expressed it, tariff favors are sought from Ottawa, and not from Washington. Meanwhile, pending the final action of the United States Senate and Congress on the tariff bill, the Government here does not propose to interfere either by threat of retaliation or otherwise. Canada is pursuing her own tariff policy independently of the United States, and is looking to continued steady development of the markets in the Motherland and with the sister overseas dominions, after finding trade with her neighbor to the south practically barred by a prohibitive tariff on most of the items in which a mutual trade might be profitably developed.

ZEPPELIN HIT A TREE AFTER HIS RECORD TRIP

Count Covers a Distance of 850 Miles in 37 Hours in His Great Dirigible—While Manoeuvring For a Landing He Catches in a Tree and Machine Now Rests in Perilous Position.

Copenhagen, June 1.—After covering a distance of about 850 miles in 37 hours, Count Zeppelin's new airship, on its return trip from Betterfeld to Friedrichshaven, came to grief in an open field near here yesterday.

In manoeuvring for a landing the airship came in contact with a tree, and its position to-day is very dangerous.

The propeller was broken and a considerable time must elapse before the journey can be continued.

The position is unfavorable, the ground being very hilly. The bow rests on the ground, while the stern is about 65 feet in the air.

A strong breeze sprang up last evening, causing no little anxiety for the safety of the airship, which it was feared would be wrecked should a storm come up during the night.

After considerable labor and the assistance of those who had gathered at the scene of the accident, Count Zeppelin was able to shift the position of his airship a little and thus give better protection from the wind.

That the collision was a heavy one is indicated by the broken and bent strips of aluminum lying about the ground and the half-spli branches dangling from the tree trunk.

That the collision was a heavy one is indicated by the broken and bent strips of aluminum lying about the ground, and the half-split branches dangling from the tree trunk. Enormous crowds soon assembled and it became almost impossible for vehicles to pass along the public highway.

AN ASTOUNDING CONFESSION

SO FAR AS THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO ARE CONCERNED, THE STARTING OF A MODERN TOWN IN THE REGION OF LAKE ABITIBI IS OF MORE MEANING THAN THE FOUNDING OF PRINCE RUPERT.—The Globe.

How long have we maintained this very identical thing! Sometimes we think the Globe has a conscience although sometimes we think it hasn't. This confession coming as it does on the heels of columns of special pleading in defence of the Laurier Government's wonderful transcontinental G. T.P. humbug is a veritable eyeopener. Mark well the opening words of this article;

"SO FAR AS THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO ARE CONCERNED, THE STARTING OF A MODERN TOWN IN THE REGION OF ABITTIBI IS OF MORE MEANING THAN THE FOUNDING OF PRINCE RUPERT." Why are we dabbling in Prince Rupert's then, will somebody kindly answer that, more especially the farmers of Ontario whose farms have diminished in value by thirty per cent from the overspeedy opening up of the west let alone the extra taxes they have to pay by reason of it and of the money gone elsewhere for a development that should have been made at home?

THE FACTS OF THE CASE

"The recent vote of eighteen Democratic senators in support of a duty on iron ore is regarded by many editorial observers as throwing a startling light on the real tariff situation in Congress."—Literary Digest.

It is only fair to say also that a certain proportion of Protectionists are in favour of lowering the tariff. But it will be observed that the general principle and the fundamental necessity of a protective tariff is acknowledged by both. A protective tariff should, as its name implies "protect." That is what it is for. The minute, however, that it becomes, like heat, too high to be comfortable or healthful, it should be looked to. The lesson to be read in the German, the French and the American tariffs ought to convince any sensible man that modern protectionism has come to stay. Free trade exists nowhere except in the brains of a few academicians or visionaries. Protectionism exists everywhere. It is the weapon by which nations protect themselves against each other's greed. As the world grows older the position of the farmer as food-supplier should improve. It becomes, or should become, less a matter of scratching the ground and putting in a few seeds or raising a few cattle. It will become a great, operative, organised industry, like other industries. It must be provided for in the way of protecting its interests and seeing that it gets fair play, just as other industries are provided for. For advocates of free trade or protection to toss up their hats in triumph over any particular pet theory, shows that they do not understand the underlying principle of Protection, which is to move as a regulator along the pathway of commerce, and not for the purpose of favouring any one class at the expense of any other. Free trade favours the foreigner. It also favours the strong. It means that the untrained, new nation must go up against the old trained peoples on even terms. It is, therefore, and to be absurd, and it is so. Below will be seen what our friends to the south have lately done to us. It is taken from the Globe of May 31st. It is profitable reading:

Washington, May 29.—(Associated Press Despatch)—During two hours before adjournment to-day the Senate made more real progress in the adoption of schedules previously passed over than has been usual during an entire day. Not only were committee amendments that had been formerly reported agreed upon, but quite a number of additional changes were proposed or accepted by the Committee on Finance and incorporated in the bill.

Early in the day, in spite of protests voiced by Senators Beveridge and Root, the duty on barley was increased from twenty-five cents a bushel, as proposed by the House, to thirty cents a bushel, as recommended by the Committee on Finance. The tax on hops was advanced. The House had made the duty twelve cents, while the Committee on Finance had formerly advanced it to fifteen cents. To-day the committee brought in an amendment making the rate twenty cents. The duty on potatoes was made forty-five cents a bushel, instead of twenty-five cents, and oysters in the shell were advanced from three-quarters of a cent a pound to twenty-five per cent. ad valorem on motion of Senator Piles, who has an industry in bivalves to protect against Canadian competitors.

THE MAN AND THE BOY

A man was building a very big house in Saskatchewan. To him came a little boy.

"Will you live here?" asked the boy.

"No, sonny. I live in Ontario."

"Who will live here?"

"Oh!" said the builder. "Perhaps my son, perhaps a Yankee, perhaps a Doukbor."

"And are you doing all that for them?" asked the child in his simple way.

"I am," replied the man.

"And what are they going to do for you, sir?"

"I dunno."

"And haven't they done anything for you at all?"

"A little. But they are going to do for themselves."

"And what will you do?"

"Keep on paying bonuses, taxes, graft, &c."

"And does that make your farms and other property more valuable?"

"Not to any alarming extent, my son."

The wise little boy thought the man was an escaped lunatic, and sped on his way as rapidly as possible.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Gulf stream has been on the rampage this spring.

Winnipeg rejoices in artesian well water. London is to have it. Why can't we have it in Peterborough?

Sir James Whitney is being complimented for having spoken to his constituents as a man representing all the people should, and not as a mere billikens of the Conservative party. Government party has its uses and its abuses also.

Sir Robert Perkes is doing his own press-agency work, but seems also to be overdoing it. If he can stampede the people of Ontario into building the Georgian Bay Canal he could induce a mother of a large small family to commit suicide by way of providing for their future.

Commenting on the reduction in establishments for the Militia camps the Journal, (Independent) says; — "The appropriation for the annual drill of the militia is reduced on the plea of a necessary economy. Many of the units in the service will be obliged to drill with a reduced establishment. There is no sign of reduction in the neighborhood of the headquarters. The militia expenditure has been increased from about a million in 1896 to about seven millions now. A million or so goes to Halifax and Esquimalt. For the remaining five millions we might hope to see a substantial increase in the strength of the efficient active militia. We don't see it. It isn't there."

Admiral Kingsmill, the commander of the Canadian marine service, and Major-General Sir Percy Lake, chief military adviser to the Minister of Militia, will accompany the Hon. L. P. Brodeu and Sir Frederick Borden to the Defence Conference in London in July.

Though the details of Canada's naval programme must await the result of the coming London conference, it is undoubted that it will involve the organization of a Canadian naval militia and the construction of a Canadian auxiliary fleet involving an expenditure of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 spread over four or five years.

Already representatives of Newcastle-on-Tyne ship-building firms have begun negotiations with the Government, one firm having sent over a special envoy to give prices for torpedo boat destroyers and similar craft.—Ottawa Free Press (Liberal)

The manufacturer of no matter what, must have a market and if he can induce the home-market to exploit itself to the point of bursting he is by so much the more delighted. Founders, bridgebuilders, masons, iron men, wooden men and all that stand behind them can thrive only on "increased development" as they "patriotically" tell the public. The money man presses the button—that is his part. The farmer, the small property holder, the mechanic, artizan and laborer all do the rest and pay for it in the last analysis. No one, surely will contend that they make anything out of development where excessive. The limit is taxation, the inducement, work. It is a pity greater control is not maintained, of the expenditure. The excess of work shows itself when we need immigrants to do it. The excess of taxation when we see and feel it. That is why the only good growth is slow growth.

NEEDS A WELL FILLED PURSE

House Wife Wants Plenty of Money These Days—When Shopping

Prices for groceries, and farmers' produce are so high these days that the housewife needs a full pocketbook to enable her to go shopping. One lady was heard to remark in the market square Saturday that "Farmers must think everybody is a millionaire by the way they charge for their farm produce. But the tillers of the soil are not bothered by these remarks, but it would appear to be a more sensible thing for them to take a little less for their produce and get a quick sale than have to remain out on the square all afternoon and then not dispose of any. With meat away up in price and sugar likely to rise, with footwear becoming dearer, and to say nothing of the many smaller articles of the it is very necessary for the modern to be well up in mathematics and do some very fine figuring when the weekly allowance is handed over by the head of the family.

ONCE MORE THE PROOF IS GIVEN

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure Even inherited Ill-health

Charles Dayon Suffered From Early Youth But the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy Banished His Ills and Made Him Strong.

St. George, Man., May 31.—Special.—Yet another case in which ill-health inherited from parents has been vanquished by Dodd's Kidney Pills is that of Mr. Charles Dayon, a farmer well known in this neighborhood.

"I suffered from a number of ills from an early age," says Mr. Dayon, who is now thirty-two years old. "I inherited my trouble from my parents. I was weak, nervous and run down. I suffered from Backache and my muscles would cramp. I had a heavy dragging sensation across the loins. I was always thirsty; I had great difficulty in collecting my thoughts, and my memory was failing me.

"I was altogether in a bad way when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills but they helped me almost from the first box. They gave me strength and helped me so much in every way that I am satisfied a little longer treatment will make me a well man."

Mr. Dayon's symptoms were the symptoms of Kidney Disease, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cure every form of Kidney Disease no matter what stage it is in or how it is contracted.

REV. MR. POTTER AT BRANTFORD

In connection with "Temperance Sunday" at Brantford, the Expositor says;

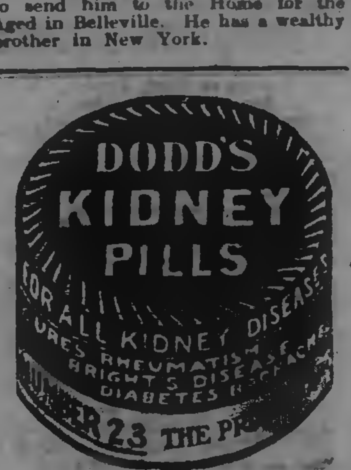
Very forceful, inspiring and encouraging were the addresses given by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of Peterborough, who spoke in the Congregational church in the morning, the mass meeting in the afternoon, and at Zion Presbyterian church in the evening. The campaign for local option is now on in Peterborough, and Mr. Potter gave some pointers for Brantford workers, his addresses creating a great deal of interest in the large congregations who listened to him. The speaker has strong convictions, and gave many stirring instances of the evils resulting from the traffic, and the power of Christ to redeem men from its bondage.

Chinese Revenge.

New York, June 1.—Ten minutes after a Chinaman, whom the police are now trying to find, came out of a laundry in East 22nd street and warned the children in the neighborhood to move away from the place, a heavy explosion occurred and the entire front and rear of the building were blown out into the street.

Going Blind, Drowns Himself.

Deseronto, June 1.—James Crawford, aged 65, hostler at the Arlington Hotel, committed suicide yesterday by jumping into the lake. Some time ago he became almost blind, and the town prepared papers and were about to send him to the Home for the Aged in Belleville. He has a wealthy brother in New York.



WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and thus causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozengers and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Biliousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Grand Trunk New Offices

The Grand Trunk Railway System, with their new organization in Europe have opened a fine suite of offices at 17-19 Cockspur street, London, one of the best locations in the city. It is just opposite Pall Mall, and the majority of the traffic from Westminster and the west end of London passes through this thoroughfare to Piccadilly, Oxford street, and the commercial sections of the Metropolis. Canadians who visit London will find these offices complete in every way, and the company are desirous of having all visitors from the colonies make their headquarters in London their rendezvous, where they can have their mail addressed, make appointments and do their correspondence. This is an innovation of the transportation lines of the colonies, and no doubt will be taken advantage of by many overseas visitors to the Mother Country.

Richard the Brazen

...By...
CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY,

AND
EDWARD PEPLE,
Author of "A Broken Rosary," "The Prince Chap," Etc.

Copyright, 1906, by Moffat, Yard & Company.

"But why did you wish to be received at all?" the host cut in, while the eyes of Uncle Michael sparkled expectantly.

"Mr. Renwyck," said Richard boldly, now flinging caution to the winds, "that day when I dragged your daughter out of a milling bunch of cattle I swore to follow her if I had to crawl to Jericho on my hands and knees!"

"What!" cried the New Yorker, springing to his feet. "Were you the man?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the young Texan, casting a look of tenderness at a certain young lady who was busily trying to keep down her blushes.

"Well, I never!" burst out Mrs. Renwyck. "I—I thought he was a very funny Englishman!"

"Ah!" exclaimed her husband. "Now I see how you happened to stick on the work. Go on; go on!"

This Richard proceeded to do, giving a full account of his tribulations, but with such deep appreciation of their humorous side that the people most imposed upon could not find it in their hearts to be angry with him.

"You see," he said in conclusion, "I was bowled over by a statue of Napoleon, frozen out by a foreign draft and was apparently caught red handed as a burglar. As for the diamonds perhaps Mr. Corrigan can tell us more about them!"

He did not think it necessary to mention the matter of the letters and hoped that Harriet and Imogene might also be spared a confession. In this the young people were lucky, for Uncle Michael's man had caught both the light fingered gentlemen—Hoddy-poddykins' expert and scientific assistant proving to be a notorious crook—who were subsequently lodged in a safe retreat which the Hon. Mr. Kinwait missed by the skin of his teeth, and means were found to keep them silent as to Mr. Fitzgeorge's adventure in the billiard room, although Mr. Renwyck and Michael had to be told of it.

"So that's the way the matter stands, is it?" asked Mr. Renwyck, with a smile. "You two have been making love under my very nose. I said you were a burglar, sir, and now you prove it." He glanced at his daughter from beneath his shaggy brows. "I suppose I needn't ask if it has all been decided without consulting me?"

"Well, no," grinned Richard. "I hoped it would have been, but something always popped up to interrupt us. I should like your permission, sir, to continue."

The financier studied the floor in silence, making no reply till Richard presently touched his shoulder and spoke again.

"Mr. Renwyck," he said, with a twinkle in his eye, "don't forget that I have a libel suit against you. I should hate to run off with a lady while her father pined in jail."

"Oh, go 'long with you!" laughed the millionaire. "I was thinking of the Peace and Good Will Realty company. I guess I'm in with you. Come, gentlemen, let's go into the library and look over Michael's papers."

"Dicky," smiled old Bill Williams to his son, "you're a scamp, and you know it! But I'd give a dozen harbors to see you happy." He placed a caressing arm about the young man's shoulder and whispered into his ear: "Go in and win, Dick, my boy. She's worth it all!"

Mr. Corrigan rubbed his hands and turned to his brother-in-law.

"If you had listened to me at first, Jacob, you"—

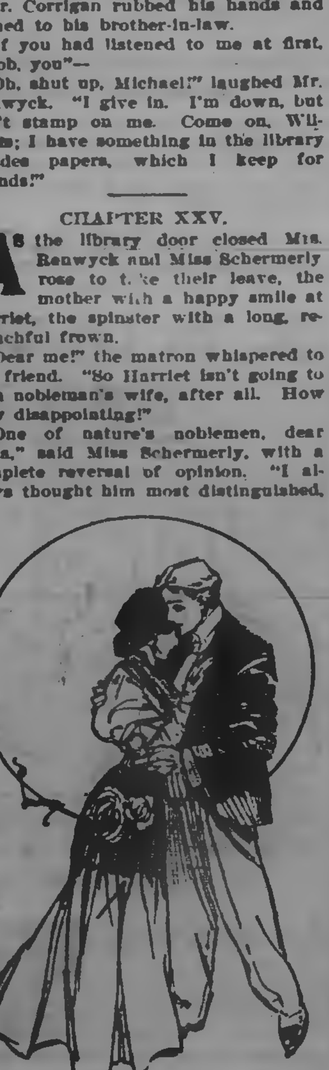
"Oh, shut up, Michael!" laughed Mr. Renwyck. "I give in. I'm down, but don't stamp on me. Come on, Williams; I have something in the library besides papers, which I keep for friends!"

CHAPTER XXV.

As the library door closed Mrs. Renwyck and Miss Schermerly rose to take their leave, the mother with a happy smile at Harriet, the spinster with a long, reproachful frown.

"Dear me!" the matron whispered to her friend. "So Harriet isn't going to be a nobleman's wife, after all. How very disappointing!"

"One of nature's noblemen, dear Julia," said Miss Schermerly, with a complete reversal of opinion. "I always thought him most distinguished, and think of the money they are to have from dear Michael and that—ah—Bible company!"



"Yes," murmured Harriet faintly.

Richard and Harriet were not yet alone, for Mr. Cornelius Van der Awe still sat in a huge rocking chair, the picture of woe and misery.

"Do you know," he murmured, apropos of nothing in particular, "everybody in the world seems happy—except poor me!"

"Cornelius!" called a shrill voice, and, looking up, all three spied a flushed face and a disheveled head that were poking over the banisters. "Cornelius, you make me tired! Go out on the lawn and wait until I fix my hair. I never saw such a miserable, dejected, silly boy! I declare, I'm almost sorry that I'm not engaged to Mr. Williams instead of you!"

The head disappeared, the melancholy lover departed, with a dazed and gloomy air, and Harriet and Richard were alone at last. For a moment neither spoke; then he took her unresisting hand.

"Harriet," he whispered, and now his voice for the first time trembled—"Harriet, do you understand why I stooped to this deception? I tried to tell you over and over again, but feared to lose you in the telling. I would gladly have faced death a thousand times rather than deceive you, and yet—for you I did it. Did you know—did you dream that I was an American?"

Harriet laughed.

"I guessed you were not an Englishman by the dreadful time you had with Lord Croyland's monocle. Really it was most pathetic!"

Richard took the frail silk cord between his thumb and finger, whirling the glass around his head in the manner of a lariat.

"It has served its purpose, and now we'll smash the last emblem of the foreigner."

"No; don't," interrupted Harriet quickly. "Let me keep it as a souvenir of your realistic impersonation."

He dropped it into her hand and asked:

"But did you suspect that I was the"—

"The cowboy?" she finished. "I—I hoped you were."

"God bless you for that!" he cried. "And, now that you know, may I tell you again that I have loved you, worshiped you, since that first sweet moment when I pulled you from your pony and held you in my arms? May I tell you that never for a moment have I ceased to dream of you, wanting you as I wanted nothing else in the whole wide world?"

"You—you didn't think that way at first," she smiled.

"How? What do you mean?"

Harriet hesitated, blushed and then went on:

"Well—you—you put me down on the grass, gave me that awful whisky—then forgot all about me—to go after your—horrid cows!"

It was Richard's turn to laugh.

"But, you see," he explained. "It was duty that called me then, even as another duty calls me now. I'm afraid I must leave you to look after an English calf." He smiled at Harriet's look of blank astonishment and continued, with a laugh: "It is all on account of poor Woolsey Bills. I thought he had helped to steal your diamonds, and I'm afraid I locked the Cardinal up in the bathroom."

"Oh, please hurry and let the poor thing out!" Miss Harriet pleaded when she fully realized the situation. But Richard for once determined to put pleasure even before so plain a duty as releasing an innocent prisoner.

"No," he whispered; "I want the promise of another prisoner first—a prisoner for life—for all time—and one who will never wish to get away. I love you," he pleaded, "with all my strength and with all my soul. Dearest, will you be my prisoner?"

She checked his extended hands and asked, with a mischievous smile:

"Will—will you lock me up in the bathroom?"

"If you need it," he answered audaciously. "But at other times I'll lock you in my heart. Darling, will you come?"

Again he came toward her, and this time he would not be denied.

"Yes," murmured Harriet faintly.

And Richard the Brazen came into his own.

Mysterious Safe Robbery.

Toronto, May 31.—It has leaked out through an ex-messenger of the Dominion Express Co., living near Kingston, that a short time ago, and within six weeks of the robbery of $25,000 in unsigned Traders' Bank bills, a second extensive robbery occurred on the C.P.R. The car was sealed at Ottawa, and not opened by officials until it reached Toronto. The padlock on the side of the car was one with six levers. The padlock, the lock on the door, and the combination of the safe were all changed after the first robbery six weeks before, yet the robbery occurred.

Lost Energy
Restored by Psychine.
Mr. Geo. Pratt, of Clarkson, Ont., says: "Four years ago my son Wilbert was so run down, thin and emaciated, that we thought he was going into a decline and feared he would never pull through the severe cold of the winter months. The boy had no appetite and seemed to have lost all energy and interest in life. He was altogether in terribly bad shape. His condition caused us the gravest anxiety.
"Fortunately I procured PSYCHINE for him and this soon gave him a new lease of life. It is really remarkable how rapidly this splendid medicine brought about a change. After taking one or two bottles he was hardly recognizable as the same youth. PSYCHINE effected a speedy cure and he was soon able to work about on the farm again. To-day he is a robust young fellow, and if anything, stronger than his brothers. Nothing in the way of hard work seems to affect him. I cannot speak too highly of PSYCHINE. It certainly saved our boy and made a man of him."
Prevents the children taking cold, wards off that terrible malady La Grippe and completely fortifies them against disease. It should always be used for colds, la grippe, weakness, loss of appetite, etc. Send to Dr. T. A. SLOCUM, Limited, Spadina Ave., Toronto. Sold by all druggists and dealers, 50c and $1.00.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

By J. R. McCrea.
(The McCrea homestead at Keene overlooks Rice Lake)

When the mind's at rest and the care of day,
With the work a day world you've locked away,
And on the verandah your chair you take,
And your weary eyes seek the distant lake,
How the vast expanse that before you lies,
From the shore remote to the distant skies,
Will be filled with voices that reverberate,
In the pictured dreams your thoughts create.

And when, unconscious, your eyes are drawn,
And the picture takes in the close cropped lawn,
That stretches away from your very feet,
To where the grass and the lilacs meet,
And the all-seeing camera exposes to view
The old tulip bed where the fringe tree grew,
And the mountain ash that was sorely tried,
Ere it folded its leaves and withered and died.

And you follow in thought to the place you know,
Where the harvest apples are wont to grow,
And your gaze goes on to the old east fence
Where the grapes lie hid in the foliage dense,
To the croquet lawn where the shadows lie
And the rustic seat 'neath the northern spy,
They are there in detail on the sensatized plate,
To the willows that grow by the garden gates.

And the locust that bears the flowers so sweet,
The row of maples that line the street,
And the silver sheen of the poplar tree,
As its leaves upturn when the breeze blows free,
And the old pine grove, as through each bough,
In mournful cadence the west winds sough
Where in childhood's hour we made our mark
And stripped from its trunk the birch trees bark.

All these you see in the picture sweet
But there's one thing more that makes it complete.
And you scan each brick for you love each stone,
And straight to your lips comes a sudden moan,
And into your eyes comes a biting smart,
And you stifle the sob e'er it leaves your heart,
And your thoughts go back, nor would forbear,
To a mother's love and a father's care.

And you wipe from your eye the scalding tear,
And you say, "O, home, thou art ever dear,"
And you close your eyes that the vision stay,
And leaning forward you softly pray
That ever the home you know and love
Will be kept in the hand of the One above,
O, the pictures you see when you focus aright
Ner the sun goes down and there comes the night.

LOVELY WOMAN

When lovely woman buys a bonnet
That looks like an inverted crock,
With apples, grass, and birds upon it,
Enough to stop an eight-day clock,
Why is it that, as forth she'll sally
To wear the thing without a blush,
And all her friends go up an alley,
She wonders what has caused the rush!

If, in addition to this horror,
As down to boulevard she trips,
She wears a gown she's had made for her
So that she looks, as 'twere, sans hips,
Why does she marvel as she passes!
That strong men flee on every hand
Are there at home no looking-glasses!
Why is it she can't understand!

Of course she's bound to say she likes them,
And thinks her hat and gown a dream,
But when her friends admit it strikes them
That both are dreadfully extreme,
Why must she rally to defend them
Why can't she see things as they are!

Oh, lovely woman, you're a wonder!
And so, in truth, is your new hat.
The milliners must have their plunder,
Though it be tall or big or flat;
But while they get what they are after
Which is a dig at hubby's dough—
Do hats cost more or less with laughter!
That's what menfolk want to know.

Former Preacher a Drug Fiend.

New York, May 31.—For the second time within little more than a month, Rev. Geo. W. Briggs, once a noted Methodist preacher in Texas, and known in a dozen states as "the Moody of the South," was arrested Saturday afternoon. He is accused of petty larceny and has confessed his guilt. Morphine, he says, caused his downfall.

$575 Burned In House.

London, May 31.—As the result of the explosion of a coal oil stove at Dorchester, the residence of Mrs. Wm. Banks was burned to the ground, and John Banks and Stephen Budden received burns from burning timbers falling on them.

Mrs. Banks had $575 in bills in a bureau drawer and this was lost.

YOU CAN CURE CATARRH
J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond St. Toronto, Breathed Hyomei and Cured a Long Standing Case of Chronic Catarrh That Defied All Other Remedies. Also Toronto and New York Specialists.
Without taking a drop of medicine into the stomach, J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond street, Toronto, tells how the distressing troubles of catarrh were overcome by simply inhaling Hyomei air. It's the history of tens of thousands similar cases on record, proving that Hyomei can be depended upon to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Croup. It has no equal for any distress of the breathing organs.
Mr. Taylor says: "Some years ago while on a hunting trip in Northern Canada, I contracted a severe cold that settled in my head and finally affected my throat. It rapidly developed into catarrh and caused a miserable throat weakness. My head would become clogged during the night and there was a catarrhal dropping from the nose into the throat. Many days I had been unable to breathe other than through my mouth and the constant hawking and spitting was almost unbearable. I had been treated by the best throat specialists here and in New York, but nothing benefitted my condition. I obtained Hyomei and soon found relief, the throat dropping ceased and my head began to clear. I continued with Hyomei for six weeks and after that time I was well in every detail. There has been no return of the trouble since, and I feel grateful in speaking well of Hyomei, as it cured me when all else failed."
A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1 and Wm. Madill, druggist, will refund your money if it fails to cure.

PRINCE RUPERT LOTS

The second day's sale of lots of the townsite of Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast Terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, proved even more satisfactory than the first day, both as to number of lots sold and returns. The sale for the two days netted $800,000. In all 650 lots were sold, the majority of which went at from 25 per cent to 100 per cent. above the upset price. The highest price paid thus far was $10,000.

TWO ECLIPSES DURING JUNE

Moon Will be Eclipsed on June 3rd and Sun on June 17th

Two interesting spectacles in the astronomical world will occur during the coming month. These events will be eclipses of the moon and sun, the former on June 3rd, and the latter on June 17th. The moon will rise totally eclipsed, and its totality will last about an hour, while the sun will only be in totality near the North Pole.

Of chief interest will be the lunar eclipse, which will be visible over about half the earth. Only a few white men, namely Commander Robert E. Peary and his crew, who are now on an arctic expedition, and perhaps a few whalers will have an opportunity of observing at totality the eclipse of the sun. While this eclipse will be visible in its partial eclipse, the region near the North Pole is the only part of the globe where it will be seen as a total eclipse.

WHEN are you going to find out whether the fire insurance you have paid for is really good or not - before or after the fire which makes it due or payable? You cannot change it after the fire. FOUND DEAD IN BED IN TORONTO

Sudden Death of Former Peterboro' Resident---Will be Buried Here

Miss Annie Taylor, a former resident of Peterborough, died suddenly in Toronto yesterday morning. She was found dead in bed at the house where she resided on Victoria street, heart trouble being the cause of death. Miss Taylor was an employee of the T. Eaton Company, and had been at work on Saturday. She was a daughter of the late Wm. Taylor, of Peterborough, and is survived by three sisters and three brothers. The sisters are Mrs. Geo. Rolling and Mrs. James Palmer, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Eliza McCrea, of Vancouver, and the sons are Messrs. John and William Taylor, of Peterborough, and Mr. Jas. Taylor, of Port Hope.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the residence of Mrs. Palmer, Westcott street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Kenner will conduct the funeral service.

Those bereaved will have the sympathy of many friends.

The high esteem in which Miss Taylor was held by her employers was shown by kind acts on behalf of Mr. Eaton, when he was apprised of her death.

Commencing June 7th, a new fast train will leave Toronto at 4 p.m. for Galt, Woodstock, London, Detroit, arriving in Chicago at 7.15 a.m. the next day, making connections with all morning trains out of Chicago. Splendid new equipment.

IS LEAVING FOR CHICAGO

Mr. George Evans, of the Banks Sporting Goods store, leaves for Chicago on Saturday. Mr. Evans has secured a good position in the Windy City.

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

Many people in Peterborough have been using the coal sent out by the D. & H. Company, and its use has been quite satisfactory to them. The Ontario Coal Company, who have handled this coal in the past, however, are always on the lookout for something better for their patrons, and have secured the sole agency for the famous Reading coal, which is shipped by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, who are claimed to be the largest shippers and miners in the U.S. The Reading Coal is hard, bright and clean, and practically free from clinkers, and the Ontario Coal Co. are to be congratulated on having secured this agency.

DANDELIONS GROWING ON THE CITY PAVEMENTS

The main section of Peterborough can hardly be called surburban, but a stranger would infer at least that there was an excellent area in these parts for growing things if he saw the dandelions blossoming forth in the pavement on Charlotte street alongside the Customs House buildings.

A couple of plants of these tenacious pests are in full bloom in a little earth on the pavement close to the brick wall, and seem to be flourishing in spite of the limited resources for obtaining nourishment.

AN AGRICULTURAL CLASS AT NORWOOD

Will Open First of September—Government Will Furnish $1,200 per Year

Agricultural classes will be established by the Provincial Government at Carp, Carleton County, Simcoe, in Norfolk County, and Norwood, in Peterborough County. The step is an extension of the policy inaugurated by the Government about a year ago, when similar classes were opened in a number of Ontario towns. They are in charge of students or graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College, and besides providing instruction for farmers' sons in connection with their High school courses, they supply information as to seeds, crops suitable to various districts, and other subjects to the farmers themselves. The offices in connection with the classes also are centres from which the various bulletins and publications of the agricultural department are distributed.

The Government will contribute $1,200 per year for the support of the class at Norwood. It will open in September.

Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong was presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain by the foremen at the Canadian General Co. last evening. The presentation took place at six o'clock, and was made by Mr Peter Miloy, the following address being read by Mr. Geo. Tovey:

Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong:

Dear Friend.—Having heard of your decision to sever your connection with the Canadian General Electric Company, which you have served so long, having been one of the men who came with the old company from Sherbrooke, Que., this making you one of the oldest foremen in the company's employ.

We, having found you always straight forward in all your dealings with your fellow workmen, upholding with considerable energy what you considered right, and ready to condemn the wrong, helping anyone who was in need, we feel it a very fitting thing to present to you a small remembrance of your friends at the C.G.E.

Please accept this watch and chain, and looking into its face, we hope it will often remind you of us. We expect and believe that you will press to the front in your new calling, and we all wish you God speed.

(Signed) Geo Tovey, R. Anson, J. F. Morrison, W. C. Common, T. Nokes, C. H. Thornton, N. Munroe, R. J. Martin, W. A. Brundrette, W. Cottrell, W. Robinson, H. McCusker, R. E. Harding, J. McKenzie, J. Mr. Armstrong, who has been foreman of the buffing and dipping department, left to-day for Saskatchewan, where he will be organizer for the Orange Order.

WHY IT SHOULD BE SUPPORTED

The Children's Aid Society is sending out printed matter giving five reasons why citizens should support it. The reasons quoted are given as follows,

Because the sorrows of a little child must touch your heart.

Because you would not allow a child of your own to be ill-treated.

Because the society is a legally constituted organization for the protection of children.

Because thousands of children have been benefitted in the past — and a still greater preventive work is possible.

Because the society's aim is to educate parents to love and appreciate their children; to find homes for the homeless and to befriend and uplift young people who have fallen into evil ways.

"ABIDE WITH ME" WAS DISCUSSED

Splendid Gathering of Young People at Meeting of St. Paul's Guild Last Evening

It was a well-attended meeting. More than that, it was a splendidly addressed meeting. The basis for the evening's discussion being Rev. Henry F. Lyte's beautiful and inspiring hymn "Abide With Me," there was a wide scope for the speakers, all of whom took full advantage.

Miss Weir very ably and clearly gave a graphic description of the life of the author; a feature in the study of the hymn which is necessary to get the inner meanings. Rev. Lyte, with the assistance of friends, courageously struggled against the straitened circumstances of an orphan, and ill-health thrown in. He took holy orders in Dublin, after a brilliant college career, but during his twenty-five years of ministry in Devonshire, his delicate constitution continually asserted its influence in his work. At the age of 54, he died on the continent while seeking health. A noteworthy coincidence in connection with his death was the attendence of Cardinal Newman, the author of that other grand hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

Following this basic address, Miss Marlie Hall, Miss Perry, Miss McIntosh and Miss McCalla gave interesting and instructive two-minute talks, taking a stanza of the hymn as their theme. Each address showed deep reflection, and the auditors were given a good deal of excellent food for thought.

Sheriff Hall, in the short time allotted him, further enlightened the meeting in reference to the conditions under which the hymn was written. In concise yet explicit terms, he told how the author after engaging in a communion service which had so overtaxed his naturally delicate body that he had to be assisted to his home, had in such a state of physical weakness, yet spiritual strength, penned the gifted lines which will be sung as long as voices are upraised in sacred song.

Miss Helen Davies very beautifully sang the hymn as a solo, as an opening number.

Next Monday evening Mr. F. G. Hassard, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., will dress the Guild on "The Denial of Peter." Mr. Kenneth Shook will sing.

PRACTICE MUST BE STOPPED

Boys Who Gather on Street Corners at Night and are Disorderly Will Get into Trouble

Those boys who are in the habit of hanging around corners at all hours of the night and causing much annoyance to residents in the vicinity by their disorderly actions should stop the practice at once and thus save trouble to themselves and others. There have been many complaints at the police station about this practice of the boys. Although several cases have come up and been leniently dealt with, no heed has been paid but in the future it would be a good thing for the boys to stop gathering at these places.

Two young men were before the Magistrate this morning, charged with being disorderly at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets on Friday night of last week. Several witnesses gave evidence to the effect that a number of boys were using bad language and making considerable noise at this place between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock. But as the witnesses were in bed at the time and could only state as to what they heard neither of the accused could be convicted and the case was dismissed.

WHISKEY FOUND IN BEDROOM

Proprietor of Hotel in Local Option Town Fined $25 00 and Costs

Frank Lawless, proprietor of the Lakefield House in Lakefield, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the liquor license law and was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate Edmison. The information was laid by License Inspector Stewart.

On Saturday, May 22nd, Inspector Stewart, accompanied by the License Inspector of Havelock made a trip to Lakefield. They searched the house with the result that a jug of whiskey and a small funnel were found in the defendant's bedroom.

There was also a keg of cider, and one of local option porter and ale, and from these a quantity was taken and sent to Toronto to be analysed. The report showed that there was two per cent more alcohol in the cider than the law allowed for. The man who supplied the cider to the hotel made a statement to the effect that the cider was all right before being taken to the hotel.

SENIOR CITY LEAGUE 'A STRONG ORGANIZATION

Capable and Energetic Men Behind the Four Teams—Schedule for the Season—T.A.S. and Park Street Teams Will Open the League.

The Senior City League's works were wound up last night and will begin to unwind on Saturday next at Riverside, when a double header will be pulled off as an opener. There are four teams in the league, the Strathconas, T.A.S., Park St. Baptists and West Ends. Preparations for the season were arranged at a meeting held in the Examiner office with the above teams represented as follows: W. J. Metheral, A. Quinlan, Jack Pilling and Jack Oldham.

After some consideration the following constitution was drawn up and decided upon—

That this association be called the Peterborough Senior City Baseball League.

That the annual meeting of this league be held not later than the second Tuesday in April.

That the active officers of this league shall consist of a president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and one representative from each team.

That a majority of the officers shall constitute a quorum, and due notice must be given to each representative two days before such meeting.

That the entrance fee of two dollars must accompany each application for admission to the league, same being returned if application is not accepted.

No club can be represented at the annual meeting unless the admission fee of $2.00 for the present season is paid on or before the date of meeting.

No verbal proxies shall be accepted at any meeting and all proxies must be signed by an officer of the club, and witnessed.

The amount of deposit required from each club shall be determined by the incoming executive and must be paid to the secretary-treasurer on or before the date of drawing up the schedule.

The National League rules shall govern all games as far as actual play is concerned.

That all games must be commenced within fifteen minutes after the advertised time.

That any team delaying a game longer than the above fifteen minutes shall be fined five dollars, to be paid before the offending team or teams can participate in another game.

No team shall be allowed to enter the league after the schedule has been drawn up.

No permits shall be issued to any club under any consideration.

A player in the Senior City Baseball League must be a bonafide resident of the city from May the first.

Each player in the Senior City Baseball League must hold a certificate from the league to entitle him to play in such games.

That the number of playing certificates for each club shall be limited to fifteen.

Players who have participated in any recognized professional league are ineligible to play in this league.

A player playing in more than three games in the Midland League in the current season shall be ineligible to play in any more games in this league during that season.

The games will be played at Riverside and the fans will have a chance to see purely home-bred players in the game. The teams are fairly fast and the exhibition of ball should be well up to the standard.

The schedule has been drawn up as follows:

Strathconas vs. West Ends.
Saturday, June 12.—
Park St. vs. Strathconas.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

FORFEITED GAMES.

Rule 26, sec. 1.—If a team or a club fail to appear upon the field, or being upon the field refuse to begin a game for which it is scheduled or assigned within five minutes after the umpire has called "play" at the hour for the beginning of the game, unless such delay in appearing or in commencing the game be unavoidable.

Sec. 2.—If, after the game has begun one side refuse to continue to play, unless the game has been suspended or terminated by the umpire.

Sec. 3.—If after play has been suspended by the umpire, one side fails to resume playing in one minute after the umpire has called "play."

THE SPITBALL.

What has become of the crusade against the spit ball? Last season and during the past winter all sorts of legislation was threatened against the moistened delivery, yet the question of whether it should be eliminated or not was never taken up by the rules committee.

The fact is that one does not see half much of the spit ball as one did when this queer shoot was first discovered. It is, perhaps, used more now than it was a few years ago, but the pitchers have grown more expert in preparing the ball for this particular delivery.

The discovery has been made that it is not necessary to go through any repulsive preliminary movements. The ball will take that deceptive downward shoot if the two forefingers are but slightly moistened. Hence it is that when a spit ball is used nowadays it is done so unostentatiously that only an expert can detect the preparatory work.

This has another advantage, for the ball is not soaked in spots when it are not near as likely to result. With reaches the fielders, and wild throws the nauseating feature of this delivery shelved, there is not likely to be another crusade against its use, which means that some of the pitchers who owe their retention in base ball to the "spitter" may rest easy, for a time at least.

On account of the George street team dropping out of the church league the game scheduled for to-night will not be played.

The Strathconas had a splendid workout at the Oval last night. Another practice will be held tonight, and the management ask for a fine turnout of players.

The fans will now have an opportunity of witnessing some fast ball at Riverside park which will be supplied by the senior teams. All that is asked of them is to patronize the games and encourage the players by doing so.

Rochester took a firm lead in first place by taking two games from Montreal yesterday. The Royals were off color having 5 errors in the first game and 6 in the second.

Toronto won and lost at Buffalo. McGinley won the morning game 3-0, but Kellogg was unsteady in the afternoon allowing the Bisons to win by 4-3.

The Collegiate League furnished some good baseball at Riverside yesterday afternoon when the 3 B team won from the nine from 1 A Form by 10—3. Kirn, who pitched for the winners, had the game well in hand at all stages, and his twirling was the outstanding feature of the contest. The batteries were Kirn and Moore for 3 B, and Crane and Armstrong for A 1. Umpire, H. R. H. Kenner.

Chicago, May 31.—After dropping out of the Marathon here on Saturday in the fifteenth mile on the excuse that he felt the effects of the sunstroke which affected him in the Olympic Marathon last year return. Tom Longboat the Canadian Indian, was substituted for St Yves in a twelve mile relay race against relay runners and won by about a half mile in 1.04.32 admitted to be the world's record at Terre-haute, Ind, yesterday. Four runners were pitted against him in seven relays. The track was heavy from rain and a threatened downpour kept the attendance to a handful.

Longboat is to run here on July 1, against either St Yves or Shrubb.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE MEETING

Important Business to be Transacted at Meeting To night in Y.M.C.A. at 8 O'clock

A meeting of the Junior Church League is called for tonight at the YMCA at eight o'clock. The George street team has dropped out and this will necessitate a change in the schedule. Only one team has paid the entrance fee and the other teams should bring along their change if they mean business. There are other small matters which need settling and it is hoped that all teams interested will have a representative at the meeting tonight.

MR. DAN McCABE WILL UMPIRE

Has Consented to Officiate in all Senior City League Baseball Games

The Senior City Baseball League have secured a capable umpire for the games in the person of Mr. Dan McCabe. His name was mentioned at the meeting held last night, and when interviewed this morning stated that he would officiate. This will be welcome news to the fans and players alike, and this official should meet with the co-operation of both.

A RUGBY TROPHY

Governor-General Puts up Handsome Cup for Dominion Championship

Ottawa, June 1.—A challenge cup for competition in Rugby football is to be given by His Excellency the Governor-General, according to an announcement made last night. It is hoped to make the trophy emblematic of the amateur championship of the Dominion. The trophy is to be a perpetual one. The Governor-General is thus doing for football what his predecessor, Lord Minto, has done for lacrosse, and Lord Stanley for hockey. His Excellency names three trustees, H. B. McGiverin, M.P., of Ottawa, an old footballer; Rev. Bruce McDonald, principal of St. Andrew's College, Toronto, and M. Nolan of Montreal. Regarding the trustees, Earl Grey's wish is that they shall control the cup and that their decisions as to the cup and its custody shall be absolute. Should any trustee die, or otherwise drop out, a successor shall be appointed by the Governor-General for the time being.

At His Excellency's request, the trustees have made suggestions regarding the disposal of the cup and the contest for it, which His Excellency has approved, with the reservation that the regulations must be considered as subject at any time to the will of the trustees, inasmuch as circumstances are always liable to arise which may render a departure from all rules.

The deed of gift has conditions similar to those for the Stanley and Minto cups.

A full attendance of the members of the Track and Field Club is asked at the Oval to-night at 7.15. The track is in good shape and practises will be held at this place until further notice.

DUBBY SHEA IS CLOUTING SOME

His Batting Was Feature of Game in Brantford Saturday, in Which His Team Won 5-2

The Brantford Expositor in speaking about the game Saturday between Varsity's and Goold, Shapley and Muir teams has the following to say:

The Windmillers scored also right off the reel, Cancella getting a life on Griffin's error and Shea hitting the ball out of the lot for two bases. Shea made the third out in an endeavor to steal third. In the third Treacy's bunch got another. With two-out Cancella singled and Burke walked. Shea's second two-bagger scored the fruit man.

Sheas' team won 5—2, and his work was the feature of the game.

SPORTING TALK

W. A. Hoagland, a gentleman on and off the track. Fritz Mohl, a gentleman on and off the mat.

The Review offers a cup for an airship race here on the first of July. Hot airships preferred.

It is said arrangements are being made to have J. Blatchford and Josiah Craig, press herd and toe champion, walk a half mile race at the walkers' benefit on Wednesday. Blatchford was one of the four fast enough to get in the money in the walk here last week and he and the pretty press performer should make a fascinating short distance match.

WANTS TO KNOW NAMES OF THE CANADIAN HEAVIES

Eddie B. Smith, sporting editor of the Chicago American, and referee of the Gotch-Mahmout wrestling match, writes to get the names of any Ontario or Canadian heavyweights who would be likely competitors in a tournament which he proposes to pull off at Chicago next fall. He says he has a line on the lightweights and welters, but is short on the middles and heavies. The best men on the continent, will compete for five cash prizes.

The wrestling editor of the Review knows of no likely ones among the Canadian big fellows.

They have received a challenge from Bewdley, to play on the 11th of June and are going to accept. They practice on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. All will remember the accident of Bobbie Lockie last year when he got his leg broken and the boys thought it their duty to show their sympathy by taking up a subscription to help cover expenses and presented it to him on Saturday night last and was appreciated very much. The money was presented by G. Reynolds, captain of the football team, and the address was read by Levern Grew, secretary and was as follows;

Springville,
May 29, 1909

To Comrade Robert Lockie—

Dear Robert—We have had sympathy with you in your misfortune in getting your leg broken and wish to express that sympathy in a tangible way, hence we ask you to accept from from us this sum of money amounting to $18.75, which we hope will be helpful in defraying to some extent the expenses in connection therewith.

Signed on behalf of the football team;—

COURT OF REVISION HEARD ASSESSMENT APPEALS

The Court of Revision of the assessment roll for the township of North Monaghan for the year 1909, met in the town hall on Monday, the 31st day of May, at 2 p.m. The members present were John Brown, chairman, and Messrs. Howden, Morrow, and McKee.

The following appeals were heard;—

J. A. Blodgett, over assessed, on land.

Rev. W. J. McColl, illegally assessed.

J. H. Burns, over assessed on land.

A. Bishop, over assessed on land.

T. W. Panter, over assessed on land.

After consideration of the above appeals, the court, on motion of Messrs. Howden and McKee, adjourned until Saturday, June 5th, inst., to meet in Peterborough at 2 p.m. for the purpose of getting more information on the matters before the court.

After the adjournment of the Court of Revision the council resolved into session for the transaction of public business, the Reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

An account was presented from W. J. Byers for goods, charity, $13.17.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Morrow, that the account be passed and paid.—This was carried.

Mr. Howden, as chairman of the committee who were to construct a bridge at Apington Avenue, reported that at a meeting of the committee it was decided to recommend that it would be better to put in a 30 inch tile culvert than to erect a cedar bridge at this point.

Moved by Messrs. Morrow and McKee,—That this report be adopted and the committee are hereby authorized to build a concrete tile culvert at Apington Avenue instead of a cedar bridge.—This was carried.

The clerk was instructed to arrange a meeting of a committee of the Council with the manager of the Peterborough Street Railway in regard to repairing the streets upon which the street railway tracks are laid. The clerk was also instructed to communicate with the Roadmaster of the Grand Trunk Railway in regard to opening a culvert at the quarter line on the 9th concession.

Council then adjourned until Saturday, June 5th, at 2 p.m., in Peterborough.

The report of the Dominion land office at Stettler, Alberta, is a record breaker.

A pioneer merchant of Kilwood, Manitoba, was found dead in the cellar of his store.

Full Report of the Proceedings at the Session Recently Held at Time of Grand Lodge Convention

The Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association opened its 16th session in the County Court House, Peterborough, on Tuesday afternoon, May 25th, 1909. The Right Worthy Grand Mistress, Miss M. Cullum, of Toronto, presided, and the R.W.D.G.M., Mrs J. Parkin, of London, occupied the deputy chair. The delegates were as follows;—

R.W.J.D.G. Mistress—Mrs. J. Miller, Ottawa.

R.W.G. Lecturer—Mrs. S. Smith, Essex.

R.W.G.D. of C.—Mrs. E. Jeffries, Leamington.

Representatives to G.L. of B.A.—Dr. R. B. Orr, Toronto; Wm. Forster, Toronto.

Mrs. S. Stewart, London; Mrs. E. Wilson, W.M., Ottawa; Miss Florence O'Bryan, W.M., Ottawa; Mrs. Nealy, Toronto; Mrs. E. Sissons, P.M., Chatham; Miss M. Pike, proxy, No. 60, North Sydney, Toronto; Mrs. Clark, Hamilton; Miss Ruby Warner, Leamington; Mrs. A. Jenks, Toronto; Mrs. Thos. Madill, Gooderham; Mrs. A. Hunter, Gooderham; Mrs. S. Taylor, Hamilton; Mrs George McLenon, proxy, Leamington; Mrs. Fraser, proxy, No. 36, Hamilton; Mrs. McCartney, proxy, Roxborough; Miss L. E. Calder, P.M., Peterborough; Mrs. G.T. Armstrong, P.M., St. John, N. B.; Mrs. George Brokenshire, W.M., Port Hope; Mrs. E. G. Mmaker, Port Hope; Mrs. Robinson Reid, St. John; Mr. S. W. Lowry, Peterborough, proxy, No. 62, Winnipeg; Mrs. C. Perry, Port Hope; Mrs. Thos. Harrison, Peterborough, proxy, East Angus, P.Q.; Mrs. John Mason, Sault Ste. Marie.

After the opening of the lodge the R.W.G.M. appointed the Standing Committee, and when they had drafted the other committees, Mr. S. W. Lowry, Inner Guard, introduced Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong, C.M., of West Peterborough. Mr. Armstrong read the following address of welcome;—

To the Right Worthy Grand Mistress, Officers and Members of the Grand Lodge of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association:

Dear Sisters,—On behalf of the County Orange Lodge of West Peterborough, permit me to extend to you the most hearty and cordial welcome on this your first visit to our city. We hope that your deliberations will be characterized by the utmost harmony, and that your short stay amongst us will be both pleasant and profitable to you and redound to the welfare and prosperity of the cause and principles for which you are banded together. It affords me much pleasure to call your attention to the rapid progress that Orangeism has made in this locality in the past three years. Two new Primary Lodges, as well as a district lodge, have been organized, which have resulted in a very large increase in membership, the quality of which has been such as to attract the best class of citizens in our community, and we believe that we are now at the commencement of a new era in the history of Orangeism in this city and county, and that a few years hence that the Order will have made such extensive progress that the present time will be looked upon as Orangeism being only in its infancy. It was also with a great deal of pleasure that we witnessed during the past year the institution of a branch of your Association in our city, and it is our further wish that it may abundantly flourish and be the means of spreading and perpetuating the great and glorious principles of civil and religious freedom that were bought for us at so great a price at Derry, Aughrim and the Boyne. We observe that the women throughout the British Empire are to-day wielding a greater influence in social, religious and political affairs than ever before, and we feel that the influence thus exerted will, in the near future, contribute largely toward the moral and spiritual salvation of the human race and the amelioration of present social conditions. It is with unbounded pleasure, therefore, that we welcome you as co-workers within the precincts of our city on this occasion, and offer you the right hand of fellowship. We hope that you will enjoy yourselves to the fullest extent while with us, and that when your duties here are ended and the time arrives for your departure, you will go away with such pleasant recollections and memories of Peterborough and its citizens as will be an incentive to your return in the near future.

In conclusion, permit me to extend to you a cordial invitation to join an excursion over Peterborough's famous Lift Lock, on Wednesday evening, the 26th inst., at 7.

I beg to remain,

Yours fraternally,
W. H. G. ARMSTRONG,
C.M.

Peterborough, Ont., May 25, 1909.

On motion of Mr. Lowry, seconded by Mrs. Parkin, the invitation was accepted and the R.W.G.M. thanked Bro. Armstrong on behalf of the Grand Lodge.

The W.M. of Sentinel Lodge, No. 66, Peterborough, then read the following address of welcome;—

To the Grand Lodge of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association:

Dear Sisters,—On behalf of the Officers and Members of Sentinel Lodge, No. 66, L.O.B.A., it affords us much pleasure to extend to you a cordial and fraternal welcome to our beautiful, enterprising, and prosperous city, and to express our plesure at having you with us for the first time. We trust that your deliberations while here may lead to the further advance of our Order.

We fully recognize the preciousness of the time at your disposal at this meeting and therefore ask but a moment to assure you of our loyal support in all the grand principles for which our Association stands; to express the heartfelt wish that your assembling here may be most pleasing and profitable, and to the brethren the hope that even still greater prosperity may perch upon the banners of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association.

Fraternally yours,
(MRS) C. E. WILEY, W.M.
MARIE HOPKINS, R.S.
Peterborough, Ont., May 25, 1909.

The R.W.G.M. thanked the lodge on behalf of the G.L. members and delegates.

The Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer read their reports, which showed that the finances of the Order were in a healthy condition, and the books very carefully and correctly kept. Lodge adjourned at 5.10 p.m.

Lodge reopened in the evening and the reports of several committees were handed in. Wednesday morning the Grand Secretary referred to a bill against Unity Lodge, No. 50, Essex, and asked that, on account of the wrecking of said lodge by an explosion, the amount be struck off the books. The matter was placed in the hands of the Finance Committee. The committee reported and on motion of Dr. Orr, seconded by Mrs. Stewart, the debt was cancelled.

On the afternoon of the 26th, the R.W.G.M. asked Lieut.-Col. J. D. Scott, K.C., D.G.M., to take the chair and conduct the election of officers. The officers elected for 1909-1910 are:

R.W.G. Mistress, Miss Mary Cullum, Toronto.

R.W.D.G. Mistress, Mrs. J. Miller, Ottawa.

R.W.J.D.G. Mistress, Mrs. Fraser, Hamilton.

R.W.G. Chaplain, Mrs. E. Cullum, Toronto.

R.W.G. Secretary, Miss E. Ida Caliger, Chatham.

R.W. Ass't G. Secretary, Miss L. E. Calder, Peterborough.

R.W.G. Treasurer, Mrs. S. Smith, Essex.

R.W.G.D. of C., Mrs. E. Jeffries, Leamington.

R.W.G. Lecturer, Mrs. Bentley, Toronto.

R.W.D.G. Lecturer, Mrs. Armstrong, Vancouver.

Representatives to G.L. of B.A., Dr R. B. Orr, Toronto; Wm. Foster, Toronto.

Col. Scott then installed the officers and was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his able assistance. A vote of thanks was also tendered the scrutineers and Mr. Wm. Foster, D. of C., pro tem.

It was moved by Mrs. Miller, D.G.M., seconded by Mrs. Perkins, P.D.G.M., that Mrs. Yeates, the retiring treasurer, be presented with a signet ring. The motion was unanimously carried. Mrs. Yeates has been Grand Treasurer for sixteen years, and the members of the G.L. feel that, in presenting her with a ring, they are expressing in only a slight degree their appreciation of her long and faithful services.

The books of the Grand Secretary show a steady growth of the order, eight warrants having been issued during the past year—No. 65 at Jasper, Ontario East; No. 66 at Peterborough, Ontario East; No. 67 at Truro, Nova Scotia; No. 68 at Port Hope, Ontario East; No. 69 at Paquette Station, Ontario East; No. 70 at Sault Ste Marie, Ontario West; No. 71 at Montreal, Quebec, and No. 72, at Cargill, Ontario West. Total number of members in good standing is 837.

The next meeting of the Grand Lodge of L.O.B.A. will be held (D.V.) in the city of Toronto during the last week in May, 1910.

The lodge closed on the afternoon of Wednesday, May 26.

DRILLING FOR GAS WILL BE STARTED SOON

Mr. R. H. Leary states that the promoters of the gas drilling proposition which was submitted to the City Council last winter are now ready to sign a contract with the drillers and to have the work begun at once.

Mr. Chas. Dittman with his associates secured a franchise to do business in this city. That franchise was extended twice and the last extension was until the first of June. Thus the time expired last night and the promoters wrote to Mr. Leary yesterday to get the time extended again. Mr. Leary interviewed several aldermen and being assured that the request would no doubt be granted it is expected that the contract for drilling will be awarded this week and work started immediately.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterborough a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin running; simply this, more families will of necessity move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase in other words prosperity is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing homes will do well to see J. PATROL BOAT TO BE LAUNCHED TO-DAY

The "Naiah" Taken to Lakefield From Deseronto via Grand Trunk---Crew Will Consist of Four—Boat Can Travel Fast.

The Government boat "Naiah" which will patrol the Kawartha Lakes and Trent Valley waters in the interests of fish and game protection will be launched at Lakefield today. It was taken there via Grand Trunk from Deseronto, being loaded on two flat cars. The boat has been undergoing repairs at Deseronto for several weeks and is now in first class shape. So extensive have been the repairs that the boat has practically been rebuilt. It is 55 feet long, of handsome design and has a speed of fifteen miles per hour. The "Naiah" is the second boat that the Ontario government has put in commission to protect the fish and game of the province. The other one is the "Navarch" which is patrolling the waters of the St. Lawrence in the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. Alfred Hunter, of the Fishery Department, Toronto, was in Peterborough last night on his way to Lakefield to supervise the launching of the "Naiah," and to be on hand for the first trip. Mr Hunter's district lies between Cornwall and [illegible]

The crew of the "Naiah" will consist of four. Captain Carson of Peterborough will be in command. John Deveney, Belleville will be engineer and Mr Hall of Kincardine will be mate. The cook will be the fourth member of the crew. The bulk of the supplies for the boat will be purchased in Peterborough.

The placing of the patrol boat on the local waters shows that the Ontario government realises the importance of preserving the fish and game in the Kawartha lakes and the Trent Valley waters.

FIERCE FIGHT ON FOR THE POSSESSION OF DEADMAN'S ISLAND, B. C.

Between City of Vancouver and Theodore Ludgate, a Former Peterboro' Man—Policeman Knocked Down With Club.

Vancouver, June 1.—A fight is on between the city and Theodore Lud-leland coal harbor. Ludgate claims a lease from the Dominion Government. The city claims the island as part of Stanley Park.

The Island Dock and Warehouse Co., on the strength of the Ludgate lease, began cutting timber on the island. At eight o'clock this morning Chief of Police Chamberlain, Acting Mayor Prescott, Park Commissioner Bell Irving and sixteen policemen appeared on the island and arrested E. L. Kinman, Managing Director of the island company, on a charge of feloniously destroying trees and shrubbery in a public park. This is an indictable offence. At the Police Court Kinman was allowed out on bail of $1,000.

This afternoon Kinman, accompanied by William Smart and F. L. Dartley, returned to the island. Their landing was opposed by Police Officer Kurney. Kinman assaulted the officer with a heavy club, knocking him unconscious. Officer Allen was also injured. Kinman and four men were arrested and lodged in the police station.

ONE YEAR IN CENTRAL

Young Man Caught in the Act of Breaking into Store--Pleaded Guily

William McCarthy, a young man was arrested early this morning by Night Watchman Finnie, and taken to the Police Station. The prisoner had been caught by the nightwatchman while attempting to make an ingress through a window in the rear of Andrew Laidlaw's clothing stone on Hunter street. The prisoner had nearly all of the putty taken off the window and would soon have been able to gain admittance into the store.

At the Police Court this morning when charged with the offence he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one year in the Central Prison.

The accused stated that he was born in Manchester, England, but had come from Montreal to Peterborough. He had nothing to say as to why he committed the offence and the Magistrate imposed the above sentence on him.

THIS DOG WENT INTO THE CELLAR

And Lightning Followed Him There---Result, a Dead Dog---Storm Did Damage

Special to the Review.

Havelock, June 2.—The storm on Saturday last did considerable damage in this vicinity. The chief scene of action was at the home of Mr. Jas. Watson, a mile west of the village. The lightning struck the chimney at the west section of the house, wholly demolishing it and tearing the end of the house open. It then took its way down the house into the cellar, striking the dog, which through fear, during the storm had crawled into the cellar, and instantly killed it. The lightning seemed to have a pick on the animals, as it killed a cow near Trent Bridge also.

AMERICANS MAKE ATTACK ON POLICE

Vancouver, B.C., June 2.—E. K. Kinman and F. L. Gartley, two Americans, are in jail without bail, because of a peculiar mix-up with the police yesterday.

They represent a New York syndicate which proposes to erect an amusement park at Deadman's Island. Following Kinman's arrest yesterday he was taken to the police station, and released on $1,000 bail. In company with Gartley he immediately returned to the island and, armed with clubs, attacked the police officers. Constable Kuney was knocked unconscious and Allan, another officer, knocked down before the two New Yorkers were disarmed. Two other arrests of workmen occurred yesterday afternoon.

YOUNG CATTLE ARE KILLED BY WOLVES

Were Pasturing in Dummer Township, About Ten Miles North of Norwood—Animals Had Their Throats Cut.

Norwood, June 2.—A number of farmers in this vicinity are in the habit of putting young cattle to pasture in Dummer, some eight to twelve miles north of the village. This spring the cattle had been turned out and certain parties on going back again after a few days to see if everything was all right were much surprised to find two of them dead with their throats cut. On examining the wounds it was evident the mischief was not done with a sharp tool and it is thought that altogether likely the animals had been attacked by timber wolves. Wolves were seen in the north country last fall, but not so near Norwood. In fact Mr. M. Hogan, of Oak Lake, succeeded in killing one, which was in the act of worrying his dog.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION IS IN CONVENTION AT TORONTO

President H. J. Hamilton, M.D., Speaks on Vaccination and Compares it With Pasteur Treatment for Hydrophobia—Prevention of Tuberculosis Discussed.

Toronto, June 2.—The 29th annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association opened yesterday morning in the medical building of the University of Toronto, with a record attendance of the disciples of Galen and Aesculapius. Up to 6 p.m. 219 had registered their names, and more are expected. It is believerd that fully five per cent. of the doctors present will be women.

The convention will continue to-day and to-morrow. This afternoon the vital question of pure milk will be dealt with by Dr. J. A. Amyot. In the evening the annual dinner will be held at McConkey's. To-morrow afternoon the election of officers will take place and an address will be delivered by Dr. William Osler of Oxford, Eng. The committee on affiliation with the Canadian Medical Association is expected to report at this session.

The feature of yesterday's proceedings was the president's address, delivered at the afternoon session by Dr. H. J. Hamilton of Toronto. He took for his subject, "Preventive Medicine."

PRESIDENT HAMILTON.

"At present compulsory vaccination is a dead letter in the public schools of Toronto," he said.

The state of public opinion in regard to vaccination was compared with that as to inoculation with Pasteur's serum for hydrophobia. No one questioned the latter. One reason for this, he thought, might be that it was use only when there had been exposure to rabies.

Speaking of the preventive of tuberculosis, he said that the efforts to secure for all pure air, pure food and pure water were noteworthy. The Provincial Government were to be congratulated on the appointment of the milk commission. With such an able commission and an equally able and enthusiastic department, he said, "we may expect that before this association meets again much will be accomplished." J. Ross Robertson was commended for his efforts to secure pasteurized milk for children.

Medical inspection of the schools was declared to be one of the pressing questions of the day. The surest way to educate the public was to begin with the rising generation. He hoped the Department of Education would soon see that medical inspection became a fact.

The doctors were exhorted to keep down petty jealousy and strife, to meet each other more frequently, and to credit others with conscientious work.

Fighting Hydro Power.

Brantford, June 2.—A writ has been issued by Dennis Hogan of Brantford to have bylaw 1,015 of the City of Brantford declared to be ultra vires and void, and to have the same quashed, and to have an agreement dated March 15, 1909, made between the Western Counties Electric Co., Limited, and the corporation of the City of Brantford declared void.

Summoned Boy to Act on Jury.

Montreal, June 2.—At the opening of the June term of the court of King's Bench yesterday, for the trial of criminal cases, it was found that a 13-year-old boy, in knickerbockers, had been summoned to serve on the grand jury. It seems that he is the registered proprietor of a candy store in St. Louis, a suburb.

TRAIN DERAILED AT PARRY SOUND

Parry Sound, June 2.—A northbound freight train on the Toronto-Sudbury branch of the C.P.R. met with an accident in a rock cut about three miles south of this place yesterday, which caused a blockade on the line of some hours.

A flange of an old freight car, loaded with coke, broke, causing the car to leave the track and crumble up into matchwood.

The conductor's van, in rear of the wrecked car, was flung across the track, causing a blockade in the cut.

The conductor and some of the train crew in the van were considerably shaken up, but escaped without injury beyond some scratches.

Canada's New Vessel.

Ottawa, June 2.—According to the officials of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, there is no contravention of the terms of the Rush-Bagot convention in the placing in the great lakes of the lighthouse vessel Simcoe, recently purchased in Great Britain.

Despatches from Montreal describe the Simcoe as a convertible armored cruiser to be utilized as a fisheries protective cruiser, and give alleged details of the armament she will carry. The officials say the description is entirely erroneous.

HOTELMAN IS SENT TO JAIL

Lindsay, June 2.—James Simpson, proprietor of one of the hotels at Kinmount, a local option village, was yesterday afternoon sentenced by Magistrate Moore to four months in the county jail, at hard labor for selling intoxicating liquors.

The sentence is the first of its kind to be meted out to any local option hotelkeeper in Victoria County.

Simpson has been fined previously, hence the incarceration.

Two spotters, Armenians, visited Kinmount vicinity a month or so ago, employed on Government work, and partook of the proprietor's hospitality and paid for their "wet goods."

TRIES TO KILL MOTORMAN

Gets Club and Then Looks for Revolver---Baby Critically Hurt by Street Car

London, Ont., June 2.—Vincent, the year and a half-year-old son of M. Famulara of 761 Dundas street, was perhaps fatally injured last night while playing in front of his father's laundry, being run over by a street car.

The father seeing his child lying on the tracks, bleeding, went temporarily insane, and made a desperate attempt to attack the motorman, threatening to kill him. He first got a heavy club and tried to force his way into the vestibule of the car, but was restrained by the remainder of the family and a number of bystanders. He then made an effort to find a revolver, threatening to shoot the motorman, but he was forced into the laundry building, where he was held on the floor until a physician was brought.

The child had been playing in front of the laundry at about 7 o'clock while the family were working inside. The first intimation they had of the accident was when one of his sisters saw the car backing up, and, thinking that something was wrong, went to the window, to see her brother lying on the tracks, crushed and bleeding. The boy was rushed to Victoria Hospital. His left leg was amputated at the thigh and the other about two inches below the knee. The attending physician says he has a fighting chance for recovery.

Hotelman Wanted Monopoly.

Windsor, June 2.—Ald. Arnold's motion that the question of cutting off ten liquor licenses in the City of Windsor, be submitted to the popular vote, met with a storm of disapproval and finally was squashed.

Some of the aldermen held that the movement originated with a few of the downtown hotelmen, who wanted to secure a monopoly of the business. Two aldermen declared that one hotelman had approached them and solicited their vote for the cutting off of the licenses.

Woman Drowned In Mill Race.

WOMEN DETECTED THE BURGLARS

Brockville, June 2.—Miss Gerow, housekeeper for N. Gaffield, and a servant had an exciting experience at an early hour yesterday morning.

They were alone in the house and burglars effected an entrance through a kitchen window. They had obtained and removed considerable plunder down stairs and were discussing the advisability of paying attention to the upper portion when the conversation was overheard by the servant, who ran screaming to the room of Miss Gerow. The ladies raised the bedroom window and shouted for help. Neighbors responded, too late, however, to catch the visitors, who decamped, leaving their plunder behind.

SENSATIONS PROMISED IN LIBEL CASE AT KENTVILLE

True Bill Against Carruthers For Libelling Sir Fred. Borden—Grand Jury Indicts Postmaster on Criminal Charge of Defaming Minister of Militia—Important Witnesses Arrive for the Trial.

Kentville, N.S., June 2.—The grand jury yesterday afternoon brought in a "true bill" in the indictment of Walter Carruthers, ex-postmaster of Kentville, for criminal libel in the charge preferred by Sir Frederick W. Borden.

Carruthers was arrested at the instance of Sir Frederick last October during the Dominion election campaign.

Most people got a genuine surprise when they learned yesterday that an important witness in this case was in their midst, ready to take the stand.

The witness is Mrs. Maria Allison of Ottawa, whose name has figured so prominently in connection with this libel case. She came to Kentville a week ago in obedience to subpoena issued in Halifax.

Another surprise came last night when L. P. A. Chalifour of Fraserville, Que., issued from the train. He is a nephew of Mrs. Allison, and another material witness in the case, who also was subpoenaed by the defence from Halifax.

Chalifour is a cousin of Hesta Chalifour, Mrs. Allison's daughter by a first husband. This daughter at present is residing in Virgina. If these two witnesses get on the stand a story of deep interest is expected to be unfolded.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN.

There are rumors as to what to-day will bring forth. One of these is that the prosecution will seek a change of venue, asking that the trial be removed to another county and that the date be fixed two months hence

Liberals are said to be desirous of having the trial elsewhere than in Sir Frederick's shire town, but the reason why is not stated.

Sir Frederick is not here at the opening of the court.

To the grand jury Mr. Justice Drisdale read from the information on which the warrant was obtained, beginning with this sentence, from one of two letters signed by Maria Allison and published in The Eye-Opener.

"I have been the victim of that ruffian's outrage to myself and family. I cannot get over it. I had the misfortune to take him to board in my house at the beginning of sitting of Parliament, with some other members. Well, he ended by taking my only daughter from home. I nearly died from grief and shame."

"This is a paragraph," the judge said, "alleged to be defamatory and you can hardly say that it is not defamatory."

The next item complained of was also in Mrs. Allison's first letter and the judge read it as follows: "Borden has another woman that he separated from her husband named Dex, she is in the same department as myself."

The judge then brought to the attention of the jury the following paragraph from Mrs. Allison's second letter.

"I went down to Montreal myself and hired the Montreal secret service. Then everything came out. He was keeping her in a boarding-house at 862 Pallice (Pallace) street," which libel the informations puts forth as written in the sense of impuning that the said Sir Fred W. Borden was improperly keeping a daughter of the Maria Allison at a house in Montreal for immoral and discreditable purposes. "These are the allegations," Mr. Justice Drisdale said, "which charge Sir Frederick Borden with immoralities in his private life while he was a public man. They are from first to the end highly libelous charges against any public man. If he handed out the paper containing the statements to anyone, whether asked for or not, it was defamatory libel."

H. H. Wickwire, K. C., and W. E. Roscoe, K.C., are acting for the prosecution, and J. J. Ritchie, K.C., for the defence.

The judge made an impartial address to the grand jury. The jury were to enquire whether Carruthers had handed out the libel which was contained in The Eye-Opener of Calgary to a man or men, or any person.

NEW IMMIGRATION POLICY

The Laurier Government has had to give up its absurd and fatuous immition policy, but the government organs are blowing as if the new regulations were some especially meritorious and recent discovery on the part of Sir Wilfrid. To the Opposition, led by Mr. Borden and to the rebellion of the people of Canada is really due the change in policy. The cave-in is just one more mark of the extreme weakness of the present government regarding measures for the general benefit of Canada.

BETTING BY BOYS

Betting is admittedly more or less of an evil and a generation. So long as it is confined to the "old buffers" it will have to be endured unless the laws of the country are changed, but that it should have spread to the boys of the city is a "little too much." It is said that the bets on the recent racing at Woodbine, made in Peterborough by boys of extreme youth were numerous and costly. We would suggest to the C.A. Society that it is quite within their province to investigate and to protect its reputation. It is much worse than cigarette-smoking, as a destroyer or corrupter of youth.

A CHEAP COUNTRY

Free traders used to picture to us the delight of living in a cheap country. This delight was according to them possible only under Free Trade. They, the Liberals, would lead us to this promised land. The land of Canaan was before the weary pilgrim—in the copy-books. But Gt. Britain is the home of Free Trade. Is it a cheap country to live in? It certainly is not if the liver cares for anything better than cheap cheese and dear bread, with meat too dear for use and fruit a high-priced luxury. However, facts are nothing to a Liberal politician. His dreamy eye is always fixed upon some distant object. That distant object is usually a mirrage, a reflection in the clouds of a city or town built up by protection and he can't or won't realize it. The free-trader of to-day is a perfect whirlwind of inconsistencies. To justify himself he has to call the Germans, the French, the Americans, &c., dupes, lunatics, and the like. Surely it is time to stop such folly. And then to reach the grand climax of his nightmare he acknowledges the corn

AGRICULTURE IN SCHOOLS

The only and original "culture" of which we hear so much nowadays, is Agriculture. It is the Basis of all our operations. Nothing can be reckoned upon without it. Of late years it has been "taught" as other forms of so-called culture are. But it has been taught grudgingly, as if it were like sawing wood, a thing to be done in any old way. It is true that "institutes" of various sorts have been opened up and teachers wander about at stated intervals and bulletins and statistics galore are sent out. But that is only one degree better than the old times when all that our young men knew they gathered from their fathers who had learned farming in the "old country" and knew how to farm only in that way. The reader will say that their teaching was good. So it was. But the instruction like the instructors died out. Canadians require an agriculture of their own one suited to the country. Why then should agriculture which in other countries is treated as a science generally, not be so treated here? Why not teach it in the schools everywhere? Through the enterprise of the farmers of the east riding it is to be taught at Norwood. Why should it not be taught in Galway, Harvey, Smith, etc. Let the Ontario Government pause in its system of extensive development long enough to concentrate some of its energies on intensive development which is vastly more profitable from every point of view. Let the mines for which the farmer grants subsidies grant subsidies in return for the benefit of the farmer. The tail has been wagging the dog too long in this "Canada of ours." Let there be increased aid to agriculture or the future of it will be gloomy indeed since the dairy products of the farm are now away down in the scale of export. The decrease has been almost tragic. There is grave danger of the railways, the manufactures, the militia and all the rest of what is really dependent upon agriculture awakening some of these days to find that Agriculture has gone back in Ontario too far to be resiegned. They will then abandon it for the west and our smiling homesteads will be deserted and our farms overgrown with weeds. It is a mistake, too, to confine the teaching to the rural schools only. If the pupils with a taste for green and luxuriant nature and the abundant harvest and the broad acres, an independent life if not a grand and merry one, could learn of the supreme satisfaction of a high class farm life they might go to it and save themselves from the parched and pawky existence they call "life," in the towns and cities. It has always seemed to us that the reform in country-life was possible. We refer to the means of meeting which the young people so like. It is up to the older ones however to provide these means and when they do the craze for the town will cease since equal if not greater attractions will be at home. The journey of life is not the tramp from the house to the barn or even out into the fields. There is more in it than that and the other element must be provided for without which the young will stagnate or break away altogether. The cultivation of the beautiful in and about the farm will win the people back from the cities and save that ebbing tide, which threatens to hasten the downfall of farming in Ontario.

INFORMATION WANTED

"With wheat, beef, pork and other table necessities mounting in price, the housewife's struggle with a daily menu will be intensified."—The Examiner.

Since the Examiner is the author in a recent editorial comment of the above remark, we look to that journal for an explanation of it. How comes it that in a land which has been governed (sic) by Liberals for a space of more than twelve years, the toiling artizan "liberated" from the "incubus," etc., of high protection, now groans under the double incubus of lower pay and higher prices? There is room here for an article by the Examiner to the effect: "All the guff that we have talked about the baneful effects of protection we take back. In fact, on looking over the situation from Belle Isle to Vancouver Island we have come to the conclusion that the Germans, the French of old France, and the mad hatters—as we used to call them—of the United States are sane enough. Our Liberal theories are like that of the nebular hypothesis. We fancied the economic world had been gathered together and formed out of Grit platitudes. We are now fain to confess that it was a mistake, and that the only decent part of our economic policy is what we left of the N.P., and we confess further, that beyond a marvellous capacity for spending money, either in British Columbia, where they protested against being made a dumping-ground for our gas-buoys, or in Hudson Bay—while Deer Bay lies fallow and forlorn—our Liberal legislators have done nothing, unless it be the making of Canada a grafters' paradise. We have ruined the Ontario farmer, the woollen men, and all but the contractor and his backer, and with a little time we might ruin beyond repair the morals of our country, also. Therefore do we hasten to reform before it is too late, and become Reformers in spirit and in truth once more." We merely make this suggestion as a likely evidence of consistency and logical conclusion on our contemporary's part. But if our contemporary wishes to go on in the same old way let it stop making revelations like the one at the head of this reference to ....

EDITORIAL NOTES

A woman who died at 115 ascribes her long life to eating onions. Her friends, however, all died young.

The Globe treats the new American Tariff bill as if it were the most amusing little trick possible. No doubt this is as good a way as any in an attempt to bluff the country into the belief that duties that rise to 30 cents on potatoes and to 45 cents on barley are mere nothings.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association will be postponed till Monday, June 14th. This is necessitated by the absence from the city of a number of the ministers and is by direction of the president.

OF INTEREST

The Anglo-Japanese alliance was made for only ten years from 1905 and was to be dissolvable on a year's notice. Now, according to the Vienna and Berlin papers, Japan is seriously inclined to put an end to the compact. While no public announcement of this diplomatic move has been as yet made, says the Hamburger Nachrichten, it is natural to expect that it is seriously contemplated. This has not been denied at Tokyo, and there are certainly many reasons to think that Japan has ample grounds for dissolving partnership. It was quite a one-sided affair, says this German journal. Japan gave everything and England took everything, for England was enabled by it to leave the protection of her Pacific possessions to her Asiatic ally. The writer thus continues:

"Japan's wish to dissolve the treaty is said to have been caused in the first place by England's growing inconsiderateness in her commercial competition with Japan, and in the second place by Japan's jealousy as she has seen England draw closer and closer to Russia and the United States. There is considerable plausibility in such allegations. It is quite conceivable that Japan would consider it irreconcilable with her own vital interests that her only ally should have appeared to have formed close relations with both of her avowed rivals, Russia and America. If Japan's hope of defending herself against Russia and the United States, through the help she received from England, proves illusory, the treaty between England and Japan would be practically worthless and less a help than a hindrance in protecting Japanese interests.

"Besides all this it is conceivable that Japan wishes to have a free hand for an eventuality which may any day happen, that is, an Indian uprising and the appearance of a Pan-Asiatic movement. In this case Japan would find herself seriously hampered by an English alliance in fulfilling what she holds to be her Asiatic 'mission.'"

Still further reasons are stated by the Vossische Zeitung, Berlin, which professes to have derived information from a high source in Vienna that Japan has already confidentially informed the Powers of her intention. In this important Liberal organ we are told:

"Japan has long thought her rights were injured by England's attitude at the Portsmouth Conference. . . . The Japanese Government at the present moment believes that the policy of England threatens to destroy the balance of power in the Pacific. Japan has, in fact, come to see that King Edward's policy of ententes, which began with the Anglo-Japanese Treaty, is bound to end in a treaty with the United States. This treaty, ostensibly aimed at Germany, would cause great alarm in Japan, which looks upon the United States as her most powerful antagonist in the Pacific. By her treaty with England, Japan guaranteed to that nation her colonial possessions in Asia. If the treaty should cease, England would have to gather a new fleet in the Far East, for since her treaty with Japan she has withdrawn her ships from that region. But such a thing she could not do without lowering the strength of her naval forces in the North Sea, and this is the point which makes the possible rupture of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of so much importance to the whole of Europe."—Translation made for the Literary Digest.

THAT FENCE AT CENTRAL PARK

Citizens Should Help Those Who are Endeavoring to Beautify This Property

A temporary wire fence has been built around the grounds east of the Collegiate Institute. Considerable time has been expended on the ground in levelling and seeding it. Some people do not appear to appreciate the efforts made by others towards beautifying the city and it seems a pity that the citizens should be so forgetful that this sort of means has to be undertaken to draw their attention to these facts. Within a short time Central park will be looking at its best and those who are in the habit of crossing this property to and from their homes should use a little thoughtfulness and keep off the grass and away from the flower beds. There is a good sidewalk and path and these should be used as they were put there for that purpose.

Emmett W Beldon and Mrs L. Shepherd of Bellingham while driving over a flooded roadway at Chilliwack drove into a slough and were drowned.

REV. J. G. POTTER GAVE STRONG TEMPERANCE ADDRESSES

Last Sunday was "Temperance Sunday" in Brantford, and addresses in the cause of local option were given at the opera house and the city churches.

Rev J. G. Potter, of this city, spoke at the Congregational church. The Brantford Expositor says;—

"Very forceful, inspiring and encouraging were the addresses given by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of Peterborough, who spoke in the Congregational church in the morning, the mass meeting in the afternoon, and at Zion Presbyterian church in the evening. The campaign for local option is now on in Peterborough, and Mr. Potter gave some pointers for Brantford workers, his addresses creating a great deal of interest in the large congregations who listened to him. The speaker has strong convictions and gave many stirring instances of the evils resulting from the traffic, and the power of Christ to redeem men from its bondage."

KEENE NEWS

Keene, June 1.—A party of farmers, who were taking their cattle across from Ashburn's Point to Sugar Island for pasture for the summer, got a ducking and a bad fright last Wednesday.

The scow, which was in tow of Mr. Amos Shearer's steam yacht, was only about a hundred yards from shore when the cattle began to crowd, causing it to dip water and sink, so that the cattle were able to swim off. The men were left standing in the water up to their waists and it was fortunate that all came off safely. As it was no one was any the worse off, and the cattle all swam to shore.

The road gang commenced last week to grade the township roads. Their first piece of road is a part of the sixth line, half way between Keene and Keene station, which they are straightening and grading.

The Agricultural Society are advertising for tenders for the erection of horse stables on the fair grounds. They are also contemplating the erection of a grand stand.

PEOPLE ENDORSE THE BY-LAW BUT---

It Did Not Pass Owing to Restrictions in Act of Legislature---Tremendous Vote Polled and Only 84 Against Purity Ware Proposition---Negotiations in Progress.

Although 1,230 Peterborough freeholders voted in favor of and only 84 against the Purity Ware by-law yesterday, the measure failed to carry. The inability to carry the by-law was due to the severe restrictions in the act of the Ontario Legislature regarding by-laws to loan money.

The act says that in the case of a by-law like the one submitted here yesterday, two-thirds of all the listed freeholders must vote for it, but in case there is less than one-fifth of all the listed vote against it, then it requires three-fifths of all the listed vote in favor of it. The latter case applied to the vote on the Purity by-law. Three-fifths of the total listed vote of free-holders in Peterborough totals 1,585. It will be seen that to carry the measure 344 votes more were required in its favor.

The vote yesterday was the largest ever polled in voting on a by-law in Peterborough, with the exception of one or two voted on at the same time as the municipal elections. And when only eighty-four voted against the by-law, it is apparent that the citizens of Peterborough endorsed the action of the city council, and were satisfied with the agreement that would have been entered into take two—by-law.

Scores of citizens turned out yesterday to assist in getting out the vote, and deserve credit for their work in this connection. The handicap was too great, however. The listed vote was, of course, taken from the 1908 voters' list. There are a large number of non-residents on the list, and, with one or two exceptions, these were not here to vote. Then several of those whose names are on the list have died. All these things worked against the by-law. One man came from Havelock to vote in favor of the measure.

When the result became known last night there was general regret. One merchant offered to put up a cheque of one hundred dollars if the money would be of any use in taking proceedings to have the company locate here.

There is no doubt but that the by-law will be confirmed by the Ontario legislature but this cannot be done until February, and those behind the company don't want to sit down and wait until then. It is probable that some arrangement will be made to give the company a satisfactory guarantee in order that they may start at once to erect the factory. Negotiations are in progress to-day.

THE VOTE

The vote on the by-law was as follows—

	For	Agn'st
McGill's Grocery	172	8
Spry's Shop	111	2
City Council Chamber	145	9
A. J. Warne's	265	17
N. Routley's	84	12
Mrs. Mann's Store	164	13
Mrs. Wm. Lee's Shop	124	8
Ashburnham Hall	174	15
	1230	84

Majority for the by-law 1,155.

COMPARISONS

To show how large was yesterday's vote, some votes on former by-laws may be given. When the Cordage Co. by-law was voted on in 1901, there were 416 ballots marked for it and 150 against it. The vote on the Colonial Weaving Co. by-law in June, 1907, was 353 for and 142 against. The vote on the waterworks dam by-law on March 30th of this year was 509 for and 348 against. The vote on the street extension by-law at the municipal election last January was 590 for and 747 against. This was only fourteen more votes than were cast yesterday.

It is likely the Legislature will be asked to repeal the act which proved the downfall of the by-law yesterday. In a municipality with a population of 10,000 or more it is impossible to get three-fifths of the listed vote out. In villages and small towns it can be done because the vote is small and everybody knows everybody else. In larger places it is different. Peterborough will no doubt ask for the repeal of the act.

A PROGRAMME OF MUCH MERIT

Given at Park Street--Miss Parker Scored A Success

A thoroughly delightful programme was given at the concert at Park street church last night under the auspices of the Young People's Union of the congregation. Miss Winnifred Parker, elocutionist, of Toronto, was the principal artist of the evening, and every one of her selections was a rare treat. She is a young lady of much talent and stands in the first rank of Canada's elocutionists. There was considerable variety in her numbers last evening, showing a versatility possessed by few. The others contributing to the programme gave excellent numbers and the large audience was greatly pleased. Rev. Mr. Ridditord made an ideal chairman, and the programme was as follows:—

THE BY-LAW

The bylaw was defeated yesterday. It cannot be denied that it was defeated because the negative-minded ratepayers understood that a vote left unpolled was just as good as one polled against it. There is nothing in the majority received. Only half the ratepayers voted. While we are disappointed it cannot be ignored that what the ratepayers want they must have and we are informed on several hands that an attempt to supersede popular government by again appealing to a legislative committee as was done before, will be met by injunction. This is the age of government by the people. "Like others," they may make mistakes but that is their business. Many ratepayers have said that they will vote against any bylaw that increases the fixed charges of the tax-rate. The benefit they receive they consider quite inadequate to justify the steadily mounting tax-rate. There are other reasons, or whatever they may be termed, influencing the public mind which it would be profitless to discuss but the fact remains. If the bylaw can be submitted to the people again that course might be adopted at as early a date as possible but the ignoring of the vote of yesterday by legislative enactment is so incorrect in principle and so likely some fine day to produce a riot that it cannot be seriously urged. Meanwhile the work that Ald. Gillespie and others did, while it has not met with the sanction of the ratepayers need not discourage them. It must not be forgotten too that while the vote of those who may be "here today and away tomorrow" would have carried the bylaw by an overwhelming majority and has furnished much of the so-called tide of public opinion, it is the people who live here and have got to remain who bear the burden and have the "say." The law is a pretty stiff one as it stands. It requires and demands a perhaps overstrong majority but that again is for the ratepayers to determine. They could have changed it had they so wished.

ARTESIAN WELLS

The Review has been steadily advocating the sinking of artesian wells for public drinking water supply in Peterborough. Winnipeg has adopted that plan. London is about to do the same, and the following extract from the Montreal Star shows the inestimable value of it:

"The most striking and direct rebuke yet administered to the City Hygiene Committee for its seeming inability to better the condition of Montreal's drinking water and the system of supply, was made known to-day when the officials of the Royal Victoria Hospital notified the city that the institution will shortly have no use for public water.

The hospital is to have a water supply of its own, through an artesian well. The well has already been sunk through three hundred feet of solid rock, and nothing remains but the completion of a power house and establishing of connections through the hospital buildings.

There is nothing so refreshing as good pure water. Many a man has to take to other beverages because he does not like the usual brand of water. Artesian-well water is quite a different matter. It is said to be the veritable "elixir of life," and while, of course, the analyst will show that it is only water and nothing more, it is also water and nothing worse. In the future, near or far, Peterborough will have to look to a drinking-water supply. Why not look into the artesian-well system and see if the experience of others cannot be repeated here with comparatively little cost and much satisfaction?

WELCOME NEWS FOR THE PUPILS

The Teachers Will Also Benefit by the Early Closing of the Public Schools

The pupils of the Public school will no doubt be pleased to hear that school will close on Friday, June 25th, and not at the end of the month, as in former years. This was decided at the meeting of the Board of Education held last night. As the examinations of the public schools and Collegiate Institute are over by this date, and the teachers have a big task in making the many different papers, it has been thought advisable to close the schools on the 25th. There is very little work accomplished by the pupils in the remaining few days, and it will be a great help to the teachers in the work of examination. The fact of the holiday coming earlier will be appreciated by the scholars, and they should show their appreciation by giving close attention to their studies in the short time allotted to them in preparation for the coming examinations, and thus bring credit to their teachers and themselves.

WEDDING BELLS

BENNET—COCHRANE

The marriage of Miss Evangeline Bertha (Eva) Cochrane, youngest daughter of the late Wm. Cochrane, of Port Hope, to Mr. E. W. Howard Bennett, C.P.R. agent at Three Valleys, B.C., and youngest son of the late Henry Bennett, Ashburnham, was solemnized at St. Luke's church this morning at half past ten, by the rector Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, M.A., B. D. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her cousin, Mr. T. B. Menlove, who gave her away, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by the organist, Mr. H. Kilpack. The bride looked very pretty in a travelling suit of taupe with hat to match. She carried white roses. The bride and groom were unattended.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bennett left on the 11.10 C.P.R. train for Ottawa. They will visit in Ottawa, Winnipeg and Banff before returning to Three Valleys, B.C., where they will reside.

Mr. and Mrs Bennett are followed by the best wishes of a host of friends in Peterborough. Mrs Bennett will be much missed, especially in the Sunday school of St. Luke's church, in the work which she took a very prominent part.

The engineering firm represents the General Electric Co., of Sweden. Seven years ago Mr. Kilmer and Mr. Pullan entered into partnership, and this year Mr. Burnham joined the partnership." The Mr. Burnham referred to is Mr. Geo. C. Burnham, who married the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kendrey, Water street.

GENE HURTUBISE WON MATCH IN VERY EASY FASHION

Mr. Hawkey of Kingston, received his bumps generously at the hands of Gene Hurtubise in the Napanee Opera House last night, the Peterborough heavyweight settling his opponent in two straight falls in quick order.

The first fall came in three minutes Gene securing it on a crotch and half nelson and the second was obtained in 91-2 minutes on an arm, scissors and crotch hold.

Hurtubise went right after his man from the call of time. There is no affection to amount to anything between the principals and the going was lively all the time, Gene easily demonstrating that he was the superior man of the two.

Lt. McGowan, of the Kingston regulars, gave satisfaction in his capacity as referee. A good audience witnessed the bout.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

FORFEITED GAMES.

Rule 26, sec. 4.—If a team employ tactics palpably designed to delay the game.

Sec. 5.—If, after warning by the umpire, any one of the rules of the game, be wilfully and persistently violated.

Sec. 6.—If the order for the removal of a player be not obeyed within one minute.

Sec. 7.—If, because of the removal of players from the game by the umpire, or for any cause there be less than nine players on either team.

All city league teams are hard at practice, endeavoring to get into shape for the games next Saturday and the fans are getting interested too.

THE UMPIRE.

The game was tied and in the ninth
The home team came to bat;
With bases full and two men gone,
The crowd expectant sat.
Ah! Now our strongest hitter comes
Amid the deaf'ning cheer,
Who glares upon their man who twirls
Without a twitch of fear.
Two strikes are called upon him, when
The ball soars o'er his head
To nestle in the catcher's mitt,
"You're out!" the umpire said.

The crowd arose as one great mass
And in the light of day,
The umpire saw the stars of night
As on the field he lay.
He bore the marks of many fists,
His clothes were all awry,
When that mad throng had gone its way
And left him there to die.
And somewhere in an obscure grave
Lies he whom all dislike;
These simple words upon the shaft—
"He called a ball a strike."

Oney Fred Sweet in Baseball Magazine.

Form 2 B defeated Form 4 in an interesting league baseball game yesterday afternoon at Riverside Park. The score was 11—2. No runs were scored until the fifth inning, but in the succeeding innings many errors were made by the 2 B team, and the winners piled up eleven runs. Both the twirlers were in good form, but Hickey for Form 4 did not get the support due him.

The batteries were—Form 4, Hickey and Dobbin; Form 2 B, Minorgan and Layfield. Umpires—Mr. H. R. H. Kenner and Rev. E. A. Pearson.

Joe Kelley's Pets have taken the series from every team, whether at home or abroad, for the past seven weeks, and here's that they may keep up the good work in Rochester, where operations begin this afternoon.

Mullen's home run won the game for Toronto yesterday against Buffalo. The score was 5—2. Lundgren pitched effectively all through the contest.

Rodolph will pitch for the Leafs in to-day's game with Rochester. There will, no doubt, be a record attendance.

Larry Lajoie, of Cleveland, has made 12 hits in the past five games.

DEPLORES THE SLANG IN CONNECTION WITH BALL

It seems unfortunate to me that baseball games cannot be written in decent English and expressed in a way that would enable an educated man to understand what was meant by what he was reading. A great deal of slang and smart talk is used by baseball writers and it has the tendency to degrade the game in the eyes of the respectable people.

There are terms used in connection with the reports of ball games that a wharf rat would perhaps appreciate by reason of his environment but I can't see how a person reared in a respectable home would be expected to do so unless he made a special study of such commonplace slang.

There are many of our future citizens interested in baseball and playing the game and I think it is most undesirable that they should fall into the way of using such highly improper and rough language which cannot lay claim to the slightest dignity and those who use it in ordinary conversation would naturally be suspected as having a minimum amount of intelligence and education.

I think the sporting editors of the newspapers have a duty to perform in using elegant and less slum-like language than they have been doing in the past and hope the Peterborough scribes will see the force of my arguments. I don't wish to assume an antagonistic attitude for my motives for writing this letter are purely those those of one interested in the educational welfare of the rising generation many of whom are interested in baseball.

Yours very truly,
CITIZEN.

AT THE WOODBINE.

Favorites Lose Five Out of Seven at Toronto Races.

Toronto, June 2.—It was another bowling over for the first choices at Woodbine yesterday afternoon when five of them went down before outsiders and second choices. The surprise of the afternoon was in the Ontario purse, when Desert Star galloped home over the two other starters, Fort Garry and French Shore. This colt is owned by G. W. Cook of Montreal and is sired by that good horse Orantas, who is also the property of this owner, and won many stakes for him in by-gone days.

KAUFMAN AND JOHNSON MATCHED

of agreement for a fight in which Al Kaufman, of California, will endeavor to wrest the world's championship honors from Jack Johnson, the Texas negro pugilist, were drawn up and signed here to-day. The game and place of the bout remain yet to be decided upon, but it will be held preferably in September, 1909.

Johnson agrees to box Kaufman 45 rounds or go to a finish in Nevada or anywhere else where a finish contest is allowed. He specifies and insists, however, that if the fight takes place in California he will not box more than twenty rounds. They are to divide the receipts on a basis of 65 per cent. to the winner and 35 per cent. to the loser.

FOOTBALL

Special to the Review.

Havelock, June 1.—A largely attended and interesting football match took place at the park on Friday evening last, between the senior and junior Havelock teams and the brand of football should entitle both teams to a run in their respective leagues. The score was 4—2 in favor of the senior team.

The following was the line-up:

Junior—L. Bennet, goal; G. Barlow, O. Tomlinson, backs; F. Easton, B. Brocks, R. Kitchin, halves; W. Ryan, centre; A. Armstrong, W. Bryans, right; R. Frost, A. Sinclair, left.

The Norwood junior football team failed to put in an appearance to play the scheduled game with Havelock on May 31st, and the game therefore goes to the Havelock team by default.

CRICKET

If the remainder of May continues to be fine we may possibly see Hobbs, of Surrey reach his thousand runs before the end of the month. His total last evening was 658 for eight innings giving him an average of 82.25. Bardsley of Australia has also scored 509 in seven innings—once not out— his average being 84.83, while Armstrong 322 runs for six innings—twice not out —also had the high average of 80.8 last evening. Another famous player is Hayward, of Surrey, claims a total of 459 runs for nine innings—twice not out—giving him an average of 69.2 so it will be seen some big scoring has been the rule.

The victory of Surrey over the Australians at the Oval this week will surely act as a stimulant to English cricketers. The game was played through under very equal conditions, both sides having some batting no Tuesday when the wicket was a little effected by the rain overnight. Surrey led off with 198 the visitors responding with 157, Rushby taking 6 wickets for 58 runs. Going in again the home side made 178 Hayward carrying his bat right through the innings for a valuable 96. The Australians thus wanted 215 and as the pitch played fairly easy on the third day most people thought they would succeed. Three wickets were down at the luncheon interval with 106 runs on the board, and when the fourth wicket fell, 175 runs had been scored. A big change then came over the game and when Whitty, the last man, joined McAlister, 19 runs were still requiedr. The two played pluckily and the total was taken to 207, when McAlister gave a chance in the slips and Hitch made no mistake, Surrey thus winning a sensational match by 5 runs. Hayward's batting, Strudwick's wicket-keeping and the bowling of Whitty, 9 for 64, and Rushby were the features of the game, which attracted a big crowd.

The Australians are now opposing M.C.C. at Lords, C. B. Fry captaining the club team, as A. C. MacLaren is suffering from a cold. The Colonials had first knock on a plumb wicket and did none too well to only make 240. This was due to Thompson, of Northampton, who claimed 5 wickets for the small total of 26 runs, a very fine performance. At the close of the play last evening M.C.C. had scored 86 for the loss of Fry and Warner. Resuming to-day matters went none too well, and the score was only 135 when the seventh wicket fell. The "tail" wagged strongly, however, and the total finally reached 221, a lead of 11 runs.

"TYKES" BEATEN.

Next to the defeat of the Australians, the biggest sensation of the season so far was the downfall of Yorkshire at Worcester. The champion of 1908 only required 146 runs in their second innings, but failed by 12. Arnold and Cuffe bowling splendidly.

Several fine scores have been registered this week. Rhodes, 114 for Yorks. vs Essex; Tyldesley, 121, and Sharp 183, for Lancashire vs. Worcestershire; Bowell, 149 for Hants, vs. Somerset; Hobbs, 100 for Surry vs. Warwickshire, and 128 by K. Macleod for Lancashire vs. Somerset, are some of the chief scores. Another player who deserves a paragraph to himself, is D. C. Collins, a New Zealander, who is now at Cambridge University. In the 'Varsity Senior match he made a century in each innings—113 and 138 —while in his next effort, for Perambulators vs. Etceteras, he again reached three figures—109.

The doings of the bowlers must not be forgotten. Haight took 9 wickets for 32 runs in the first innings, and Hirst 6 for 43 in the second innings, of the Yorkshire vs. Essex match, while Blythe secured 16 wickets for 102 runs for Kent vs Leicestershire. Besides this, Mignon took 7 for 28 in the second innings of the Gloucestershire vs. Middlesex match, while Dennett got 12 wickets for 95 runs during the same fixture.

TURF

The Turf Club will hold a matinee at the Driving Park to-morrow, afternoon. A splendid bill of sports is provided, including a five mile race on the track.

The condition of Fireman Read, who was injured by falling from the engine of the C.P.R. local Monday evening, is as well as could be expected under the circumstances. The young man is conscious and a quick recovery is looked for.

FREIGHT CARS LEFT THE TRACK

Accident at Campbellford But Nobody is Reported to be Injured.

Three cars and the tender of the engine of a G.T.R. freight left the track near the old Rathburn Mills in Campbellford last evening and plunged into a creek. The track had not been used for some time allowing the weeds to grow and this caused the wheels on the cars to become slippery. They could not be stopped in time and after going over the stop block the three freight cars, tender and the hind wheels of the engine left the rails. Word was sent to Lindsay and the auxiliary arrived and succeeded in placing the engine and cars on the rails again. Very little damage was done.

THEFT CHARGE WAS DIMISSED

Although Charge Was Proven, the Accused Was Given a Chance to do Better in the Future

Thomas Gillhespie, a canvasser, and propriating $17.20, the property of the collector, who was charged with ap-Union Life Assurance Co., was discharged by Magistrate Dumble this morning after considerable evidence had been taken.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution.

The trouble which the accused became mixed up in was brought about by his using part of the money collected by himself, under the impression that money was owed him by the company. The complainants produced their account books in court and it was shown that the accused had no right to take any of the money and apply it for his own use. However, the Magistrate was willing to give him a chance and not spoil his future by imposing a prison sentence. After some good sound advice, to which Gillhespy promised to profit by, the case was dismissed.

WINNIPEG SPEAKS TO THE WORLD

The following preliminary canter of the Canadian Club of Winnipeg will give an idea of "what is coming" to the people of the "effete east." If the Winnipeggers take hold the exhibition will "go" all right. In the meantime it is interesting to note what they say. From the Winnipeg Telegram:

A strong muster of members of the Canadian Club, representatives of the business and professional men of the city, took place last night in the larger Manitoba hall. The luncheon was followed by four eloquent speeches from prominent Winnipeggers, who presented the case for the Selkirk centennial in 1912 in all its aspects. Each speaker was enthusiastic in his advocacy of the holding of the centennial and the large audience was equally enthusiastic in its reception of the speeches. Each of the four speakers were alloted fifteen minutes. Mayor Evans led off and devoted his speech to an emphasis of the position that expositions were one of the great means of publicity. H. M. Belcher followed with an account of the reception of the idea by eastern representative bodies. R. M. Dennistoun, the third speaker, spoke on the international exposition from the national point of view, and Hon. T. M. Daly, last but not least, recounted the events of the recent trip and closed with a burning panegyric on the Dominion and each of its separate provinces. The speakers were introduced by J. B. Mitchell, president of the club, who mentioned that the idea of holding a centennial exposition arose at a Canadian Club luncheon held some two years ago, when an address was delivered by Ernest Thompson Seton.

Mr Dennistoun's topic was:

FROM NATIONAL VIEWPOINT.

R. M. Dennistoun, K.C., said he had been asked to speak upon an international exposition from a national point of view. A nation was always advertising, said Mr. Dennistoun. Sometimes it was advertising its resources and sometimes its deficiencies. He would like to consider with them what Canada should do in the present line of her development to show forth to the world what she had to offer. Japan, the United States and Germany had all been making announcements to the world and Great Britain, "the mother of us all," had been leaning on a full page advertisement with double-leaded head-lines ever since Trafalgar and Waterloo (Loud cheers.) The day had arrived when Canada must advertise herself to the world, but not in any militant manner, as they had not yet reached that stage of national development. Canada and the United States had progressed on parallel lines. Both had gone through the pioneer stage and both had had their struggle for representative government. Then had come the long negotiations for federation, ending for Canada in the glorious year 1867 (Cheers.) Next came the commercial stage. After the civil war in gatley 2—Winnipeg speaks to the the States the whole nation had got down to business and the making of money. Finally it had occurred to the States that the hundredth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence could not be better celebrated than by a Centennial exposition. The Centennial exposition of Philadelphia had been the result. Following upon that new attitude of the United States to the world, millions of men and money had entered the country. Ever since the Philadelphia exposition similar expositions had been held at regular intervals in other cities" Mr. Dennistoun asked whether it would be presumption on their part to say to the world, "We believe that we have advanced far enough in to the commercial stage of our development to be able to hold a world's fair in 1912." He believed they could surely say it. (Cheers.) They might well invite people of the world to help them on their pastures and prairies, in their factories and warehouses, on their harbors and docks and in their vineyards and orchards. But it would not only be an invitation to the world, it would be a challenge. They would challenge the world to bring the best it produced and to set it down beside the Canadian product. They must be prepared to stand to that challenge. He believed the middle and western States would take advantage of the Canadian world's fair to come and exhibit to the world the resources of their country. Winnipeg sincerely hoped that that would be the case. The west could ask for nothing better. (Cheers.) They could offer the world all that the States could offer and far more. They could offer the world their homestead lands. More than that, they could guarantee that the settler would live under the best laws that existed in the world. (Loud cheers.) And the only condition which they imposed was that those who wished to help them in building up their great Dominion should take the oath of allegiance to their gracious sovereign, King Edward VIII. (Loud cheers.)

The residence of County Magistrate Smith one of the finest at Britannia Heights was destroyed by fire.

PETERBOROUGH

The Sheriff and the Chauffeur.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

The farm gate creaked loudly, and Annie Jane hopped out of bed and ran to the window. Two triangular patches of light on the driveway, followed by a dark bulk, betrayed the arrival of an automobile. The voices of men raised in angry altercation floated through the open window.

"Oh, dear! He's caught another one," wailed Annie Jane sleepily as she lighted a candle and proceeded to brush her pretty brown hair.

The mirror reflected a lovely face, full of sweetness and modesty, with soft curves and enchanting dimples. "If mother was only at home to take turns with me"—

"Annie Jane!" bellowed a voice up the stairway. "You git dressed and come down. I got another one of them chawfers down here!"

"Coming, father," yawned Annie Jane, buttoning herself into a little pink frock she had worn that afternoon.

When she entered the kitchen her father was sitting on a corner of the table fuming with an old fashioned revolver. Beside him was a shotgun.

Every separate snowy whisker of the sheriff bristled with hostility when he glanced toward the lawbreaker whom he had captured.

The unhappy prisoner was lounging, his chair tilted back against the wall. He was also smoking a cigarette and eying his warlike captor with good natured tolerance. He jumped to his feet when he saw Annie Jane, and the cigarette performed a parabola into the coal scuttle.

"Sit down!" roared Peter Lamson. "I reckon you don't realize you're a prisoner, young man! Now, Annie Jane," he added, turning to the girl, "I'm going over to get the justice and have him"—

"You better let me take you over in my car," interrupted the prisoner eagerly.

The sheriff glared at him wrathfully. "Yes, and when you get me out in the road you'll run away with me just as a chawfer did with a sheriff down Scugog way! As I said, Annie Jane," he continued, turning his broad back on the prisoner and addressing his daughter, "I'm going to ride over to Justice Wainwright's and get him to come over. If he ain't to home, I'll get Smith. But I wanted Wainwright to know I'm looking after things on the Willow road."

"Oh, I say, sheriff," said the prisoner, withdrawing his glance from Annie Jane's downcast face, "I"—

"You keep still, young feller!" thundered Peter Lamson, unbending his figure to its full height. "Now, you understand that whatever you say will be used agin you! Do you march into that pantry, double quick!"

The chauffeur measured the sheriff with a calculating eye. At the end of a minute his gaze encountered Annie Jane's appealing glance. Then he bowed his head and disappeared within the dark pantry.

The sheriff slammed the door, locked it and hung the key on a convenient nail. Then he opened a sliding door in the wall of the pantry.

"Now, Annie Jane, you set here in front of the little door, and if that chawfer tries to get out do you use this weepon on him! Better aim for his feet. That'll stop him quicker'n anything else." He thrust the revolver into his daughter's reluctant grasp.

"You know I'm afraid of firearms, father!" cried Annie Jane timorously. "I couldn't shoot it off."

Peter Lamson bent his head until his white whiskers brushed Annie Jane's pink ear. "It ain't loaded," he whispered hoarsely. Then, with an elaborate wink at the girl, he left the room.

Five minutes later Annie Jane, crouched in the Boston rocker, facing the pantry, heard the rattle of wheels as her father rode out of the gate. Just then a tall clock in the corner chimed 12.

"Put the revolver on the table if you are afraid of it; I won't try to escape," said a reassuring voice from the pantry. Framed in the opening was the good looking face of the prisoner.

"If you'll promise," said Annie Jane relievedly. She placed the weapon on the table and resumed her seat.

"Father is very—very conscientious," she murmured apologetically.

There was a distinct chuckle from the pantry. "I have noticed that," remarked the chauffeur dryly.

"Father has only been a sheriff since the first of the month," she further explained. "You know there is a signboard down the road which says that motorists must slow down to ten miles and—"

"I'm aware of it. That's what happened to me!"

"It happens to so many of them," sighed Annie Jane. "And then father catches them and they are so rude. Some of them offer money to let them go again. They offer bribes."

The prisoner blushed hotly under the scorn in Annie Jane's voice.

"What did father say when you tried to bribe him?" she asked demurely.

"He said—he said he was the only sheriff in the county that couldn't be bought," said the prisoner soberly.

Annie Jane nodded. "Father is like that," she said simply. "He sought the appointment because he believed that he had the moral courage to refuse a bribe. Our new justice, Mr. Wainwright, says the lives of the people in this community shall not be endangered by the reckless driving of autoists. He says they shall observe the law! We have never seen Mr. Wainwright, but father says he's the right man in the right place."

The prisoner smiled somewhat grimly.

"Of course you look at it from another point of view," said Annie Jane courteously. "I hope your employer will—will pay the fine."

"Thank you," said the prisoner gently.

There was a long silence after that, broken now and then by the dropping of a coal into the grate of the cooking stove. Annie Jane was observing the leathern cap and goggles and huge fur coat flung across a chair. Somehow the prisoner in the pantry did not seem to be like the majority of motorists whom the conscientious sheriff captured in the night watches.

As a rule, the prisoners were dusty and grimy, with oily hands blackened and discolored. They were of every nationality and temperament, but one and all concurred in that they were unjustly detained.

This young man, however, had a clean cut, clever face, with a determined jaw and keen blue eyes. He was an American; his hands were brown and strong and well kept. Annie Jane liked good hands.

Suddenly she uttered a little shriek and tucked her feet under her ruffled skirts.

The prisoner shifted his gaze from her charming face to the bright rag carpet. "What is the matter?" he queried.

"Such a horrid rat!" quavered Annie Jane, pointing to where a small, gray body slid along the floor.

"Give me the revolver and I'll pot him," he suggested eagerly.

"No, oh, no; I can't let you out," sobbed Annie Jane hysterically.

"Nonsense! I'm not going to have you frightened to death," retorted the prisoner authoritatively.

"I am afraid of it—but I promised to keep you locked up. I cannot break my word," murmured Annie Jane, with an attempt at valor.

Once when she was a little child a rat had bitten her hand, and since then the mere sight of one would send her into hysterics.

The chauffeur looked at her face, from which every trace of color had fled, and, with a muttered exclamation, he turned away from the little opening.

A minute later came the sound of a window being raised, and presently the prisoner walked into the room through the back door. Without a word he seized a poker. There was a rush of steps, a sharp squeak and then silence. The door opened and closed.

The chauffeur washed his hands at the sink. "I shall return to the pantry now," he began, when the outer door opened again and the harsh voice of the sheriff boomed through the house.

Annie Jane sprang to her feet, whiter, if possible, than before.

"He's locked in the pantry, justice, and Annie Jane's been a-watching him!" said Peter Lamson triumphantly.

Mr. Justice Smith, stout, rosy and jovial, withal he had been aroused from his bed, entered the room in advance of the sheriff, and his genial glance alighted on the prisoner, who was calmly drying his hands on the roller towel.

"Hello, Wainwright!" he cried. "So you got here after all. Lamson says he went over to your place, but your servants said you were out in the machine —chasing scorchers, I suppose! Now, Miss Annie Jane, have out the prisoner, and we'll each land him a heavy fine, eh, Wainwright?"

Justice Wainwright swept the room in a keen glance that noted Peter Lamson's chagrined face and the pitiful entreaty in Annie Jane's eyes.

"Sorry, sheriff. It's all my fault, but your prisoner has escaped," he said carelessly.

"Shucks!" exploded Peter Lamson, with sincere relief.

"Your treat, sheriff," laughed Smith comfortably. "Let it be some of that old russet cider. I'll go down with you and hold the lamp.

When the discomfited sheriff had preceded Smith down the cellar stairs, the late prisoner approached Annie Jane, who stood disconsolately before the stove.

"You were very kind, indeed, Mr. Wainwright," she stammered with embarrassment. "I know father will be hurt and mortified to realize he has made such a blunder—that he treated you so unkindly."

"You were very kind to the prisoner, Miss Annie Jane," said the justice, with a tender note in his pleasant voice. "Under those circumstances it was very strange that he should try to escape, wasn't it?"

Annie Jane's eyes dropped before the warmth in his gaze, but she made no reply.

"I don't believe—he escaped, after all," mused Wainwright thoughtfully.

And subsequently it was proved that he did not.

Sarcastic.

Hubert Henry Davies, the playwright who spent much time in London, told of an amusing interview between the owner of a publication in the British capital, whereof George Bernard Shaw had been the dramatic critic, and Max Beerbohm on the occasion of the latter's assumption of the duties laid down by G. B. S.

The owner advised Max of the salary that had been paid George Bernard, observing at the same time:

"Being comparatively inexperienced, you, Mr. Beerbohm, cannot, of course, expect so much."

"Oh, yes, I shall!" hastily interposed Max. "Indeed, I shall expect more. Shaw knows the drama so thoroughly that it is an easy matter for him to write it, whereas I, knowing nothing whatever about it, shall find it dreadfully hard work."—Harper's Weekly.

FASHIONS AT THE PLAY

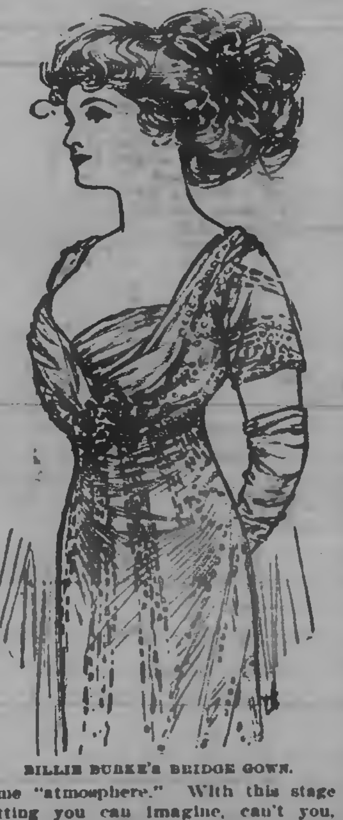
Gowns Worn by Billie Burke In "Love Watches."

THE FAT WOMAN'S BLUNDER.

La Mode Brings Back Into Vogue the Russian Smock—Some Advance Summer Styles—In the Camp of the Enemy.

My Dear Elsa—There are some fashion writers who would make us believe that nowadays there are no fat women and that, like the dodo, the species is extinct. Now, if I wasn't so anxious to tell my tale of woe I'd ask you, Miss Intellectuality, what this creature is we are all so fond of referring to upon certain occasions. But never mind, dear; in the next world, when we all will have heaps of time to ask questions and where we'll not be too rushed to wait for the answers, remind me to inquire about the dodo, won't you? Well, fashion scribblers to the contrary, I have prima facie evidence that at least one fat woman has her being here in New York—she of the old time type of exuberance, Taft-like in proportions, one who has never troubled herself about reducing exercises, the banting theory, one who has never thought of wearing sheathbockers to make herself appear less elephantine.

Much to my regret, I located this almost extinct precursor of femininity at a Billie Burke matinee last Thursday. 'Twas, as the poet says, in the middle of the first act of "Love Watches" that I met my "fat friend," at the exciting moment when Billie Burke is proposing to Andre. Yes, she, sure enough, was doing the greatest question in the world act herself. But she's such a dear, fascinating thing, and the way she makes her victim know he's "it" is so adorable that even your prim conventionality would get a jolt. Andre asks her to describe the man she loves, and Miss Worldly-Wise-Innocence holds a hand mirror in front of him. Of course she has an awful quarter of an hour—in Andre's arms—over the bad form of the situation. But I'm losing sight of the fat woman. No; it's only a little trick of mine, playing to the gallery for sympathy and giving at the same time some "atmosphere." With this stage setting you can imagine, can't you, what a maddening thing it was at this romantic crisis to be brought back to prosaic facts by hearing a voice issuing from an impressive personality say, "Please let me pass?" She did, indeed, and in that passing swept all before her, my best "Louise" hat included, that was peacefully reposing on a niche appointed by the theater architect for "millinery creations."



BILLIE BURKE'S BRIDGE GOWN.

Like Rachel weeping for her children, I wailed, "She's got my hat." A sympathetic line of girls in their efforts to aid me in my search for a chapeau sacrificed their hatpins, fur scarfs and boxes of bonbons with no avail.

Meanwhile the fat lady, utterly oblivious of the commotion her coming had made, was complacently removing her "lid." But when she turned her rotund body about—tableau—my lost property was discovered dangling at a dizzy height from the back of madam's fur stole. A wreck? Certainly. What was once a round sable toque had transformed itself into a three cornered riding shape, and the single pond lily that had rested so confidingly on the left side of the brim, which flower, by the way, was the pride of my life and the latest thing in fur hat adornment, was a sight for the gods to mourn over, and, as Dick says, "it looked like 30 cents."

Peace being restored, it was on with the play, and the play's Billie Burke. I really mean it when I tell you that Billie is her baptismal name. Her parents doubtless were of the Presbyterian faith, for it was predestined that, whether of the feminine or masculine gender, the Burke baby was to be called Billie. An awfully fetching little name, isn't it? This charming actress is very young and pretty, with fluffy golden hair and saucy, piquant features. Of course her role is that of an ingenue, and she is ridiculously in love with her husband. But she does make such an alluring stage picture in a dinner gown of white peau de soie, with a long, trailing sheath skirt and tunic draperies of square spotted net, bordered with a Greek key pattern in silver and silver passementerie about the corsage, that one forgives the absurd fact of her feeding her husband his after dinner coffee and blowing each tiny spoonful so it would not burn his majesty's sacred throat. The clothes Billie wears in "Love Watches" are enough to make any normal woman turn green with envy. And the way she wears them! She's the directoire girl without mistake, divinely tall and willowy as a reed. But to get back to the gowns. In the first act she appears in a delightful frock that I'm going to copy for one of my summer creations, a princess affair of white dotted net. The skirt is short, with an applique of heavy lace reaching almost to the knees. There is a plastron effect of lace and from under it a high empire sash of pink satin ribbon that pokes out in the back in long ends a little to one side of the frock fastening. The glimpse of the sash in front, veiled in lace, is charming, and the two ends, hanging a trifle to one side of the back, are fashion hints worth treasuring for future use. With this garden gown she wore a lingerie "Charlotte" trimmed with a rosebud band effect about the crown and long pink satin streamers that hung to the waist. The neck of this frock was cut in a modest V, and I want to let you know that I have inside information that the skyscraping collar will not appear on summer frocks and that short, tight sleeves will be things worth reckoning with. And the Russian smock (of course you are too young—no sarcasm intended—to remember when it was last worn) is coming in again. So have several of your summer morning dresses of linen with kilted skirts and wear the smock over a lingerie long sleeved guimpe. Soutache wash braid you will use for the trimming about the neck and bottom of this garment borrowed from the land of the czar, and the belt will also be braided.

What a long way I've traveled from Billie Burke and her gowns! But to return to our matron. When in a fit of unreasoning jealousy she leaves Andre this unhappy bride appears ready for flight in a toga-like wrap of white chiffon cloth lined with turquoise blue satin. Her enormous white hat is laden with white ostrich plumes and faced with the blue satin. You asked my advice about an ostrich boa, didn't you? Well, don't get a boa. Buy a stole like Billie's, of white ostrich feathers, built on the lines of a sailor collar in the back and over the shoulders, but with long stole ends in front, on which are attached long white silk tassels. These same ornaments were placed in the middle of the back and on the points over the shoulders. It was perfectly stunning, and she wore this stole with the evening wrap I have just described.

I am sending you a sketch I drew between the acts of the bridge costume Billie wears in the last act, of peach pink satin elaborately incrusted with silver and crystals. A smart touch is achieved in the bunches of Crimson Rambler roses without foliage that she has tucked in her Psyche coiffure and pinned at the waist line of her bodice. In the words of the song, "I really don't know, but I guess," Doucet's signature could be found on the inside of this confection. Now goodby to Billie and her gowns, and if she comes to N. this winter go and see her in "Love Watches." It's googooy and mushy, but you'll like it.

To talk of the serious side of life, you certainly find phases of it at the Martha Washington, New York's hotel hennery. A friend of mine who is "intense" and "purposeful" unfortunately requested me to go to the suffragette headquarters, that have their local habitation at this hostelry, and get some information about prominent leaders in the woman's right movement. With fear and trembling I put on my most stunning frock and pleasing manner and appeared before the desk of a forbidding creature whom I was told could give me the facts I wanted. My only feeling at this point was a longing to escape, which I stifled. The information received, this austere "righter" asked me if I didn't think the recent meeting at Carnegie hall wasn't "grand." I never even heard of the affair, but I agreed with my inquisitor that it was inspiring. Congratulating myself on my powers of dissimulation and armed with enough suffragette pamphlets to leaven the whole lump of unbelievers, I was bidding my tormentor good morning when a mild, sweet looking little German woman armed with a roll call of the faithful appeared. The lady at the desk, sighting the honor roll, looked at me significantly and said "Of course you've signed." This was going too far for comfort, and the nice little German lady, seeing my discomfort, turned to me with a pat-you-on-the-back air and said, "But you're converted?" "Converted!" fairly thundered the strong minded lady. "No decent, sane woman needs to be converted. Every woman with any mind is born that way." Safely outside the door, I muttered, "Thank heaven, I'm insane on some subjects!" Ever most sincely yours,

MABEL.

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statements Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont., That is Making Mi-o-na World Famous for Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H. Heyman, 132 Colborne street, Kingston, Ont. says; "Miona is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure nor even relief. I could not eat anything as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a pressure on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to sleep for this and there was nothing to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning, as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting, that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Mi-o-na on advice of a friend, which has cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Mi-o-na for my present health.

It's the known results obtained by Miona that places it far and away above all other remedies and confirms Wm. Madill, druggist, in offering to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure stomach trouble. 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.

Sound In the Air.

A writer in the Strand Magazine describes the astonishment he experienced when riding over London in a balloon at a height of more than half a mile he heard the deafening roar of the great city beneath him as it could not be heard when on the ground. The noise, even at that height, was so harsh and intense as to be painful to the ear. How perfect a sound conductor the air is was shown when the balloon drifted far over the city to a wooded part of the country, where the murmur of the leaves moved by the wind, half a mile below, was distinctly heard.

Careful For Others.

"No," said the candid kleptomaniac; "when I'm arrested for pilfering I never give my real name. It would compromise too many people."

"Indeed! And what is your name?" inquired the magistrate.

"John Smith."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Iceland's Elder Ducks.

In Iceland on certain islands, near Reikiavik, the elder duck is raised in a systematic manner. It is really more of a small goose than a duck, being so independent of fish and animal food as to be able to support itself by grazing on seaweed at the bottom of the sea at a considerable depth. It is a splendid diver, being as much at home under the water as on the surface. The great value of the elder duck's down is well known, and, owing to the bird's tendency to pull out such large quantities for lining its nest that it leaves its lower breast almost bare when it is setting, there is no difficulty in getting a good supply of these feathers without destroying the birds. In Iceland it is strictly guarded against intrusion. The inhabitants consider it a crime worse than stealing deer in Scotland for any person to shoot an elder duck.

The Art of Food.

I suppose none of us recognizes the great part that is played in life by eating and drinking. The appetite is so imperious that we can stomach the least interesting viands and pass off a dinner hour thankfully enough on bread and water—just as there are men who must read something, if it were only "Bradshaw's Guide." But there is romance about the matter after all. Probably the table has more devotees than love, and I am sure that food is much more generally entertaining than scenery. Do you give in, as Walt Whitman would say, that you are any the less immortal for that? The true materialism is to be ashamed of what we are. To detect the flavor of an olive is no less a piece of human perfection than to find beauty in the colors of the sunset.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SUPERVISION COMMITTEE

Chairman and Members of Board of Education:

Gentlemen.—Your Supervision Committee beg to report that at the recent institute of the city teachers a resolution was passed requesting this Board, before adopting the penny bank system, to permit a committee of teachers to meet a representative of the Board to learn from him the full details of the scheme.

Your committee recognize that to insure perfect success it is necessary to have the heartiest co-operation on the part of the teaching staff, and your committee feel that the time of the teacher is fully taken up by the present curriculum, and consider that they should be fully informed of just what work the Board will impose. Your committee would, therefore, recommend that arrangements be made to secure a visit of one of the bank's offices to give teachers full information, and that the matter be dealt with at a future meeting.

Your committee beg to report that tenders have been received and opened for the school supplies. As sufficient time has not yet elapsed to permit of checking them over, your committee would ask the Board for authority to award the contract to the lowest tender, same to be confirmed at next meeting.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN CRANE,
Chairman.

The meeting then adjourned.

VOL. LVIII., No. 129. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1909 TEN CENTS PER WEEK

EXPRESS COMPANIES GROW FROM SMALL BEGINNINGS

Legal Representatives for Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Elicit Important Facts Concerning the Express Business—Cash Investment of Canadian Company Was $27,500—Dividends of 100 Per Cent.

Toronto, June 3.—Great oaks from little acorns grow, is an axiom which might aptly be applied to the express companies, as the statements of capital invested and present profits submitted to the Railway Commission yesterday afternoon indicated.

The Canadian Express Co. was shown to have launched out in 1865 upon the capital of $27,500, actually paid in in hard cash. Modest as the sum looks, it was never found necessary to issue any more stock. The earnings took care of the equipment, which is now valued at over $212,000, and has earned from all sources an average of 100 per cent. per annum in the past seven years.

The Dominion Express Co. has also had a healthy, not to say tropical, growth. Shortly after incorporation in 1882, the promoters were in the happy position of having got back the sum of $24,500 advanced and paid off $74,000 in bonds loaned by the C.P.R. The property is now valued at $572,-899, and earned 92 per cent. on this basis last year.

A neat little family compact was disclosed in the case of the Canadian Northern Express Co. The stock issued was $300,000, of which $296,000 is retained by Mackenzie & Mann interests.

These illuminating statistics were laid bare by W. S. Buell, solicitor for the commission, and George T. Shepley, K.C., its counsel.

The concluding evidence as to express rates was given by W. T. Street, president of the Dominion Express Co., and W. H. Burr, the company's traffic manager. Mr. Street examined as to the transportation of fish from British Columbia across the continent, said that the traffic was heavy, but the business precarious, the fish being American halibut caught in American waters and landed in British Columbia by special order in council, which permit might at any time be rescinded. The tolls on the traffic in 1908 amounted to $300,000.

T. H. Chrysler, K.C., representing the Dominion Express Co., and E. Le Fleur for the Canadian Express Co., gave their side of the argument. They thought it wasn't the province of the board to revolutionize rates. In considering the proposal that the classification of express should be assimilated with the classification of freight, the advantages of speedy delivery of express parcels, as against the slower delivery of freight should be fully weighed.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE OPENED TO-DAY AT BELLEVILLE

Belleville, June 2.—There are nearly 250 ministers and laymen in the city ready to take part in the real opening of the Bay of Quinte Conference, which begins to-morrow at 10 o'clock. Boats and trains brought many in to-day. The ministerial session was held in Bridge street church at 5.30 p.m. Rev. Robt. McCulloch of Omemee, was in the chair, and Rev. J. Lewis, B.A., as secretary. Seventy-five ministers responded to the roll. There will be one candidate for ordination on Sunday, Geo. G. R. McQuade, of Lindsay district.

Rev. Dr. Briggs, of the Methodist Book Room, and Rev. Dr. Crews, Toronto, addressed the conference. Dr. Briggs gave a satisfactory report of the Book Room, and Dr. Crews reported on periodicals.

The following candidates for the ministry were received on trial;—Reymond T. Richards, of Brighton district; Russel Garfield Carruthers and Norman George Woon of Whitby district; John Edward Griffith, of Cannington district; Wendell Phillips Woodges, of Lindsay district; Samuel Ralph Laycock, of Madoc district.

The conference continued to-night in Bridge street church. It was the conference missionary anniversary. Wm. Ross, ex-M.P., of Port Perry, was the chairman. He gave a very interesting address. Other speakers were E. S. Huyck, Cobourg, and Rev. Jas. Allen, General Secretary of Home Mission Department, Toronto. To-morrow morning the election of the president takes place.

PETERBOROUGH LADY TO BE A MISSIONARY TO ORIENT

Boston, Mass., June 2.—The last farewells of the girl missionaries who are departing for their posts in the Orient, are being said in Boston this week. In the number gathered for the plunge into the dangerous work is Miss Susan Grant Davidson, of Peterborough, Ont., daughter of Mr. J. J. Davidson, who has been assigned to work in Northern China. Miss Davidson and a score of other girls from the middle west are in Boston to-night and to-morrow and will be formally received by the American Board of Foreign Missions, which is to begin its annual conference then. The single women missionaries will meet with the Women's Board Thursday afternoon and Friday afternoon. Dr. John C. Berry will deliver an address to them on The physical life of the missionary. Sunday evening the girl missionaries will deliver formal addresses in various churches and to young people's societies. Each day from now until June 9th will be filled with final instructions and leave takings. The missionaries will be given a great send-off on their journey and in the far east they will separate and go to the various posts assigned them. A public service will be held in Central church just before they sail, at which time the women who are going forth into danger for religion's sake, will be publicly honored.

IRON BAR ON TRACK

Attempt Made to Wreck Grand Junction Train Near Belleville.

Special to the Review.

Belleville, June 3.—A deliberate attempt to wreck the Grand Junction passenger train, which leaves this city every morning for the north, is reported.

This morning about 6 o'clock two parties driving past saw an obstruction on the track, which certainly would have ditched the train. It was a long piece of iron, fastened down. The men removed the bar and turned it over to the authorities.

An investigation is being made.

North Bay, June 3.—Maurice Ryan, found guilty of the murder of his brother, Joseph Francis Ryan, in November, 1907, was hanged this morning in the jail yard here, the drop taking place at 5.50 o'clock.

Ryan slept well all night, and Bishop Scollard, who had attended him throughout his imprisonment, had to awaken him when he arrived at the jail at 5.20. Sheriff Varin led the procession to the scaffold, Ryan walking between Hangman Radcliffe and the jailer. Ryan was crying as he walked. Bishop Scollard walked a few feet behind, repeating a prayer. As Ryan was placed on the trap and the black cap was about to be put over his head he sobbed and cried bitterly, protesting "I am innocent"

BANK CLERK IS DROWNED

Charles Chapman of North Bay Loses Life as Result of Canoe Upsetting

North Bay, June 3.—A drowning accident occurred at 8.30 last night, when Charles Chapman, accountant in the Traders' Bank branch here, lost his life in Lake Nipissing, not one hundred feet from shore, about one mile below town. With two companions, G. R. Harris and A. Borrowman, employes, he had paddled down to their cottage on the lake shore yesterday afternoon in a canoe, making preparations to occupy it for the summer. Returning to town in the evening the canoe upset. R. G. Parker, another bank clerk, observed the accident from shore and immediately swam out to where the boys were clinging to the upturned canoe, the water being still very cold from the winter's ice which moved out only two weeks ago. Parker succeeded in bringing the frail craft with Harris and Borrowman to shore, but poor Chapman released his hold and sank.

Parker was assisted in his heroic deed by H. Tilley, who waded out until the water reached his chin. Chapman could not swim and the other lads could swim very little.

Chapman was a son of Rev. Mr. Chapman, rector of the Anglican Church at Ailsa Craig, was 25 years old, unmarried, and a talented musician, being organist of St. John's Church, North Bay. He was acting manager of the bank this week in the absence of Manager Thomas Peacock, whose wife is very ill in Toronto.

The body has not been recovered.

REV. DR. LYLE, HAMILTON, PRESBYTERIAN MODERATOR

Pastor of Central Church and One of Canada's Leading Ministers Receives Highest Honor in Gift of Presbyterians—Definite Action Regarding Church Union is Promised at the Present Assembly.

Hamilton, June 3.—Hamilton is to-day the Mecca of Presbyterians. Representatives of the Presbyterian Church from all parts of the Dominion and from many points beyond have gathered to attend the thirty-fifth General Assembly, which opened last night in the Central Church, of which Rev. Dr. Lyle, the new moderator, is pastor.

Unfortunately the proceedings opened under the shadow of a bereavement, which deprived the assembly of the services of the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. DuVal of Winnipeg, in whose loss the whole church sympathetically shares. His place at the opening service last night was taken by Principal Patrick of Winnipeg, who delivered the sermon prepared by Dr. DuVal.

The program of the assembly covers a wide field, and involves the consideration of questions of far-reaching and vital importance. Paramount among these is the now well-thrashed out question of union. The joint committee who have had the matter in hand will present a report which, it is expected, will lead to clear and definite action. They express satisfaction with the basis of union now agreed upon, and will recommend its adoption so that the issue before the assembly will be whether the negotiations now brought to a head should go for nothing, or whether the basis should be submitted to the Presbyteries and congregations. In any event it is felt that this year's union debate will be a crucial one.

The financial position of the church, particularly in relation to missions, both home and foreign, is another matter which will engage serious attention. In the language of one of the reports, the past year has been "one of great anxiety in some fields, of large in-gathering in others, and of encouraging progress in all," but the note of disappointment will probably be found to overshadow that of satisfaction. Not only has the appeal for one million dollars, decided upon at last year's assembly, failed to produce the required amount, but deficits are reported in many of the important funds of the church, with the result that the operations for the coming year will call for very careful consideration. In the home mission field the commissioners are confronted with a situation which is described as grave, both as regards the supply of ordained missionaries and the contribution of funds, while the assembly is also faced with a growing debt in relation to foreign missions. In connection with the whole question of missions will come up the issue raised by the Laymen's Missionary movement, and on this subject the desirability of co-operation will in all probability be discussed.

THE MOTHER'S SENTENCE

Great Britain is very much stirred over an atrocious murder in Glasgow. The victim was a harmless old lady and the murderer the son of a Silesian Jew named Slater. Slater was condemned to die. The Glasgow Herald sent its Silesian correspondent to tell his father and mother. It was a trying ordeal. The aged mother spoke of her son as a devoted, kind and loving son, who always thought of her and did his best for her comfort. Then the full and horrible story was told. "If he has done THAT, then let him die!" So said this brave and just old woman who, fond as she was of her son, now in the shadow of death, was yet true to the Jewish instincts of justice. "If he has done that, let him die!" This is in vivid contrast to the weird hysteria that would "rescue" Blythe, whose cruelty was almost unexampled. Lynch law will not wait long on the weaklings who would sacrifice life to a spineless so-called "mercy theory" if they get much more of their way. They would leave women and children a prey to human wolves. The animal of that name is an irreclaimable pest whose death all men have decreed. So is the other and we want no weak-tea measures in dealing with him either. Better to abolish law than to make it ridiculous.

THE BRAZEN GOD

Winnipeg, May 31—Trouble between the G.T.P. and the operating employees, including firemen, conductors, trainmen and engineers, has reached an acute stage. No agreement or working schedule so far has been framed and the men have taken a strike vote to bring the matter to a crisis. Committees representing the conductors and firemen are now here and application will be made tonight for a board of conciliation. The men claim that work on the new road is attended with great hardships under existing conditions.

The record of hardships on the G.T.P. since its beginning has been such as to make the callous worshipper of the brazen serpent wonder if there is any heart and soul left in the world. Just think of it! Every conceivable convenience for the rich financiers of the road, every conceivable sacrifice by the government and people of Canada and yet not even the commonest sort of consideration for the men. Mackenzie King is sent on some wild mission to Japan as Labor delegate while the heart is wrung with the gathering of the unnamed and forgotten dead in roadside death-pits as if it was the burial of useless curs, not of toiling, suffering humanity. Where is the Christianity of this land that it does not cry out against the unnecessary brutality of this work?

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is instructive to read the grave discussion now going on in England as to the propriety of allowing children to go into bars.

Hansard, p 6822 of this year, makes the odd mistake of speaking of the flow of Niagara being so many square feet per second.

The Republican journals in the U.S. are poking tremendous fun at the eighteen Democratic no-tariff senators who voted for the high tariff. Democratic journals are ominously silent.

Zeppelin's airship consists of a large number of gas compartments, separated by aluminum sheets, so that if one breaks the rest are in no wise affected. The framework is outside this, and over it is a covering of vulcanized cotton. The passengers and crew are two "hanging baskets," while the engines and petrol supply are carried close up under.

Winnipeg.—The Gee Whiz Mfg. Co have obtained a permit for the erection of a $4,000 warehouse on Henry avenue.

The British critics are comparing Meredith to Shakespeare. Here is what is said of one feature of his work:

"And the key to his philosophy was romance, the romance that is the vitality of the soul. 'When we let romance go,' he said, 'we change a sky for a ceiling.' He is dead, and somehow we feel as if romance had slipped from our grasp, leaving us a ceiling instead of a sky!"

The patrol-boat now being put on the local waters to protect the fisheries so that tourists will come this way and pay about $5.00 a pound for fish, on an average, is a small but effective contribution to the plan of local development. If some of the money borrowed by the Laurier Government could be turned into similar legitimate channels this whole district from end to end would prosper and blossom as the rose.

Witnesses in election trials are liable to punishment for their own transgressions, or are not liable, according as they frankly and willingly tell the truth about the matters then before the court of which they have knowledge. The court does not avail itself of the voluntary testimony of a witness and also punish him for giving it. The court exercises its discretion in all such matters so as to best serve the ends of justice which are best served by offering every justifiable inducement to witnesses to tell the whole truth.

Mr. J. D. Reid: I would like to know what sort of a grip this man Preston has on the Prime Minister. When he was in England we had the North Atlantic Trading Company trouble, and we had continental European immigrants sent out here who were injurious to Canada. Then immediately on his landing in Japan all these Japanese came to British Columbia and the whole country was set wild over his actions there. Now he has gone to Holland, and I suppose we will have some trouble with Holland before long. The Prime Minister should have considered seriously before sending him to another country. I believe it would have been better to have sent him to some remote part of China, whence he could not send immigrants and where he would lose himself. The first thing you know you will have a war between Holland and Canada, and as soon as we get that settled Mr. Preston will be sent somewhere else to cause a row.—Hansard.

OF INTEREST

A $330,000 Picture

There is nothing in the histories to show that when Henry VIII sent Holbein to Brussels to paint a picture of the fair Christina, he had the least suspicion of the trouble he was hatching for his countrymen of a later generation who would quarrel for its possession with the people of the new and just discovered across the sea. Her picture did not please the fancy of the fickle monarch we are told, and she never became queen, and died with her head in its natural place; but the portrait has succeeded better with some American king of finance, as yet unknown, who is reported to have bid high for it, and who will get it if the National Gallery can not match the offer. As a result it is easily the most discussed picture in the world today. The most various questions are asked of it. Will England keep it? What lucky millionaire, after the National Gallery has an option on the picture? Or is the millionaire merely a hypothetical person to arouse British interest. These questions merely concern the present status of the picture which has been sold by the Duke of Norfolk to a firm of picture dealers, Messrs. Colnaghi, after its twenty-eight years loan to the National Gallery in London. Other questions of a more recondite nature are put, some of which, invoking the English law of entail, ask if the sale by the Duke is really legal. The sum of $330,000 which the Colnaghis are said to have paid for this painting is, we are told, nothing surprising. One critic has said that the work "has no superior in all the world of art," yet the advance on this sum which will come when the canvas next changes hands is thought unlikely to reach the mark of $500,000 which Mr. Morgan is reputed to have paid for his great Raphael.

The British Government it appears has been given a month to make up its mind whether it will purchase the Holbein at the price the Colnaghis gave for it; and with fear and trembling it has offered $50,000 as a starter for a fund to save the masterpiece for England. If it comes to the United States says Mr Royal Cortissoz, in the New York Tribune, "we may congratulate ourselves on an acquisition of extraordinary significance." He thinks it would be a fine thing for the Metropolitan Museum "to concentrate a year's income from the Rogers fund on the purchase of the painting, seeking, and we may be sure quickly finding, the balance among [illegible] private contributors." He gives some words of description:—

"This portrait which is painted on panel is 6 feet 10 inches in height and 2 feet 8 inches wide. The figure wears a mourning robe, trimmed with sable over a black satin dress. The head is closely fitted with a black hood. The background is blue a color with special enthusiasm since it appears again and again in his works. The portrait dates from 1538, early in the period of Holbein's service as court painter to Henry VIII."

From Mr. Gerald S. Davies' "Life of Holbein" we are given this account of Christina and of the occasion of Holbein's painting her portrait:

"The girl had been married at thirteen to Francesco Maria, of Milan, and was now a widow at sixteen. There had been much searchings by the ambassadors of many courts for a new wife for Henry. Among those who had been suggested for the high but perilous position were Mary of Guise, the widowed Countess of Egmond, and a daughter of the House of Brederode. Henry who had professed himself somewhat coy, nevertheless had made the proposal to Castillon the French Ambassador, that selection of French princesses should be brought to Calais for his inspection—an unseemly proposal which Castillon met by a still more unseemly answer. Finally, Hutton the Ambassador, made so favorable a report on the qualities of Christina, that Henry sent Holbein in company with Philip Hobbie—who figures among the Windsor drawings—to Brussels, and where on March 12, at one o'clock in the afternoon—it is rarely that we can date a portrait so accurately as this—the young duchess sat for her portrait. By four o'clock that afternoon Holbein had completed the sketch—so we must consider it—from which the wonderful portrait was painted. We are not indeed, told that Holbein completed a preliminary sketch, but one may feel practically assured that he did so. It is most unlikely that he would have commenced what he must have known was to be a very brief sitting on a panel of the size which we now see. At Windsor, indeed, there is preserved a small panel which has been thought to be this sketch but if it have any relationship with this portrait of Christina it is more probably an inferior version by another hand. All that we are able to say is that it is most probable that an original sketch existed and was of smaller size, and that according to his custom, Holbein painted the larger portrait from it. For we hear that when Hutton saw the sketch that afternoon he was so delighted with its perfection that he at once dispatched a messenger to recall a portrait by another artist which was already on its way to England, 'since' adds Hutton, 'it was but slubbered in comparison.' Now to suppose that a panel of the size of the Arundel portrait could have been brought to this state of perfection in three hours is, of course, out of the question.

"The art of portraiture can go no further. The young girl, bright, witty, fascinating and yet with just the shade of sorrow over her, stands at full length before us—she was 'exceeding tall and graceful' we are told—in her widow's weeds. Hutton speaks with enthusiasm of her smile, which, whenever she used it, brought two little pits upon her cheeks and one upon her chin which became her exceedingly. But the smile has almost faded from her face as she stands nervously playing with her glove between her slender fingers. The figure is at once girl-like, and womanly; the face at once grave for the moment and ready to sparkle into vivacity the next. It is so living, this young girl's portrait that all our sympathies are quickened as we stand before it. She was not destined to add her name to the list of English queens and she died later, and for aught one knows happier, as Duchess of Lorraine. Something went wrong with the political situation and Charles V. turned his back upon the match. Every one knows the witty saying—evidently the after thought of some other brain—which tradition has put into her mouth that if she had had two heads one should be at the disposal of his Majesty. She said, of course, nothing of the kind, yet if what was told of her bright and lively disposition was true, the moral of the imagined answer was sound for her, and she might if she had become Queen of England, all innocent, have found her way, sooner or later, to Tower Hill, through her merry nature."

One phase of English distress over the possible loss of the picture is represented by Mr Arthur Fox-Davies, a barrister and writer of heraldic works. A London despatch to the New York Sun reports Mr Fox-Davies as declaring that an act of Parliament passed in 1627 entailing the earldom and castle of Arundel as well as certain scheduled belongings, upon the descendants of the then Earl, possibly makes the Earl's recent disposition of his picture illegal. We read:

"The Duke of Norfolk is the present representative descendant of the then Earl of Arundel and is himself Earl of Arundel which title, by the way is conferred as title of courtesy upon his son. It is not certain whether Holbein's painting is included in the aforesaid schedule but Mr Fox-Davies contends that this point can be settled as the schedule must exist in the records of the Court of Chancery and can be found by an expert search.

"The picture was undoubtedly in possession of the Arundel family when the act was passed and it is inferred that it is named in the schedule, in which case the Duke of Norfolk has not the power to sell it. Mr. Fox-Davies' contention, moreover, would establish the fact that the Duke was not empowered to remove the picture from Arundel Castle. Assuming this contention to be correct, its loan for the past twenty-eight years to the National Gallery has been illegal.

"Mr. Fox-Davies contends that the Duke's interest in the picture is merely a life interest in the possession and enjoyment thereof conditional upon it remaining in Arundel Castle. This interest, says Mr Fox-Davies, he has now sold for $330,000 to Colnaghi and Company, who in nowise become the owners of the picture. All they obtain from the deal is the right to enjoy the picture themselves and to let others enjoy it during the Duke's life. Nor would the Duke be able to evict them from Arundel Castle as trespassers if they attempted to enjoy their right because the law implies the right of access."

MILLIONS OF CELLS.

The human body is composed of countless millions of cells. These cells are constantly dying and new ones are being created. Dead cells are removed from the blood by the bowels, kidneys and skin. These great eliminating organs filter this waste matter from the blood, and thus purify the blood.

If there is Constipation, or non-action of the bowels—if the kidneys are strained or weakened—if there is defective skin action—then the dead cells are not removed from the body. The blood thus becomes loaded with impurities, and we suffer for it.

The only way to purify the blood is to cure the skin, bowels and kidneys. When these organs are healthy and doing their work as nature intended them to do it, waste matter is promptly removed and the blood is kept pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—act directly on the skin, the bowels and the kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" purify the blood because they keep the whole body strong, vigorous and healthy. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Jermyn Man Met With Accident —A Record in Raising Geese

Special to the Review.

Jermyn, June 3.—Mr. P. P. Armstrong met with a painful accident which necessitates his staying in bed for a couple of weeks. He was run down by a runaway saddle horse belonging to Mr. F. Fife. Both horse and rider were thrown, but escaped uninjured. Mr. Armstrong was injured about the back.

Bethel Sunday school with its usual enterprise intends running a monster excursion from Hastings to Stoney Lake, June 24th. It promises to be a grand success.

Mr. F. Fife, our local poultry man, would like to hear of a record that can beat his at goose raising. He is the proud possessor of 67 goslings from 78 eggs.

Mr W. Kidd, of Chicago, spent a few days with his uncle, Mr. John Borland.

Mr. James Rennie is recovering from a severe attack of the mumps.

GOOD PROGRESS AT ROSEDALE

Work on Canal and Lock There is Being Pushed Forward Rapidly

Lindsay, June 2.—The work on Rosedale lock and the new portion of the Trent Valley canal is being pushed forward and those in charge anticipate its completion before the end of the year, but it is not likely the dam across the present channel will be finished this season. Already two-thirds of the seven-eighths of a mile of excavation has been done, and several hundreds of thousands yards of earth and stone have been removed, in which four locomotives and a hundred or more dump cars, a half dozen dump scows and several scows, have been employed in removing. The excavating is being done by two large steam shovels and a very powerful dredge which is following and deepening the channel. One can hardly comprehend the immense amount of material removed unless it can be seen.

The concrete work is under the direction of Mr. Geo. Rae, of Lindsay, and between the contractors, McDonald & Co., and Mr. Rae, a good job is being done. The work on the lock is more than two-thirds completed, and a large gang of men are now doing the rip-rap act and finishing that portion of the canal already excavated.

About one hundred men are employed on the works, who are housed in the neighborhood. The Italians have their own shacks and board themselves, while the other nationalities of workmen are looked after in a well-appointed boarding house presided over by a chef.

LARGE NUMBER HEARD REV. FATHER DERLING AT DOURO

Douro, June 2—The regular large attendance continued every morning and evening during the whole week of the mission at St Joseph's church, Douro, notwithstanding the busy times, and the congregation turned out in a body to each and every service and sermon. There was an unusually large attendance on Monday evening to hear Rev. Father Derling deliver the closing sermon of the mission. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity. Members of all ages in the parish were present from the infant in the mother's arms, to the aged man and woman who had passed the years of three score and ten. Rev. Father Derling exhorted his adherents to keep up their religious zeal, to persevere in the good resolutions they had taken during the mission, to practise charity toward their neighbors, and to love God above all things, and to avoid offending Him who is so good and merciful to all.

Rev. Father Derling will commence the forty hours' devotions on Friday morning and they will continue until Sunday evening.

ECLIPSE ON MOON TO-NIGHT

This evening there will be a total eclipse of the moon, when the lady moon's bright disc will be immersed in the shadow of the earth. The eclipse will be partly visible in this part of the world, the moon rising eclipsed at 7.46 p.m. This strange and beautiful sight is perhaps particularly interesting to the naked-eye astronomer, from whom many of the wonders of the heaven are hidden, for it may be seen without the use of any instrument. Unfortunately the eclipse will not be seen in its entirety here.

The course of the moon through the earth's shadow is from west to east.

PARTICULARS OF THE ECLIPSE.

Moon enters penumbra, or outer shadow, 5.36 p.m.

Moon enters shadow, 6.43.

Total eclipse begins 7.58.

Middle of eclipse, 8.29.

Total eclipse ends 9.00.

Moon leaves shadow, 10.14.

Moon leaves penumbra, 11.21.

Magnitude of eclipse, 1,164; Moon's diameter, 1.0.

The circumstances which produce an eclipse of the moon are easily understood. The earth, like any other solid body, casts a shadow. The great black shadow is conical in form and extends out into space on the side away from the sun to a distance of nearly a million miles till it tapers off to a point. If the sun, earth and moon get exactly in line with one another an eclipse of either the sun or the moon must occur. If the moon's orbit round the earth lay exactly true to the plane of the ecliptic (that is, the great imaginary circle in space having the sun for its center, and which is travelled by the earth), the moon would have to pass through the earth's shadow every month. The moon's orbit, however, does not quite coincide with that of the earth, being slightly tilted, so that usually when she is on the opposite side of the earth from the sun she passes a little above or below the shadow. If she happens to be at the place where her orbit crosses the earth's when she is either full or new, an eclipse must occur. If the moon is full she enters the shadow of the earth and there is an eclipse of the moon, the earth having cut off the sunlight by which she shines. An eclipse of the moon can occur only at full moon for she could not possibly get into the earth's shadow at any other time. The diameter of the shadow where the moon will pass through it in this eclipse is nearly 6,000 miles.

GENERAL BOOTH IN ALBERT HALL

A Dramatic Scene — Tableaux Vivants—London by Night—What Love Can do

No more dramatic scene could have been witnessed this week in London than that which was seen in the Albert Hall on Monday night. The venerable General Booth, with the snows of eighty winters upon his head, gave London an object-lesson of what the Salvation Army has done and does do.

At one moment the whole arena of the vast hall was a representation of the Thames embankment at night, with its crowd of homeless folk to whom the Army gives bread and soup. At another, the floor was a scene of busy paper-sorters, representing the social industries. Another moment, and a hundred poor children from the slums began dancing round a barrel-organ—fancy a barrel-organ in the Albert Hall.

Then, when these children were replaced by a group of children in drilling costume from "The Nest"—a home for special cases of little girls—the change was extraordinary. Grace, cleanliness, and method were displayed. And when these children occupying the whole of the floor sang that simple melody, "I think when I read that sweet story of old," few hearts were unstirred.

Then, again, the floor was filled with men from the Hadleigh Land Colony, and later with a procession of officer delegates, representing the Women's Social Work.

The General, with wonderful vigor, asked for $250,000, and gave an amazing proof of what he wanted it for. No master of the pageants could have managed the display better, and the General himself, looking back over his long life, must have been strongly moved at his own work. What would John Wesley have said to it?—Public Opinion.

PILES FOR FOUR YEARS

Only those who suffer from Piles can know the agony, the burning, throbbing, shooting, stabbing pains which the ailment causes, and the way it wrecks the sufferer's life.

Zam-Buk is blessed by thousands who used to suffer from piles, but whom it has cured. One such grateful person is Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, of Greenwood Avenue, Toronto. She says:—"For four long years I suffered acutely from bleeding piles. During that time I spent an immense amount of money on 'remedies' and doctor's prescriptions but got no ease. Zam-Buk was different to everything else I had tried, and it cured me. I am grateful for the cure, and as I have never had piles once since, I know the cure is permanent."

Another thankful woman is Mrs. E. A. Gardiner, of Catalina, Trinity Bay. She says:—"In my case Zam-Buk effected a wonderful cure. For twelve years I had been troubled with blind, bleeding, and protruding piles. I had been using various kinds of ointments, etc., but never came across anything to do me good until I tried Zam-Buk, which cured me. That this may be the means of helping some sufferers from piles to try Zam-Buk, is the wish of one who has found great relief."

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal balm and should be in every home. Cures cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, ulcers, blood-poisoning, prairie itch, sunburn, blisters, sore feet, summer sores, and all diseases and injuries of the skin, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

THE SUBURBAN GARDENER

'Late the man —I tell you plain,—
Who prateth garden in the train;
Whose talk with endless brag should
Of what he's doing in his 'grounds.'

These "grounds" if you should press him hard,
You'll find are just a small backyard
Scarce big enough to swing a cat,
Behind milord's suburban flat.

"This morn," he says with boastful air
"I mowed my lawn"—'Tis ten feet square,—
"And sowed my peas" 'Oh, feat immense,—
One little row along the fence.

'My daffs are now in brilliant blow,
My wallflowers make a splendid show,
Beats anything you see at Kew."
He has of each precisely two.

"My greenhouse sir, produced last night
A dish of strawberries —b nor bright
(A pretty "dish" as I'm alive:
It ran to shriveled berries five)

"My wall-fruit's simply on the top—
Gives promise of a record crop"

BROCKVILLE REGRETS HIS DEPARTURE

Island City Sorry to See Mr. Travers Leaving That Place --An Able Banker

Saturday's Brockville Times says: It was learned to-day that Mr R. W. Travers, manager for the past seven years of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed manager of the Peterborough branch of that well known institution. Mr Travers will not leave for a fortnight or so, and in the meantime his successor is not definitely known.

Brockville will feel a very genuine regret over the departure of Mr Travers. No banker in this district is better or more favorably known than the genial gentleman who has so successfully guided the destinies of the Bank of Montreal here during the past few years. He is not only an able banker, but has prominently identified himself in social and sporting circles as well. No more enthusiastic yachtman lives in this section and he was, as it happens, just about to add a fine new yacht to the local fleet when he was notified of his promotion.

Mr. Travers himself will also experience profound regret at having to leave the town with which his life has been so closely associated. For not only was he born here when his father was manager of the Bank of Montreal, but he came back to Brockville as accountant many years ago after efficient service in various branches of the bank, and again after being stationed at Hamilton and Almonte he returned to Brockville as manager.

The departure of Mrs. Travers will be felt in no less a degree than that of Mr. Travers. Mrs. Travers has long since established herself firmly in the hearts of a large circle of acquaintances. Amiable in disposition, keen of intellect and widely read, she has gained a well deserved popularity on all sides, while her quiet but unceasing activity in charitable works has gained for her the lasting gratitude of many a destitute one. Both Mr. and Mrs. Travers are endowed with the characteristic hospitality of the Irish, and nothing gives them greater pleasure than the entertainment of their friends.

The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin running; simply this, more families will of necessity move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase in other words prosperity is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing homes will do well to see J. THE RITE OF CONFIRMATION WAS ADMINISTERED TO FORTY-TWO CANDIDATES

At St. Luke' Last Night—Cordial Address of Welcome to His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto—Large Congregation Present

The beautiful and impressive ceremony of confirmation was administered to forty-two candidates by Right Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., Bishop of the Diocese, Toronto, at St. Luke's church last evening. It was also the occasion of the first visit to Peterborough of Bishop Sweeny since his appointment and subsequent consecration to the holy office that he now occupies. The congregation of St. Luke's took advantage of the opportunity to present an address of welcome to the Bishop. It was read by Dr. Langfeldt's senior lay reader, Ald. The clergy assisting the Bishop were Revs. Dr. Langfeldt, the rector, F. J. Turner. Canon Davidson, of St. John's church; H. R. Trumpour, M.A., of All Saints' church, who carried the pastoral staff; W. J. Creighton, and A. McKenzie, of Lakefield, and E. W. Pickford, of Norwood.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large congregation, the majority of whom had been previously confirmed, and who were asked by His Lordship to recall the promises they had made. The hymns sung were appropriate to the service of confirmation.

ADDRESS TO THE BISHOP

After evening prayer had been said by Rev. Mr. Creighton, of Lakefield, Dr. Langfeldt remarked that the occasion was an important one. It was the public confession of Christ by a large number of young people. The congregation, he was sure, felt very happy at having the Bishop with them. He then called upon Mr. Turner to read an address of welcome. It was as follows:

Rev. Dr. Langeldt said that this confirmation service was a most important occasion to the congregation also that they were all very happy to take this opportunity to welcome to the parish his lordship the Bishop of Toronto on this his first visit to Peterborough. The reverend doctor then called upon the senior layman, Mr J. J. Turner, jr. to read an address of welcome and loyalty to the bishop on behalf of the congregation.

Mr. Turner then read the address which was as follows:

To the Right Reverend F J. Sweeney,
MA, DD, Lord Bishop of Toronto.

Right Reverend Father in God.—The rector and congregation of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, desire on the occasion of your first episcopal visit to the city and parish, to most respectfully and cordially welcome and congratulate your lordship on being advanced to the dignity of the Episcopate.

Your lengthy experience as rector of St. Phillip's church, Toronto, Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral, archdeacon of York and Simcoe, and administrator of the diocese has given you experience which united with gifts of learning and culture, deep piety, sound judgment and devotion to the interests of the church, serve to justify your elevation to the high and holy office of bishop and shepherd of souls.

To our felicitations we would add an expression of our loyalty to your person to your office and to the church fully confident that the policy of progressive administration you have already inaugurated will with the divine blessing redound to the glory of God, and the promotion of the church, material, moral and spiritual.

Trusting that your lordship will long be spared to discharge the duties of your high vocation and renewing our expressions of fealty to your person and office, we remain on behalf of the congregation, your faithful, dutiful and humble co-operators in the great work of our beloved church;

E. A. LANGFELDT, MA.
Rector.
G. L. HAY,
Rector's Warden.
G. R. BROWNING,
People's Warden.
Ashburnham, June 2, 1909.

HIS LORDSHIP'S REPLY

Bishop Sweeny, in replying, said: "I am deeply touched by the kind sentiments expressed in the beautiful address of welcome and greeting that you have presented me. I will ever cherish them, and hope by the grace of God to prove myself worthy of the good things said about me. I deeply appreciate your words of cordiality. My work of twenty-six years in this diocese, every hour of it, has been a great pleasure in the service of the Lord. Of all the kind things you have said to me, the kindest is the promise of your prayers. If I feel that the people of this church and of all the diocese are bearing on their lips to the throne of God, prayers for me, I have no fear that God will not use me in the extension of His kingdom. Unless I have these prayers I cannot go on, even though I pray much myself. Should I feel disheartened or discouraged in the tremendous and grave responsibility of the work of the diocese, will you not come to me in prayerful assistance? Again I thank you most sincerely, and from a full heart for the words of welcome and your good wishes."

TO THE CANDIDATES

Bishop Sweeny, in addressing the candidates, gave a most interesting and powerful discourse on the holy rite of confirmation. Whether or not one took the ancient meaning of Whit Sunday, that is in the primitive church, the newly baptised on that day appeared in white, or the other meaning of [illegible], the day for the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, there was no more appropriate season for confirmation than Whitsuntide.

Confirmation was not a spectacular service, nor the reciting of evening prayer, but it was a special demand to pour out on the candidates the gift of the Holy Ghost. It was that that made this rite a holy and serious thing. Of all services there were none more gladsome. It was one of joy and satisfaction. They were soldiers, he said, coming forth in the service of Christ.

The alternative phrase, "the laying on of hands," caused one to look back to long ago, to the first confirmation. His Lordship referred to passages in both the Old and New Testaments to show that the rite of confirmation was not merely an ordinance of the church, but that the Divine will was being carried out in accordance with His wishes. He traced the history of confirmation from the first administration of the rite at Ephesus, in A.D. 63, down through the fourth, fifth and sixth centuries to the time of reformation, when some rejected the episcopacy and lost the rite.

The Bishop said that candidates must consider what confirmation was and what it was not. It was not a mere empty form, but was full of strong determination and love stretching out into the world, into business and into society. He hoped they would rise to the dignity of the occasion, and in conclusion left with them the motto "Go Forward." Their lives should be given to the service of Christ, following in His paths of self-sacrifice, and setting their affections on things above, and not on things below.

While the hymn "Just As I Am, Without One Plea" was being sung, the candidates knelt before the Bishop and were confirmed.

After the service His Lordship met the candidates in the Sunday school and instructed them as to their preparation for their first communion.

STIRRING TIMES OF THE FENIAN RAID

Recalled by Anniversary of the Encounter at Ridgeway Yesterday—Col. H. C. Rogers, Lieut-Col. Miller Among Those Who Took Up Arms.

stirring times

Yesterday was the 43rd anniversary of one of the most notable events in the history of Canada and the Canadian Militia. It was on June 2nd 1866, that the encounter at Ridgeway took place and although none of the Peterborough volunteers took any part in the engagement it will no doubt be interesting to readers of the Review to know the names of the officers and privates who "rushed" to arms in June, 1866, for the defense of the province against the invasion of the Fenians.

LIQUOR CASE WAS DISMISSED

Charge Against Nathaniel Pearson of Buckhorn Was Not Proven

Nathaniel Pearson, of Buckhorn, was again discharged yesterday by Magistrate Edmison. He was charged with violating the liquor law on the same day as he had previously been tried for, but was discharged. The information was laid by License Inspector Stewart. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the defendant and Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., conducted the prosecution. Two witnesses, who, it was claimed by the prosecution, had secured liquor on Pearson's premises, were called, but while admitting they had drunk liquor in the hotel yard, both swore positively that they did not secure it from the defendant, and as a result the prosecution was unable to prove the charge.

MR. ROGER WILL JUNIOR JUDGE AT COBOURG

Instead of for the Rainy River District---Change Has Been Made at Ottawa

A change has been made by the Department of Justice at Ottawa, regarding the elevation to the bench of Mr. G. M. Roger, K.C., of Peterborough. A few days ago it was announced that Mr. Roger would be judge of the Rainy River district but word has been received here that Mr. Roger will be junior judge at Cobourg for the district of Northumberland and Durham instead of getting the position in Northern Ontario. The vacancy at Cobourg was created by the death of His Honor Judge Ketchum, who was a brother-in-law of Rev. Canon Davidson of this city.

Chatham council is asked to provide a grant of $20,000 to enlarge the Collegiate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Cheap Light

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—There has been several letters published recently complaining of high rates for electric lighting. The Power Companies will do just as other business interests get all they can, and the only remedy is competition. In this case private or outside competition would only be a repetion of what we have had, namely, cut rates for a short time, and then practically a combine and squeeze.

The ratepayers of Peterborough must resolve on having and owning electrical energy sufficient to do all lighting and also keep power rates at a reasonable figure. Surely it is possible to duplicate our success in the Waterworks Commission and have a power plant run on the same efficient basis.

There is one thing might be done in regard to the extension of franchise that would help light our city with little or no additional cost to the Power Co., give every customer a free light on his porch or verandah This would simplify street lighting especially on shaded streets.

Yours truly,
MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Electric Light Rates

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—My attention has just been drawn to a report of a meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee of our city Council, which was held on the evening of the 27th ult.

At this meeting Ald. Morrow took the position that all the merchants on George street were complaining of the high rates that now prevail for the electric lighting of their stores. I beg to assure Ald. Morrow that there is the sound of complaint among the merchants on George street, but I regret that his sense of hearing is so defective that he cannot catch the real sound of the complaint. Seeing that his sense of hearing is so defective I think it well to try his sense of seeing and I wish to ask him in his representative capacity as one of our city fathers, to read the following facts;

About seven years ago the merchants on George street paid for electric lighting about $6 per lamp less a discount of 20 per cent. At the present time the rate is only $3 per lamp net per annum. In other words the merchants on George street are paying according to the size of their stores from $60 to $120 per year less for light than they were seven years ago.

But how does the question of rental stand? About seven years ago the ordinary, well located store on George street rented for $400 to $600 per annum. The rental for these same stores has increased about 50 per cent. that is to say, the merchant who paid $400 seven years ago must now pay in the neighborhood of $600 per annum and the merchant who paid $600 seven years ago now pays over $900 per annum.

I hope that Ald. Morrow may now be assured that the cause of complaint among the merchants is really not against the lighting companies, but it is against the absentee landlords whom he so ably represents that causes the sound of complaint and one of these complaints is that for every dollar that the cost of lighting of store has been reduced by the lighting companies the rent has been correspondingly increased $3 by their absentee landlords.

Ald. Morrow is to be congratulated upon posing as the friend of the merchant as against the lighting companies, especially in view of the fact that there is not a city, town or hamlet in the Dominion of Canada that pays less for electric lighting either mercantile or domestic than the city of Peterborough.

Ald. Morrow is championing a cause against the lighting companies where there is no cause of complaint. There is no man in Peterborough who could make himself so popular as Ald. Morrow, with his usual force of character and farsightedness, if he were to staunchly advocate the reduction of rents to the merchants. Let me assure him that if the rents on George street were reduced the merchants could sell to the working men of Peterborough their necessities of life at a cheaper price

Yours truly,
A MERCHANT.

ARE PREPARING TO MAKE SEVERAL RADICAL CHANGES

Store of H. LeBrun and Company to be Refitted and Remodelled ---Big Sale to be Held

H. LeBrun & Company are to hold a mammoth clearing sale on account of several important changes which are to be made in this establishment. Forty thousand dollars' worth of clothing is to be disposed of. Particulars of the sale will be found in the advertising columns of the Review. After a long and highly successful record in the Clothing and Tailoring trade of this city, covering the past thirty-six years, the firm have decided on an important forward step in the conduct of their business in future. After the close of the summer season no more clothing will be made upon the premises. This step is taken because of the increasing cost in making up ordered work. However, arrangements will be made to take orders from sample clothes and have them made up for their patrons outside the city. This necessitates the closing out of their very large stock of clothes at and below cost, during the next two months.

As the store is to be refitted and remodelled on a new and modern plan, the whole stock of ready-made clothing and furnishings is also offered at clearance prices. The preparations for these events have been going on for some time, and as the stock consists of bright, new goods, and unsurpassable values, it will be to everyone's benefit to take advantage of these special inducements. The sale will start on Saturday of this week.

It is sufficient for some people that they drink anything called tea. Others prefer a standard brand like "Salada," which has a reputation for being good. The latter get more enjoyment out of life. In buying tea for the satisfaction you expect to get from its use, it will pay to purchase "Salada." Avoid anything "just as good." Imitations are invariably of poor quality. 67

BROWN DID MILE IN THE FAST TIME OF 7 MIN. 40 SEC

The walkers netted something towards their expenses at the benefit held last night, although the crowd that assembled was not as large as was expected. The 57th Regimental band was in attendance in full force and supplied a tasteful and well played programme.

There were several events pulled off, the most interesting being a mile against time by Geo. N. Brown, the new champion. Brown was caught for the mile at 7.40, which is by long odds the fastest it has ever been negotiated here.

Blake beat Richards in a fast 1-2 mile run, and Fenton won a two mile handicap from West. West was to get two laps on his man, but failed to lead by more than three-quarters of a lap. A sack race and a boys' mile run were the other events on the bill.

BLAKE WILL RUN IN TAMPA MARATHON ON JULY 5TH

Blake, the popular Syracuse negro athlete, showed good form in his running at the walkers' benefit at Brock street rink last night and he states he prefers this line of athletics to the heel and toe game. On July 5th, at Tampa, Fla., Blake will take part in a Marathon race being promoted by R. M. R. Nelson.

"Carjaval, the man with the bells," and Sheldon, the Cuban wonder, will be among those taking part. The race will be held on an outdoor track of course, as the weather in Florida at present is very hot.

From the communications Blake has about the race it would appear that the first prize will be a guaranteed sum of $437.50, with relatively generous divisions for the lower prizes.

BROWN WOULD LIKE TO MEET SIMPSON IN HANDICAP

George N. Brown, the champion walker, would like to arrange a relay race against Fred Simpson. The conditions of the race that Brown suggests are that he is to walk 10 miles while Simpson runs fifteen.

The Auburn pedestrian is willing to have the event take place in Peterborough or any other place that may be mutually agreed upon and for a division of the gate receipts in a percentage, concerning which the management and competitors may agree upon if the race is arranged.

A go between the boy wonder and Simpson should prove an interesting handicap and a good drawing card.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

FORFEITED GAMES

Rule 26, sec 8—If when two games are scheduled to be played in one afternoon the second game be not commenced within ten minutes of the time of the completion of the first game. The umpire of the first game shall be the time keeper.

Section 9—In case the umpire declares the game forfeited he shall transmit a written report thereof to the president of the league within 24 hours thereafter. However a failure on the part of the umpire to so notify the president shall not effect the validity of his award of the game by forfeiture.

THE "WALSH" FAMILY

There are 13 in the Walsh family, and Ed. of White Sox fame, is the greatest of the 13.

This is some distinction as every one of the 13 has some recognized ability as an athlete.

The Chicago pitcher is one of the most perfectly formed athletes in the major leagues. Some say he is the Beau Brummel of balldom. Base ball players in general will concede this honor to him. And Walsh is aware that he bears the distinction.

WHY.

Why can a ball team hit one pitcher at will and be unable to hit another pitcher?

Some might say "because the one the team hits is the man who pitches inferior ball."

The answer would not be true, for there have been pitchers who were easy to one club and hard to another club.

Ball players will tell you this but they can't explain it. They know they can beat one man with ease and they also know that they cannot beat another man.

The local baseball executive held a meeting last night, when general matters in connection with the local situation were discussed. One of the points on which stringent action will be taken in future is that of players' conduct on the field. Umpire baiting must be stopped, and the umpires will be instructed by the president to put men immediately out of the game when any kicking is indulged in. The antics of Burke, Shea and Garbutt on Saturday last here were ridiculous from a spectator's standpoint, and unruly players will be very closely watched. It's up to President Lyle, however, to get the proper kind of umpires. That goes without saying.—Brantford Expositor.

Toronto lost the first of the series to Rochester yesterday by 3—1. The Leafs made many misplays and these were responsible for their downfall.

Strathconas will practice again this evening at the Oval. A good turnout of players is requested.

The managers of the City League teams are making good use of the fine weather and nightly practices are being held. There is much rivalry among the teams and as it is in the proper spirit the games are sure to be interesting and exciting. Realizing the importance of any team winning their first game, the players are working faithfully, and will be in good shape for the opening games on Saturday.

The Strathconas will not be represented in the intermediate series, but it is the intention of the P.A.C. and West Ends to each keep a team in this league.

The admission fee to City League games of 15c. for gentlemen and 5c. for the younger fans should be popular. Ladies will be admitted free.

BROWN REPUTES THE CLAIMS OF HARRISON RE BENEFIT

Writes Letter of Explanation in Matter—Challenges Peterborough Ped for 10-Hour-Straight-Away Race for Anything from $100 to $1,000

Peterborough, June 3rd, 1909.

Sporting Editor,
Review:

Dear Sir,—In yesterday's issue of a local paper I saw a letter of complaint from Mr. Jim Harrison, the Peterborough walker.

I have no desire to stir up any strife or assume an unnecessarily unfriendly attitude toward Mr. Harrison, but I don't think it would be wise for my own protection to let Mr. Harrison's letter pass by without comment.

Mr. Harrison refused to make any reasonable agreement as to the division of the money that was to be derived from the benefit, and on behalf of the walkers sharing in the benefit I offered to split one-sixth with him, but no satisfactory settlement could be made. It was not the intention of the walkers to get ahead of Mr. Harrison by trying to deprive him of his just share, but he was so unreasonable and did so much kicking about the matter that we decided to hold the benefit without his support in any way, and also came to the conclusion that he was not entitled to any of the receipts after his obstinate and uncalled for stand.

Besides, he went around the city knocking the entertainment to all who would listen to him, but his actions in this respect are too contemptible for anything.

I just write this to let the public know that the visiting walkers had no intention of withholding from Mr. Harrison the proceeds coming to him if he had worked in harmony with the rest interested.

I hear that the Peterborough ped has mentioned that he could beat me in a ten hour race straightaway. I am prepared to meet him in an event of this kind for a purse or side bet of anything from $100.00 to $1,000.00.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. N. BROWN

FRED SIMPSON'S INDIAN WON THE FIVE MILE FOOT RACE AT DRIVING PARK TO-DAY

Billy Parker, Fred Simpson's new Hiawatha protege gives promise of developing into a fleet footed Indian. This afternoon at the Driving park, Parker beat H. Slighte and George Robertson in the five mile run under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club and carried off the honors in easy fashion. The track is half a mile in length and it therefore required ten circuits in the blistering sun to make the distance.

At the finish Parker crossed the line with a great burst of speed, before Slighte had rounded the last turn. The winner's time was caught by Timer C. Mailey at 27.12.

Robertson too the lead at the start and held it for the first mile. After that however, he offered no opposition and dropped out when he had gone three miles and a quarter.

The pace was evidently too hot for Slighte who quit when he had passed the starter for the fourth mile and apparently was weak. Charlie Thorpe who looked after him refreshed him up with some cold water applications with a handkerchief, and he resumed the race again with Thorpe running along with him. By this time Parker had obtained a big advantage and had the race well in hand. Slighte finished in good form.

GORDON CAMPBELL TAKES SECOND IN T. C. S. SPORTS

120-yard hurdles—Taylor, Macauley, 19 seconds.

High jump—Maynard, 5 ft. 1 in.—school record—2, Conyers.

Putting shot—Rhodes, 35 ft. 6 in.; 2, Conevera, 35 ft. 3 in.

The all-round cup was held last year by Campbell.

LONG SHOT WINS.

King Edward Gold Cup Won by Handbridge at Woodbine.

Toronto, June 3.—Over a track that was as near perfect as possible, a card of seven races was run off at the Woodbine yesterday afternoon. Four first choices, second and third choices and a long shot landed the long end of the purses. The feature event of the afternoon was the race for the King Edward Gold Cup, which was won by the top weight Handbridge, third choice in the betting. Direct was looked on as a good thing, but could never get up with the winner. Arondack after the race she ran against King James, naturally went to the barrier favorite. The race through the field was one of the finest seen over this course and was not won until the last jump, and then it was a hard drive and a close finish.

First race, purse $500, 4-year-olds and up, selling, 6 furlongs—Dareington, 1; Security, 2; St. Elmwood, 3. Time, 1.14 1-5.

Second race, purse $500, 2-year-olds, Canadian bred, 5 furlongs—St. Cecilia, 1; Frolic, 2; Stay Cannie, 3. Time, 1.04 3-5.

Third race, purse $500, 3-year-olds and up, 1.1-16 miles—Juggler, 1; Ellicott, 2; Siskin, 3. Time, 1.48.

Fourth race, King Edward Hotel Gold Cup, $1,500, 3-year-olds and up, 1 1-4 miles—Handbridge, 1; Direct, 2; Amri, 3. Time 2.08 2-5.

Fifth race, Aintree Steeplechase Handicap, purse $600, 4-year-olds and up, about 2 miles—Waterway, 1; Thistledale, 2; Byzantine, 3. Time, 4.09.

Sixth race, purse $500, maiden 3-year-olds and up, selling, 1 mile and 70 yards—Croydon, 1; Gold Front, 2; Charivari, 3. Time, 1.49 3-5.

Seventh race, purse $500, 4-year-olds and up, selling, 6 furlongs—Salvolatile, 1; Topsy Robinson, 2; Little Osage, 3. Time, 1.14 1-5.

Constables were busy at the Woodbine from two till six o'clock yesterday afternon serving summonses upon bookmakers and their assistants. Thirty-four were served and twenty more of the blue documents will be presented to-day. The cause of complaint against all is that they do not keep moving.

Counting Farm Animals.

The number of animals on the farms of the United States on Jan. 1, according to a report issued by the department of agriculture, shows an increase compared with the previous year, with two exceptions—swine and cattle other than milk cows. The average price of milk cows shows an increased value of $1.70 per head, and sheep show a decreased value of 45 cents per 100 pounds and swine an increase of 50 cents. Comparisons of this year with last year show the following changes: Horses increased 648,000 head, mules increased 184,000, milk cows 526,000, other cattle decreased 694,000, sheep increased 1,498,000, and swine decreased 1,937,000.

Canada's Bison Herds.

Mr. Howard Douglas, Commissioner of Dominion Parks, who knows as much about buffaloes as any man in Canada, states there are now in the world about 2,000 bison, or buffaloes, as the animals are commonly called. Of this total the Canadian Government own 1,200, which are distributed among the great western parks, where they are living in comfort and increasing at a normal rate.

It will be remembered that last spring 340 buffaloes were bought from the Pablo ranch in Montana and removed to Elk Island Park, near Lamont, about 40 miles east of Edmonton. Not an adult of the herd has died. Sixty of the calves born during the year have lived, so that the Elk Island herd now numbers 400.

There are still 300 buffaloes at the Pablo ranch to be transferred to Canadian park reservations this coming spring. They are to be taken to a park on the Battle River on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway, about 120 miles this side of Edmonton. This park reserve, known as Buffalo Park, contains 110,000 acres, all of which is enclosed with strong iron fences, sufficient to prevent the buffaloes escaping.

The buffaloes to be removed in the spring are to be rounded up, and then taken one by one in wagon-cages to the nearest railway station. Fifty wagon-cages will be used and it is thought the whole herd of 300 can be collected and hauled to the railway and carred within two weeks. Seventy-five of the buffaloes now in the Rocky Mountain Park at Banff are to be removed to Buffalo Park, as the accommodation at Banff is too limited. Mr Douglas now feels sure that the buffalo in Canada will never become extinct, thanks to the efforts of the Canadian Government, and especially of the Department of the Interior, presided over by Hon. Frank Oliver.

THE VETERINARY.

An abundance of sunlight in the cow stables so arranged that it may reach every part of the stable is one of the best preventives of disease. When possible the cow stables should be separate from the barn in order to secure proper ventilation and the necessary sunlight which it is impossible to obtain in any other way.

Cure For Mange.

Mange is a distressing affection that should never be permitted to retain a place on any farm, as it is easily cured. Rub on oil of tar, one ounce, and whale oil, two ounces, or one-half pound each of tar and sulphur and one pound each of soap and alcohol. In all cases boil all blankets and treat with a strong solution of caustic potash all woodwork, harness, brushes, combs and whatever is possibly infested with the germs of mange.

Blood Purifier For Horses.

A good blood purifier for a horse that is run down is an ounce of hyposulphite of soda twice a day. Feed the horse well. Another remedy is two ounces each of powdered copperas, ginger, saltpeter and fenugreek and half a pound of ground gentian. Mix and give a teaspoonful in each feed.

Scours In Calves.

There is no surer cause of scours than dirty feed pails. Be scrupulously clean as to pails, troughs and the food used in feeding young calves. It will save a lot of the trouble that comes with carrying calves through the scours.

Removal of Warts.

Warts on calves and other young stock are nothing more or less than skin tumors, often due to overstimulation of the parts, says a veterinarian. You can twist them off with your thumb and fingers, after which you may apply tincture iodine to the parts for two or three days in succession. Then keep the parts pliable by rubbing with sweet hog's lard occasionally.

THRILLING LIVES

MORE BRIDGE MAN STORIES

BY WILLIAM ALLEN JOHNSTON.

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

NEW YORK, Saturday.

THE foreman on the Brooklyn side of the Manhattan Bridge was knitting his brows over a blue print one busy Monday morning when the door of his shack office burst open and a boy with a white, scared face came pitching in.

"A man's gone down!" he panted.

"What?" snapped the foreman.

"Fallen," said the boy. He pointed at the bridge overhead. The foreman jammed on his hat, rushed out, looked up for an instant to a point of the lofty steel structure where a knot of men stood and then ran over to the masonry yard directly underneath.

He saw the splintered ends of a plank, broken clean in two, and two workmen bending over a body which now stiffened and lengthened and then relaxed in death.

"Jack McShane!" said a workman and crossed himself. "He's gone."

"Poor Jack!" echoed the other softly, "and him a good boy—the best ever."

"Pick him up!" ordered the foreman. "Easy, boys." He indicated a pile of gunnysacks and hurried back to his telephone.

In a moment the bell was tinkling on the New York side, but the news had already reached there, carried on swiftest wings from section to section. Almost instantly every varied bit of work had ceased.

Away up on the majestic towers squads of men—they look like black dots from a ferryboat—were silently slipping into their jackets. Men in bosun's chairs were slowly pulling themselves up. "Travelers" stopped and workmen stepped off, swinging the stiff leg derricks in after them and making fast the dangling hooks. Soon there was a scattering procession of tiny figures over the cable foot paths—now up over the towers, now down again, and on steadily to the Brooklyn shore.

No Wife to Mourn.

They gathered in the masonry yard in little groups and talked of Jack McShane long after the ambulance had gone. He was unmarried; and "that's good," said an older man soberly. "There's no wife and childer to cry." Did he have a mother? Oh, sure! He went home for Christmas and came back talking about her. It was to her that he sent his savings. He didn't drink or smoke. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war—a good soldier and a good bridgeman. "He was well thought of," said every man gravely, and that is the highest praise one bridgeman gives another. It means loyalty, fairness, unselfishness. Some bridgemen who don't live as clean as Jack McShane did get the same meed of praise.

There was no more work that day among the ironworkers—out of honor to the dead, however, and not for the sentimental reason sometimes given that the men were superstitious and afraid. There was but one mention of "Blue Monday," and that came from a man with a weak face and imaginative eyes.

"It's a blue Monday," he said darkly. "This very morning Jack was ailing, and he says to me"——

He stopped as several turned and sneered at him. "Cut it out," said one. "Jack was feelin' fine—whistlin' when he fell. I heard him."

"Shut off that talk," snapped the foreman. "Forget the Blue Monday, Black Friday and the thirteen business and you'll all be better off."

Next day two hundred bridgemen lined up in the street outside the masonry yard. They were dressed in black and their faces were solemn and shining clean. A hearse rattled down out of a side street and the procession moved away. That was the last of Jack McShane, bridgeman.

Down in Pennsylvania in a little railroad town an old woman is mourning him, but the big bridge does not miss him. But for that lapse of one day the work went on as before.

Death is only an incident in the bridgeman's life. He looks upon it as a regular toll upon his trade. He never speaks of it—except as an incident.

"Did any one see him fall?" I asked.

Yes, several did. He was working alongside a heavy iron pipe, right at the point of it, where a large hose is fitted by means of a brass coupling. The pipe brings up compressed air from the big compressor engines below, distributing it through the hose connections to the pneumatic hammers and for other power purposes. The hose burst—almost in McShane's face—and the air's full force of two hundred and sixty pounds to the square inch whisked him off his feet like a feather—off and down over the bridge.

He kept his wits, as a bridgeman will under all circumstances, and he made quick and desperate attempts to save himself. His hand, clutching wildly, just caught the bottom flange of the end beam, and for an instant he swung there in midair, his feet dangling down. That finger grip was his last hold on life. His body swung wildly with the momentum of his fall up and under the trestle. His fingers slipped till only the tips were doggedly clinging to the rough iron. He swung his other hand desperately for the inner flange, missed it, and without an audible outcry shot straight down to the ground, one hundred and twenty odd feet below.

And They Turned Their Heads.

This much his companions saw and then they turned their heads; nor did they even look down. Death inspires no curiosity among bridgemen.

"I heard him hit," said one young fellow, wincing a little with the memory of it. "He made an awful racket; went clean through a three inch plank like it was paper."

Another man got McShane's job and there were a dozen more after it—not young men for whom a dangerous calling holds out a strong fascination nor dull witted men too dense to know danger, but bridgemen, true and tried, experienced men who know that their trade is the closest of all daily alliances with death, daring and hardship. They know full well that the risk isn't worth the wage, but it's their way of earning a wage, and that wage is necessary.

"I'd quit if I could," said one idle man, "but it's my trade. What else can I do? I started in as a boy—followed a bridge gang from my home in Montana. I liked the wild, free life, the dare of it, and the wages of one week's work were more than I could earn in a month on a ranch. I wanted to see the world, too.

"Well, I've seen it—all the way to the Kimberley Mines, in South Africa. I'm tired of that now, and of the daring, too." He plunged his hands deep down in his pockets with a melancholy sigh. "Wish I could settle down!" he said wistfully.

"Why don't you?" I asked; and thereupon heard the story of a bridgeman who has found the right girl and would marry her if religion did not stand in his way.

"She has one religion and I another," said he, "and she cares as much for hers as I do for mine. I don't care so much myself—I'd give in on that score—but I'm thinking of the children."

As we talked a big beam went sailing up from the yard with a bridgeman "riding" it. He stood erect and fearless upon the swaying iron and made a fine, brave figure there in midair. A girl in a factory evidently thought so, for she stood at a window waving gayly.

The man in the air took a piece of chalk from his pocket and made a huge figure "8" upon the black iron. "He's making an engagement," explained the Montana man. "Wants to meet her at eight o'clock. See, she nods her head. Yes, she is saying.

"Flirting under difficulties, isn't it?" he went on seriously. "Well, that's the way with all of us.

"Once when we were building the Hoffman House I got acquainted with a girl in the eighth story of an apartment house right adjoining our building. Only knew her for a few days, 'cause we were running up two stories a week.

"When I travelled past her window—too far to talk back—she offered to introduce me to her friend on the twelfth story. Only knew her a few days too. Last girl I met was one on the roof. She's the girl—the one girl—the girl I been telling you about."

He looked lugubrious again. "I don't know as a bridgeman ought to marry, anyway. It's pretty hard on a girl to be at home worrying about you all day long, and I've been pretty unlucky so far."

"You've had accidents?"

He nodded soberly. "Every bridgeman gets hammered up—disabled, many of them.

"Six years ago I was working on the top chord of a bridge in Canada. There was a Canadian foreman on one side and an American on the other, and there was sharp rivalry on between the two of them. They got 'running' each other.

"The work grew faster every day, and toward the end there was a wild rush of it—derricks creaking, engines snorting, cables swinging and us 'bulling' iron like a lot of maniacs—yelling, cursing and laughing. The rattle of iron made your ears ache. It was a great show, all right—you can't beat it—but it was too exciting, too noisy to hear orders. It don't pay to rush iron like that.

"The cables were hoisting a big beam up from a scow in the river and I was waiting for it, wrench in one hand, the other hand holding on to a strut. It was a gusty day and they lifted her too high. One end swung wild and in a second would have caught a man in the back and knocked him off and into the river, eighty feet down. I yelled at him and he ducked. It just knocked his hat off.

"I ought to have been watching my own end, but I wasn't—not in time. All I saw was a sudden black shadow before me, and 'clang!' went the beam against the strut. My hand was between, but it rang just as loud. When I looked down the hand was half gone—no fingers left."

The bridgeman slowly extricated his left hand from a deep pocket. It was cut off clean at the knuckles. "You didn't notice it, did you?" he asked simply. "I got a habit of keeping my hands in my pockets—now. They don't like one handed men—till I get the job and then they see I'm as good as ever. I knew a one legged bridgeman in Pennsylvania who had us all beat.

"There's a thousand ways to get hurt," he continued. "Seems like you can't watch 'em all. Once a 'nigger head'—a winding wrench, you know—broke and the cable snapped. The end swung like a whip lash and smashed a scantling. Just as I raised my head I got a splinter as big as your arm right in the"—— The man from Montana opened his mouth and disclosed a row of gold teeth below and a bridge on the upper jaw. "Broke my jaw, too," he added, laconically, "and drove it back against the base of my brain. I laid in a hospital two weeks with a lop sided feeling in my head."

The recountal began to incite an almost morbid interest. "Anything more?" I asked.

"Riveting," said he. "That's bad. Most every man's got a rivet burn.

"You know they throw these rivets a long distance sometimes. You catch them in a pail and there's quite a knack in it. Catch them full on the bottom of the pail and they'll bounce out. You must let them land on the side and then juggle them till the momentum is gone.

"Well, one day I had gauntlets on and a rivet—white hot it was—jumped out of the pail and into the top of the gauntlet." An arm was bared and there on the wrist was an ugly red scar, three inches long and a good fraction of an inch deep. It must have gone almost to the bone. "It did," said the bridgeman.

"I got a worse one on my ankle. You might as well see that, too." This scar looked like a gouge.

"I was riveting in a 'pocket.' That's a square hole in the iron work of a bridge, about waist high and so small that it's hard to work in it. I had unlaced my shoes to make my ankles more supple and the rivet fell in the uppers of one shoe. I had to get out of the 'pocket' and rip off my shoe to get it out. That's why it burned so deep."

"Anything more?"

"Oh, sure. Bones broken. That time my hand was clipped I fell, you know. Hit on the way down. Broke three ribs and a leg. They had boats in the river waiting to pick us up. That was in the Red River of the North.

"Up at Sault Sainte Marie I fell a hundred and eighty feet."

"One hundred and eighty feet?"

"Sure, but I broke my fall—on crosspieces. We were building a big water tower of steel, two hundred feet high and eighteen across. There was an intake in the lake and the tower was to furnish hydraulic power for the steel plant there.

"I was buckling on one of the last iron belts when a nut broke. I had all my weight on the wrench and when the nut snapped I went straight over and down inside of the tower.

Saved by the Crosspieces.

"The crosspieces saved my life. They had been left at intervals of twenty feet or so—just slender scantling for the men to stand on. They didn't stop my fall, but they broke it." Imagine breaking a fall by crashing through or bouncing off at least eight wooden platforms, and being thankful for such a means of escape!

"I broke the first scantling," continued the bridgeman stolidly, "and the second. Then I don't remember much except a sort of dot-and-dash descent—now a bump and then a fall. I was too dazed, I guess, to hold on to the crosspieces when I struck them. I tried to. When I reached bottom I was half covered with broken scantling."

One of the idle group corroborated the testimony gravely. "You was all in," said he, "when we got you up."

"Conscious?"

"Yes. He was shaking like a leaf. Had to rig up a set of pulley blocks to lift him out. I remember what a noise he made when he went down."

The noon hour whistles blew and the idle men lined up to "speak" the foreman. Small wriggling processions of men hastening down appeared on the great massive sides of the anchorage piers. A faint clatter of pneumatic hammers died away in the distance. Soon the great red structure was emptied of its human complement and the masonry yard was filled with little groups. A gang of men sat down and opened their dinner pails on the very spot where "Jack" McShane had fallen.

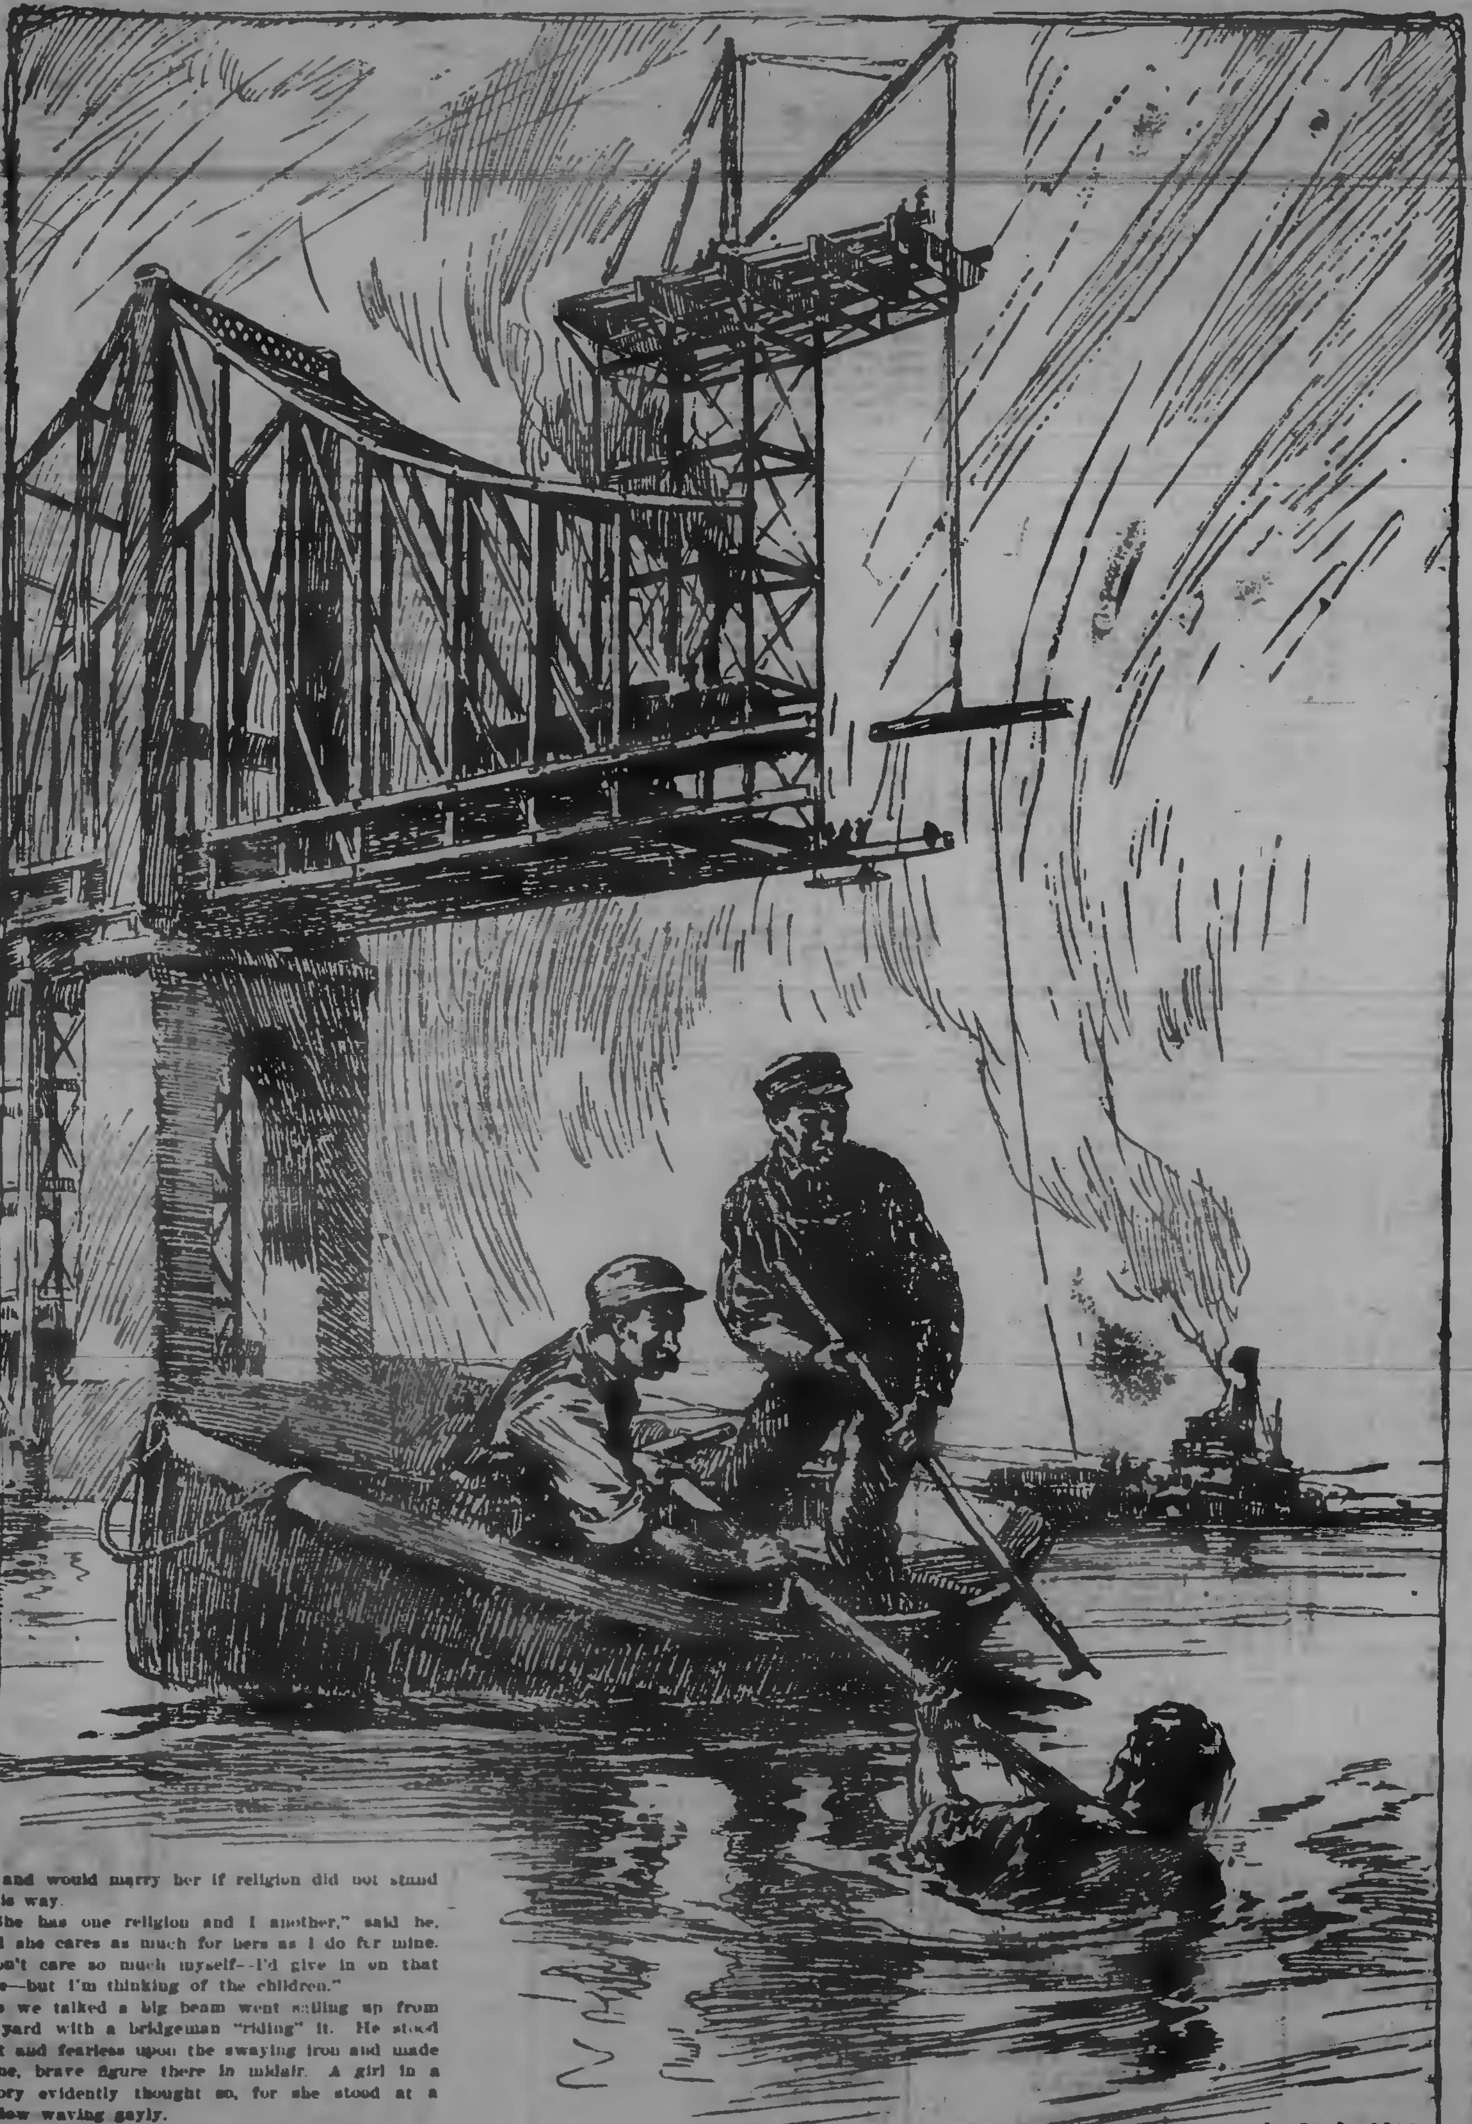
The towering bridge, spanning a distance of over three-quarters of a mile from one bulky anchorage to another, looks almost elemental in its might and main. The little army of humans who put it up seem very insignificant in comparison. Indeed, when the whistles blow again and they are aloft they will be utterly lost in the vastness of the structure. The bridge working and the bridge idle look quite the same; and yet the little army built it. A mighty struggle it is. No wonder the ranks are thinned now and then; no wonder the iron gets its regular human toll.

But there's the waiting squad of idle men ready to fill the vacancies. Some days later as I passed the masonry yard I saw the Montana man, dinner pail in hand. There was a new light in his eyes—the confident light of a man at work again—and, yes, another light, too.

"I guess I'm going to do that," he yelled with a laugh.

"What?"

"Settle down."



TH[illegible]ATS IN THE RIVER WAITING TO PICK US UP.

Burial of British Seamen Here.

BY a graceful act of international courtesy the United States Army has recently given honored sepulture to the bones of a brave and distinguished party of British seamen, who lost their lives in a winter storm at Sandy Hook in 1783, soon after the American Army had won independence for the colonies after a prolonged and bitter struggle with Great Britain. The United States Army has further expressed officially the intention to erect an appropriate monument above the bodies of these long dead heroes of the English Navy, and Mr. Bryce, the famous historian and Ambassador from the Court of St. James to the United States, has expressed his country's appreciation of the graceful act.

It was just about one year ago that some workmen who were making excavations for government work within the reservation of Fort Hancock, at Sandy Hook, uncovered the bones of fourteen men, all apparently interred many years ago in the sands of the beach. There was much speculation for a time as to the solution of the riddle. Some persons opined that these were the bones of soldiers or prisoners who had died during the Revolutionary War. Others suggested that they were, perhaps, the remains of the victims of pirates—the gruesome relics of some long forgotten tragedy of the sea.

The skeletons were gathered up respectfully and turned over with military regularity to the custody of the Quartermaster's Department of the United States Army. Then began an investigation, conducted with the usual military red tape, but, after all, with the customary directness of army affairs. The Rev. Charles H. Wells, a gentleman with a taste for antique things, wrote a letter in which he suggested that the solution of the puzzle might well be found in the inscription on a mural tablet in the sacristy of Trinity Church, which, in the archaic orthography of more than a century ago, was found to read as follows:—

"At Sandy Hook lye interred the bones of the onourable Hamilton Douglas Hallyburton, son of Sholto Charls, Earl of Norton, and heir of the ancient family of Hallyburton, of Pitcurr, in Scotland, who perished on the cost with twelve more young gentlemen and one common seaman, in the spirited discharge of duty, on the 30th or 31st of December, 1783.

"Born on the 10th of October, 1763, a youth who, in contempt of hardship or danger, possessed of an ample fortune, served seven years in the British Navy, with a manly courage and deserved a better fate. This plain monumental stone is erected by his unhappy mother, Katherine, Countess Dowager of Norton, to his dear memory and that of his unfortunate companions:—

"James Champion, Lieutenant of Marines; Alexander Johnston, George Paddy, Robert Haywood, Midshipman; Charles Gascoigne, Andrew Hamilton, William Scott, David Heddle, William Tomlinson, William Spry, John McChain, Robert Wood, young gentlemen;

"George Towers, common seaman;

"Cast away, all found dead and frozen and buried in one grave."

Investigation by the military authorities of the Department of the East proved that the solution suggested by the Rev. Dr. Wells was correct. Then the question arose what should be done with the bones of the gallant heir of the Earl of Norton, who had died a hero's death when barely twenty years old, and with the remains of his plucky associates, who had found, with him, untimely graves in the frozen sands of Sandy Hook. The whole story was finally laid before the War Department, in Washington, in the form of official correspondence, and a few days ago there came to General Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, with headquarters at Governor's Island, the various documents in the case, together with this memorandum, dated from the office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., and subscribed by J. B. Aleshire, Quartermaster General, U. S. A.:—

"Respectfully returned to the Chief of Artillery, with the information that the remains within referred to have been reinterred in grave No. [illegible], Cypress Hills National Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. HAVE BEEN FIFTEEN FIRE ALARMS FOR MONTH OF MAY

During the past month there have been fifteen fire alarms sent to the fire station, which is a high average. The announcement for the month was handed the Review to-day by Chief Howard.

Three calls were for chimney fires, one was for an underwriters' test, ordered by the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and the rest were for blazes of varying consequence.

The damage for the month is estimated at $183.10. The most serious fire was at the residence of Mr. Hazen Ritchie, Hunter street, and a conflagration that threatened to do serious damage broke out in the cellar of the Beehive, George street, as the result of a firecracker exploding underneath the grate on the pavement during the 24th of May festivities.

HOW BURGLARS WASTE THEIR TIME

Entered Newspaper Office at Galt Twice Within Two Weeks

Some individual who evidently labors under the impression that there are barrels of money in the newspaper business, has twice broken into the Reformer office in the past two weeks. The first offence was committed during the night of May 18th, when all the cash in the business office, including a couple of employees' pay envelopes, was taken, nothing else being disturbed.

The second attempt was made Saturday night last, but the thief in this case secured only a few coppers. It is believed that in both cases entrance was effected through the factory building south of the Reformer building, a door from which leads into the pressroom. The door between the pressroom was unlocked on the occasion of the thief's first visit, but has been well bolted since. This did not stop the thief, however, a pane of glass being smashed out of the partition and the bolt drawn. No attempt was made to break into the safe and the burglar left absolutely no clue by which he could be traced, nothing but money being taken.—Galt Reformer.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Lawn social on Tuesday evening, June 15th.

Summer conference at Muskoka, on June 26th to July 5th.

The Association members are making arrangements for a lawn social to be held on Tuesday, June 15th and would ask every member and friend of the Association to keep this date free as a special effort is being made to make this lawn party a great success. The evening will be free for all to enjoy. Farther particulars will be given from day to day.

We trust that many of our members are thinking much these perfect June days of the summer conference to be held on beautiful Lake Joseph, Muskoka, from June 26th to July 5th. This region of lakes, bays and islands is too well known as a delightful place of holiday resort to need describing. Able speakers from the United States as well as from Canada, will give inspiring addresses, and lead in the discussions of the different phases of association work.

There will also be daily Bible and mission study classes. The afternoons will be free for arranged yachting trips through the lakes, bathing tennis and other sports.

Already a number have signified their intention of attending. Miss McCalla will be glad to hear from others who would like to join the Peterborough delegation. The railways offer reduced rates, and also the Elgin House, Lake Joseph, have given us very generous rates.

ST. MARK'S, OTONABEE

The Right Rev. Dr. Sweeny, Lord Bishop of Toronto, accompanied by Rev. Canon Davidson, Dr. Langfeldt, and Mr. G. L. Hay, Rectors Warden, paid an official visit to St. Mark's church, Otonabee, on Wednesday, June 2nd. Mr J. R. Stratton, M.P., very kindly had his automobile placed at the disposal of His Lordship for the day. A goodly number of parishioners were present to extend to the Bishop a hearty welcome and express their loyalty to him. The Bishop appreciated the cordiality with which he was received very much, and in his remarks drew very many valuable lessons from the life and work of a farmer as relating to the Kingdom of God. After having visited St. Mark's the party went to Lakefield, visiting St. John's church and the Grove Preparatory School, returning in time for the confirmation service at St. Luke's.

PRINCE RUPERT TOWNSITE LOTS

Latest advice received at the General Offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, Montreal, is to the effect that during the sales on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of lots of townsite of Prince Rupert—Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, over one thousand lots have been sold, netting $1,000,000. The result is most gratifying, as the majority of sales were greatly in excess of the up-set prices.

OF INTEREST

CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTERY

Three candidates for license at the annual meeting of the New York Presbytery, in that city, practically denied the divinity of Christ, and doubted the Confession of Faith. While tears coursed down the cheeks of some ministers of the old-fashioned faith, John S Steen, Princeton graduate, of athletic build and open, frank countenance, told the examining board, of which Dr. George Alexander was moderator, he did not believe original sin had anything to do with Adam or the Garden of Eden; that Christ was not an educated man; that He did not raise Lazarus from the dead, and that he (Steen) did not believe that Christ rose in the body from the grave.

Steen gave unsatisfactory replies when asked if he believed in the story of creation and the translation of some Old Testament prophets direct from earth to heaven. The examiners were perplexed with the answers, but the shock they felt spiritually when Steen said he believed Christ could have raised persons from the dead but never took advantage of the opportunity, struck them dumb, for there was silence in the auditorium for almost five minutes.

Imagining their ears had deceived them, the Rev. John T. Wilds, Dr. Alexander and Dr. Jesse F. Forbes asked Steen if he believed Christ to be all the evangelists and apostles had recorded of him and when he evaded a direct answer by saying he did not believe Christ to have been an educated man there were more ministerial gasps. When Steene said that he believed that Christ rose from the dead in a spiritual sense only he was dismissed to the anteroom with two other candidates, Archibald Black and George Ashmore Fitch, who had doubts also on questions that affected the authenticity of the Bible. Then the assembled presbytery closed doors and windows and discussed the merits and demerits of the candidates and what should be done with them.

Some of the ministers pleaded for consideration on the ground that answers given before a large body of ministers were not always construed aright. Dr. Wilds said a progressive young preacher might have ideas of his own on Adam and Eve, and even on the divinity and acts of Christ that would have a different meaning when brought forth in a sermon or discourse, but which as plain answers to plain questions were too often apt to be misconstrued.

Another minister, who declared he never saw a more shameless examination by seminary students, said "scepticism is the keynote of to-day, and we must look to our religious seminaries and begin examining our professors and scrutinizing our text books, or the Confession of Faith will fall to pieces."

After a stormy debate which resulted, Steen, Black and Fitch were rejected as to their views on theology and the sacrament, and a committee was appointed to examine them further in private as to what they really did believe. The three candidates were Union Theological Seminarians. One candidate—Luigi Mocrdano—subscribed to the beliefs of the church and was licensed.

THE TENOR AND THE TONSILS

There is news that, so far as mortal physician can see, the voice of Caruso is saved. In all the great capitals where grand opera is sung this is a local item of joyful importance. Behind the tidings is a story of tonsils and the surgeon which has been told many times for patients of less distinction than the Metropolitan's first tenor.

In some respects the tonsils, whether or not they be those of a great singer, are mysteries. They exist. They can call attention to themselves as effectively as can any vermiform appendix, given sufficient provocation. And like that other organ they have no present essential use which doctors can define. One parts with them readily, and, if the surgeon be skilled, with a pronounced minimum of pain.

In giving up his tonsils the Caruso makes a small sacrifice. Accounts relative to the tenor tones which he may get back have been stated in terms of many dollars, together with world fame. A transaction is promised here in striking illustration of how to get a great deal of something for nothing—if one may for purely rhetorical purposes neglect the surgeon's fee.

METHODISTS CONDEMN SEVERE EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES

At London Conference Objection is Forcibly Taken to Methods of Probing Views of Young Ministers—New President Comes Out for Old Biblical Beliefs—Various Conferences Elect Officers.

London, Ont., June 4.—A warm debate on the "Higher Criticism" looks inevitable in London Conference, despite the fact that yesterday morning they tried to avoid it by voting down a resolution to subject all candidates for ordination to an examination as to their theological soundness.

Things promised to be peaceful in this regard until Rev. A. K. Birks, pastor of Askin street church, here, in assuming the office of president, to which he was elected yesterday, made some very pointed remarks on the subject. He believed in the old Bible, the whole Bible. He did not cut out any eleventh chapters and was not going to transfer his allegiance to the doctrines that had so prospered the Methodist Church to follow the standards of any man who happened to come to the country.

As the conference is said to be pretty evenly divided on the issue, several of his electors were much incensed at the president's remarks, and it is certain they will talk back when they get an opportunity.

In the discussion yesterday morning, after Rev. J. S. Cooke had moved that a commission be appointed to examine into the theological views of the young men, Rev. J. F. Knight, who two years ago went through a severe examination before the conference at Goderich, challenged Dr. Gundy, who had conducted the examination on that occasion, to answer his own question: "What is your own definition of God?"

"If any man here could answer that question," said Mr. Knight, "I would like to hear it. I went to my circuit after my examination under a strong suspicion of heresy, and I protest that you have no right to impose such a reflection on these men. Surely we can believe in the sincerity of such men as Chancellor Burwash and Dr. Wallace and Prof. Bowles, when they declare the orthodoxy of these young men."

Rev. G. F. Salton of Stratford supported him, saying:

"It is absolutely unfair to these young men to put them into a sweatbox when they are not expecting it."

A motion by Rev. G. N. Hazen to censor the press reports of the congress was rejected.

Montreal Methodist Conference.

Pembroke, Ont., June 4.—The ministerial session of the Montreal Methodist Conference closed yesterday afternoon, without any reference having been made in any way to the Dr. Workman case or without any matter of a controversial nature being discussed.

Rev. Dr. Chown, who presided at the public meeting, came out flatfooted on the rivalry between the Methodist and Presbyterian Church. One had to recognize, he said, that the spirit displayed was not one of cooperation, but of competition and rivalry. For instance to Calabogie, near Pembroke, Presbyterians and Methodists each had a man there. Neither was doing much as the field was too small for both, though it could support one. This was not a sane or business way of doing things. Cooperation was necessary to secure results.

Rev. J. W. Smith In Guelph.

Brantford, June 4.—Rev. J. W. Smith, Guelph, who is slated for College avenue Church, Hamilton, was yesterday elected president of Hamilton Conference on the first ballot, securing 175 votes out of 260. C. T. Bennett was elected secretary, and A. T. Terryberry, assistant.

The laymen's proposal to extend evangelization of the church by holding more open air meetings in public places was voted down.

BODY OF MAN IS FOUND IN RIVER

Gruesome Discovery of Mr. James Latimer a Few Miles Below the City—Must Have Been Drowned Last Winter.

The body of a middle-aged man was noticed floating in the Otonabee river last evening by Mr. James Latimer, who resides on the Monaghan shore of the river about five miles below the city. Mr. Latimer was at the water's edge and noticed the body floating in the water a few feet from the shore. He got a boat and brought the body to the shore and tied it there. This morning he notified Coroner Dr. Gray of Peterborough who sent High County Constable Cochrane to make an investigation. Mr. Cochrane went down this morning and word was received from him this afternoon that the body was that of a middle-aged man and he had apparently been drowned last winter as the hands were encased in mittens and on the body were two thick coats. There were rubbers over the shoes. A silver watch was found on the body, also a pocketbook and some papers. These are so wet, however, that it was impossible to look them over. They would have fallen to pieces if they had been handled. They were put to dry in order that they may be of some value in identifying the remains.

The body is badly decayed.

As no one has been reported missing during the past year there is much mystery about the identity of the person who apparently perished in the water.

Dr. Gray is going down this evening to conduct an investigation.

Rogers, of Millbrook; Lay Assistant Secretary, J. J. Mason, Mayor of Bowmanville; Journal Secretary, Rev. W. E. Sexsmith, of Bowmanville; Statistical Secretary, Rev. A. R. Delve, of Blackstock. After the opening of the afternoon session, Rev. Russell Garrett, of Wellington, who had been for some years pastor of the Friends' Church, was at his request received into the conference and made a member. Rev. Prof. Reynar, of Victoria College, presented the annual report of the institution, showing that nearly 600 students had attended during the past year. A motion of confidence in the college, moved by Rev. G. W. McCall, B.A., B.D., seconded by H. C. McMullen, of Picton, was unanimously adopted.

Previous to the adjournment of the afternoon session Sir M. Bowell, ex-Premier of the Dominion, and Mayor Marsh, of this city, were introduced to the conference by the president. Sir Mackenzie, in a few, well chosen remarks, extended a welcome to the members of the conference. Mayor Marsh officially extended a hearty welcome to the city on behalf of the citizens of Belleville.

In the evening the Sunday School and Epworth League anniversary was held. Mr. Wm. Johnson, of this city, was chairman, and addresses of a practical and interesting nature were given by the Revs. T. Bartlett, of Toronto, General Secretary of the Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues, and F. R. Foley, president of the Conference Epworth Leagues.

The president-elect of the conference has been the pastor of a number of circuits, and has also been honored with position in the conference, such as assistant secretary, financial secretary, and twice a member of the General Conference.

CAPITALISTS WILL VISIT HANSON SILVER MINES

A party of capitalists who are residents of Peterborough and neighboring towns purpose leaving Tuesday to visit the silver property of the Hanson Consolidated Silver Mines at Port Arthur. Any person who has not heard of this may obtain further information in regard to the time of leaving and the rates from the head office for Peterborough and Victoria counties at the offices of R. A. Elliott and Co. Water St.

The startling reports that have been printed from time to time in the Port Arthur Evening Chronicle setting forth the valuable ore that has been found on this property have set minds of capitalists in various parts of the country seriously thinking in regard to the rich minerals that are in this district. Recent discoveries at 140 foot level have uncovered a vein 1000 feet long, so rich in silver that fifty per cent can be shipped to the smelter without milling.

While Cobalt and Gowganda districts are endeavoring to attract attention, Thunder Bay district from reports of expert mining engineers, show clearly that silver ore is to be found there that will equal or surpass that found in those districts.

Prospective buyers should make an effort to accompany the party as no doubt large blocks of stock will be taken up before it returns.

The Toys Awake

This great spectacular production will be given in the Opera House for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society, Monday and Tuesday nights. Over 250 young people and children of Peterborough will take part. The press in cities where it has been given have very flattering reports of Toys Awake. From St. Thomas Times—"When the Toys Awake here last night there was an audience present that filled the house to its utmost capacity. It is said that hundreds were turned away. "The Toys Awake" is a children's entertainment of a spectacular and mythical nature, and as such is an attractive production. Interest was maintained every minute from the rise of the curtain upon the fairies until the final tableau in the last act." Reserve seat plan now open.

DAUGHTER OF DEAD WOMAN COMFORTS ALLEGED SLAYER

Bay City, Mich., June 3.—That Mrs. Harry Tierney, only surviving child of Mrs. Caryeon, entertains no such feeling against Roland Rich, her nephew, as might be expected did she believe the young man really guilty of taking the life of her mother would seem to be indicated by a little episode that occurred during the police court examination of young Rich yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Tierney came into the court room ten minutes after court was called to order. She was escorted by her husband and the prosecutor and his assistant, James L. McCormick. She advanced to a position in the witness stand in front of Justice Kelly.

The court room was packed beyond the degree of density ever before seen in a court room in this city. The accused had been brought in through a window. Hundreds of eyes were fixed on her and on the defendant. Rich sat motionless in his chair near his lawyer, habited in a neat brown suit, one cheek resting in the palm of one hand and his elbow on the arm of his chair. He looked worn, but composed. His eyes were on the floor, avoiding the gaze of the curious.

As Mrs. Tierney passed she touched the young man gentle on the shoulder and said something to him in a low voice. What it was seemed to be of a comforting nature. He smiled faintly and his face flushed a little, but he did not raise his eyes.

SAY DAM IS BADLY DAMAGED

Montreal, June 4.—A special from Mexico says: "The real story of the break in the Necaxa Dam of the Mexico Power Co., in which so many Canadians are financially interested, has been suppressed. There is every reason to believe that the dam has been destroyed and the damage in consequence will be enormous. Further reliable details will be cabled later.

A WELCOME TO MacKENZIE KING

Berlin, June 4.—A large and representative gathering of citizens was at the station yesterday afternoon to greet Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, upon his arrival from Ottawa. An address of welcome was given by Mayor Hahn.

Mr. King after expressing thanks for the reception, said he felt that in choosing him as Minister of Labor the Premier, while perhaps having in mind the fact that he had been identified for some years past with labor and social questions, had sought particularly to honor the good old riding of North Waterloo, and its splendid position amongst the industrial centres of the Dominion.

NEW BUILDING OF BANK OF COMMERCE

Montreal, June 4.—Probably the proudest man in Montreal yesterday was Byron E. Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who was present at the opening of its new $750,000 bank building on St. James street.

President Walker said they had been called extravagant, but he did not think so. They thought they had a very large office in Winnipeg, and it had not been standing three years when it was found to be too small, and an addition will have to be made.

He also announced that they would probably establish a new trust company some time soon, the lower part of the bank building being admirably suited for that purpose.

ARE "AMAZING MISCONCEPTIONS"

London, June 4.—R. L. Borden, in an article in The Standard of Empire, calls attention to striking mis-statements regarding Canada contained in a recent treatise entitled "The Struggle for American Independence." Sydney George Fisher, the author of the treatise, declared that English colonists are still at best exactly what John Adams and Hamilton over a hundred years ago described as political slaves, and that the control of the British Government over Canada is far more absolute than it was before the American revolution.

Mr. Borden describes these statements as "amazing misconceptions."

NO ADVANCE IN THE ASSESSMENT

Toronto, June 4.—The Grand Council of the C.O.C.F. voted down yesterday the proposal to increase the assessment, but the per capita tax on members was increased five cents a quarter.

The completed election of officers resulted as follows: Grand representatives, Rev. A. J. Paul (Allandale), Major A. J. Snelgrove and A. H. Hassard; grand prelate, Dr. Richardson (Kingston); grand marshal, W. P. Madley (Gananoque); grand warden, Mrs. C. Graham (London); grand guard, Mrs. Thorpe; grand secretary, W. H. Hunter (Toronto); committee on laws, J. J. Dutton (Winnipeg), A. Moon (Calgary), and H. T. Jones (Guelph); committee on finance, A. Legg (London), John Davison (Toronto), and John Gordon (Ottawa).

PROSPECTOR IS DROWNED

Dryden, Ont., June 4.—Coroner White held an inquest on William Cummins, aged 42, an expert engineer lately residing in Sudbury, and formerly in business in Toronto.

It appeared that Cummins, who came from Hamburg, where his wife and family is, led a party to Albany River in search of a "fabulously rich" mine, which Cummins claimed he had heard of from Indians, but of which no trace could be found.

Tuesday Cummins, who was known as the "brawny Dutchman," was missed, and after several hours' search was found in the water under a high cliff. Medical evidence proved he had drowned, and the jury brought in a verdict "found drowned." It is thought Cummins' find was fictitious.

Terrebonne Liberals have called on Hon. Jean Prevost for an explanation of his attack on Premier Gouin.

I. B. LUCAS, M.P.P., IS TAKEN INTO THE WHITNEY CABINET

Former Chairman of Private Bills Committee is Appointed to Vacancy Created by Death of Dr. Willoughby—Government Will Issue 4 Per Cent. Bonds to the Amount of $3,500,000.

Toronto, June 4.—Sir James Whitney strengthened the Provincial Cabinet yesterday by calling I. B. Lucas, K.C., member for Centre Grey, to the council board to act as Minister without portfolio in place of the late Dr. Willoughby.

This invitation came somewhat as a surprise to Hon. Mr. Lucas, as he may now be styled, the oath of allegiance and the oath as member of the executive council having been administered by the Lieutenant-Governor, but for some time his name has been associated with those mentioned for Cabinet honors.

Since 1898, when Mr. Lucas first entered the Legislature, he has grown steadily in the favor of his colleagues, until he occupied a front seat among the supporters of the Government. On the death of Henry Carscallen, Mr. Lucas was made chairman of the private bills committee, which position he has filled with distinction for the past three sessions. In addition, the member for Centre Grey, is a forcible and pleasing speaker.

Meanwhile, no particular branch of the Government will be assigned to the new Minister, and he will be left to initiate such legislative reforms as may be desirable, although the resolution introduced last session for provincial ownership with municipal or rural systems is a probable forecast of his legislative tendencies.

Hon. Mr. Lucas is a native of Lambton County, and is associated in Toronto with the legal firm of Mills, Raney, Hales and Colquhoun. No bye-election will be necessary as the new Minister sits without portfolio.

Under authority granted at the last session of the Legislature, the Government will issue at once $3,500,000 thirty-year 4 per cent. bonds.

These bonds, dated June 1, 1909, are issued against the consolidated revenue fund of the province, and will be offered to the public, according to the statement made yesterday by Hon. Col. Matheson, at 102, if the subscription is paid before the end of June, and 102 and accrued interest if paid after that date. Principal and interest will be payable in Toronto and Montreal, and by a convenient arrangement with the Bank of Montreal, at par in New York.

As the bonds will be issued in $1,000 denominations only, those wishing to purchase or have the value of a bond in smaller quantities will receive Ontario Government 4 per cent. stock, the interest on which is payable by check. This stock is similar to bank shares, and is represented by a certificate for the number of shares, which are only transferrable upon the books of the Treasury Department by person or attorney. This stock can be had in multiples of $50, and may be exchanged at any time for bonds.

In making this provision the Provincial Treasurer is following the successful innovation introduced on the former provincial loan of $3,000,000 when over $700,000 was taken out in stock.

No portion of the present issue has been underwritten, the Government expressly reserving this high-class security for the public.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY HAS HOT DEBATE OVER UNIVERSITY

Principal Gordon Presents Resolution Favoring Releasing of Institution From Denominational Control, But is Vigorously Opposed by the Old Guard, Headed by Rev. Dr. Campbell and G. M. Macdonnell, K.C.

Hamilton, June 4.—Before it had time to settle down properly to work the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday found itself plunged into the heat of a controversy which aroused the fighting blood of the old guard of the Church, and recalled some of the assembly battles of former times. The relationship of Queen's University to the Presbyterian Church was the issue thus early forced upon the attention of the fathers and brethren, and, as was expected, it gave rise to a debate that was vigorous throughout and at times warm. In their report the trustees of the university submitted a resolution requesting the assembly to assent to the removal from the charter of such denominational restrictions as might impede the development of the university, and to appoint a commission to co-operate with the board of trustees in regard to such charges.

It fell to Principal D. M. Gordon to present the resolution, and in a speech of marked ability and moderation he almost succeeded in persuading the assembly to accept, without further consideration, its proposals. With a lucidity and sequence which compelled the attention of a crowded and expectant house he traced the evolution of Queen's University from its nakedly denominational position to the status of a national institution.

Such was the effect of the principal's speech that for a few moments it seemed as if the assembly would accept it. Rev. Dr. Campbell, the clerk, however, sounded the first note of opposition. He regarded the proposals as the first step towards the separation of the church from the university, and in this view he was supported by, among others, Rev. Dr. Armstrong, Ottawa; Mr. G. M. Macdonnell, K.C., who made a vigorous protest against what he conceived to be an attempt to interfere with the church's control over the training of men for the ministry. As an amendment, he moved that, while reaffirming the resolutions of 1904 and 1908, the assembly appoint a commission to consider the advisability of limiting the relationship between the church and the university to the departments of arts and theology. To these two faculties, he maintained, the church must hold firmly. Among those who supported the resolution were Prof. Jordan, Mr. J. K. Macdonald, Toronto, and two other elders. The debate will be resumed to-day. The evening session was devoted to home missions. Keen disappointment was expressed at the inadequacy of the church's support, but inspiring speeches by Revs. Dr. E. R. MacFarlane, giving accounts of the splendid work being accomplished in the home mission fields, supplied a note of relief.

MORE BLUFF

At no time in the history of Canada has her progress been greater than during the incidence of the Dingley tariff—The Globe.

What has the Dingley tariff to do with the prosperity of Canada? Does the Globe expect that its readers are so dull of comprehension as to suppose that a prohibitive tariff bill against Canada is just as good for this country as any measure of tariff-lowering? If so the Globe judges its readers by itself. From day to day the chief Liberal organ flounders in difficulties and inconsistencies. One day it lauds the G.T.P. as the making of Ontario. The next it says that the founding of a little town in the desert-region of Lake Abittibi is more important. Which does it mean? Now we have it guilty declaring that the new United States tariff so far from doing us any harm will do us such good that at no time in Canada's history will it be surpassed being comparable only to the progress made by us under the Dingley tariff which shut out nearly all our goods. If this were true even for an instant why not applaud the raising of United States tariff instead of decrying its framers as a lot of crazy people as the Globe loves to do. Yet the Globe never dared to call for its pretended ideal of tariff in Canada. A Liberal government under such conditions would not live an hour. It simply puffs and blows hoping that by so doing it will distract attention from the facts of the case.

THE MARRIED MANNER

There is raging in the rural press a war upon what has been called the "married manner," by which is meant the change or otherwise in a man's demeanour towards his wife after marriage. The variety of opinions and remedies offered or suggested is tremendous. The critical wives say that the husbands are at fault and the critical husbands speak the same of their wives. The truth seems to be that love has not been founded on reverence or esteem for the life-partner hence it becomes lost in a maze of difficulties. Where drink or other bad habits intervene the cause lies, probably, there. But after a careful perusal of the life-histories and opinions of the correspondents the reader will in all probability come to the conclusion that faults are on both sides, that vanity, social ambition, loss of affection and of sense of duty are largely to blame. Many a bad match and badly-suited pair are "pulled through" by a sense of shame. Where shame is lacking, hope itself may be said to be lost.

THE EXPRESS CO. INQUIRY

Twenty-five years ago an inquiry into the business affairs of a man or a company was an unheard of proceeding. If it had been even suggested there would immediately have arisen cries of "unwarrantable interference by the State," socialism and the like. But this good old-fashioned way of taking everything for granted in the enjoyment of its pristine privileges disappeared with the lapse of time. The "bid" for votes, on the part of governments secured to the public advantages which it never enjoyed before, and which it was slow to complain of. Almost as if by magic the age of inquiry has followed and developed into what it is to-day. It is a process of political or economical evolution. The latest phase of the process has been manifested in the Express Co. inquiry in which, or by the means of which the Ontario Railway Commission has found out for the benefit of its creators and employers, the Ontario Government, that the profits of Express Cos. run from 100 per cent. to 150 per cent. The academical free trade Globe and the antediluvian reformer would suggest that if the express business paid as well as that, competition might be trusted to lower the profits. But it hasn't. A trifle like that, however would not daunt the Globe even in the old days when it wrote frankly, if elusively, and did not put down a mere rumor of a 20 million dollar offer for the Gillies' limit as a sufficient foundation for attacking the Ontario Government in case of failure to get it. Someone may ask what has all this to do with a demand for lower electric light charges in Peterborough? It has this to do with it, that if the light charges are like the express profits, extortionate, they will have to come down. One hundred per cent. is a wholly unreasonable profit in express, and it would cheer us up a good deal to know what it is in the lighting business. Year by year the fair trade basis with recourse, when necessary, to municipal ownership is becoming more a matter for public approval. Whatever is best for the great mass of the people, we may rest assured the great mass of the people will insist upon having. It is the duty of government, national, provincial or municipal, to find out what that is. Just now in Peterborough it is electric lighting. To-morrow it may be as our correspondent yesterday foreshadowed, the return on property in the way of rents. That the electric light man and the landlord kick is to be expected. But what about the public? Have they no right to kick?

ARE YOU DOING IT

The only safe way is to live in the present time. Yesterday we cannot reach except that we may repent of its sins and be forgiven and that the future has not come and will be sufficient unto itself till its arrival. To-day is our own. The duty of life with us is now. To live humbly toward God, to live courageously and generously reaching out our hands in a brotherly way and doing what good we can today, is our privilege. Every day lived right will make it better for us to-morrow whatever that may be. To live each day as though we only had the one day in which to do good, the one day in which to be loyal to Christ, the one day in which to make the world happy —that, is the way to live in order to bring something of heaven into the present. And surely that is the way we ought to live; we who are only travellers passing through this world to our home beyond.

OF INTEREST

Why Bother About the Heathen

Why bother about the condition of foreign peoples—"the heathen," as some call them—when we have so many "heathen" at home? The question is often asked, and has been much discussed at recent May meetings.

Sir E. Satow, who was our Ambassador in Japan, declared that the ignorance in England of what foreign missions did had surprised him.

AMBASSADOR'S POINT OF VIEW.

He added that "in Japan Christianity was now recognized as a very great moral motive in the national life. Even among those Japanese who had not accepted Christianity its influence was indisputable; and its future in that country would be great. Much had been heard lately of 'Bushido'—the way of the warrior—which meant readiness to make any sacrifice to serve the Master. This was surely an admirable soil to sow the Gospel in. He looked forward to the ideal of a Christian Japan; but for that Japanese pastors and clergy and bishops were necessary. Meanwhile the number of English and American missionaries should be increased.

A REVOLUTION IN FIJI.

A chief justice of the colony of Fiji declares that the debt which Fiji owes to Wesleyan missions can never be over estimated. "Cannibals had been turned into God-fearing people, and those who knew no law but the law of the club had become peaceful and law-abiding citizens. And this had been done within the memory of persons who were still alive.

Here is another point of view given by one of the great school of missionaries—Rev. Dr. G. Brown—the veteran South Sea missionary, who was the friend of Stevenson. In the Queen's Hall the other day he said that "he was an old man, and had been thinking about his old age; and although he had had many white friends who were dear to him, it was yet true that when he began to anticipate the faces he would seen in heaven, he thought oftenest of those whose faces were dark and who, when they were alive, spoke in another tongue from that of the white man, but whose hearts were as true and loyal and Christlike as those of the best of white men. The best sermons that touched him most—and those were the best sermons—he had heard from native preachers.

OUR HEATHEN AT HOME.

Dr. Ambrose Shepherd, of Glasgow, preaching in Wesley's Chapel, London, has discussed this question of the foreigner at great length.

"At the present time," he said, "our duty is said to be at home with the social problems and the great masses of people about us on every hand. Why should our eyes be at the ends of the earth, we are asked, when under the shadow of our churches we have a heathendom as appalling as anything you can find on the face of the earth? 'I have seen myself great cities, in and out of Great Britain,' said a man some time ago who has a well-known name, 'and it has been my business to look on their seamy sides; and I have seen nothing in all my investigations and in all my wanderings more hideous and more hopeless than I have seen in Glasgow.'

"I should accept a statement like that with a due amount of caution; but even then is it not an open question whether, with all our laudable agencies—religious, moral and social—we have not an irreligious as vicious, a paganism as sheer, and a despair as hopeless, as our missionaries can match across the wide fields of their operations!

TO ABOLISH SOCIAL TROUBLES.

"It is true that we have a fare amount of heathenism in our midst, but its extent is not without limits, and its nature is not hopeless Given, for example, a sane solution of the drink problem, and fully one-half of our economic and social troubles would disappear in another ten or twenty years; and given the church in earnest, that solution would speedily be found. While, again, I hold that there is nothing in our industrial system which is too despotic to be modified, safeguarded, and brought into line with just and humane conditions, the masses of the people have the heathenism which is said to be the product of poverty very much in their own hands.

WANTED—A WORD ABOUT DUTY.

"We talk about the heresies and unorthodox es of our own day. Well, we have them, and one of the most dangerous is that which would deprive the mind of a sense of the relentless forces within and without us, and so diminish within the individual the conviction of his strength to withstand them. The masses of the people have been told about their weakness long enough; they need to be reminded of their strength. A part of what is now being said to them about their rights and dues might well give place for a little while—their rights and wrongs might give place—to a seasonable word about their duties.

HEATHENISM OF OUR OWN MAKE

"If the masses and the classes alike would spend somewhat of the time they now devote to worthless pursuits upon the making of a higher order of character and intelligence, and if they would put a little of that intelligence, among other places, into the ballot-box we should hear less about what needs to be done at home before we venture abroad. I simply want to say that, in my opinion, the heathenism at home is largely of our own making.

"There are cases, I know—and they are many—where to talk about personal responsibility is simply useless, cases of human beings swallowed up in the conditions in which they find themselves. But who or what is responsible for these conditions? Get at the truth, and you find it to be a selfishness which, perhaps for the first time in the history of civilization finds itself to be selfishness, as doomed as it is already damned the moment the nation finds its soul. There is more than a streak of light; there are signs of morning in the sky, that dull sky of our heathenism, but you cannot say that about the heathenism abroad.

SLIPPING ANCHORS OF PERSONALITY.

"Do we maintain, as we should, that the problem of personal guilt and sin is the first and the worst and the nearest of all problems for each man of us and for society? We pass this truth on its verbal side, and then we begin to debate theories which encourage men to slip the anchors of their personality on alleged difficulties on alleged forces, which make it an impossibility to give them an interpretation consistent with modern conditions. Never since the most decadent days of ancient Rome was the worship of money for what it can enable us to do on the least worthy side of our existence more naked and less ashamed; and then we have the reaction this mad scramble in frivolous amusement and mindless pursuits. We are passing for example, through a time of bad trade, and we hear a good deal about it. Almost every phase of giving to religious and philanthropic objects and agencies is depressed, and we say, "How can you wonder at it?" and yet the theatre and the music hall—indeed, the financial position of sport and amusement—was never so prosperous as it is to-day and as it has been during the past year.

THIS DIRE APOSTASY.

"It would seem that a large part of Britain had turned aside from the race towards any worthy goal—like another Atalanta—to pick up the apples of golden pleasure, and to say goodbye to God. I do not forget that there is another and a brighter side to all this. I am no pessimist; if I were, what business should I have in this pulpit? With Christ I despair of nothing, but without Christ I hope for nothing; and it may be that this brighter side has to come through the way of rebuke. If we are wearying of God, if the Gospel Evangel has become as a tale that is told, then the All-wise knows how to deal with this dire apostasy.

THE CONSULTATION.

What Her Sister Heard When She Listened to the Doctors.

One of two sisters who lived together was suddenly taken with a lung attack she feared was serious, says the London Telegraph. She therefore sent for a specialist and asked her doctor to meet him. Talking over his coming with her sister, she said: "Mona, I wish I could know Sir Henry B.'s real opinion. Neither he nor Dr. M. will tell us if there is anything really wrong, but I would much rather know."

Her sister replied: "Do not worry, dearest. You shall know everything, for I will go down to the dining room and stand behind the big oak screen and listen to every word they say."

"And will you be sure to tell me, Mona?"

"You may rely on me, dearest, I will tell you every word."

"Even if I am not to get well?"

"Even then, dearest," promised the loyal Mona.

The hour for the consultation arrived, and the sister went to the dining room and, standing behind the great oak screen, ensconced herself and prepared to listen.

By and by the two doctors were heard descending the stairs, and a moment later they came into the room. Walking over to the fireplace, the specialist sank into an easy chair and the local doctor sank into another. Then followed a moment's silence, broken by the specialist, who leaned a little forward.

"My dear M.," he said slowly as he looked across at his colleague, "of all the ugly women that's the very ugliest woman I've ever seen in my life."

"Is she?" replied the local doctor. "You wait until you've seen her sister."

CHAPTER I.

I WAS perhaps the plainest girl in the room that night. I was also the happiest—up to 1 o'clock. Then my whole world crumbled, or at least suffered an eclipse. Why and how I am about to relate.

I was not made for love. This I had often said to myself, very often of late. In figure I am too diminutive, in face far too unbeautiful for me to cherish expectations of this nature. Indeed love had never entered into my plan of life, as was evinced by the nurse's diploma I had just gained after three years of hard study and severe training.

I was not made for love. But if I had been, had I been gifted with height, regularity of feature or even with that eloquence of expression which redeems all defects save those which savor of deformity, I knew well whose eye I should have chosen to please, whose heart I should have felt proud to win.

This knowledge came with a rush to my heart—did I say heart? I should have said understanding, which is something very different—when at the end of the first dance I looked up from the midst of the bevy of girls by whom I was surrounded and saw Anson Durand's fine figure emerging from that quarter of the hall where our host and hostess stood to receive their guests. His eye was roaming hither and thither, and his manner was both eager and expectant. Whom was he seeking? Some one of the many bright and vivacious girls about me, for he turned almost instantly our way. But which one?

I thought I knew. I remembered at whose house I had met him first, at whose house I had seen him many times since. She was a lovely girl, witty and vivacious, and she stood at this very moment at my elbow. In her beauty lay the lure, the natural lure for a man of his gifts and striking personality. If I continued to watch I should soon see his countenance light up under the recognition she could not fail to give him. And I was right. In another instant it did, and with a brightness there was no mistaking. But one feeling common to the human heart lends such warmth, such expressiveness to the features. How handsome it made him look, how distinguished, how everything I was not except—

But what does this mean? He has passed Miss Sperry—passed her with a smile and a friendly word—and is speaking to me, singling me out, offering me his arm. He is smiling, too, not as he smiled on Miss Sperry, but more warmly, with more that is personal in it. I took his arm in a daze. The lights were dimmer than I thought. Nothing was really bright except his smile. It seemed to change the world for me. I forgot that I was plain, forgot that I was small, with nothing to recommend me to the eye or heart, and let myself be drawn away, asking nothing, anticipating nothing, till I found myself alone with him in the fragrant recesses of the conservatory, with only the throb of music in our ears to link us to the scene we had left.

Why had he brought me here into this fairyland of opalescent lights and intoxicating perfumes? What could he have to say—to show? Ah, in another moment I knew! He had seized my hands, and love, ardent love, came pouring from his lips.

Could it be real? Was I the object of all this feeling, I? If so, then life had changed for me indeed.

Silent from rush of emotion I searched his face to see if this paradise, whose gates I was thus passionately bidden to enter, was indeed a verity or only a dream born of the excitement of the dance and the charm of a scene exceptional in its splendor and picturesqueness even for so luxurious a city as New York.

But it was no mere dream. Truth and earnestness were in his manner, and his words were neither feverish nor forced.

"I love you! I need you!" So I heard, and so he soon made me believe. "You have charmed me from the first. Your tantalizing, trusting, loyal self, like no other, sweeter than any other, has drawn the heart from my breast. I have seen many women, admired many women, but you only have I loved. Will you be my wife?"

I was dazzled, moved beyond anything I could have conceived. I forgot all that I had hitherto said to myself, all that I had endeavored to impress upon my heart when I beheld him approaching, intent, as I believed, in his search for another woman, and, confiding in his honesty, trusting entirely to his faith, I allowed the plans and purposes of years to vanish in the glamour of this new joy and spoke the word which linked us together in a bond which half an hour before I had never dreamed would unite me to any man.

His impassioned "mine, mine!" filled my cup to overflowing. Something of the ecstasy of living entered my soul, which in spite of all I have suffered since recreated the world for me and made all that went before but the prelude to the new life, the new joy.

Oh, I was happy, happy, perhaps too happy! As the conservatory filled and we passed back into the adjoining room the glimpse I caught of myself in one of the mirrors startled me into thinking so, for had it not been for the odd color of my dress and the unique way in which I wore my hair that night I should not have recognized the beaming girl who faced me so naively from the depths of the responsive glass.

Can one be too happy? I do not know. I know that one can be too perplexed, too burdened and too sad.

Thus far I have spoken only of myself in connection with the evening's elaborate function; but, though entitled by my old Dutch blood to a certain social consideration which I am happy to say never failed me, I even in this hour of supreme satisfaction attracted very little attention and awoke small comment. There was another woman present better calculated to do this—a fair woman, large and of a bountiful presence, accustomed to conquest and gifted with the power of carrying off her victories with a certain languid grace irresistibly fascinating to the ordinary man: a gorgeously apparelled woman, with a diamond on her breast too vivid for most women, almost too vivid for her. I noticed this diamond early in the evening, and then I noticed her. She was not as fine as the diamond, but she was very fine, and had I been in a less ecstatic frame of mind I might have envied the homage she received from all the men, not excepting him upon whose arm I leaned. Later there was no one in the world I envied less.

The ball was a private and very elegant one. There were some notable guests. One gentleman in particular was pointed out to me as an Englishman of great distinction and political importance. I thought him a very interesting man for his years, but odd and a trifle self centered. Though greatly courted, he seemed strangely restless under the fire of eyes to which he was constantly subjected and only happy when free to use his own in contemplation of the scene about him. Had I been less absorbed in my own happiness I might have noted sooner than I did that this contemplation was confined to such groups as gathered about the lady with the diamond. But this I failed to observe at the time, and consequently was much surprised to come upon him at the end of one of the dances talking with this lady in an animated and courtly manner totally opposed to the apathy, amounting to boredom, with which he had hitherto met all advances.

Yet it was not admiration for her person which he openly displayed. During the whole time he stood there his eyes seldom rose to her face. They lingered mainly—and this was what aroused my curiosity—on the great fan of ostrich plumes which this opulent beauty held against her breast. Was he desirous of seeing the great diamond she thus unconsciously (or was it consciously) shielded from his gaze? It was possible, for, as I continued to note him, he suddenly bent toward her and as quickly raised himself again with a look which was quite inexplicable to me. The lady had shifted her fan a moment, and his eyes had fallen on the gem.

The next thing I recall with any definiteness was a tete-a-tete conversation which I held with my lover on a certain yellow divan at the end of one of the halls.

To the right of this divan rose a curtained recess, highly suggestive of romance, called "the alcove." As this alcove figures prominently in my story, I will pause here to describe it.

It was originally intended to contain a large group of statuary which our host, Mr. Ramsdell, had ordered from Italy to adorn his new house. He is a man of original ideas in regard to such matters and in this instance had gone so far as to have this end of the house constructed with a special view to an advantageous display of this promised work of art. Fearing the ponderous effect of a pedestal large enough to hold such a considerable group, he had planned to raise it to the level of the eye by having the alcove floor built a few feet higher than the main one. A flight of low, wide steps connected the two, which, following the curve of the wall, added much to the beauty of this portion of the hall.

The group was a failure and was never shipped. But the alcove remained and, possessing as it did all the advantages of a room in the way of heat and light, had been turned into a miniature retreat of exceptional beauty.

The seclusion it offered extended, or so we were happy to think, to the solitary divan at its base on which Mr. Durand and I were seated. With possibly an undue confidence in the advantage of our position, we were discussing a subject interesting only to ourselves when Mr. Durand interrupted himself to declare: "You are the woman I want, you and you only. And I want you soon. When do you think you can marry me? Within a week—if—if"—

Did my look stop him? I was startled. I had heard no incoherent phrase from him before.

"A week!" I remonstrated. "We take more time than that to fit ourselves for a journey or some transient pleasure. I hardly realize my engagement yet."

"You have not been thinking of it for these last two months as I have."

"No," I replied demurely, forgetting everything else in my delight at this admission.

"Nor are you a nomad among clubs and restaurants."

"No, I have a home."

"Nor do you love me as deeply as I do you."

This I thought open to argument.

"The home you speak of is a luxurious one," he continued. "I cannot offer you its equal. Do you expect me to?"

I was indignant.

"You know that I do not. Shall I, who deliberately chose a nurse's life when an indulgent uncle's heart and home were open to me, shrink from braving poverty with the man I love? We will begin as simply as you please"—

"No," he peremptorily put in, yet with a certain hesitancy which seemed to speak of doubts he hardly acknowledged to himself, "I will not marry you if I must expose you to privation or to the genteel poverty I hate. I love you more than you realize and wish to make your life a happy one. I cannot give you all you have been accustomed to in your rich uncle's house, but if matters prosper with me, if the chance I have built on succeeds—and it will fail or succeed tonight—you will have those comforts which love will heighten into luxuries and—and"—

He was becoming incoherent and this time with his eyes fixed elsewhere than on my face. Following his gaze, I discovered what had distracted his attention. The lady with the diamond was approaching us on her way to the alcove. She was accompanied by two gentlemen, both strangers to me, and her head, sparkling with brilliants, was turning from one to the other with an indolent grace. I was not surprised that the man at my side quivered and made a start as if to rise. She was a gorgeous image. In comparison with her imposing figure in its trailing robe of rich pink velvet my diminutive frame in its sea green gown must have looked as faded and colorless as a half obliterated pastel.

"A striking woman," I remarked as I saw he was not likely to resume the conversation which her presence had interrupted. "And what a diamond!"

The glance he cast me was peculiar.

"Did you notice it particularly?" he asked.

Astonished, for there was something very uneasy in his manner so that I half expected to see him rise and join the group he was so eagerly watching without waiting for my lips to frame a response, I quickly replied:

"It would be difficult not to notice what one would naturally expect to see only on the breast of a queen. But perhaps she is a queen. I should judge so from the homage which follows her."

His eyes sought mine. There was inquiry in them, but it was an inquiry I did not understand.

"What can you know about diamonds?" he presently demanded. "Nothing but their glitter, and glitter is not all. The gem she wears may be a very tawdry one."

I flushed with humiliation. He was a dealer in gems—that was his business—and the check which he had put upon my enthusiasm certainly made me conscious of my own presumption. Yet I was not disposed to take back my words. I had had a better opportunity than himself for seeing this remarkable jewel, and, with the perversity of a somewhat ruffled mood, I burst forth as soon as the color had subsided from my cheeks:

"No, no! It is glorious, magnificent. I never saw its like. I doubt if you ever have, for all your daily acquaintance with jewels. Its value must be enormous. Who is she? You seem to know her."

It was a direct question, but I received no reply. Mr. Durand's eyes had followed the lady, who had lingered somewhat ostentatiously on the top step, and they did not return to me till she had vanished with her companions behind the long plush curtains which partly veiled the entrance. By this time he had forgotten my words, if he had ever heard them, and it was with the forced animation of one whose thoughts are elsewhere that he finally returned to the old plea:

When would I marry him? If he could offer me a home in a month—and he would know by tomorrow if he could do so—would I come to him then? He would not say in a week. That was perhaps too soon. But in a month? Would I not promise to be his in a month?

What I answered I scarcely recall. His eyes had stolen back to the alcove, and mine had followed them. The gentlemen who had accompanied the lady inside were coming out again, but others were advancing to take their places, and soon she was engaged in holding a regular court in this favored retreat.

Why should this interest me? Why should I notice her or look that way at all? Because Mr. Durand did? Possibly. I remember that for all his ardent lovemaking I felt a little piqued that he should divide his attentions in this way. Perhaps I thought that for this evening at least he might have been blind to a mere coquette's fascinations.

I was thus doubly engaged in listening to my lover's words and in watching the various gentlemen who went up and down the steps when a former partner advanced and reminded me that I had promised him a waltz. Loath to leave Mr. Durand, yet seeing no way of excusing myself to Mr. Fox, I cast an appealing glance at the former and was greatly chagrined to find him already on his feet.

"Enjoy your dance," he cried. "I have a word to say to Mrs. Fairbrother," and was gone before my new partner had taken me on his arm.

Was Mrs. Fairbrother the lady with the diamond? Yes. As I turned to enter the parlor with my partner I caught a glimpse of Mr. Durand's tall figure just disappearing from the step behind the sage green curtains.

"Who is Mrs. Fairbrother?" I inquired of Mr. Fox at the end of the dance.

Mr. Fox, who is one of society's perennial beaux, knows everybody.

"She is—well, she was Abner Fairbrother's wife. You knew Fairbrother, the millionaire who built that curious structure on Eighty-sixth street. At present they are living apart—an amicable understanding, I believe. Her diamond makes her conspicuous. It is one of the most remarkable stones in New York, perhaps in the United States. Have you observed it?"

"Yes—that is, at a distance. Do you think her very handsome?"

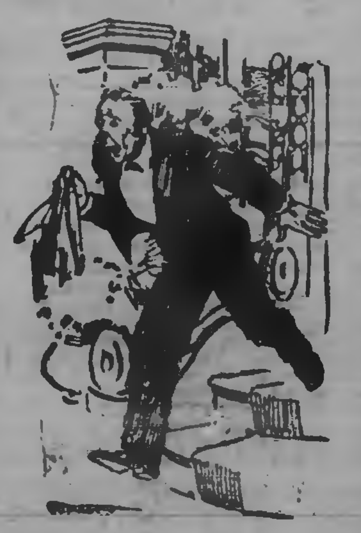
"Mrs. Fairbrother? She's called so, but she's not my style." Here he gave me a killing glance. "I admire women of mind and heart. They do not need to wear jewels worth an ordinary man's fortune."

I looked about for an excuse to leave this none too desirable partner.

"Let us go back into the long hall," I urged. "The ceaseless whirl of these dancers is making me dizzy."

With the ease of a gallant man he took me on his arm, and soon we were promenading again in the direction of the alcove. A passing glimpse of its interior was afforded me as we turned to retrace our steps in front of the yellow divan. The lady with the diamond was still there. A fold of the superb pink velvet she wore protruded across the gap made by the half drawn curtains, just as it had done a half hour before. But it was impossible to see her face or who was with her. What I could see, however, and did was the figure of a man leaning against the wall at the foot of the steps. At first I thought this person unknown to me; then I perceived that he was no other than the chief guest of the evening, the Englishman of whom I have previously spoken.

His expression had altered. He looked now both anxious and absorbed—particularly anxious and particularly absorbed—so much so that I was not surprised that no one ventured to approach him. Again I wondered and again I asked myself for whom or for what he was waiting. For Mr. Durand to leave this lady's presence? No, no; I would not believe that. Mr. Durand could not be there still, yet some women make it difficult for a man to leave them, and, realizing this, I could not forbear casting a parting glance behind me as, yielding to Mr. Fox's importunities, I turned toward the supper room. It showed me the Englishman in the act of lifting two cups of coffee from a small table standing near the reception room door. As his manner plainly betokened whither he was bound with this refreshment, I felt all my uneasiness vanish and was able to take my seat at one of the small tables with which the supper room was filled and for a few minutes at least lend an ear to Mr. Fox's vapid compliment and trite opinions. Then my attention wandered.



He plunged down the steps with a cry.

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vienna, W. Va.—"I feel that I owe the last ten years of my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven years ago I was a walking shadow. I had been under the doctor's care but got no relief. My husband persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like a charm. It relieved all my pains and misery. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. EMMA WHEATON, Vienna, W. Va.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterborough a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin running; simply this, more families will of necessity move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase in other words prosperity is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city.

¶ People who are contemplating purchasing homes will do well to see J. T. O'CONNELL & CO'S list now and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. If you have not time to call during the day come any evening and we will show you any property on our list—We're always at your service.

THE LARGEST AND BEST CADET CORPS IN THE PROVINCE

Lt. Col. Hemming Congratulates P. C. I. Cadets at Annua Inspection This Morning—Will be Gazetted as a Regiment — Officers of 57th Watched Movements With Interest.

The cadet corps of the P.C.I. made a most favorable impression at their annual inspection at Riverside park this morning. Lt.-Col. Hemming, of Kingston, chief staff officer CSOEOC. took occasion at the conclusion of the inspection exercises to congratulate the corps on its splendid turnout and discipline and pronounced it the largest and most efficient one in the province. He also made a welcome announcement to the effect that the corps would be gazetted as a regiment with a bugle and drum corps.

The turnout this morning was the largest in the history of the cadet corps 120 men and 30 officers being on the grounds making a total of 150 strong. These were subdivided into four companies all of which performed their various evolutions in a prompt and accurate way.

Battalion, company and section inspection was taken up and also the manual exercises. The corps showed up to excellent advantage in all these and congratulations are due Lt.-Col. Hodgson and Major Harry Hall for their thorough drill instruction.

Lt.-Col. Hemming was accompanied to the park by Lt-Col. Miller, Major Bennet, Major Hayes and Mr R. Fair of the Board of Education. These expressed themselves as much pleased by the manner in which the cadets performed the different drill movements required of them. Rev Canon Davidson, the chaplain of the regiment and several other officers and the principal and staff of the Collegiate were also interested spectators at the inspection. The cadets were lent further encouragement to go through their inspection in their most military manner by the presence of a large number of Collegiate girls.

The weather was very pleasant and the grounds were in splendid shape for marching. The officers and privates of the corps must be complimented on the interest they have shown in the drill and the high efficiency that has been attained.

MALICIOUSLY HACKED SOME YOUNG TREES ON MURRAY ST.

Mr. James Metheral, who lives at 146 Murray street, has a vigorous complaint about the way some miscreants hacked some trees at his place. The wanton attack on the trees is most malicious, and the guilty parties if detected, will doubtless meet with very small consideration at the hands of the magistrate.

Mr. Metheral has had the trees painted and fixed up in his effort to save them. He blames the public school boys.

THE COLLECTORS GETTING BUSY

Merchants of Chatham Going after Debtors in Systematic Way

Chatham News: The official collector for the retail merchant's association will call on his victims every week and will continue to do so all the year round until they decide that honesty is the best policy.

The lists that the merchants have is not really a blacklist so much as a list of those who began to borrow with more or less good intentions to pay but who have decided apparently that it is cheaper to become dishonest for three or four dollars as the case generally is.

The system is not directed against people who are honest and desire to pay their bills but for the moment find themselves financially unable to comply with their desires. Such have the sympathy of the merchants. They are not in the class with those who deliberately refuse to pay their bills when they are able to do so. It is to these that the collector will practically confine his efforts and the list in the city is large enough to keep him busy.

The merchants say that the people may just as well make up their minds when the collector comes that it is cheaper in the long run to be honest now in preference to arriving at this desideratum at a later date.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. ROBT. WALSH

Little Daughter Returning From School Finds Her Father Dead in a Chair

When Lulu, the young daughter of Mrs. Robert Walsh, returned home from school at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, she found her father, who had gone to sleep, in a chair shortly after the noonday meal, had passed away. The deceased, who had been ailing for some time, had been able to be up and around the house, and his condition had not been considered serious. He had not complained of new symptoms yesterday and his demise came as a terrible shock to the members of his family. The late Mr. Walsh was 55 years of age and had been a life long resident of Peterborough. He had been a teamster previous to his illness and had also been caretaker of the Murray street Baptist church for several years. He was well known and highly respected among a large number of friends. Those left to mourn his loss are his wife, two sons, Charles and Thomas, and one daughter, Lulu, all living at home. One brother, John, resides in New York State. The funeral will take place to-morrow at three o'clock, from his late residence, 288 Murray street, in the rear of the church, and interment will take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

A LONDON GIRL WINS LOVE PRIZE

Ontario Nurse Marries One of New York's Sugar Kings

London, June 3.—Once again a Canadian girl has captured an American millionaire. This time Miss Bessei Shoebotham, a graduate of The Victoria Hospital, at London, is the lucky maiden, or perhaps her husband, John Mayer, one of the sugar kings of New York, is the lucky man. Miss Shoebotham comes of one of the best known families in this part of Canada. She left London six years ago to take a course in a New York hospital. One day she was engaged to take charge of a patient in the home of one of the four hundred. She is a girl of most bewitching manners and appearance, and she won the hearts of all.

John Mayer was a friend of the man she was nursing, and he frequently called on the patient. When the latter was better, Mr Mayer was sick—that is, love sick—and the girl in the case was the beautiful Canadian nurse.

He proposed to Miss Shoebotham and was accepted, and the marriage took place in New York last week, Dr. Shoebotham, of London, acting as best man for the happy couple. Mr. Mayer was a widower, his first wife being a daughter of Havemeyer, the sugar king.

AN ORIGINAL COVER DESIGN

On This Week's Canadian Courier —Drawn by H. W. McCrea

The cover design of the current number of the Canadian Courier is an original and clever drawing by Mr. Harold McCrea, a Peterborough boy, who is making quite a name for himself in the popular art world.

The drawing is entitled "Fishin'," and shows a big fish that has jumped out of the water and a couple of juvenile anglers on the bank looking on with an expression of wonderment on their faces.

FRIENDS REGRET HIS DEPARTURE

Mr. Frank Simpson Banquetted Last Evening and Given an Umbrella

Mr. Frank Simpson, of the Royal Bank staff, who leaves next week to take a position in the Toronto office, was tendered a farewell supper by about fifteen of his friends at Hooper's Palm Gardens last night. After the good things provided had been paid attention to, there were speeches by all present. Mr. W Richardson was in the chair and referred to the regret felt at Mr. Simpson's departure. The toast to the guest of the evening was proposed in a neat speech by Mr. Wallace Wood, and the others present each added a few words wishing Mr. Simpson success in Toronto and expressing regret that he was leaving Peterborough.

Mr. Simpson said he was sorry to leave his Peterborough friends whom he thanked heartily for their many courtesies.

During the evening Mr. Simpson was presented with a handsome umbrella. He leaves for Toronto early next week.

HAD TO FACE THREE CHARGES

Frank Buckland Fined $10.75 for Causing Trouble on Three Occasions

Frank Buckland was called upon to face three charges at the police court this morning and as a result was assessed $10.75 in fines.

Mr. F. D. Kerr conducted the prosecution and Mr. R. F. McWilliams represented the defendant.

The first charge was that on the night of May 24th he used insulting language to the complainant, Alexander Nesbitt. The two men met on George street and got into an altercation over the question of dogs. Nesbitt stated that on the night mentioned the defendant swore at him and used insulting language.

Buckland stated that he did not use bad language and the word "bloody" was the worst he used. He admitted having a sup, which amounted to five glasses of beer within three hours.

A witness stated that he had arrived at the scene of the trouble just as the two men were preparing to use their fists but he had not heard any insulting language.

As he—the witness—was an officer of the 57th regiment and as Buckland was in uniform he had parted the men.

The Magistrate held that the evidence showed that the defendant had been drinking and for this reason was inclined to believe the statement of the complainant and he imposed a fine of $5 on Buckland.

Another charge of being disorderly was then laid against Buckland.

A witness stated that he and Alexzander Nesbitt had been quarreling and swearing on Harvey street yesterday morning. Buckland appeared to be the one who was forcing matters and a fight was imminent and the police were called.

The third charge of being drunk and disorderly at the corner of Hunter and Water streets last evening in which Nesbitt and Buckland were the interested parties was next proceeded with.

P. C. McHarry gave evidence to the effect that Buckland was fighting, and swearing with Nesbitt but the former was the transgressor.

He pleaded guilty to this charge and was fined $5.75 after which he was given a lecture by the Magistrate on the evils of drinking and getting into trouble.

WILL STOP DRINKING

After spending one week in jail, Samuel Kelly has come to the conclusion that it would be better to leave liquor alone. After promising the Magistrate to go to work and give up the habit of drinking he was allowed his freedom.

NEW COTTAGES ARE BEING BUILT AT CAMERON LAKE

Cameron lake is becoming more popular each year as a summer resort, and each year sees an increase in the number of cottages on its banks. For several years Col. Sam Hughes, Major Delamere, and perhaps one or two others, were the only cottagers on its banks. This year there are more than a dozen handsome cottages overlooking its waters, which are owned mostly by Toronto and American people. Mr. Black, manager of the Bank of Montreal, of Lindsay, is one of the latest to become enamored by the beauties of Cameron, and is putting up a very handsome cottage.—Lindsay Post.

Did no Business

A meeting of the Manufacturers' committee was called for last night to take up the application of the Peterborough Canoe Company for a strip of land along the river front, and to consider the request of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, for a thirty year franchise. As there was not a full attendance of the committee it was decided to adjourn.

THE POULTRY ASSOCIATION

Held Regular Meeting Last Night —Attendance is Keeping up Well

The Peterborough Poultry Association held its regular monthly meeting in the hall over Mr. C. N. Brown's store, last night with a good attendance. President Paxman was in the chair, and he kept things moving and added much to the interest of the proceedings. After the routine business Mr. C. E. Sergiey gave a very interesting paper on the rearing of chickens that have been hatched by artificial means. He gave the members the benefit of his wide experience in incubation and feeding, and a lot of valuable information was given out, which was greatly appreciated.

These monthly papers are very beneficial and do much to keep up the interest in the association.

There were two pairs of birds on exhibition, one pair of partridge Wyandottes, which were very fine, owned by Mr. Cunningham, and a pair of Anaconas, owned by Mr. D. Cameron. These breeds were discussed by the members and the peculiarities of breeds were pointed out. At the July meeting a paper will be given by Mr. Callander on the midsummer care of fowl.

SPORTING NEWS

THE SENIOR CITY LEAGUE WILL START TO-MORROW

T. A. S. and P. A. C. Will Play First Game at 2 o'Clock—West Ends and Straths at 3.30—Danny McCabe Will Umpire—His Worship Mayor Rush Will Pitch the First Ball.

The City League teams had their final workouts last night, and are in good shape for the opening games at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon. All arrangements have been completed by the league executive and all that is necessary is for the weatherman to hand out some good weather and leave the rest to the players. The managers have picked out their teams for to-morrow, and all the line-ups look strong. Many familiar faces will be seen on the T A.S. and P.A.C. nines, who play the first game at 2 o'clock sharp. That this contest will be interesting and well played, the fans are assured of. Both teams have been working out each night for the past two weeks, and may be depended upon to play for all that is in them. The second game by the West Ends and Strathconas will be a hummer. There has always been keen rivalry between the two teams, and the struggle to-morrow will be a hard one. The West Ends will have a new battery, in Kirn and Carlin, but otherwise the team will be the same as in the past several seasons. The only change in the Straths will be in the twirling department, but this has been well looked after. His Worship Mayor Rush will pitch the first ball in the initial contest, and Dan McCabe will be umpire. It only remains for the fans to turn out in good numbers, and thus encourage the officers and players of the league. The admission fee will be, gentlemen, 15 cents; the small boy, 5 cents, and ladies free. The teams will line-up as follows:—

T.A.S.—Doherty, Corkery, O'Brien, Flaherty, Derocher, W. O'Brien, Quinlan Hayes, Cahill, McFadden.

West Ends—Kirn, Carton, King, Halpin, Minorgan, Gibson, B. Craig, C. Dobson, Rose.

Strathconas—Wilson, Hickey, Dobson, Kendry, Craig, Shaw, Guerin, Curtis, Patterson.

The P.A.C. management have not yet selected their team.

Yebbie Flaherty will likely play second base for the T.A.S.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

HITTING.

Fans often complain because of the lack of hitting, and yet it is marvelous that there is so much of it in base-ball. When it is taken into consideration that the bat and ball are both round and that the latter is hurled towards the batter with great speed, not to speak of curves and shoots, the point of contact must be rather slight, and it is really to be wondered at that the ball is driven into fair territory as often as it is.

Fans growl about errors, but when one stops to think of it, it is remarkable that many of the hard-hit balls which hug the ground are fielded at all.

Balls travelling so fast that the eye cannot follow them are picked up clean while long flies, far from where the fielders are standing, are caught after long runs, because the fielder gauges the spot where the ball will fall long before it had started on its descent.

These are to the average lover of the game but ordinary plays, because fans have witnessed them for so many years. But they are remarkable nevertheless.

In foreign countries where the game is unknown, the uninitiated wonder not at the fielding of grounders, but when a fly ball is caught they have been known to cheer the fielders for what they thought a marvelous feat, and yet the catching of fly balls is considered the easiest thing in baseball.

CITY LEAGUE NOTES.

Both games to-morrow will start sharp on time. First game at two o'clock and the second contest at 3.30.

Join the Booster's Club. Every little bit helps. If you can't boost don't knock.

Mr. W. E. Talbot has donated a box of cigars for the first home run, but according to the statement of the different pitchers, no homers will be given to-morrow.

The grounds are in excellent condition, thanks to the dry weather which has prevailed lately.

Watch this P.A.C. aggregation from the south end. Jack Pilling will trot out some good ones.

There will be no delays caused by not having a sufficient number of balls. This matter has been well looked after.

It has been a long time since Danny McCabe has played or officiated before a Peterborough crowd. But he always did deliver the goods and the league executive is to be congratulated on securing such an efficient and capable umpire.

If his Worship Mayor Rush thinks it worth while to give the boys a helping hand, the fans should not be far behind.

There will likely be a few misplays to-morrow, but it won't be on account of indifferent playing. The fans can help it a lot.

Bill Shaw has been appointed captain of the Strathconas. Here's luck.

Give the young lads a chance. That is just exactly what the teams are doing. Some of the "kid" twirlers are be given a workout to-morrow.

The pitching of Kirn for the West Ends will be worth witnessing.

THE MAGIC OF HOUDIN

Remarkable Cleverness of the Famous French Conjurer.

HIS MOST WONDERFUL FEAT

A Mysterious Performance Before the Court of Louis Philippe That Was Probably the Result of a Subtle Bit of Psychological Reasoning.

A link connecting the names of Cagliostro, the great charlatan, and the French conjurer Robert Houdin may be found in a story that may be justly termed "The Most Incredible Feat of Magic Ever Performed."

In 1846 Houdin, then at the height of his popularity, was invited to St. Cloud to give a performance before the king, the royal family and court. The conjurer had only his young son as an assistant and could rely on no tricks of light or mechanism, as the exhibition was given in one of the drawing rooms of the palace. He finished with the following extraordinary performance:

Borrowing several handkerchiefs, he wound them into a package, which he laid on the table. Then he went about among the guests distributing cards on which were to be written the names of places to which it was desired that the package be invisibly transported. Houdin then handed the cards to the king, asking him to select three at hazard and from them choose the destination he liked best.

The first card read, "I desire the handkerchief to be found beneath one of the candelabra on the mantelpiece."

"That," said the king, "is too easy for the ability of a conjurer of the ability of M. Houdin."

The second read, "The handkerchiefs are to be taken to the dome of the Invalides."

"That," commented the king, "is better. However, it is much too far, not for the handkerchiefs, but for us. The third card suits me," said the king. "It is desired that you should send the handkerchiefs into the chest of the last orange tree on the right of the avenue."

Houdin expressed his willingness to attempt the feat, and the king whispered an order that immediately sent a group of attendants to guard the orange tree in question.

The conjurer placed the package of handkerchiefs under an opaque glass bell and then, waving a wand, ordered the package to proceed to the place chosen by the king. When the bell was raised the handkerchiefs were gone, but in their place was a white turtledove. A trusted attendant was sent to the orange tree to open the chest. He returned bearing a small iron coffer covered by rust.

"Are the handkerchiefs in this coffer?" asked the king.

"Yes, sire, and they have been there, too, for a long time."

"How can that be possible? The handkerchiefs were given you hardly a quarter of an hour ago."

"Yet it is so, and your majesty will be even more surprised when I prove that this coffer and its contents were placed in the chest of the orange tree sixty years ago. Deign to remove from the neck of the turtledove the key of the casket."

Louis Philippe unfastened a ribbon holding a small rusty key, unlocked the coffer, found a document bearing the seal of Cagliostro and read:

> This day, the 6th of June, 1786, this iron box, containing six handkerchiefs, was placed among the roots of an orange tree by me, Balsamo, count of Cagliostro, to serve in performing an act of magic which will be executed on the same day sixty years hence before Louis Philippe of Orleans and his family.

Beneath the parchment conveying this message was found a package containing what seemed to be the six handkerchiefs placed on the table a few minutes before. In his memoirs M. Houdin offers no solution for the mystery. A shrewd annalist has explained it as being no more than a clever bit of psychology on the part of the conjurer, who knew the character of Louis Philippe and knew him to be exceedingly clever in small things.—Bookman.

His Qualifications.

He was pleading his cause earnestly.

"I am wealthy," he said, "and could make ample provision for you."

She nodded and checked one point off on her fingers.

"I have had experience with the world," he continued.

She checked off another point.

"I have passed the frivolous point," he went on, "and I have the steadfastness, the age and the wisdom to guard and guide you well."

He paused for an answer.

"The points you make are strong ones," she said, "but they lead undeviatingly to the conclusion that you would make an excellent father for me. You have all the necessary qualifications, but just now I am looking for a husband."

Considerate.

"Have you done anything to earn the gratitude of the people?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "although they don't know about it. I have let them off of a lot of speeches I was tempted to make."

Thomas Mulvey, K.C., arrived in Ottawa yesterday to take up his duties as Under Secretary of State.

IT WAS NOT REFERRED.

When Lincoln's Words Were Turned Back Upon Himself.

General Robert Avery, who was wounded almost fatally at Chancellorsville and recovered just in time to lose his right leg at the hip on Lookout mountain, told an anecdote of Lincoln which shows the great president's appreciation of the fitness of things and his unfailing fund of humor.

"When I had recovered from the effects of the amputation," said General Avery, "a very dear friend of mine who had served long and faithfully as a regimental quartermaster was an applicant for a position as brigade quartermaster. He filed it with me, and after it had been properly briefed and indorsed I made it my business to put it before the president. There was a long line of people waiting to see Mr. Lincoln when I arrived at the White House, but, seeing I was a wounded man, he came over to me. 'I'll take my turn, Mr. President,' I said, and he turned to receive his visitors.

"The man ahead of me also had a request for an appointment—a letter which Governor Bramlett of Kentucky had indorsed 'Respectfully referred to President Lincoln.'

"'Governor Bramlett requests that I be appointed,' said the man from Kentucky. President Lincoln took the letter. 'Why,' exclaimed Mr. Lincoln, 'this doesn't show that Governor Bramlett requests anything. It says simply "Respectfully referred." That means he just passed it along. If you can get Governor Bramlett to request me I'll do it. "Respectfully referred" is only a polite way of getting rid of a person.'

"He was sitting at his desk at the time, settling lower and lower down in his chair until only his head seemed to show. I presented the papers of my friend. He read them and said, 'Why, yes.' Then he wrote on a card, 'Respectfully referred to Mr. Stanton,' the secretary of war.

"'This won't do, Mr. President,' I said to him. 'Why not?' he asked. 'Because you have just said to that man from Kentucky that "Respectfully referred" is a polite way of getting rid of a person.'

"The president slowly rose out of his deep seated chair until he looked seven feet tall to me, and then he began to laugh. 'You've got me,' said he, and then he wrote on a card, 'Appoint this man.'"—New York World.

THE BURYING BEETLE.

Dead Mice and Birds Secreted as Food For Its Young.

People often wonder what becomes of the dead mice and dead birds, for, though birds and mice are constantly dying in large numbers, hardly one is ever to be seen. The fact is that they are buried by beetles. Buchner gives a brief account of them as follows:

"Several of them unite together to bury under the ground, as food and shelter for their young, some dead animal, such as a mouse, a toad, a mole, a bird, etc. The burial is performed because the corpse, if left above ground, would either dry up or grow rotten or be eaten by other animals. In all these cases the young would perish, whereas the dead body lying in the earth and withdrawn from the outer air lasts very well.

"The burying beetles go to work in a very well considered fashion, for they scrape away the earth lying under the body so that it sinks of itself deeper and deeper. When it is deep enough it is covered over from above. If the situation is stony, the beetles, with united forces and great efforts, drag the corpse to some place more suitable for burying. They work so diligently that a mouse, for instance, is buried within three hours. But they often work on for days, so as to bury the body as deeply as possible. From large carcasses, such as those of horses, sheep, etc., they only bury pieces as large as they can manage."

There can be no doubt of the intelligence of these strange insects, as a gentleman discovered in a rather curious way. He desired to dry a dead toad, and for that purpose he fastened it upon the top of an upright stick. The burying beetles, however, were soon attracted by the smell, and, finding that they could not reach the toad, they undermined the stick, causing it to fall with the toad, which was then duly buried.—Our Animal Friends.

A Comforting Word.

A woman whose colored maid was assisting her in trying on a handsome new gown the other day got a shock when, after looking in the pier glass and admiring her really handsome figure as displayed in the new garment, she remarked to the girl:

"Julia, all I need now is a new face."

"'Deed, Mrs. Dyer," replied the colored girl, "I wouldn't worry if I was you. I saw a lady the other day no better lookin' than you are."—New York Press.

Time to Do Something.

Mrs. Mimms—Mary, it was 1 o'clock this morning when you got in. I heard you. Mary—Well, ma'am, if I was you I'd take something to make me sleep better. I took my shoes off down in the kitchen and didn't make no more noise than a cat would. I've been kind of worried about you for a good while."

Satisfied.

Mrs. Skowler—You will have to go, Mary. I can't put up with your impertinence any longer. I'm sorry I can't give you a recommendation. Mary—It's all right, mem. My leaving alive will be all the recommend I need.—Boston Transcript.

To Multiply by Division.

Everybody knows that learning the tens in the multiplication table is as easy as "pie" and that the fives are not much harder; but, slight as is the mental effort required in multiplying any number by five, it may be lessened still more by discarding the multiplier entirely and substituting a divisor instead. This may sound paradoxical, but by experimenting you will find that dividing by two will bring the same result as multiplying by five, provided you add a cipher to the quotient if the dividend be an even number or five if it be odd. For instance, if you multiply 2,734 by five the product is 13,670. What is still easier, divide 2,734 by two, which is done almost instantaneously; then tack on your 0 and you have 13,670.

Separate and Together.

First Seaman—I say, Bill, wot's this card?

Second Seaman—That's the saloon passengers' menu, of course.

"But wot does it mean?"

"Oh, it's a list of all the things they have for dinner—soup and fish and vegetables and meat. That's the difference between the saloon and the forecastle; they get them all separately and call it a menu. In the forecastle we get them altogether and call it Irish stew."—London Answers.

True Tale.

"My daughter gave us an awful scare the other day," said a caller last night. "She went away for a visit in New York. And she sent a telegram from Buffalo, her first stop. My wife was afraid to open it. We had visions of train wrecks, sudden illness and all sorts of things. And what do you think the message said? This:

"'I forgot to tell you—don't eat up all the strawberry jam while I'm gone.'"—Cleveland Leader.

As It Happens.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1909.

I KNOW A PLACE

I know a place where the skies are blue
And ever smiling,
With fleecy rifts where the sun shines through—
And so beguiling.
Where paths twist down o'er the watershed,
To canyons eerie,
Where I may sleep on a balsam bed
When I am weary.

I know a place where the rainbow trout
Cavort in numbers—
Where perch and shiners are all about
And bass encumbers
The fisher's creel and toothsome game
Doth fairly riot—
Where men but wait and they catch the same,
And never buy it.

I know a place in the forest, where
The moose herds gather—
Whence comes the king from his deep wood lair,
His mouth a-lather.
And pauses there for an hour or more
Head raised a trifle—
A beauty shot—and a sure one—for
The hunter's rifle.

I know a place that is perfect, quite,
And made for roaming—
Where sweet romance tints the stilly night,
From early gloaming—
Where primitive man weaves his magic there,
O'er lakes and boulders
And trackless woods. — But you ask me where?
In the railroad folders.

—John D. Wells in Buffalo News.

WHAT FRANCE ESCAPED

The man as well as the hour, according to the French press, has arrived for the expected revolution in France. The alarming way in which the leading organs of opinion in Paris speak of this new movement puts a very serious face on the matter. "The revolution is near," we are told. A new Robespierre is firing the minds of the mob. The electrician Pataud controls thousands, even hundreds of thousands of discontented men, who welcome with shouts his exhortation to use violence, to destroy property, to arm themselves and resist to the death the forces sent to repress them. Danton's name has somewhat flippantly been given by the French Government to one of their war cruisers, and Danton was a great revolutionary. The name of Pataud, according to the Soleil—Paris—is likely to be just as famous in the role of revolution. "Pataud may to-morrow be master of Paris," observes this paper in an article entitled "King Pataud." To quote further:

"Henceforth he is destined to be the most popular man in the revolutionary army . . . Those who are in earnest and have resolved not to lay down their arms until the bourgeois capitalists to the proletariat are looking for leaders more daring and more independent than the mere doctrinaires of socialism. It is thus that popular favor is all on the side of Citizen Pataud. He is the man who is greeted with acclamation at the meetings. If he does not compromise his good fortune by some inopportune blunder, he is likely to play an important part in the coming revolution. . . He is already celebrated, and his celebrity, if not of the loftiest sort, is nevertheless indisputable. His sovereign ascendancy has eclipsed all the lesser lights of the boulevard, and he is become a personage in Paris and a hero of the concert-halls. Yet he is not to be despised, for men who draw and lead the mob must have this rather vulgar popularity. A popular firebrand must necessarily be something of a charlatan. Citizen Pataud seems to have found this out. He takes care to be well advertised and knows how to pose in such a way as to attract attention and appeal to the imagination of the mob. But we must not believe that Pataud is merely a clever bluffer; he has much more serious qualifications. He is a powerful speaker, and is wonderfully successful in employing such language as will seduce his audience, carry them away, and convince them."

The writer goes on to discuss the question whether the revolution which he seriously predicts will place Pataud at the head of the Republic, but he refrains from prognosticating, and closes his article with the remark that Pataud should not reckon too much upon the support of those whom he may have led to victory. The history of past revolutions teaches us that the mob is fickle and ungrateful and "Pataud would be wise if he recollected that the Tarpeian Rock is close to the Capitol."

While Pataud is a mere workingman and no theorist like Karl Marx, he leads all the labor syndicates and unions of the country. He has openly proclaimed to the representatives of the Parisian press what his views and his plans are. He complains, according to the Humanite, Paris, that Mr. Clemenceau is trying by force to check the organization of labor among government employees; that this is neither more nor less than "a complot" "such as never before has been entered upon by the Government since the establishment of the Republic."

When questioned by a representative of the Humanite about the measures he proposed to take in resisting the Government, he remarked:

"It is by the destruction of property, by direct action, and by measures of violence that the people have hitherto obtained the best results. Are we now going to forswear such means? A thousand times, No!

"At the present moment the spies are tracking us even to the workrooms. This cannot last long. Let us arouse ourselves!

"All of our comrades must be armed, that we may resist by force, if need be, the brutes who are being armed against us. We will go into the streets prepared to retaliate every attack and to defend ourselves without mercy. From this moment, friends, do not make your demonstrations without being armed. You have your lives to defend."

The London Times speaks as follows of King Pataud's Labor Confederation:

"Its motto is Bien-etre et Liberte—Prosperity and Freedom—for the wage-earning class, of course. This motto places it at once in the forefront of modern civilization. The universal ideal and the measure of progress is comfort; the Confederation Generale, by boldly announcing it, gets in front of all the parties and policies which pursue the same ideal but lack the courage to say so. The method it adopts is 'direct action,' as opposed to the indirect action of parliamentary tactics; and here again it has the advantage in the eyes of its clients. Direct action means, in the first place, strikes with boycotting, sabotage, and other accessory measures directed against employers, including the state, and intended to damage and frighten them and wring concessions out of them. These are to lead up to the general strike, which is the catastrophe required to bring about the great revolution. The plan appeals by its simplicity and actuality; it is being carried out all the time with visible results, whereas voting at elections produces no results and leads to nothing."—Translations made for the Literary Digest.

SICK LIONS ARE SENT TO AFRICA

Trainer Says Decrepit Beasts are "Planted" for Tourists When Shows and Zoos Sell Them

Boston, June 2.—Two of the largest animal dealers of Europe, Calignart, of Naples, and Heggeman, of Berlin, are said to have been purchasing animals from the menageries and zoos of Europe for the last year and shipping them by devious routes to British East Africa.

According to Giovanni Locatelli, a trainer of animals, who arrived on the steamer Romanic from Naples, both Calignar and Heggeman have been buying aged animals for two years and shipping them to East Africa in the interest of some one who wanted to make that section a more popular hunting ground for tourists.

Locatelli says he was discharged from the employ of Calignar because a polar bear through some mistake which was laid on him was shipped from Malta to Port Melindi.

The trainer also says that he was in charge of a station at Malta, where the firms had been shipping large consignments of tropical animals. He transhipped them, he said, to Port Melindi, where they were liberated.

Aged lions, decrepit hippopotami, consumptive leopards, which had been in captivity so long that they would feed out of their trainer's hands, and several gnus all secured from the animal shows in Europe in exchange for better specimens were shipped to Malta.

Locatelli estimates that at least 100 large beasts have been shipped to the neighborhood of Mombasa by the two firms. He claims that he alone knew of the extent of the operations of the two firms and was alone in the confidence of both.

In support of his claims Locatelli, who came to America to seek employment in Canada, cites the unusual number of wild animals in the neighborhood of Mombasa.

He claims that the lions have wandered into the streets in the villages looking for food, and the natives have been amazed at their lack of fear and of ferocity.

SHOOTING HOT BISCUITS OVER HOME PLATE NEEDED TO MAKE HAPPY HUSBAND

Detroit, June 3—"A young woman at Vassar college recently put the shot 30 feet but a young man wants a wife that can shoot hot biscuits across the home plate," said Rev. I. Walker Malcolm in his sermon on "A model young woman" at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Sunday night. "Woman has no fixed sphere; by some men she is even regarded as a piece of bric a brac.

"To be a model, a young woman must be eternally feminine and possess all womanly qualities. Too many of today ape the masculine race. Why, you can go downtown now and buy a trouser dress. To be a model, she must be a thorough woman and when she is first married not be forced to go to the neighbors and ask the difference between a bed quilt and a wash tub.

"Our model young woman may not be able to play "Falling Leaves" so that it will sound like falling bricks but the tune that she will play on the washboard and sewing machine is much sweeter music. A model young woman should have a knowledge of cooking and housework.

"You go to make a morning call and a young woman answers your ring. Her hair is around her shoulders. She is about half dressed. In fact she looks like a bed that has not been made. She sits and pounds the piano and screams out "I'd like to be an Angel" while her mother is out on the back porch bent over a wash-tub. The mother is much nearer being an angel.

"A young woman cannot aspire to a high standard of noble womanhood without modesty. If a woman has lost her modesty it is only through divine grace that it can be reclaimed. Irreverence is the brand of ignorance. A young woman comes into the church and sits down. Then she giggles. She looks around her and says, 'Why, there is Em Jones on the second seat with her last year's hat on.' She giggles again. She tears the front leaf out of her hymnal and writes a note and hands it to a friend. She waits until her friend reads it, and then she giggles again. The front leaf is always put in a hymnal to write notes on.

"A young man who kisses the lips of a woman steeped in vice has blotted his character while the young woman has placed over his life one of the greatest of safeguards."

RUMOR WAS UNFOUNDED

One Was Circulating Yesterday That Johnny Smoke Won Foot Race

There was a rumor yesterday afternoon that Smoke had won the five mile road race at the Driving Park. The time, it was also stated, was 28 minutes flat.

No Indian by the name of Smoke started and how the rumor originated is a mystery. Parker's time was 27 minutes 12 seconds.

PARKER WILL RUN AT MATINEE

The next matinee of the Peterborough Turf club will be held at the Driving park a week from Saturday. Parker, the fast Indian who won the five mile race will start against fast company and as the Hiawatha man is looked upon as a likely one there will be considerable interest in the event.

RUNNING

DORANDO'S OPINION

New York, June 3— Dorando, the runner, gives the following interesting opinions of runners;

Longboat, in my opinion is the greatest distance runner I have ever faced. In the London Olympic Marathon he stopped after going abougt 18 miles. He says the heat affected him and he was forced to quit. His record shows his class as they say in America.

Longboat would be still greater if he devoted himself to his profession and forgot the wild and woolly path. His manager says he is a "bad Indian." He is hard to handle. For days before he has to be watched and petted like a spoiled child. He frets and becomes nervous. The night of his famous race against Shrubb I saw him in his room at the hotel before he started for the track. Longboat sat upon his couch.

"It is all very funny for you" he said. "But it is not funny for me. I must go out and do the running."

When told he could do anything he liked after the race, the Indian began joking and laughing and started for the track in the best of spirits. He was as happy as a child over a new toy.

"I had two races with Longboat and twice I met with misfortune. Longboat is a hard man to run in a two-man race. He is so much taller and his stride so much longer that it is hard for me to pace him. He is deceptive and it annoyed me.

The next shoot will be held on Thursday, June 17th.

W Murphy presented Manager Frank Chance with a check for $10,000 to be divided equally among the members of last season's team now with the club. 21 men will receive $455 each.

Chicago Americans defeated Philadelphia by 9-6 in one of the poorest games witnessed in the latter town this season. The home team used 18 players including five pitchers while Chicago used thirteen men.

HOT SHOT FOR THE WOODBINE

Crown Attorney Corley Says He Has Too Much Respect for Himself to Attend

Special to the Review.

Toronto, June 4.—In police court this morning during the trial of Jake Saunders, one of the Woodbine bookmakers, Crown Attorney Corley declared he had too much respect for himself to attend the Woodbine, and that the Ontario Jockey Club was a common gaming house. W. P. Frazer, secretary of the club, was ordered out of the box for being an unsatisfactory witness, and to prevent his arrest for contempt. The Jockey Club is fighting hard to defend forty-five bookies from the charge of gambling during the Woodbine meet.

How About it

Sporting Editor Review.

Dear Sir,—I see that Brown challenges Harrison for a walking match for a side bet of from one hundred to a thousand dollars. Isn't this rather large in view of the fact that a "benefit" had to be held? Where is the money going to come from? Who would risk such a large sum? Why would an intelligent person risk such a sum? I don't think the public take much stock in the proposition.

Yours,
KNOTT A WALKER.

THE ECLIPSE OF THE MOON

Same old Moon was Shinning Shortly After nine O'clock

The eclipse of the moon last night was one of the most successful ever held, and was witnessed by a large crowd. The earth put it all over the moon for some time, but the latter planet won out, and was shining beautifully shortly after nine.

According to temporal time the moon left the umbra at 8.45 and abandoned the penumbra at 9.14 3-16. The rotydendicity of the sedgment of the earth's shadow furnishes sufficient datum for comparing the earth and moon in size.

THE PARTRIDGE ARE HATCHING NOW

Sportsmen are hoping that the season will be favorable for the hatching of partridges that a good increase may be obtained. They are now on their nests and on Saturday last Mr. Hickson and Rev. Mr. Smith obtained a photo of a bird on her nest, that has turned out excellently, and also one of the nest of eggs, after she had left. Mr. Hickson takes a deep interest in nature and is thoroughly versed in the habits of game and fish. He has watched a cock partridge drumming, and authoritatively explodes the theory that the noise is made by the wings striking a log. They usually select a log, but it is not at all necessary, for he has seen a bird drum on a little knoll. The drumming is not a call to the female birds as sometimes stated, but is a fighting challenge to other males. The bird in preparing to drum, swells his neck, and flutts his feathers as if for a fight, and the drumming is made by the striking of the wings together in front of the breast, the bird being on tip-toes at the finish of the drum, the final noise being made by the tips of the wings in the air. Mr. Hickson is a frequent contributor to Rod and Gun, and will probably have an interesting article on partridge in due season.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

ANOTHER MOVE BY MR. J. R. STRATTON FRUSTRATED TO-DAY

Special to the Review

Toronto, June 5—One more move on behalf of Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., to defer trial of protest frustrated this morning. Grayson Smith asked for further and better particulars and for postponement of examination for discovery of Mr. Stratton. I. E. Jones opposed motion on behalf of Mr. Burnham.

The motion was dismissed without prejudice to any motion that may be made after the examination.

CANADIAN AUXILIARY TO GREAT BRITAIN'S NAVY

Montreal, June 5.—After conference of representation of English ships building firm with Hon. L. P. Brodeur here, the announcement was made on good authority, that Canada's auxiliary to the British navy will consist of ten cruisers, ten torpedo boats, ten torpedo boat destroyers, costing from three to five millions of dollars a year for the next five years.

NEW SUMMER PARK MAY BE OPENED

Crawford's Grove May be Made One This Season—Proposed to Run Boats From Street Railway Wharf--Negotiations on Now.

There is a probability that Crawford's Grove on the Otonabee will be converted into an attractive summer park this season. It is premature to announce that this is a certainty, but the Review has learned on unquestionable authority that if negotiations which are at present being carried on between the Peterborough Radial Railway Company and the Otonabee Navigation Company are carried through the park will be opened.

It is proposed to run a line of boats from the street railway wharf and the grove each evening. The boats in view are the Otonabee and the Water Lily. In case the park is established band concerts will be held there, and a summer vaudeville theatre or some other line of amusement inaugurated.

Crawford's Grove is only in the neighborhood of a mile from the street railway wharf, and would be an ideal summer pleasure place. There is no doubt that if the proposed arrangements materialize it will be extensively patronized by citizens in quest of pleasure and recreation.

EXPLOSION IN THE STOVE

Unpleasant Experience of Family Near Fenelon Falls—Gunpowder in the Firewood

Mrs. O. Miller, who is living on Mr. George Martin's farm about two miles from the Falls, had a rather unpleasant experience on last Sunday morning. While working at the kitchen stove there was an explosion, which blew the stove doors open and the lids off, and scattered ashes and coal around, but fortunately did no further damage. An investigation showed that a stick of wood had been loaded with gunpowder. A hole about an inch and a half in diameter, and eight inches long had been bored into the stick and powder put in, tamped down and the whole plugged with wood. The hole had been made rather close to one side of the stick, which probably accounts for the explosion not being very violent. The stick had been lying in the woodshed for some time, and it is difficult to account for its presence, but it is evident that somebody had been laying plans for a surprise party. There had been enough powder in the stick to have done serious damage under more favorable circumstances.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

IDENTITY IS FIXED

Body Found in River That of Elijah Armstrong of Cannington.

The body of the man found in the Otonabee river on Thursday evening, has been identified as that of Elijah Armstrong, who came to Peterborough from Cannington several years ago.

J. J. Lintick, a farmer from Fowler's Corners recognized the remains at Belleghem's this afternoon. Armstrong had been working for him and left there a few days after Christmas, coming to Peterborough. Mr. Lintick did not hear of him after that.

Armstrong was about sixty years of age, was married, but his wife is dead. He has a son but he can not be located.

Mr. Lintick identified the body by the clothes.

RIVERS ARE FLOODING IN THE WEST

Traffic is Blocked as Result of Washouts on Railways—Three Persons are Drowned

Calgary, June 5.—Washouts in the mountains near Revelstoke have almost paralyzed traffic, and no transcontinental train has come through from the coast since Wednesday, and there may not be any before Monday next. Passengers cannot be transferred, owing to the nature of the washouts.

The Great Northern Railway has suffered quite as badly as the C.P.R. owing to the terrible freshets following the hot, rainy spell. The damage seems to be very general throughout British Columbia, and the fruit men, lumbermen and ranchers will lose heavily.

Destruction at Fernie.

Fernie, B.C., June 5.—Elk river has risen suddenly, and is carrying destruction all along its tortuous banks.

West Fernie is inundated, and Fernie annex is in danger, and the flood is the worst in years. Two unknown men were drowned at Waldo, in an attempt to cross the river, and three dead bodies have been seen as they were swept through here. One of these has since been recovered further down, but is not yet identified. Both the Elk River and Fernie lumber companies have lost much property, and a great boom of logs above here is likely to go out at any moment. If this should break it will likely carry out the railway bridge here, which would mean the suspension of traffic westward.

The thick ice fields forced the steamer Almeeons to put into the Bay of Bulls, Nfld.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley will have the finding of the Landry Commission reviewed.

HOT DEBATE ON HIGHER CRITICISM AT LONDON, ONT.

Rev. Dr. Manning of Windsor, However Tells Young Ministers That Practical Methodist Clergy is Free From Higher Critics—Reports of Increased Expenditure at Montreal Conference.

London, June 5.—In his address to eleven budding ministers at last night's session of the London conference, Rev. Dr. Manning of Windsor, declared that the Bible was to-day what it always had been and always would be. He farther declared that there were no higher critics in the Methodist ministry. He said:

"I haven't much to say about the Old Testament. Some people profess to know the origin of the books of Moses, but no man that reads and thinks can have lived as many years as I have without knowing that he must keep some things in solution. I am not a higher critic. I am prepared to say that there is not a man in the practical ministry of our church who is a higher critic. The Bible is what it always has been and always will be."

In the morning Rev. Richard Hobbs stirred up a new theology discussion when he remarked:

"The higher critics tell us we must be liberal in our interpretation of the Old Testament, and conservative in our interpretation of the New, but these are two horses no one can ride at the same time. When they discredit my Lord, and my Lord's testimony as a teacher, and tell us that He knew no more about the Old Testament than any teacher of His day, so that all He said about Moses was wrong, I take exception to it.

"I challenge Mr. Hobbs' right to make such remarks," said Rev. J. E. Ford of Lucknow, "unless we are allowed the privilege of presenting the other side.

"If my Lord is not allowed to be the supreme authority in all scriptural interpretation, I'm going to start sawing wood for a living," declared Mr. Hobbs.

"Mr. Hobbs can take to the tall timbers as soon as he wishes," said Rev. J. H. Oliver of Sarnia. "I prefer going westward to preach the gospel on the plains. I think much of this discussion has been an effort on the part of the preachers to supply copy for the newspapers."

Mission Expenses Large.

Pembroke, June 5.—A deficit in connection with The Christian Guardian, the official publication connected with the Methodist Church, and an intimation that throughout Canada women are now too often taking the place of men in business offices, stores and schools by the new president were among the items at the Montreal Methodist conference yesterday. As many deputations are waiting on the conference and as the reports are more numerous than usual, the committees will have to work extra to-day.

The economical management of the home missionary department came in for considerable discussion, following the report by Secretary Rev. James Allen of Toronto. Rev. Geo. Clendinnen of Ottawa said he did not think the claim could be made, as was made some years ago, that the department held the record for economical management. Rev. W. H. Sparling said he had come across level-headed business men who had demurred at giving to the fund because the operating expenses, the cost of distributing the money, was so excessive.

Rev. E. Thomas made particular reference to the young people's forward movement, at the head of which is Rev. Dr. Stephenson, and said that that branch was very highly manned and abnormally high percentage of the money received was paid for advertising.

After a free and frank discussion a resolution of appreciation, and confidence was passed.

Dr. Chown on Moral Reform.

Belleville, June 5.—The feature of yesterday's sessions of Bay of Quinte Conference was an address by Rev. Dr. Chown on the work for temperance and moral reform throughout Canada. He hoped to see Brantford and Peterboro carry local option laws next year.

Dr. Chown also delivered a rap at race track gambling. He did not believe in the "scum of American blacklegs" coming to Canada and robbing the hard-working class of all their money at every race meet. In a couple of years he expected to secure strict legislation again race track gambling.

He referred to social conditions of "the Ward" in Toronto and suggested securing an expert sociologist to study conditions.

The simplification of the catechism and a restraining of the doctrine in it was the recommendation made by the Sunday school and extension committee, also a suggestion that no Sunday schools be closed during the summer months. These will be sent to the general conference for consideration. To show loyal support to the Lord's Day Alliance, the Sabbath observance committee suggested that every pastor severely criticize pleasure indulged in on Sundays by motoring, boating, bicycling and fishing.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

An Alleged Dynamiter.

Sudbury, June 5.—Isadore Bourassa, farmer and market gardener, is under arrest, charged with dynamiting the residence of F. F. Lemieux, barrister, last July. The information was furnished by Philbert Bouffard, a hired man, to whom Bourassa is alleged to have admitted the crime. He comes before Judge Kehoe on Tuesday next.

Alderman Sold Horse to City.

Montreal, June 5.—Before the civic commission yesterday it transpired that Ald. E. Guin had sold a horse to the city through a third party. Mr. Richardson, who keeps a moving picture place, said he had contributed $200 to Ald Proulx's election, the picture shows keeping open on Sunday. The object of the donation was to keep away the police.

Mustn't Block Soldiers.

Winnipeg, June 5.—A temporary settlement of the case of Motorman William McIntosh, charged with obstructing the parade of the 90th Regiment, was effected by Magistrate Daly fining McIntosh $5. Daly declared he had no doubt the militia were entitled to precedence on the streets. An appeal will be taken.

Depends on Canada.

London, June 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In reference to negotiations proceeding between Britain, United States, Russia and Japan, for a conference on pelagic sealing, it is stated, that the participation of Britain depends upon the view held by Canada, which alone is immediately interested in the question.

Fog Bound.

Hamilton, June 5.—About 90 pleasure-seekers who went out on the Turbina last night to take part in the water carnival held under the auspices of the 13th band, had not returned to port this morning at one o'clock, owing to fog.

Inland Revenue Inspector Retired.

Cornwall, June 5.—W. W. Mulhern, for the past 30 years, inspector of inland revenue at Cornwall, has been relieved of his duties, and the office, it is stated, will in future be looked after by an official of Prescott.

Thaw Stays In Asylum.

New York, June 5.—Harry K. Thaw must remain in the state asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan under the decision rendered yesterday by the appellate division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

Three Men Drowned.

Montreal, June 5.—Three young men of Grand Mere, working for the Laurentide Paper Co., on the Mattawin river drive, were drowned a couple of days ago. F. Boisvert, P. Juneau and M. Desrosiers were trying to cross the river between the two falls in a boat, but the current was too strong, and carried them over Little Grand Mere Falls. An inquest will be held.

Ottawa Woman Suffers Indignity.

Ottawa, June 5.—Mrs. Herman Gunn of Ottawa, who is employed in connection with the Union Mission, left Thursday for Stirling, Mich., to visit her mother, who resides there. At the border she was stopped, questioned severely and detained for some hours in the immigrant pen, after which she was put on board a train and returned home.

Mann's Chauffeur Arrested.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 5.—Geo. Seagel, chauffeur for D. D. SUFFRAGETTES GETTING ACTIVE

They are Trying to Influence Lady Laurier and Mrs. Borden at Ottawa

Ottawa, June 5.—The women suffragists of Ottawa, perhaps owing to the presence of Miss Keegan, a handsome young English woman, who has spent a term in a London jail as the result of one of the famous anti-Asquith demonstrations, are becoming somewhat more militant, and next week will collect their forces in their first open-air venture.

Acting upon Miss Keegan's information that the English suffragists have found resolutions fruitless, they will begin to press their views home. Foiled in an attempt to drag Sir Wilfrid Laurier and R. L. Borden into a lengthened correspondence, though the latter nearly fell a prey at the second letter, they this week turned their batteries upon the wives of the two leaders.

From Lady Laurier they secured a message of sympathy and Mrs. R. L. Borden sent the same. This they followed up by requesting Mrs. Borden to give them her mansion and grounds for their use for demonstration purposes. She was obliged to refuse politely.

This has only added fuel to the flames, and at a meeting yesterday a more warlike spirit was manifested, the result of which will be made known next week.

EARL GREY HAS SAILED FOR OLD COUNTRY

Quebec, June 5.—His Excellency the Governor-General left for England yesterday afternoon by the Empress of Ireland, which carried the largest saloon passenger list, together with a big second-cabin and steerage passenger contingent, that ever left on any one steamer in the St. Lawrence trade. The Empress of Ireland was dressed in all her flags and bunting in honor of her distinguished passenger, and a large crowd of citizens congregated at the pier to do honor to His Excellency and see him off.

THE TOYS AWAKE

This great spectacular production had its first rehearsal in the Grand yesterday afternoon and everything went with a swing that assures success. The play is based on an old German legend of the toymaker of Nuremberg; the scene is laid in Toyland and the event is the anniversary of the Queen's birthday. The young Prince of Charmingland visits the court and wins the hand of the beautiful little princess and carries her off to his own land.

We copy from the Tampa Morning Tribune and Galt Reformer:

"The Toys Awake," at the Casino on Thursday night delighted the audience beyond all expectation. No description can do justice to the charm and radiance of this performance in which 200 children of this city took part and much credit is due Miss Adams and Mr. Ford for the wonderful results of their training.—Tampa Morning Tribune.

"The picture presented at "The Awakening of the Toys" in the Opera House last evening was a most charming one, and the large audience which had gathered to see the performance was delighted with the entire programme. The decided opinion of those who saw the performance last evening was that "The Toys Awake" was the best children's play ever seen in Galt."—Galt Reformer.

PRESBYTERIANS PUT QUEEN'S AFFAIR OVER FOR A YEAR

After a Long Discussion Assembly Decides to Appoint a Commission to Settle Whether Queen's University Shall be Free From Church Control—Principal Gordon's Resolution is Passed Unanimously.

Hamilton, June 5.—What the moderator, Rev. Dr. Lyle, described as a happy conclusion to a difficult question, was reached by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday, when, by a unanimous vote, the subject of the relationship of Queen's University to the church was referred to a commission, who shall confer and co-operate with the trustees of the university regarding the constitutional changes proposed, and report to the next assembly. It was made clear that in taking this course the assembly was not committing itself to any of the changes suggested. The adoption of Principal Gordon's motion simply meant that the question involved is too vital to be disposed of without the fullest consideration, and that before being called upon to remove any of the denominational restrictions at present imposed upon Queen's by its charter the church should first have the benefit of the judgment of a commission, after full inquiry in co-operation with the trustees of the university.

In the afternoon the assembly was afforded an opportunity of expressing its warm appreciation of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and of listening to inspiring speeches upon the work of that remarkable organization by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., representing the Canadian Council of the movement; Hon. W. A. Charlton, the chairman of the Presbyterian section, and Mr. Anderson, the secretary, as well as by Principal Gandier, Rev. Dr. Bryce and others. The enthusiastic reception accorded to Messrs. Rowell and Charlton was the assembly's spontaneous tribute to a movement which by resolution it subsequently formally endorsed.

Between the afternoon and evening sessions the commissioners attended a garden party given by Mrs. Hendrie.

Foreign missions night is always an occasion of great interest, and in the evening the large Central Church was crowded by an audience eager to hear the story of the Christian harvest in foreign fields. There were no fewer than nine speakers, these including Dr. Morton, the veteran missionary from Trinidad, and his wife; Rev. E. A. Fraser, a stalwart Scot, also from Trinidad; Mr. S. B. Behold, who is laboring to such good purpose among the Jews in Toronto; Mr. Jonathan Goforth and Dr. Waters, an earnest young medical missionary from Central India.

MR. PUGSLEY

The evil effects of bad associations is apparent in the enthusiasm with which the Examiner takes up the defence of Mr Pugsley. Possibly it is a fellow-feeling that has made it so "wondrous kind." However not all the whitewashing the Examiner can do will be of avail in this case. Mr. Pugsley's innocence rests upon the supposed turpitude of that great Acadian judge, Mr. Landry, a man who stands as high in the maritime provinces as any of our judges here. And we are not so sure that the Examiner is helping Mr. Pugsley by defending him. It does not do for some people to appear in court at all. At any rate one thing is pretty certain that at no time in its history has Canada been burdened with such a load of the unwholesome in high places. Our life seems to have sunk to a low plane whatever the cause. We see clergymen, even, one moment appraising a man at his admitted "worth" and the next playing straight into his hands. For what purpose!

"The attacks upon Mr. Justice Landry, made in and out of Parliament, by the friends of Mr. Pugsley, are not proving as effective as their authors may have hoped. Outside of New Brunswick people who remember Judge Landry when he was in politics, and people who have learned something of Mr. Pugsley's record, pay no attention to the assaults. In New Brunswick where both men are well known and especially among the Acadians, who control the vote in several constituencies, the attacks upon the Judge are resented not only as unjustifiable, but as insulting. The report of the Central Railway Commission over which Judge Landry presided, hurt Mr. Pugsley; the foolish way in which it has been sought to meet the statements of the report has hurt him more. Mr. Pugsley in his present position is one of Laurier's mistakes."—Montreal Gazette.

GOOSE ISLAND ROADWAY

There can be no question that the treatment of the citizens living along the west side of Water street, opposite Goose Island, is arrogant in the extreme. These people pay taxes the same as anybody else, but their complaints are paid no attention to. The eastern bank is made a dumping ground for all sorts of unsightly refuse. At the rate the "filling-in" is being done the ghastly process will continue for years. It is not fair to the residents living there whose comfort and property are both infringed upon by the dumping. It must be remembered that the high-handed treatment of city residents has a very bad effect upon the reputation of the city, and while people hesitate to go to law to protect their rights it will be done some day, to the chagrin and annoyance both of the council and the ratepayers. We are informed that many complaints have been lodged and many more have appeared in the public press, but the same irritating indifference is shown toward the complainants, who are gradually getting into a frame of mind that will bring repentance to somebody.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A local gentleman will give notice shortly that he is prepared to give a prize to match the biggest fish story of the season. Don't all speak at once.

Now that sewers are the rule, the old well is being dug out and made use of once more. There is no water like good well-water. Some day we may bat artesian wells, and then—

"Now that a learned professor has said that Moses is not the name of a man and that an earthquake destroyed Sodom a statement may be expected at any moment that Eve handed Adam a lemon instead of an apple."

The days are gradually working into that warmth of summer which makes the flowers to bloom, the grain to grow, the fruit to ripen and people to hurry to the summer resort, where it is still hotter but the young fry can play in the open.

A great shout of laughter has arisen over a mistake the Globe has made. It attacked the Whitney administration for not putting an embargo on the export of pulpwood, and commended Quebec for so doing, whereas Quebec has but imitated Ontario.

Having wastepaper and scraps picked up day by day is one of the best advertisements for the city and one of the most sensible provisions for the pleasure and comfort of the citizens made in the history of local municipal government.

The season for the grouping of the young and the fair in picnic parties is also at hand. Picturesque costumes, and pigeon pie go well together both having an excellent effect upon the descendant of him whose wife handed him a lemon in the Edenic days of long ago.

The Provincial Treasurer has placed the balance of his seven million loan, for the construction of the Provincial Railway, with the banks and financial institutions of Toronto. The amount was $1,150,000, and in the form of four per cent. thirty year bonds, the Treasurer netted par. One good feature is that the province owns the property constructed by this money. It does not hand over the road to a set of private speculators.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

This looks uncommonly like a slap at the G.T.P. policy of the Laurier Government. It is true all the same.

OF INTEREST

A Lay Ministry

"Is there any way of reconciling the intellectural freedom and sincerity of the clergy with the Church's need of a definite theology?" asks Father Tyrrel in the Contemporary Review (May), discussing the "Problem of the Dearth of Clergy."

"There is, I venture to think, just one; and though it is one that none of the churches will consider for a ment, yet it may at last be forced upon them by the increasing dearth of clergy, coupled no doubt with an increasing dearth of laity. It consists in putting the clergyman in the same position of freedom towards his Church as is enjoyed by the layman, who normally adheres to his Church just so far and so long as he cordially accepts her teaching; and whose temporal career is in no wise affected by his theological opinions.

EXTENDING THE DIACONATE.

"Already it is proposed to meet the growing dearth of clergy in the English Church by an extension of the diaconate; that is, by committing some of the functions of paid professional clergy to lay volunteers who get their living by some trade or profession, and give some of their leisure to the service of the Church. Such men will obviously be delivered from every suspicion of preaching their Church's doctrine for any interested motive. Should their theological convictions change, they will be perfectly free to lapse into silence or to ventilate their convictions elsewhere.

CLERGY AS TRADERS.

"Again, under the present financial pressure, many of the French clergy have been driven to various forms of honest trade in order to earn their livelihood. Trade was forbidden to the clergy in an age when usury was regarded as a sin, and when work itself was considered unworthy of the followers of the Carpenter of Nazareth and the tentmaker of Tarus. That age is passed, the dignity of labor is established for ever. Nay, more, the day is at hand when every man who fails to contribute in some verifiable way to the temporal welfare of the community will be regarded as a drone and a thief: 'If a man will not work neither let him eat.'

"Thus mere financial pressure is pointing the way to the true reconciliation of clerical candour with doctrinal Churches; and to the restoration of the layman's confidence in the disinterestedness of his spiritual guides.

CORRUPTIVE INFLUENCE OF PRIESTS.

"If the history of religions has taught us anything it is the universally corruptive and decadent influence of a priestly class, whose pecuniary interests are affected by certain doctrines and practices. Nor has Christianity been an exception. The existence of such a class has called forth innumerable and ineffectual crusades against simony, mass-traffic, benefice-hunting, pluralities, and other exhibitions of clerical avarice.

"It has been the occasion of various vain efforts to return to the industrial, self-reliant poverty of the apostles. It has given rise to the mendicant orders, of which each has quickly tumbled into the slough from which it hoped to deliver the Church. Not one of these reforming efforts has dared to go to the root of the matter; to recognise the permanent and universal inexpediency of living by the altar; to cut off the very appearance of evil. And as a consequence the sincerity, the spontaneity, the disinterestedness of the clergy has been widely corrupted, and still more widely suspected of corruption.

EXAMPLE OF THE IRVINGITE CHURCH.

"The example of the Irvingite 'Catholic and Apostolic Church'—in this, and in so many points a reproduction of what we might call 'primitive Catholicism'—at least proves the possibility of a priestly class that has no pecuniary interests to serve by its ministrations. Here are men who earn their living in the sweat of their brow, and serve the altar gratis with their leisure; men who speak because they believe and under purely spiritual constraint; men who are protected from all suspicion of self-seeking. I do not say that the vast majority of the paid clergy are not equally sincere; but that all are not—one might say, cannot afford to be—and that the rest are consequently exposed to a suspicion that seriously damages their interests. 'A soft billet,' is a working-man's characteristic estimate of the clerical profession. Heaven knows it is anything but soft in most cases. yet the narrower income may be even a greater bar to moral freedom than the wider.

"It is then conceivable that the priesthood instead of being a trade or profession should be a voluntary side occupation of men who gain their living like other citizens and devote their leisure to the service of the church.

"The obvious objection that men so occupied in winning their bread would have neither time nor undivided attention for the work of this ministry may be met without much difficulty. As to time, the easy multiplication of ministers on this economical system would lessen the demands on each. Work that would take one man all his time would take twelve men but a part of their leisure. As to attention; what a man does con amore, as part of his leisure and diversion is done with far more pleasure and zest than the work by which he earns his bread.

"The professional gardener or carpenter goes heavily to his daily task whereas the city clerk looks forward to his gardening or carpentering when he returns home in the evening. It is performed heavily, perforce, as a profession and means of livelihood, it becomes sterile and fruitless. Also, concentration is not an unmixed blessing. It tends of itself to narrowness and poverty of outlook. A rotation or, at least, an alternation of interests is necessary for mental vigor, and freshness.

"What is duller than the exclusively clerical mind? Under this system every cleric would have at least one practical human interest; one tie to the daily interests of his non-clerical fellow men; while the collective ministry would embrace the whole body of such interests. We should not have to listen to men acquainted with the world to whose spiritual needs, they pretend to minister. Furthermore the advantage to personal character of such practical labor has been recognized by many of the ancient religious orders as well as by the most recent ethical philosophers.

SHE COULD NOT HOLD A TEACUP

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. Jas. H. White

They Took Away Her Backache, Cured Her Urinary Trouble and Made Her a Well Woman.

Preveille, Gaspe Co., Que., June 4. (Special.)—After suffering for four years from ills, which many a woman knows, and being treated by a doctor who failed to give her relief, Mrs. James H. White, a farmer's wife living near here, is again a well woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"My trouble started from a strain," Mrs. White states. "I had a drum always across my back and a steady pain in the back of my neck, and I had urinary trouble that caused me a great deal of annoyance.

"For four years I suffered in this way and the doctor I consulted did not do me any good. In the morning I was dizzy and I finally got so nervous I could not hold a cup.

"Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I got relief right from the start. Three boxes cured me completely. To-day I am a well woman."

Mrs. White's troubles were Kidney troubles. So are the troubles of nine out of ten of the suffering women of Canada to-day. That is why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure them.

HOUSE BURNED IN BOBCAYGEON

Home of Mr. Jack Hurst Near the C.P.R. Depot is Destroyed by Fire

Bobcaygeon, June 5—A fire in Bobcaygeon last evening destroyed the home of Mr. Jack Hurst near the C. P.R. depot and threw the whole village into a state of excitement. The insurance was $400.

A spark from the stovepipe in the summer kitchen started the conflagration The house was roughcast, and proved an easy prey to the flames.

The fire bell rang fifteen minutes after the blaze was visible, according to authentic reports and it was another ten minutes or so before the brigade arrived with the fire engine.

Meanwhile the neighbors had rendered valuable aid in getting the furniture out of the burning dwelling. Very little was lost and everything including the stovepipes were taken out.

The blaze from the burning house cast a ruddy glare over the entire village and could be seen for miles.

Mr. Hurst is a clerk in Bottum's hardware store, is married and has a family of three or four children.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

BRANTFORD TEMPERANCE FORCES AT WORK.

The city of Brantford, like Peterborough is in the midst of a local option campaign. The temperance workers of the city observed Sunday last as "Temperance Sunday." Special services were held in all the churches both forenoon and evening and a monster mass meeting was held in the opera house in the afternoon, which was presided over by the Mayor of the city. It is probable that next fall a similar series of meetings will be held in Peterborough.

At Brantford the local clergy and workers were assisted by others from outside points among whom were Rev. J. G. Potter of this city, Rev T. A. Rogers who took a prominent part in the Owen Sound campaign and Rev. Thomas Cowan who figured conspicuously in the Toronto Junction fight.

Mr. Potter's part in the day's programme is thus referred to by The Expositor;

Rev. J. G. Potter

Very forceful, inspiring and encouraging were the addresses given by Rev. J. G. Potter, BA, of Peterborough, who spoke in the Congregational church in the morning, the mass meeting in the afternoon and at Zion Presbyterian church in the evening. The campaign for local option is now on in Peterborough, and Mr. Potter gave some pointers for Brantford, workers, his addresses creating a great deal of interest in the large congregations who listened to him. The speaker has strong convictions, and gave many stirring instances of the evils resulting from the traffic and the power of Christ to redeem men from its bondage.

In Owen Sound

In its report of the afternoon meeting the Expositor has the following;

Rev. T. A. Rogers, of Owen Sound described himself as a citizen of no mean town as there were 12,000 people there, the majority of whom believed in the God who rules over all. The vote there last January on the local option question has been called small, but when the nature of the antagonists was taken into consideration it was not so. The whole power of the liquor traffic in Ontario was arrayed against the local optionists, and $20,000, it is said was spent there on the day of voting. All reports from the substantial citizens say that Owen Sound as a result of local option is one hundred per cent better than before it came into force. Captains of the C.P.R. steamships, the Y.M.C.A. secretary and the merchants of the town all state that conditions there were never better.

Backbone, Not Wishbone

"What we want in our men is backbone, not wishbone," was the cry of Rev. J. G. Potter, of Peterborough in a splendid address. Many citizens, he pointed out wish for the success of the cause but they don't go out and sign the ballot for it. The law is for the free people, and their will the government is only too willing to carry out. There are two phases to the local option movement. The money is taken by the bar-room, when it should go to the stores of our city. But of more value to a community than mere money are the homes of its citizens for the bar is responsible for much of the misery in ruined homes. It is for Christian people to decide."

AN INSTRUCTIVE RECORD

A correspondent of the National Prohibitionist gives some interesting information concerning the results of prohibition in Worcester, Mass. During the year ending May 1, 1909 as compared with the preceding twelve months. The statement contains a great deal of information among which is the following comparative table, giving the total number of arrests for the last year of licenses and the first full year of prohibition;

	License	No License
Arrests for drunkenness...	3924	1843
Arrests for assault and battery	382	263
Arrests for larceny	343	256
Arrests for neglect and non-support	112	87
Arrests for disturbing the peace	210	109
Alcoholic Ward, City Hospital	274	144
Deaths from alcoholism	30	6
Deaths from all causes	2560	2128

THE FIRST YEAR

The city of Rockford, Ill. with a population of about 55,000 people voted out the liquor traffic in April of last year and has now had the experience of a year of prohibition after the experience of a license system under which fifty-five saloons were in operation paying fees of $1000 each. The number of arrests for drunkenness for the first year of prohibition was 334, as against 706 during the last year of license.

A number of newspapers have been expressing their opinion of the changed conditions that have prevailed under the new law, and two sample statements are contained in the following paragraphs the first of which is taken from the Daily Register, a Republican paper and the second is from the Morning Star, which supports the Democratic party;

"One year ago today the regime of a saloonless Rockford opened, and the most enthusiastic advocate of license will admit that the showing made during the past twelve months is a strong argument in favor of a continuance of the system."

"Rockford's first year as a city without saloons came to a close last night and the reports which have been made from the police records show that while the absence of the saloon has not done away with all the drunkenness it has cut the work of the police to less than one-half as far as looking after drunks is concerned."

HOTELMAN GOES TO JAIL

Those people who have been claiming that it would be useless to introduce local option in Peterborough because it was possible to secure liquor at Lakefield, which is now under local option must have been interested recently in the fine that was imposed on one of the hotel keepers in Lakefield who was caught selling liquor.

It is a very dangerous matter for hotelmen or for any other persons to sell liquor in local option districts. This is shown by the fact that many hotel keepers have been sent to jail who have attempted it. This week, James Simpson, the proprietor of one of the hotels at Kinmount, a local option village, was sent to jail for four months' hard labor by Magistrate Moore, of Lindsay, for selling intoxicating liquors. In order that he might be detected, the Government used two Armenians as spotters.

The law now requires that a hotelman who is convicted a second time, of selling liquor in a local option district, must go to jail for four months without the option of a fine. That is what will happen to the hotel keeper at Lakefield if he continues to break the law.

LAST MEETING OF THE SEASON

Of Boys' Club of Knox Church Held Last Evening

The last meeting of the season of Knox Church Boys' Club was held last night. Three classes of the Sunday school were entertained, the teachers being Mrs. Roger, Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Sherwood. Mr. Wm. Shepherd as social president, occupied the chair in his usual pleasing and jocular manner. He invited those present to make themselves at home and enjoy themselves. A solo was rendered by Mr. A. C. Davenport. The chairman called upon Mr. McKenzie for a few words. He spoke of how the club had prospered, and what it was doing and the bright future that lay before it. The speaker reminded the members that a room for the club was to be erected on the building of the new church and he asked for their support in this matter.

Many games were enjoyed, ice cream and cake was served.

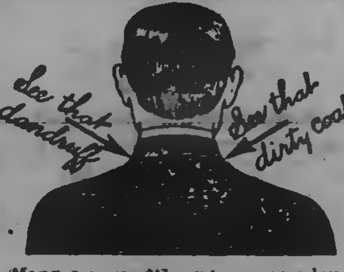
A fine evening was brought to a close with the national anthem.

DOG NUISANCE IS HERE AGAIN

Lawns, Flower Beds and Gardens are Damaged by These Animals

Now that the citizens have put their lawns in shape for the season, and taken considerable pains in planting and arranging their flower beds, they are face to face with the annual dog trouble. There is always a big vigorous cry at this season of the year about the dogs, which run at large, tearing up lawns and boulevards, and destroying the flower beds. The little plot of ground in the garden newly-planted also suffers, and the dogs are called upon to receive some very unflattering names by the one who has to put up with the damage. The demand in towns and cities is general that the municipal authorities shall pass and enforce a by-law prohibiting the running at large of dogs for the summer, or for the growing season at least. It is a sensible demand and one which ought to be enforced.

A Filthy Condition



Many a man, otherwise scrupulously clean is dandruff dirty. The small persistent germs of dandruff working all day as well as night are constantly throwing off the small white dandruff scales which falling on the shoulders of a coat gives it a filthy appearance, which is repulsive to the friends of the victim.

Many men allow this condition to exist because they believe there is no cure for dandruff; they have tried various so-called cures with unsatisfactory results and naturally condemn all.

The famous prescription called Parisian Sage now put up in America, but only by the Giroux Mfg. Co., of Buffalo, NY. It is for sale in Peterborough by Wm. Madill druggist, who guarantees it to cure dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed to do more; it will make short, thin hair, grow long, lustrous and luxuriant; it will stop hair from falling out; it will cure all diseases of the scalp. W. Madill guarantees it —every bottle of it. The price is only 50 cents and if you want to stop the filthy dandruff flakes from lodging on your coat and disgusting your friends, get a bottle at once.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

THE OLD FLINTLOCKS.

They Seem to Have Done Some Rather Tolerable Shooting.

"These old shooting irons," said a man from Virginia, who was examining an old flintlock rifle, "always have my profound respect. Our grandfathers and great-grandfathers did their hunting with them and used them in our two victorious wars with England. They were always good weapons and are now, if they are equipped with a good stock and a good lock. They could do fine service. Any man who was any sort of a marksman could do effective work with them in their day. This fact was well illustrated in an incident that happened several years ago near Richmond. The story was printed in some of the leading newspapers in Virginia and was the cause of much interest.

"There was an old farmer residing in one of the peninsular counties who was coming on the cars to Richmond and had with him one of those old fashioned weapons. In the train he got into conversation with a small party of gentlemen, who expressed much interest in his old rifle, and the farmer told of some rather extraordinary feats of marksmanship that he had performed with it.

"Finally he was persuaded to give an exhibition of his skill with the old relic, and a trial came off at Rocketts in the presence of a few gentlemen. The old flintlock was fired seven times and only missed the mark once. At first the old man fired it at some small objects—to get his hand steady, so he said. Then the old fellow handed to his son, who had every faith in his father's skill, a large potato and stationed him at fifty yards distance, holding the potato between his thumb and forefinger.

"The rifle cracked, and the potato was split into several pieces. Another shot was made at the bowl of a pipe which the boy was smoking, and the bowl was smashed. Several other shots were made at various objects, but in trying to hit a copper cent that was tossed in the air the marksman made a miss. He was considerably mortified at this and laid the blame on a bystander who sneezed loudly at the critical moment, but made another attempt, which was successful.

"The old man then declined any further trials of his skill and when offered a sum of money to repeat his feat of shooting a potato from his son's hand refused, saying he didn't care to experiment any further unless his weapon was freshly cleaned. The boy was willing, but the old man was obdurate. The young man showed not the least anxiety during the dangerous experiment upon himself."—Washington Post.

A Necessity.

"Twenty dollars for retrimming your hat!" exclaimed Mr. Madison. "But we agreed to spend nothing except for things that were positively needed."

"Well, John, this is. You see, my best friend has just had hers retrimmed, and I have promised to go with her to the concert on Friday."

"Oh, all right. But I can't give you more than fifteen this morning, because I broke my meerschaum and must have it mended."

"Can't you smoke your old brierwood?"

"Certainly, dear. And you can wear your old hat."

"John, let's begin to economize next month after we get things all straightened out."

"All right."—New York Herald.

LITTLE MISS NIGHTY IS ON THE STAIRS

With lips of laughter and tousled hair,
Little Miss Nighty with bare feet stands,
On the borderworld of the slumber lands,
Waiting to sing through the even-light
The soft reverie of her sweet good-night,
"Good-night, good-night, good-night to you;
Good-night, good-night to all;
Good-night, good-night, dear skies of blue!"
"Good-night!" the echoes call.

Little Miss Nighty, ah, see her trip
To kiss good night in the nighty slip;
The ringleted gold of her tousled head,
Her laughing eyes and her lips of red
Bare of feet on the stair she stands,
Kissing good-night with her dimpled hands:
"Good-night, good-night, good-night to dad;
Good-night, good night, sweet dreams
Good-night, good-night, dear heart and glad;
Good-night, the twilight gleams.

Little Miss Nighty has flown from me;
She has sailed away on the slumber sea;
Little Miss Nighty is tall and fair;
But I see her still on the little stair,
Laughing and singing — a phantom sweet,
With tousled hair and the bare pink feet.
"Good-night, good-night, good-night my dear;
Good-night, good-night, my love;
Good-night, and may God's angels hear
Where they sing good-night above.
—Baltimore Sun.

BROUGHT HOME TWO DOZEN BIG LAKE TROUT

A party consisting of Messrs. Ed. Huff, Dickson Best, Frank MacPherson and Ald. Buller have returned home from a fishing trip to Lake Ketchecum. They were three days on the jaunt and brought back with them twenty-four trout which they took from the clear, cool waters of Ketchecum. None of the trout, is is said, weighed less than three pounds. The four gentlemen had a very enjoyable time.

OVERTAXED NERVES A DISTRESS SIGNAL

The Trouble Can Only be Cured by Enriching the Blood Supply

When your nervous system is exhausted the trouble makes itself evident in many ways. You feel always fatigued and unfit for work. Severe headaches distract you; your back is weak; you sleep badly; your appetite is uncertain; you are nervous and irritable, and after any exercise you tremble and perspire excessively. If the trouble is not checked your case goes from bad to worse until you feel that your condition is hopeless and that insanity is threatened.

Your nerves are calling for help. They are starved because they demand from the blood more nourishment than it can supply. New rich blood is the secret of nerve strength and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure nervous disorders because they feed the weak, exhausted nerves with rich, red blood. The case of Mrs. Emma Hall, of Hamilton, Ont., furnishes proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most stubborn cases of nerve exhaustion. Mrs Hall was left a widow and was forced to work in a mill to maintain herself and her two little children. She bravely faced the battle of life, though she had never had to conform to such conditions before. Notwithstanding the splendid spirit she displayed the work played havoc with a delicate constitution, and some years ago Mrs. Hall noticed signs in herself of a nervous collapse. She consulted a doctor, who gave her some medicine and told her she "would be all right in a few days." But relief did not come and it was finally a daily occurrence for her to faint at her work. These fainting spells quickly developed into pronounced hysteria and chronic irritability, and Mrs. Hall says that death would have been a relief. She consulted several doctors, but got no help, and she felt that she was almost bordering on insanity. In this condition she was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Grasping at even the possibility of help she decided to do so. After taking three boxes she actually found some improvement, and from that time on the improvement was steady and increasing daily until after a few months she felt the cure was complete. She says;—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done what doctors failed to do and what I myself thought was impossible. They have freed me from the terrible trouble I suffered, and my old joy in life has been renewed." When Mrs. Hall began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she weighed only one hundred pounds, while under her renewed health her weight as increased to one hundred and thirty pounds.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be had from any dealer in medicines or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOBO SLEEPING IN CATTLE CAR

Was Lying on the Straw Bedding and Was Deep in Dream Land

Peacefully oblivious to the cares of the world, a hobo was noticed sleeping in a cattle car on a siding off the Grand Trunk Belleville line on the east side of George street. The car was one of the "openwork" variety and the man was lying on the straw bedding in the bottom and he seemed to enjoy it just as much as a spring mattress. Passers-by did not disturb his slumbers. The car was an unclean ed cattle car.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterborough a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin running; simply this, more families will of necessity move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase in other words prosperity is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing homes will do well to see J. CITY DID NOT GRANT THE REQUEST OF THE RESIDENTS

Who Wanted Sidewalk on Benson Street on Outside of Tree Line—Board of Works held Meeting Last Night—Several Deputations.

The Board of Works met last night and had a busy session. The tour of inspection during the day provided plenty of work and many matters were considered. Those present were Ald. Phelan, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Bradburn, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Gillespie and the City Engineer.

DEPUTATIONS.

Mr. R. J. Kidd presented a petition from a number of residents on Benson street, asking that the proposed new pavement be built on the outside of the tree line.

This matter has been up before.

Mr. Kidd was accompanied by several of the residents of the vicinity and stated that they were all in favor of having the walk outside the tree line.

Dr. Pentland made a few remarks regarding the grading of the street. The residents would undertake to do the grading under the supervision of the City Engineer.

BROCK STREET WALK.

Rev. Canon Davidson and Mr. Coulthard were a deputation from St. John's church regarding the building of a new sidewalk on Brock street on Brock street, between Sheridan and Brock streets. Canon Davidson pointed out that St. John's congregation did not want the proposed sidewalk built on the south side of Brock street at the rear of the church. They were in favor of having a walk from Sheridan street to the walk leading through St. John's grounds and also towards the west of the church in a similar manner. There were strong objections to having the sidewalk in front of the church grounds. People would congregate on the sidewalk on band concert nights and would likely wander onto the church grounds and cause damage. Other objections would suggest themselves. There was no demand for the proposed walk.

Mr. Coulthard spoke briefly in a similar strain to Canon Davidson.

Ald. Phelan said the matter would be taken up by the Board of Works.

Mr. A. E. Dixon was present in reference to the Downie street creek, representing a couple of property owners interested. One client said that he wanted the city to carry out their promise which was made a couple of years ago to allow him a piece of the street in exchange for his granting a right of way through his property for the drain.

It was stated by Ald. Duncan, that no permission to build on the street was ever given.

The chairman said the board could do very little this year.

Mr. Dixon said he did not wish to force any expense upon the city this year if the city would give him a deed for that part of the street the house is on he would give the city a deed for the property.

Mr. Dixon was told to have a petition sent in with all interested parties on it and the board would report to them at once.

The Benson street sidewalk was then taken up and after a long discussion it was decided that the walk should go on the inside of the tree line. The city engineer and superintendent of the waterworks reported against putting the walk on the outside of the tree line. The chairman of the Water Commissioners, Mr. W. H. Moore, KC. reported that the commissioners had no objections to the walk going on the outside so long as it was at least a foot from the water main.

Ald. Buller and Ald McIntyre moved that the walk be laid outside the tree line providing the property holders' terrace their lawns and replant the trees.

This motion was defeated and the walk will go on the inside of the tree line as laid out by the engineer.

Complaints were made against the street watering done by Z. Blodgett. A number of these complaints were received. The city engineer wrote to Mr. Blodgett and told him he would have to pay $5 for not doing his duty properly.

Several of the aldermen backed up the complaints and there was quite a row about it. There has always been complaints against the man and he has refused on several occasions to water certain parts of his territory.

Ald. Buller moved that Blodgett be summoned to appear before the Board of Works on Monday night to explain his neglect of duty.—Carried.

MORE POLES.

The city engineer reported that he had examined the pole lines marked out by the Peterborough Light & Power Co., which includes 33 new poles.

The aldermen could not see why the two companies could not arrange to run their wires on the same line of poles wherever this was possible.

The Otonabee Power Co. also asked for permission to erect fourteen more poles.

Ald. Bradburn moved that the power companies be granted leave to place poles where necessary, and where no poles now are. In cases where either company has a pole-line that they be told to arrange to have two sets of wires on one line of poles. —Carried.

Moved by Ald. Buller and McIntyre, that no power lines or electric light wires be strung on the same side of any street on which the fire alarm wires are strung.

GAS MAINS.

The Peterborough Gas Company asked for permission to lay gas mains on certain streets. The engineer reported on these and recommended that they be granted and that the company leave the streets in the same condition as they found them. The request was granted.

AN ELM TREE.

A letter was read from Mr. C. H. Clementi stating that a big tree in front of his place had caused him a lot of trouble and cost him considerable money. The roots blocked the sewer and he had to replace it twice. The last time it cost $10. He thought the city should pay half the cost and also allow him to cut down the tree. No action was taken.

The Ashburnham water fountain will be fixed up permanently this summer.

Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Gillespie moved that the cheque of $200 from the government for the sewer built last year to the Normal school be put into a special account.

Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Buller moved in amendment that the money go to the Board of Works.

The original motion was carried by a vote of 3—2, but the chairman said the money had been paid into the Board of Works account already.

Ald. Bradburn moved that the council give the Board of Works authority to purchase a horse for the dump cart, and that crushed stone be placed on the streets and also that the loose stones on the streets be raked off. Ald. Duncan seconded this and it was carried.

COMPANY INSPECTION OF THE 57TH BY MAJOR GEN. LAKE

Company inspection of the 57th Regimental Rangers was held last night. The inspecting officer was Major General Sir Percy H. N. Lake, O.M.G., chief adviser to the Militia Department of Canada, and he was assisted by Lieut.-Col. Hemming, of Kingston, chief officer for Eastern Ontario, and Lieut.-Col. Huard, of Kingston. General Lake's aide-de-camp.

The regiment was first inspected on parade in line, followed by the march past, and the rest of the evening was taken up in company and section drill.

The signallers transmitted a message for Lieut.-Col. Hemming during his inspection of the corps. Two hundred and sixty-two turned out, including both bands.

Three Low-Priced Favorites

DAINTY SUMMER DRESSES

There are times when an expensive Lingerie Dress would be out of place— say when you are camping out or on a holiday trip down the river, on the lakes or anywhere you may seek for a rough-and-ready day's outing; then the plainer and less expensive the garment the more real comfort and pleasure is experienced. Get away from the frills and laces and try the pleasures of the "don't-care-if-I-do-soil" kind—the kind that will wash and laundry well.

THESE three lines represent some of the lower priced garments in our stock—they're not sternly plain yet they are not over trimmed, but neat and dressy; striped Perçale Jumper Dresses in pretty one piece styles neatly trimmed with valenciennes lace in dainty effects. Price $4.48.

Serviceable Chambray Dresses in two shades blue and two shades of grey, fine quality material, modestly trimmed. These are all made in the popular one-piece style. Price $3.50.

This line is a very special value in Lingerie one-piece dresses, made of good quality French Mull and trimmed with honiton lace in the Princess style. It comes in white and mauve only. See this line to-night. Price $5.00.
